CANADIAN BRITISH M.P. APPOINTED TO POST

London, May 23 (C.P. Cable) — Francis Douglas, a native of Wakopa, Man., who was elected to the House of Commons six weeks ago, today was appointed parliamentary private secretary to the parliamentary secretary to the Board of Education.

Mr. Douglas, who is 47, left Canada with his parents at the age of 10, was the successful Labor candidate in the North Battersea by-election to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of W. S. Sanders, Labor.

The greatest new comedy team, Joe E. Brown and Martha Raye co-starred in Paramount's rollicking film, "$1,000 a Touchdown," now at the Capitol. On the same bill "Covered Wagon Days."

Poison, Used by S. American Indians On Arrow Heads, Now Used by Doctors To Restore Insane Persons to Normal

Cincinnati, O., May 23—(AP)—Insane persons are being restored to normal with one of the deadliest poisons known to man.

Dr. A. E. Bennett of Omaha, Neb. told the American Psychiatric Association today that curare, used by South American Indians on their spear and arrow heads to kill men and animals within a few minutes, can now be prescribed safely in medical treatment.

Curare serves as a preliminary drug in the shock treatment of persons suffering from schizophrenia and other mental diseases.

Dr. Bennett and his associates had been searching for such a drug since it was found that patients treated with metrazol for schizophrenia and other mental ailments developed violent reactions in which they threw themselves about wildly and frequently broke their bones.

Experiments on animals showed that Curare caused a mild and short-lived relaxation of the muscles during which the Metrazol shock treatment could be given and the patient would lie quietly in bed.

Dr. Bennett described the drug as a "tailor-made shock absorber for conculsive shock therapy" during which the patient is jarred out of his abnormal mental state with Metrazol. "A number of cases can now be salvaged that formerly could not have taken the treatment," he said.

BOMBERS CONTINUE TO HARASS ENEMY

LONDON, May 23 (CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that Royal Air Force bombing planes had continued to harass enemy columns in Northern France yesterday.

A Ministry communique said:

"Royal Air Force bombers continued to harass enemy columns in Northern France yesterday.

"Our fighters were also heavily engaged throughout the day.

"During the night enemy communications were heavily bombed in the Sedan area and in southern Belgium, whilst further attacks were made in Germany on railways carrying military traffic towards the battlefield."

The attacks on German communication lines were the second in two days announced by the Ministry. Last night it was announced that on the previous night raids had been made on the German main line of commuications between Namur, Dinant and Aachen.

TRENTON POLICE QUITE ACTIVE

Alleged Subversive Elements in Trenton Rounded Up and Remanded in Custody

Trenton, Ont., (Special)—Frank Lenek, 32, of Montreal, alleged to be an enemy alien was lodged in Hastings County jail by Trenton police officers today when it was said he was unable to give satisfactory explanation regarding his presence in a prominent industrial plant at four o'clock yesterday morning.

Lenek was formerly charged with vagrancy and was remanded until May 28th.

Investigation of Lenek's history revealed to police that he hails from Montreal, where his address is given as Nobert Street. He allegedly failed to give police a plausible explanation regarding his presence inside the plant, and was promptly arrested. Later, the officers discovered, that Lenek had not been granted permission by Montreal police authorities to leave that city and proceed to Trenton.

The statement allegedly made by Dafoe Noble to the effect that he hoped "Hitler would win the war" brought a charge of a breach of the Canada Defence Regulations, and his subsequent lodging in jail to await a hearing.

The alleged statement is said to have been made by Noble in a public place. Prompt action of Chief Bain and his officers who have shown marked activity during the past few weeks regarding subversive elements, brought Noble to the attention of the officers. Noble is said to have made a statement to the officers following his apprehension.

NORWEGIAN ARMY SCORES SUCCESS

In Region of Lofolin Islands Forced Germans From Mountain Strongholds

London, May 23—(CP)—A series of Norwegian Army successes in the still bitted fighting in northern Norway was reported today in a Reuters News Agency dispatch.

The dispatch, quoting a Norwegian communique from "somewhere in Norway." declared::—

"Wednesday—in the region of the Lofoten Islands (opposite the Artic iron ore port of Narvik).. Norwegian troops today conquered Lilleballak and Kobbefjeld and forced Germans down from the mountain of Layau between Killeballak and Kuberget.

"Nothing to report from South Haalogaland."

Sir Oswald Mosley, Fascist Leader, Taken To Scotland Yard

London, May 23 (CP)—Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, accompanied police to Scotland Yard today.

Five police officers had waited for him outside his flat.

Earlier, his "British Union" headquarters had been raided by detectives on a hunt for Fifth Columnists, and a man and woman arrested.

AIR RAID WARNING

London, May 23 (CP)—An air raid warning was sounded tonight in a town on England's southeast coast.

Pursuit planes went up immediately.

A brief air ministry announcement said "an air raid warning was sounded in East Kent early this evening."

Merchant Shipping Losses of Germans 820,000 Tons

London, May 23—(CP)— The Germans have now lost more shipping tonnage through Allied action than the Allies have lost as a result of German action, authoritative naval quarters said today.

Five additional transport and supply ships sunk by the British Navy in the last few days brought the total German losses to 820,000 tons in merchant shipping alone, or about one-fifth of Germany's pre-war total.

Most of the vessels lost are those best suited to keep German forces in Norway supplied. The Germans have also lost ships equipped to bring vital iron ore supplies from northern Sweden.

Most of the British shipping losses have been made up by capture, charter, and new construction. But this is far from being the case with the Germans.

WALL STREET

New York, May 23.—(AP)— A little darker tone to the war news halted an early rallying swing in today's stock market. Many gains running to 3 points were subsequently chipped down to minor fractions or converted into losses. Near the fourth hour prices were well mixed in virtually all departments.

Among resistant stocks were American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Kennecott, North American, Du Pont, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of N.J. and International Telephone.

Among Canadian issues McIntyre dipped slightly while Canadian Pacific and Distillers held steady. Dome Mines, Hiram Walker and Lake Shore were stationary. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, gained a bit.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 23 (CP)—Stocks pushed higher in the early session on Toronto exchange today and index gains up to $1.40 were showing at noon. All four indices were higher at mid-day but the bulk of the gains were lost in the early afternoon when prices slipped off in the wake of a New York market decline. Volume was about normal at 284,000 shares for the first three hours.

Gains of a point or more were scattered throughout the industrials when the rally was at its peak. Senior oils were again strong along with the utilities, steels, papers, foods and liquors.

Base metal shares moved up in the early action but failed to hold. Steep Rock touched 1.50 and then sold back to 1.35 for a net loss of 9 cents. Smelters and Nickel boarded minor net losses.

Toronto Produce Prices Unchanged

Toronto, May 23 — Generally unchanged prices ruled during yesterday's session of the Toronto open produce market. Trading continued light in both butter and cheese. There will be no session Friday, Victoria Day.

The egg market maintained a firm tone as arrivals of fresh receipts cleared readily. Quotations remained steady in both sections, but premiums of 1 cent per dozen were obtained on Government-inspected shipments.

Though current supplies were not heavy on the butter market, offerings were sufficient to cover local requirements. Buyers apparently are already stocked up for the approaching holiday and the demand is expected to be light until next week. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids moved at the previous level of 22¾c per pound.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, May 23 — Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First-grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24c-24½c; first-grade solids, jobbing price, 23¼c-24c.

Eggs — Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price: "A" large, 23½c; "A" medium, 21½c; "A" pullets 19c; "B", 21½c; "C", 18¼c. (Government inspected lots, ½ cent higher.) Receipts, 4,534 cases.

FRENCH FIGHT

Temporary Advantage

The battle, along the Scheldt River, showed temporary advantages for both sides. At one point the French, a military spokesman said, fought their way down to the outskirts of Cambrai, territory from which they had been pushed earlier in the week by German armored columns moving west.

South of the salient, moving from their stabilized line along the Laon River, other French forces were en route north fighting their way from the St. Quentin neighborhood toward the Cambrai battlefield.

A halt in withdrawals of the French, British and Belgian troops from their lines in Belgium, north and west from this main battleground, was implied in military reports, according to the authoritative newspaper Le Temps.

In Rear of Scheldt River

The extreme left wing of the Allied armies, which swung into Belgium on the day of the German invasion, has taken up positions in the rear of the Scheldt and Scarpe Rivers and the troops face south and southeast against the German forces which are swinging on the Channel.

The Department of Marine announced the loss of three ships.

The naval losses were the 548-ton submarine Doris; the 1,378-ton torpedo boat L'Adroit and the supply ship Le Niger, 5,482 tons.

High Command Communique

The Admiralty gave no report on the crew of the Doris, which normally carried 40 men, but said all members of the crews of the other two vessels were rescued.

"All other vessels frequently attached by planes, many of which were shot down, continue to participate in the operations," the Admiralty announced.

The high command's communique said:

"In the north the battle continued with the greatest violence.

"It is confirmed that we have driven to the outskirts of Cambrai.

"Artillery combat has become Attigny, Longuyon and to the front, particularly in the regions of D'Attigny, Longuyon and to the north of the Nied River."

The military spokesman estimated the Allied aerial forces had brought down "at least 1,000" German planes since May 10.

Won More Than They Lost

The operations in the Cambrai region, the spokesman emphasized, resulted from the withdrawal yesterday of French troops from the northwestern outskirts after German attacks.

Later in the day, however, French units counterattacked and "won back even more than we had lost," the spokesman said.

The activity was described as "the biggest part" of "a great battle now in progress along the Escaut (Scheldt) River north of the city."

Some 50 miles north of Cambrai the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium said that the Germans had forced a crossing of the river near Audenarde.

Violent artillery action in the Longuyon, Attigny and Nied River sectors, at the northwestern extremity of the Maginot Line, "may be the forerunner of a German attack," the spokesman said.

Confined to Gunfire

Activity in that region at present, he said, is confined to gunfire.

Stabilizing French lines along the Somme and Aisne Rivers remained unchanged during the recent operations, he said.

German penetrations in scattered areas between Arras and the Somme, he explained, were purely local and resulted in failure to establish consolidated positions.

Small units of motorcyclists, he said, pushed ahead to their own bases and between French groups where there has been no continuous line formed.

But French detachments engaged these Nazi units in skirmishes, often forcing them to retreat with losses, he added.

The chief wall of defence against the Nazi invaders ran from Rethel, on the River Aisne, west and north of Amiens, on the Somme.

25 Miles from Liaison with British

But at the same time a French army said to be moving north from the St. Quentin region was reported only 25 miles short of effecting liaison with British, French, Belgian and Netherlands units withdrawn from advanced positions in Belgium.

The French forces in this operation appeared to be trying for a sword stroke to sever light German scouting forces to the west of the Escaut (Scheldt) River.

The German westward drive to the sea had been carried as far as Abbeville, at the mouth of the Somme. But this push, French authorities declared, was executed by light enemy units, which were "chased out" of Abbeville yesterday when the French also recaptured Arras.

Heartening for an anxious nation was last night's statement from the War Ministry that "our troops are holding the German push at all points."

ARMS FACTORIES

Recapture of Arras

As the arms factories went on a seven-day week it was announced he would address the executives of all trade unions in a big meeting Saturday to explain what contributions will be expected from labor.

Military commentators said the recapture of Arras by the Allies from Germans striking toward the channel may prove to be the turning point of the great battle raging in northern France.

The result of a British counter-attack between Arras and Douai, 15 miles to the northeast, was not immediately learned here. London sources said that the British front held everywhere in yesterday's fighting, and that casualties were not heavy.

The Air Ministry announced that British bombers had pounded military objectives in raids extending from Rhenish Prussia to northern Belgium and caused havoc to lines feeding the German offensive.

Expect Weygand to Strike

It was expected here that General Maxime Weygand, the new Allied land generalissimo, would take the first opportunity to strike the German left flank extending along the Somme and Aisne Rivers.

The public welcomed the dictatorship government as signalling the end of what has been called the "muddling through" policy and it asked only why such full-length measures had not been taken sooner.

Without a murmur people heard that the government could move the population from any town in a vulnerable region, commandeer houses and cars without argument about remuneration, put a $10,000-year executive at work digging ditches at a laborer's pay or in fact do anything it desired.

The House of Commons, acting with the same swiftness as it had in enacting the emergency powers measure within two hours, also passed a bill providing the death penalty for treachery. This gives the government sweeping powers to put before firing squads "Fifth Columnists," helping the enemy or obstructing the government's war efforts. The Times described it as an act against both citizen and alien traitors.

Temper of British Public

The public's good-natured toleration of anti-war agitation appeared to have vanished suddenly. In a by-election for the Middleton and Prestwich seat in the House of Commons Sir Oswald Mosley's stop-the-war candidate, Frederick Haslam, polled only 418 votes against 32,036 for Lieut. Ernest W. Gates, Conservative.

Last Sunday an angry crowd attempted to reach Sir Oswald, chief of the British union, a Fascist organization, and brother-in-law of Unity Mitford, Adolf Hitler's friend who was brought home wounded from Germany a few months after the war broke out.

The public temper is displayed now in newsreel theatres showing pictures of German raids on the Low Countries. Audiences hiss pictures of German prisoners arriving in England.

Press Unanimous in Approval

The press was unanimous in approving the new temporary Churchill dictatorship which means that if emergencies prevent a meeting of parliament the government can act alone.

The government moved first to take over all principal munition and aircraft factories and every source of supply for urgent war orders. Workers in trades not essential to the war effort are to be transferred to war work as rapidly as practical.

With men being called up for army service, women will play a vital part in industry, especially in aircraft production. Union leaders and employers agreed that women may qualify for the same rates of pay as men.

ROGERS PRAISES

He counselled courage in the face of the present grave war news.

Must Face Facts

"Serious as the situation is," he said, "we may be sure the Allied peoples will not give way to panic or hysteria. Let us face things as they are. Let us realize the gravity of the position in which the Allied armies are placed but when that is done let us not fail to hold firmly to the essentials."

The French army had not been broken and the French spirit remained as steady as it ever was. The British army, the subject of heavy attacks, also was unbroken and full of vigor while the Royal Air Force had proved its superiority over the Germans.

"In these circumstances it is our duty to examine the means by which we can give immediately increased aid to the Allied cause," said Mr. Rogers. "This is being done as rapidly and as exhaustively as possible. Not a minute must be lost in pressing on our preparations and in increasing the weight of our contribution."

Meantime, he added, discussions between the Canadian and United Kingdom Governments, begun either before or during his recent trip to England, are being continued in the closest relationship.

R.A.F. DESTROYS

"Late last night only six British fighters taking part in yesterday's air battles had not returned.

"The pilot of one of these machines which crashed in France was unhurt and is now safely back in England."

Other engagements listed by the Air Ministry credited eight British Hurricanes with attacking 35 Nazi Junkers, shooting down six and damaging three more.

"During this battle, one of the British pilots lost touch with the remainder of the squadron.

"While making his way home alone, he was attacked by nine German Messerschmitt 109-type fighters. Twisting and turning, the Hurricane pilot escaped into a cloud, but as he came out he found himself close to a German fighter.

"The Nazi plane was "dispatched," the announcement said, by a burst of fire from the Hurricane's eight machine guns.

Six Hurricanes attacked 20 Messerschmitts over Hazebrouck (west of Paris) and shot down two of them.

Ten Hurricanes attacked 15 Messerschmitts at Saint Omer, shot down and destroyed four and probably another two.

Eleven Hurricanes encountered 24 Junkers near the same area, the announcement continued, and shot down four definitely and probably another three.

Another patrol shot down six German Henschels and probably a seventh. Three German Heinkel 111-type planes were said to have been shot down over northern France by a squadron of Blenheim long-range fighters.

TREACHERY BILL

The existing laws on treason, he explained further, applied to all British subjects and all foreigners domiciled in territories under the crown's jurisdiction. However, legal experts had informed the Home Office that these previous laws, based on "the doctrine of local allegiance", could not in full justice be applied to foreigners entering the United Kingdom secretly for the purpose of undertaking sabotage, espionage and other acts designed to hinder national defence.

All Classes Aliens Equally Liable

"It is obviously desirable that all classes of aliens resident here should be equally liable to the death penalty if they commit offences of this kind," Sir John added. "That is the first reason why fresh legislation has been thought necessary.

"The second reason is that the procedure described the Treason Acts dates back to the 14th Century and in some respects it is out of harmony with conditions in which we find ourselves at the present time."

Sir John said that any enemy alien liable to the death penalty may be sentenced by a military court but any British subject or neutral alien indicted under the Treachery Bill retains the right to ask for a jury trial.

"This is the moment for swift and drastic action," Sir John declared. "If any justification is needed for the proposals in clause 1 of this bill, the grim realities of our present situation provide in themselves justification without any further argument.

"I believe the bill to be necessary. I feel sure it will strengthen the hands of the authorities in dealing with the grave acts of treachery at which it aims, and I am confident it will command the support of all quarters of the House."

MANUFACTURERS

and support of industry in speeding up the national war effort."

A clothing firm with plants in Toronto and Montreal volunteered to work through tomorrow's holiday without overtime and the offer was accepted.

An Ontario aircraft firm wired: "Our plant is working a 10-hour day a week. Eveybody cancelled all holiday arrangements in eagerness to comply with your requirements. Additional shifts will be started when increased supplies of material arrive and sufficient men are trained."

Another wire from a Winnipeg airplane manufacturer said: "We will be glad to co-operate with your department in every way possible," and another Ontario plane company said "We are acting immediately."

The announcement stated these wires were typical of replies received from manufacturers of all kinds throughout the country.

Wording of Appeal

In his appeal, Mr. Howe said: "Urgency of immediate requirements necessitates all contractors manufacturing munitions of war, particularly shells, ammunition, explosives, weapons and gauges, working day and night shifts including holidays and Sundays, until further notice."

This is in line with statements by members of the government, particularly Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Mr. Howe, that the war effort would be speeded up in every way possible

The government's assurance came at the same time when Members of the House of Commons and Senate were demanding a general increase in Canadian activity.

In the Commons, these demands came from Opposition and government supporters alike, who returned to Parliament fresh from a general election and said their people were insistent on this move.

Members of the Conservative Opposition in the Senate urged a speed-up in industrial production in the course of the Throne Speech debate, which ended yesterday.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative Leader in the Upper House, led the appeal for expansion in the production of war materials in Canada, especially in tanks and other automotive equipment.

Senator John T. Haig from Winnipeg and Senator J. B. Black from Sackville, N.B., also urged increased tempo in war industry in the manufacture of tanks, aircraft and such naval vessels as submarines and light cruisers.

All Let in Canada

Total contracts let to May 15 amounted to $275,000,000 with $200,000,000 placed on behalf of the Canadian government and $75,000,000 for the British Government, according to the report Prime Minister MacKenzie King gave the Commons last Monday. With the exception of contracts for 50,000,000, all have been let in Canada.

Twenty shipyards are engaged in production of 90 war vessels and while the Prime Minister stated that production was well in advance of scheduled time, Mr. Howe's request would apply to these shipyards.

Nine thousand motor vehicles, costing $14,000,000, are on order and 3,000 of these already have been delivered overseas. War munitions are being manufactured at cost of $80,000,000.

The Prime Minister said in his Commons speech: "The Department of Munitions and Supply, with the assistance of the wartime prices and trade board, has taken every available step to protect sources of outside supply and isure against shortage of raw materials.

and reconstituting the combined front."

Mr. Churchill spoke only two minutes in the briefest war statement yet made to the House of Commons.

Text of Statement

The text of Mr. Churchill's statement:

"The German armored forces which made their way through the breach in the French army have penetrated into the rear of the Allied army in Belgium and are now attempting to derange their communications. Abbeville is in enemy hands and heavy fighting is proceeding around and in Boulogne.

"It is too early yet to say what the result of this coastal fighting may be but it evidently carries with it implications of a serious character. Meanwhile, General Weygand, who is in supreme command, is conducting operations involving all the Allied armies with a view to restoring and reconstituting their combined front."

Rotterdam Nerve Centre Now a Mass of Debris

By LYNN HEINZERLING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rhenen, The Netherlands, May 23 (AP).—Ruins in proud Rotterdam and the crumbled Dutch defences tell the story of the shattering impact of Germany's mechanized army and the devastation rained from the skies by the Nazi Stukas, (dive bombers).

I have just completed a three-day tour of The Netherlands battlefront in which I have seen the destruction of modern war.

The nerve centre of Rotterdam—a square mile of what once was the business and financial district of Holland's most prosperous seaport—is a mas of debris, heaps of bricks and mortar and twisted beams and girders.

Two miles east of here stands what was the southern point of the Grebbe defence line—a wooded hill which overlooks the approaches to Rhenen.

Evidence of Hard Battle.

Now the woods are littered with the equipment of war, pock-marked with shell holes and ripped by machine-gun fire. Along the road there is evidence of a hard battle—hastily dug holes, smashed equipment, discarded arms.

No one can agree on how many bodies may be buried beneath the Rotterdam ruins. German authorities say the business area was cleared of civilians before the Stukas began their deadly work. But one air force officer estimated there must be "several thousand" dead.

(The Netherlands Legation in Paris announced Sunday that more than 100,000 were dead in Rotterdam.)

The official toll of wounded is set at 354, while unofficial casualty lists run as high as 10,000.

The 28,000-ton liner Statendam, one of the largest in the Dutch merchant fleet, still is smouldering in the harbor. She lay alongside Noordereiland (North Island), in the centre of Nieuwe Maas (New Meuse)

'MORE SHELLS, GUNS AND TANKS' ARE CALLED FOR

Britons Will Cut Down Leisure, Comfort, Blot Out Private Aim for Sake of Victory

UNITED EFFORTS

London, May 23—(CP)— Three members of the government in broadcasts Wednesday called upon all Britain to work at war speed to back up the troops at the front.

Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, explained the new Emergency Powers Bill put through Parliament earlier in the day and said that the events of "the next few weeks or even the next few days of the war will be vitally important."

Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, said the situation is grave, perhaps graver than at any time in the last war, but "that does not mean defeat is on the horizon; the war will be won by the Allies and won all the sooner for the perils and sacrifices being laid upon them now."

The third speaker, Herbert Morrison, Minister of Supply, called for "more shells, more guns, more tanks" and said the civilian population must accept "a sterner way of life than we have been used to."

Reference to Parachutists

A former cabinet minister, Leslie Hore-Belisha, argued in an address that the anti-parachute force which is being organized from civilian ranks on a war-time volunteer basis should instead be formed of "the best troops you can provide." He said the possibility of invasion "is by no manner of means a sideshow."

Sir Robert Kindersley, President of the National Savings Committee, said in a broadcast that Mr. Attlee had empowered him to assure the public their savings were not affected in any way by yesterday's act putting the banks and financial structure under direct government control.

Mr. Attlee said he was sure that "you all realize the war has reached a critical stage."

"A great battle is proceeding in the north of France. We cannot tell yet what will be the issue.

'Hitler Shall Not Succeed'

"Hitler is throwing everything into the scale to force the decision for he cannot stand a long war. We are determined he shall not succeed but his defeat requires that we should mobilize all of our resources."

He added:—

"The government now has power to control any business, bank, crops or factory. It can take property. But in the exercise of this power it will do everything to avoid injustices. It will work closely with labor."

Mr. Morrison said the Allies have their back to the wall as he called upon civilians to work at war speed to combat "a more deadly menace than has threatened the peoples of these islands" since the great armada was sent out by Philip of Spain.

The present threat, he said, "looms nearer" than that of old Spain.

Intense Concentrated Effort

"Today there is not 'time enough to finish the game and beat the enemy too," Mr. Morrison said in reference to the legend that Drake finished a game of bowls before tackling the armada. "There is time for nothing but an intense concentrated effort of muscle and mind and will. It must begin now."

Calling for a sterner way of life, Mr. Morrison said:

"We are going to cut down our leisure, cut down our comfort, blot out every private and sectional aim, thinking only of arms for men, arms for victory and for liberty.

"I want to appeal to all of you to do your utmost to help. Above all don't get rattled, there is no justification for it. With brave hearts and cool heads we shall come through this ordeal triumphantly. Everyone must contribute to our effort."

Roosevelt Asked To Send to Ottawa Highly Qualified Man

New York, May 23—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune in an editorial headed "The Ottawa Post" said today that around the bonds of common interests between Canada and the United States "may well centre nothing less than the future of the western world."

No one can foresee the outcome of the war, said the editorial, but no matter the outcome "no one can overlook the fateful importance, today and hereafter, of the relations between the United States and the Dominion of Canada."

"But at the time when the President is calling for a national effort of national defence, it is of supreme importance that great related interests be greatly cared for. It will not do to let the immediate future be intrusted to any individual whose appointment is made to serve a party purpose.

"It would be a fine earnest of Mr. Roosevelt's unqualified national purpose if he were to call upon a man of the highest qualities to serve the United States in Ottawa during the next few critical months."

ST. CARTHAGH'S SEPARATE SCHOOL AT TWEED OPENED

Emphasis Placed on Training for Shop Work and Home Economics

AIR-CONDITIONED

Completely Fire-Proof, New Building Tribute to Work of Contractor

A visit to the new St. Carthagh's Separate School, Tweed, is a revelation to those interested in the elevation of academic standards. The fine modern building is a tribute to the work of Very Rev. Dean Cullinane, Pastor of St. Carthagh's and the School Board. Educational requirements have increased within recent years and no small detail to provide all the facilities for developing young minds and bodies, has been overlooked in the new building.

The new two-storey structure, planned and constructed by Mr. Jos. Rashotte, local contractor, embodies all that is up-to-date in educational growth.

The auditorium, which will seat four hundred and fifty people, is finished in a lovely light shade of ivory spongette. The floor was originally set in gravel and cinders with a sub-floor of water-proof paper covered with hard-wood. Air-conditioned, like the remainder of the building, it is entirely fire-proof. Coloured indirect lighting effects are features. Badminton courts have been laid out. In the auditorium which will also be used as a gymnasium, the children will be given physical training. At the rear of the room is a checkroom, eighteen by six feet. There is a large space beneath the stage where provision has been made for the storing of chairs and tables. Sliding receptacles create a convenient method of removing chairs, from the auditorium within a few minutes. The stage which is twenty by twenty-eight feet has an entrance on each side. The attractive rose-coloured drapes are hung on a track which can be quickly shifted. The lighting arrangements include footlights on a recess at the front of the stage on a level with the floor. From the dressing-rooms at the rear, those taking part in any entertainment, may enter from either side of the stage. Store-rooms have been built in the wings.

Manual Training

In the manual training department, boys are given a sound technical training in carpentry, wood-working and other crafts. New equipment and tools have been added.

The toilets, manufactured in Tweed Steel Works, include shower baths and wash-rooms.

The furnace room is featured by an automatic stoke, fed from the fuel room, which holds two cars of coal. The plumbing was completed by Trudeau & Hunt. Thermostats near the class rooms permit regulation of the temperature by members of the staff while fan units are used in the auditorium.

The Household Science room contains an electric stove, cupboards, dishes and all equipment for teaching this type of work. Instruction will be given in sewing, cooking and other tasks of housekeeping. There are wire grates in the cupboards which will be used when hot suppers are served by the women of the Church.

Bright Class-Rooms

The class-rooms are situated on the second floor and all are bright, clean and air-conditioned. It was noticed that all black-boards have been placed on a slight slant to eliminate a glare which is much easier insofar as pupils' vision is concerned. Adjoining each class-room is a cloak-room where cupboards have been built to store maps and books. One is struck by the provisions for natural lighting, with a complete row of windows on one side. The floors are of maple hardwood.

The library contains several hundred volumes, available for ready reference. The rest-room for the staff is furnished with desks, chairs and a chesterfield. The walls are of stone, brick and spongette and partitions are all completely fire-proof.

The stairs and wide corridors are built on concrete, covered with terrazzo. The steel beams and joists throughout the building have been covered with two inches of concrete and two inches of terrazzo and are not at all visible in any part of the building.

On the second floor is a small washroom for the caretaker; drinking fountains for both boys and girls; fire hose and electric panels. The four class-rooms, library and rest rooms are all attractive, neat and bright.

The stone from the old mill at Downey's Rapids was removed to Tweed to form the exterior walls, while the brick for the partitions was taken from the old Separate School. The stone is being "pointed" to make the outside of the building more attractive.

At the rear is the exit to the play-grounds which offers plenty of room for baseball diamonds, basket-ball courts, etc.

Ninety-five Tons of Steel

The school is sixty-five feet wide and ninety-four feet long. The roof is built of tar and gravel, with a hopper shape. Mr. Jos. Rashotte advises that 95 tons of steel were used. The doors and windows were all finished at Mr. Rashotte's factory. The school is surrounded by sidewalks, one of which leads directly from the school to St. Carthagh's Church at the top of the hill.

Construction was started on August 18th, 1939, and with the exception of a short period during the winter month, work has proceeded steadily ever since. There are still a few minor improvements to be made, but the major work was all completed several weeks ago when the classes adjourned from the Convent.

It is a splendid building, one of which the Pastor, the Board and the municipality may be proud.

78,400,000 Pounds of Cheese Sold To U. K. Food Ministry by Canada

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)—Sale of 78,400,000 pounds of Canadian cheese to the British Ministry of Food was announced Wednesday by Agriculture Minister Gardiner. The price will be 14 cents a pound f.o.b. boat or rail at Montreal for first grade. Export will be handled by a board.

Members of the board which will be called the Dairy Products Board are Joseph F. Desmarais, general manager of the Co-operative Federee de Quebec, Montreal; John Freeman, manager of Lovell and Christmas (Canada) Ltd., Montreal, and John F. Singleton, associate director, marketing service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The cheese will be bought on grading certificates of the Dominion Department of Agriculture which will be accepted as evidence of quality.

The price of 14 cents a pound is slightly higher than that prevailing recently. The agreement will have no effect on the bonus of two cents a pound which the Government now pays on top quality cheese. So long as funds are voted by Parliament for the purpose the bonus will be paid.

Dairy officials estimate the price will net the factory at least 13 1-4 cents.

No colored cheese is to be exported so probably all factories will shift to the production of uncolored cheese on a large scale. In the past approximately half the cheese produced in Ontario and Quebec was uncolored. Some colored cheese will still be produced for Canadian consumption.

The agreement will take care of Canada's normal exportable surplus. Last year out of a total production of 122,000,000 pounds, $1,153,000 was exported almost entirely to the United Kingdom. However a year ago a larger supply of old cheese had been carried over for export last spring than is the case this spring, as United Kingdom demand last fall took up all the late-produced cheese.

The agreement does not allow for any great increase in cheese production because the domestic market is not expected to be greatly increased. It is likely cheese production will be stepped up and departmental officials say there is a bright prospect that the United Kingdom will increase its purchases as the months go by.

One feature of the agreement is that should all the cheese not be shipped before St. Lawrence River navigation closes the British Government will pay the cost of shipping from Montreal to Halifax.

It is expected an advisory council representing various interests in the dairy industry will be set up by an act of Parliament with which the board will consult.

Madoc Resident Allegedly Found With Undersized Trout

Bancroft, May 23.—A Madoc resident, while speckled trout fishing near Whitney in Nipissing district, had the misfortune of running into Game Overseer M. J. Inwood of Combermere. Things would not have been too bad only he happened to have in his possession two undersized speckles which were promptly seized by the officer and thus the Madoc man returned home minus his splendid catch.

Acting on a complaint received from Jack Vance that clothing and equipment to the amount of $70.00 was stolen from the Vance truck on or about April 1 while the truck was abandoned to a snow bank near Lake St. Peter, Provincial Constable S. Palmateer investigated and conducted a search of the home of Roy Vallier at Princess Lake fifteen miles north of Maynooth and found what is believed to be part of the stolen goods. A further search at the camp of Shanley Vallier of Lake St. Peter resulted, it is alleged, in more of the stolen goods being found which led to the arrest of Roy and Stanley Vallier who were later lodged in the Belleville County jail this week. They will appear in court in Bancroft next Tuesday.

The young people of St. Paul's United Church having made a good impression with their play here last week motored to Maynooth on Monday evening and presented the play. They reported a very good attendance.

Another card party and dance was held in the Orange Hall Wednesday night proceeds of which are being pooled and used for the making up of boxes to be sent overseas to the boys who enlisted from this village.

Mr. W. E. Wigins, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Wiggins and Barrie, also Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Blatherwick motored to Belleville on Thursday morning on business. Mr. and Mrs. Blatherwick will entrain at Belleville for Kitchener after spending a lengthy holiday at the home of their son at Bancroft.

Earl Hannah who is with a part of the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment detachment now in training, returned to Bancroft recently for a few days' leave.

The Rouse block has undergone radical changes since the fire. Not only the interior has been reconditioned but the frontage has been altered, galvanized, and this week has been painted. It makes a vast improvement to the block which houses Dr. Rouse's dental suite, Mona Rose's restaurant, F. Shannick's butcher shop and grocery and also A. H. Reynold's jewellery store. The paint scheme followed the previous choice, that of white trimmed with black.

Britain, France To Spend Nineteen Billions This Year

San Francisco, May 23 (AP). — The British and French Empires will spent nearly $19,000,000,000 this year to defeat Hitler's armies, Sir Louis Beale, a member of the Allied Purchasing Board, said today.

Sir Louis, in charge of public relations for the Anglo-French board, told the Commonwealth Club $1,500,000,000 would be spent in the United States, two-thirds of it for airplanes.

In addition to a $1,000,000,000 worth of orders already placed, contracts for another $500,000,000 are being negotiated, he said, adding that prompt delivery had led to repeat orders.

However, he urged still more speed to support "the last bulwark of freedom in Europe."

Britain, spending $10,000,000,000 on the war this year, looks forward to a long, bitter contest, and plans to spend $13,000,000,000 next year and $16,000,000,000 in 1942, he added.

ACCEPTS RESIGNATION

Washington, May 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt accepted today the resignation of James H. R. Cromwell as Minister to Canada and wished him "the best of success in the large field of activity upon which you are entering."

Cromwell was nominated Tuesday by New Jersey Democrats as their candidate for United States Senator.

ACTING COMMANDER DIES

Cornwall, Ont., May 23 (CP). — Major James H. Shaver, 37, Acting Officer in command of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, died in hospital here today after an illness of three days.

Born at Lunenber, Ont., a son of Herman Shaver, he taught school for a time. He joined the regiment in 1927 and advanced to the rank of major. He leaves a wife and young son Gordon, four.

WAR BRIEFS

Rome, May 23 (AP)—Italian Foreign Minister Count Galleazzo Ciano, who has been inspecting Fascist projects and institutions in Italian-held Albania, today left for Tirana, the capital, for Soutari, near the Yugoslav border.

London, May 23 (CP)—"Bombardment" of enemy airdromes with water instead of bombs was proposed today in a letter to the magazine Areiane. The writer pointed out that bomb craters on a landing field, easily refilled with dirt, could be turned into bogs by dumping water from heavy bombers fitted with tanks.

Sydney, Australia, May 23 (CP)—Press clamor for a national government is growing throughout Australia.

The newspaper, Sydney Sun today declared: "We want no more parties in parliament, only Australians. We demand a national government chosen from all parties. We want a war cabinet not exceeding five in number, including members of all parties."

"No matter what occurs," The Sun added, "we will never surrender."

London, May 23 (C.P.-Havas) — Superintendent Clarence Campion, chief detective of Scotland Yard, was killed in a French port by a machine gun bullet from a German plane, it was disclosed here today.

Minnedosa, Man., May 23 (CP)—Pilot Officer Philip Dyer, 27-year-old grandson of the late Brigadier General Hugh M. Dyer of Minnedosa, is reported missing by the British Air Ministry, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dyer, were informed yesterday by cable. Philip joined the Royal Air Force five years ago. The cable gave no details.

Calgary, May 23 (CP)—Pilot Officer Douglas William West Morris, 23, Royal Air Force, is reported missing as the result of air operations May 21, according to a cable received by his parents, Dr. S. C. W. and Mrs. Morris, Calgary.

Pilot Officer Morris went to England in 1938 and joined the Royal Air Force, stationed at Markham, Norfolk, he was captain of a Wellington bomber.

Calgary, May 23 (CP)—Between 40 and 50 Calgary men, reservists and non-commissioned officers of The Netherlands army have listed their names as volunteers for service with T. L. O'Keefe, Netherlands vice-consul here.

Trail, B.C., May 22 (CP)—The Association of Kootenay Municipalities last night "emphatically endorsed" the Okanagan Valley Municipal Association's resolution asking the Dominion Government to intern all enemy aliens, investigate all persons of alien origin and to confiscate their guns and explosives.

War Manufactures Board of Italy Now Cabinet Division

Rome, May 23 (AP). — Premier Mussolini, continuing Italy's war preparations on the eve of the 25th anniversary of her entry into the first Great War, today ordered the general board of war manufactures made into a cabinet division.

The new division will be headed by an undersecretary of state directly responsible to Il Duce.

Rome University students today told Mussolini they would consider it "an honor and cause of price to fight for the liberty and independence of the Italian Empire" and protested against "threats of injuries by nations aiming to suffocate the young strength of Fascist Italy."

Their seniments were voiced in a resolution which they passed yesterday and which was transmitted to Il Duce today. Mussolini expressed his satisfaction.

The students declared Italy "must master her own sea with the exclusion of all foreign influence whatsoever."

CANADIAN OFFICERS ENJOY SHORT LEAVE

Staff officers from Canadian Divisional Headquarters at Aldershot find it difficult to get away for more than 24 hours leave at a time. The "week-end" begins late on Saturday afternoon and ends Sunday night. In this short period the officers must obtain their only respite from their arduous military tasks. A typical cross-section of Canada from east to west, Major F. W. Court, Toronto Scottish; Capt. M. J. Griffin, Seaforth Highlanders, of Vancouver, and Lt.-Col. L. T. Lowther, of the Prince Edward Island Light Horse, are shown, LEFT to RIGHT, enjoying a trip down the Thames to London.

THEY'VE TASTED BITTERNESS OF WAR

WILL THE BATTLESHIP COME T O THIS

The whaleback battleship, heavily armored, may be the answer to the threat of the dive bomber, according to U. S. secretary of the navy Charles Edison. Just what a whaleback battleship would look like is shown by this drawing by Otto Kuhler, New York designing engineer. The rounded armored surfaces of the craft give maximum resistance to direct hits and deflect striking power. The whaleback fighting ship would present an ultra-streamlined appearance, even the smokestack being built like a teardrop and armored to cover remote possibility of a bomb hitting a small opening and scoring an internal hit.

Canada in Position to Supply More Shells Than in Last War Hon. C. D. Howe Tells House

Manufacturers Geared Up Far in Excess of Canada's Own Need, Report States

NEW AIR MINISTER

Hon. C. G. Power Will Have Complete and Exclusive Responsibility for Air Defence

Ottawa, May 23—(CP)— Canada is now in a position to supply Britain with "many times" the quantity of shells supplied in the last war should there be the demand, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply, told the House of Commons in a report on the Supply Ministry.

Canadian manufacturers had proceeded on the estimates of the last war and, accordingly, were tooled up for shell production far in excess of Canada's own needs, Mr. Howe said yesterday.

"I can only say that this war bears little resemblance to the last one in the nature of the requirements from Canada," he added.

Mr. Howe reviewed in detail the work of providing materials of war, after the House of Commons had rushed through the government's bill establishing the new Ministry of National Defence for Air.

Full Responsibility

Co-operating closely, the Senate endorsed the same measure in short order and Hon. C. G. Power, who had been Postmaster General, became Air Minister. During debate in the Commons, it was made clear that the new Minister would have complete and exclusive responsibility for air defence.

Mr. Power replied to doubts expressed by Joseph Harris, Conservative Toronto-Danforth, as to the wisdom of having the new Minister in any way subordinate to the Defence Minister. Mr. Harris was afraid the department would be only "a lean-to" to Defence Minister Rogers' department.

"I am quite satisfied that there will be abundant authority and perhaps all too great responsibility on the shoulders of the person who has been appointed as Minister for Air", Mr. Power said. "I realise the magnitude of this task and I hope that the House will realise it and assist me in the work which is before me.

Speaks on Urgent Matters

"Owing to the events of the past few days it is extremely difficult to speak of anything but the urgent, insistent character of the present crisis.

"But we would be lacking in hope, in faith and in confidence in our Allies if we did not plan, even at this darkest hour to be able to send assistance to them when they have stabilized the line and are holding the invading hordes."

To questions raised by Conservative Leader Hanson and others in the Opposition Mr. Power said the Air Department was only a war time measure and would automatically disappear six months after the war.

Mr. Power said it was hoped the government could persuade the present Deputy Minister of Defence for Air, S. J. Duncan, of Toronto, to remain longer than the three months to which he originally agreed.

Eight Plants Working

In his report, Mr. Howe stated that eight plants were now engaged in making 2,225,000 shells and within a few days orders for a similar amount would be placed. This total of 4,500,000 shells compared to the 5,380,000 shells which had been shipped to England by the 17th month of the last war.

Sizes range from 40 millemetres to 9.2 inches. Contracts had also been placed for considerably more than 100,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition.

The explosives program was developing rapidly, he continued. One $10,000,000 plant was already well under way for manufacture of cordite and TNT and arrangements had been practically completed for another plant of similiar size. These plants would each have an annual production worth $17,000,000 and employ 1,200 to 1,400 men. They each would produce 12,000 tons of cordite and 15,000 tons of TNT at capacity.

Continued Production

He related the placing of $225,000,000 war orders for the Canadian government and $75,000,000 for the British and French governments. The Ministry had , for example, purchased for the Canadian government 400,000 blankets, 125,000 pairs of boots, 270,000 shirts, 775,000 pairs of socks, 150,000 uniform blouses and jackets, 190,000 uniform trousers. Contracts for such supplies were being placed on a continued production basis for the duration of the war.

The Ministry had placed orders for $47,000,000 of ships, mainly mine-sweepers and boats of the anti-submarine whale-catcher type, each costing around $500,000. By the year end the Canadian navy would have 348 ships of various sizes and kinds, compared to 94 now.

The Ministry had been responsible for inspecting and selecting sites for air training fields across the country. Mr. Howe said 34 Trans-Canada Airways airdromes would be used in the training scheme but 54 completely new schools would also be needed.

Order 5,000 Planes

Orders for 5,000 planes required for the Commonwealth Air Training Plan had been placed. Canadian aircraft production was being increased gradually as engines could be obtained. This year 1,028 planes are being built in Canada. Next year 1,538 planes will be made here. This compared to 18 in 1934 and 50 in 1935.

The British government had contracted for the entire production of airplane engines in the United States "for some time, to come" but production there was being expanded rapidly. "It will only be a matter of months that the production of airplane engines will continue to be the bottleneck of the industry," he added.

Industry Co-operating

Mr. Howe said Canadian industry had shown every disposition to co-operate with the department.

"The department is clothed with extraordinary power to deal with industry reluctant to fulfil its requirements and with industry not willing to produce at reasonable prices, but these powers have not as yet been exercised in a drastic way as the need for such action has not arisen," he added.

Mr. Howe said Canadian industry had not had opportunity to make its maximum contribution because the British and French had relied on their own production of mechanical equipment so far, not being "disposed to encourage Canadian production of heavy equipment to the extent of furnishing up-to-date plans and specifications."

However, there were indications this would not continue.

"It must be remembered that Canada's army in Britain and France, although commanded by Canadians, forms part of the British army and has no separate lines of communication while in the field. Therefore it is practically a necessity that our equipment be interchangeable with British equipment.

Built to British Standards

"This means that the armaments of our troops must be built largely to British standards and that British designs must be followed. One of our chief difficulties has been to obtain the latest British designs for the mechanical equipment used by our troops. British industry has not been too willing to part with these designs, many of which represent years of study and development by private manufacturing firms."

T. L. Church, Conservative, Toronto-Broadview, urged immediate use of the non-permanent militia as a home guard against all these spies running around the country.

He recalled, for example, seeing the present German Foreign Minister, Von Ribbentrop, casually circulating around Ottawa, at football matches and socially.

"Why didn't you hit him on the head?" some member asked.

Canada's TOURIST TRADE

Every year well over 10,000,000 tourists visit Canada from the United States. They spend some $250,000,000 in the Dominion.

Canada's tourist trade has become one of the most important sources of our national income. Under stress of war, American tourist dollars are vital in providing needed exchange.

Canada's banks materially assist in promoting this lucrative trade. Over 3,000 branch offices provide the tourist with familiar banking services throughout the Dominion—often in the most remote areas. At any of these branches Travellers' Cheques are cashed, Letters of Credit negotiated, money exchanged, tourist information gladly furnished by Managers and Staff.

To the stranger within our gates Canada's banks extend a warm welcome and through friendly, courteous service, encourage him to return another year.

Greater Responsibility Rests Upon School Teachers States Education Minister at Tweed

Dr. L. J. Simpson, Principal Speaker, as New Separate School Officially Opened

DIGNITARIES PRESENT

Minister of Education Points Out That Important Changes Have Taken Place in School Carricula

Tweed, Ont., (Staff)— Greater responsibility than ever rests upon the school teachers of today in that they must teach the boys and girls upon whom will rest as men and women, the tremendous period of reorganization, that inevitably must follow the war, Dr. L. J. Simpson, Ontario Minister of Education told a distinguished gathering of the Roman Catholic clergy, educational and political dignitaries at the formal opening of the new St. Carthagh's Separate School here on Wednesday.

High ranking members of the church that included His Grace Archbishop M. J. O'Brien of Kingston, and Monsignors J. P. Nicholson, V.G., Belleville, Cline and McCann of Toronto, as well as members of the Provincial and Federal houses, Mr. George H. Stokes and Dr. Harold Welsh, the Rev. H. L. Morrison, Public School Inspector A. L. McGuire, F. E. Moffat, Tweed, High School Principal, I. D. Corcoran, A. B. Collins, Belleville; Separate School Inspector C. Matthews, Kingston, and a large audience heard the minister deliver an inspiring address in which he stressed the value of co-operation between home and school, as well as the importance of present day teaching under existing world conditions.

He pointed out that changes have taken place in the old and present day education. "The little red schoolhouses were fine institutions, but neglected the teaching of health. Today this important subject is being stressed in all schools", he said.

Modification Takes Place

"Modification of the curricula had also taken place but the change had not been great", the minister said. Increasing emphasis had been placed on certain subjects such as health, while in his opinion, the speaker said, boys and girls should know something about different forms of government. He was a firm believer in the teaching of civics, while too much emphasis could not be placed on the teaching of art and music. "Music is not a frill in the classroom", Dr. Simpson said "and the boys and girls, who have not been taught this subject are missing one of the worthwhile things of school life".

Turning to world events, the speaker said a tremendous feeling of sadness hangs over the British Empire today. Events have moved so quickly in the past few weeks that "we are unable to keep up with them".

"We have been too complacent and taken too readily for granted those things we hold dear. A few weeks ago we felt there was not the slightest danger that Canada would be invaded, yet today the Empire is fighting in the most critical stage of her history".

Right Bound to Conquer

"Right however, is bound to conquer, and we are going to win this war", Dr. Simpson said amid applause.

Teachers have always had a tremendous responsibility but it is even greater today because they are teaching the boys and girls who will be the men and women entrusted with the great re-organization period, that will follow the war, the speaker said.

"I say to the teachers" he added, "teach the boys and girls the things Democracy stands for: the things our forefathers fought and died for".

"Democracy stands for the things we hold dear, freedom of speech, the press and others too numerous to mention. It should be thought of not as a form of government but a form of life, and taught in all subjects in the schools, not as a subject by itself. Nothing ever grew beneath the roots of dictatorship but hatred and evil," Dr. Simpson said.

Tremendous responsibility rests in the home, and in the teaching at home, the speaker concluded. "Those two great agencies, the home and the school must go hand in hand and work together. Teaching of children is not of necessity all facts and figures, but to enable them to think for themselves so they can properly develop the character that is their heritage."

Archbishop O'Brien

"I look on Dr. Simpson's visit as a fine mark of friendship" His Grace, Archbishop O'Brien said in a brief address. "It is refreshing today to find men in public life naming the holy name of God. In Europe the name of God has been changed not by great men, but those hungry to wage war. I hope the time never comes when that spirit that is animating the Germans today and for the past 60 years, will be evident in Canada."

His Grace voiced the hope, that the homes will co-operate with the schools in every way possible. He remarked on the fine fellowship shown at the function. "We have no quarrel with anyone," he said, "we are all working in our own way to build up a great Canada as loyal citizens of a great country."

I. D. Corcoran

Education, like war, needs modern equipment and facilities, I. D. Corcoran, representing the Separate School Board said. "Teachers can work wonders with pupils if they have the proper equipment. That was evidenced in the splendid play shown here last night." The financing of the school, he pointed out, was not done through increased taxation but through funds raised by subscription and from entertainments.

A welcome in song was extended the gathering by the pupils of school, who sang very beautifully. The girls in their smart school uniforms of black with white collars and cuffs, and the boys in navy blue made a very attractive appearance massed before the platform.

The ceremonies were opened by Mr. Wilfrid LeSage, chairman of the Separate School Board who introduced as chairman, Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., of Belleville, who presented each speaker of the afternoon.

Tribute to Pastor

Sincere tribute to the work of Dean Cullinane was paid by Monsignor Nicholson who referred to the magnificent handiwork of the school, the seal of his zeal and ability. Today his heart must ring with pride as he views the completion of this monument of Catholic education, which will be a gleaming jewel of achievement and a crowning glory in a long priestly life, the texture of which is besprinkled with shining and golden deeds.

Extending a heartfelt welcome to all present at the official opening of the new school, Dean Cullinane said that its accomplishment was only possible through the co-operation of the parish and of the workers. He extended words of praise to Mr. Joe Rashotte, the architect, to Mr. Paul Rashotte, who was in charge of the exterior work, to Mr. W. Lesage, chairman of the School Board and to Mr. R. Quinn, secretary and to members of the School Board for their part in the successful achievement.

Religious Teaching Vital

Explaining the Catholic attitude towards education which stressed the teaching of religion in the schools, Dean Cullinane pointed out that in a world beset with disruptive influences it was of vital importance that children be so prepared by their educational training that they will resist such influences when they go forth into the world. True morality is founded on religious teaching which develops moral sense and Christian habit. Such teaching, emphasizing character training, prepares the children for the life beyond this world.

Recent incidents in England and the United States vindicates the value of religious education. In England, the National Council deplored the fact that Christian teachings had drifted away from the national schools of England. The London Times in commenting on this editorially said "we, a nation, founded on Christian principles and a country now staking all in defence of Christianity, are not bringing up our children with Christian teaching."

At a convention in Washington of three thousand youth, representing eleven million other young people, the President of the United States was hissed and booed, which brought forth the comment that "unless the present attitude of the youth of the country is changed there is grave reason to fear that things which made this nation great shall pass away".

Among thinking people there is the realization that religion must be restored to the school. While there is no antagonism toward public schools, rather pride in their great work and gratification in their progress and advancement, they lack one thing, religious education, in the training for a complete life.

St. Carthagh's School was anxious to provide the finest in education, was prepared to follow the regulations laid down by the department and to do everything possible to train the children to grow up fine citizens with pride in the great institutions of the country.

Mr. A. B. Collins

Mr. A. B. Collins, K.C., formerly of Tweed, where he at one time followed the teaching profession, complimented the Dean whose qualities of leadership had been so amply displayed in this and the adjoining parish and the parents in providing this beautiful school. Mr. Collins recalled the fact that the Hon. Dr. Simpson had started a teaching career in Tweed, later taking up the study of medicine. The speaker referred to the high standard of scholarship attained by the boys and girls of the school and hoped that brilliant students, pathfinders in brilliant careers would continue to come from this school.

Adding his congratulations to those already expressed, Separate School Inspector Matthews, Kingston, said that the school was a memorable example of the history of educational progress in this archdiocese and exemplified the encouragement and material assistance His Grace had ever given to all phases of educational endeavour. The building itself from an educational standpoint combined utility and architectural beauty without relinquishing the importance of one to the mistaken ideal of the other. It provided for direct learning and indirect learning. Its auditorium would not only assist in the development of pupils by platform experience but was a place where parents and teachers could meet to assist and encourage each other in their divine calling, the training of children to be useful citizens imbued with Christian virtues.

Brilliant Graduates

Tribute to the scholastic abilities of graduates of St. Carthagh's School was paid by Mr. T. Moffatt, principal of Tweed High School, who said that the parish had "raised a monument more lasting than bronze" a monument that would live on in the lives of children, generation after generation, just as the spirit of the martyrs of Huronia lives today. The pupils of the school today are heirs to a splendid teaching heritage, having before them the traditions of the brilliant achievements of children of such families as those of Patrick Kinlin, Joseph Collins, Will Meraw, William Ryan and Thomas Gaffney. Mr. Moffatt had found that pupils coming from St. Carthagh's School were well grounded in the fundamentals of knowledge, and well trained in respect for authority. He congratulated Dean Cullinane in the successful fulfilment of his efforts and extended greetings on behalf of his staff to the Rev. Principal and staff of the school.

It was very fitting that Dr. Simpson should be present on the occasion. The building of the school has meant much sacrifice and in realizing that so many people were willing to make the sacrifice perhaps they could be repaid in opening wider the doors of departmental grants. It was encouraging to educationists and parents to know that the Minister and his department were not working for the people in education but with the people for education.

Following the interesting program the visitors inspected the school of which the staff includes, Sister Thrascilla, Principal, Sister Dorothea, Sister Timothy and Sister Jane (in charge of music).

The members of the School Board are Wilfrid Lesage, chairman, Ray Quinn, Secretary, I. D. Corcoran, J. Collins, John Murphy, F. Fobert and James Trudeau.

Solemn High Mass

The ceremonies yesterday in connection with the opening of the school began with Solemn High Mass celebrated in St. Carthagh's Church at ten o'clock by Rev. H. J. Farrell, P.P., Marmora, assisted by Rev. S LeSage, P.P., Stirling, and Rev. J. J. Collins of Belleville. The children's choir chanted in a splendid manner the music of the Mass. A large congregation was present. Among the clergy present were Rt. Rev. M. Cline, Toronto, Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., Belleville, Rt. Rev. W. McCann, Toronto, Very Rev. M. Cullinane, St. Catharines, Very Rev. J. Hanley, Smith's Falls, Very Rev. E. M. Leacy, Napanee, Dr. L. J. Byrne, Kingston, Rev. J. O'Brien, Peterborough, Rev. J. V. McAuley, Campbellford, Rev. P. Costello, Hastings, Rev. J. Carroll, Norwood, Rev. S. Kinlin, Regina, Dr. F. Grant, Peterborough, Rev. V. Meagher, Stoco, Rev. J. Powell, Erinsville, Rev. J. Meehan, Picton, Rev. R. Carey, Read, Rev. C. F. O'Gorman, Marysville, Rev. F. Hyland, Madoc, Rev. W. Kinlin, Flinton, Rev. J. Fogarty, Toledo, Rev. G. T. Martin, Deseronto, Rev. R. Rowell, Stirling, Rev. G. Hanley, Trenton, Rev. F. O'Donnell, Tweed.

History of Parish

Very Rev. Dean Cullinane in his words to the congregation gave an interesting history of the parish church, the site of which had been selected in 1887 by Bishop Cleary and the cornerstone was laid the following year. The golden jubilee of the church was celebrated by the opening of a new church in Sulphide. The first school was built by Father Fleming in 1894. In 1905 this structure was burned and a new school was built by Father Quinn on the outskirts of the village.

Bishop Cleary in looking down upon the valley before him, on Stoco Lake and the beauties of the countryside must have recalled to mind the similar beautiful landscape of Waterford in his native Ireland where Saint Carthagh, abbot and bishop, had founded a school in the golden age when Ireland was recognized as the land of saints and scholars. When the barbarians swept into Northern Europe, breaking into the Roman Empire and destroying the last vestiges of civilization students of every country in Europe looked to Ireland for education, given freely in a land where was that peace which is so necessary for the pursuit of learning. The school developed to be one of the seven great universities of Ireland, flourishing for four hundred years, until aggressors came and it was destroyed. The castle of the Duke of Devonshire is at present on the site of this institution.

But though the school no longer exists, the memory of Carthagh, his holy life and love of learning, remain and so Bishop Cleary placed this parish in his protection, as an inspiration, and example to the parishioners.

Archbishop O'Brien

His Grace, Archbishop O'Brien, Kingston, taking as his text an extract from the 118th Psalm: "Teach me goodness, discipline and knowledge", in addressing the parishioners, congratulated the pastor, the school board and the people of St. Carthagh's on their achievement, the erection of this magnificent new school. He referred to the late Levi Courneyea, who lost his life during the erection of the building.

Discussing the matter "why a Catholic separate school" the Archbishop explained that by the words "separate school" is meant a school of a minority in the province. Most of such are Catholic, it is true, but there are some Protestant separate schools.

The Catholic people find no fault with what the non-Catholic people desire in education, but Catholics have their own ideals about the subject and that is, since man is destined to be with Almighty God forever in eternity, he should be taught, not once a week, but daily, in order the duties he must fulfill in order to save his soul.

The Archbishop then referred to King David who in his prayer sought for goodness and discipline first and afterwards for knowledge. He concluded by a prayer that the new school fulfill the high expectations of the parish.

Banquet Served

Following the blessing of the new school the visiting clergy were entertained at a banquet served in the beautiful new auditorium by the ladies of the parish.

Conservative Member of British Parliament Taken to Brixton Prison

London, May 23—(CP)—The arrest of Captain Archibald H. M. Ramsay, Conservative member of parliament, by direction of the Home Secretary, was announced today by the Speaker of the House of Commons.

Ramsay, formerly of the Coldstream Guards, was detained in Brixton prison as the government carried out a round-up of persons suspected as "fifth columnists".

When a member of the House asked whether the Home Secretary would give the reason for Ramsay's arrest the Speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, replied, "Not this stage."

Navy's Air Arm, R.A.F. Harass Foe Concentrations

Three Enemy Tanks Are Set Afire and Others Put Out of Control

FOE VESSEL SUNK

Heavy R.A.F. Bombers Are Reported Very Active During Night

London, May 25—(AP)—The Air Ministry announced today that the Royal Air Force and the Navy's Air arm had harassed German concentrations.

The communique said:—

"Yesterday a number of shore-based aircraft of the fleet air arm co-operated with medium bombers of the Royal Air force in a series of harassing attacks on enemy concentrations near the Channel coast

"In the course of one attack by naval aircraft on enemy armored vehicles at least three enemy tanks were set on fire and others put out of action.

"Enemy oil depots at Rotterdam were attacked again this morning by aircraft of the Royal Air Force coastal command, and an enemy motor torpedo boat was bombed and sunk off the Dutch coast.

Heavy bombers of the Royal Air force were active throughout the night.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 25 (CP).—The weather has been fair in the western provinces, and quite warm in Saskatchewan and Alberta. Showers have occurred in Western and Northern Ontario.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Day and night winds! If one takes a sail in the afternoon, it is often wise to make port before the sun goes down. This is because it is windier during the sunshine hours than in darkness, excepting of course on days with cyclonic storms. As soon as the sun comes up, surface heating begins, the lower layer of air gets warmer and convection currents are set up. The winds blows stronger as the heating action continues, but dies down as the evening approaches. Windy days are often preceded or succeeded by calm nights.

FOUR THOUSAND MEN WILL BE NEEDED BY NAVY

Men Required to Man the 80-Odd Ships, for Canadian Navy, Which Are Now Under Construction

VOLUNTEER RESERVE

Ottawa, May 23.—(CP)— The Royal Canadian Navy must enlist approximately 4,000 men for service during the balance of the year, it was announced today.

These men are needed to man the 80-odd ships which are now under construction and which will go into service in anti-submarine and other naval work as rapidly as they are completed.

In addition, the navy urgently requires 900 experienced engine room and stoker ratings, the announcement said. These men should possess some engine room experience and will be rated according to their qualifications. This enlistment offers a chance for middle aged men to see service immediately, it was stated.

"This is the first opportunity that Canadians ordinarily regarded as above the age limit have had to enroll in active service', the announcement said.

Regarding the other 4,000 men required, the recruiting unit will be the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve, which has on its roster approximately 1,700 ratings, receiving training on a voluntary basis at present.

These ratings are being drafted at the rate of about 400 a month for active service and it is necessary to fill their places immediately.

Recruits offering themselves must be prepared to undertake training at nights for three months before being accepted for paid service with the R.C.N.V R. and becoming eligible for draft.

H. R. McBURNEY, FL.-LIEUTENANT, SASKATOON KILLED

Famed "Flying Alderman," Al Cheesman, Port Arthur, Slightly Injured

WING HITS WIND SOCK

Fliers Out on Night Operations When Accident Occurs Friday Night

Military authorities today probed crash of a Royal Canadian Air Force plane at Trenton airdrome last night, killing 23 - year - old Flight-Lieutenant H. R. McBurney of Saskatoon. Canada's famed "flying alderman," Al Cheesman, 39, Port Arthur, occupying the rear of the cockpit, was slightly injured.

A statement from R.C.A.F. headquarters at Ottawa said the right wing of the plane hit a wind sock, a canvas, cone-shaped device atop a mast, used to indicate the direction of the wind. The plane apparently crashed as it came in to land during night operations.

McBurney joined the R.C.A.F. three years ago and was made a Flight-Lieutenant last January. Youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. I. A. McBurney of Saskatoon, he is survived by his parents and two brothers, Wing Commander Ralph Edward McBurney, Ottawa and Dr. Donald McBurney, Geraldton, Ont.

Press Demands Britain Jam Nazi Radio

London, May 25 (CP). — The tabloid Daily Sketch splashed its entire front page today with an editorial demanding that Britain jam the Nazi radio, thereby throwing "Germany's wireless lie factory into a state of complete chaos". If the British wireless is jammed in return, the paper said, the people still will be able to listen by telephone.

The Sketch pointed out that the British control all the necessary world wires and cables and should send the United States and the empire the fullest and latest news.

Dangers of Gossip in Wartime Hammered Home by Poster, Film

Cartoon Also Plays Part in Intensive Drive in Britain and France

CHATTERERS ADVISED

By PAT USSHER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 25—(CP)—By poster, cartoon and film, Britain and France are hammering home the the dangers of gossip in wartime. In both countries an intensive drive has been launched to warn the John Smiths and the Jacques Duponts that idle talk may imperil lives and help the enemy.

"By a 100 per cent oyster" is the injunction of authorities to British fighting forces. The same admonition has been given men and women behind the lines.

Southampton leads the countrywide campaign with an anti-gossip week that starts tomorrow. Banners in principal streets bear anti-gossip slogans, three ministry of information films are to be shown depicting the danger of loose tongues and sermons will drive home the same warning.

Emergency Powers in U. K. Not 'Dictatorship' Says Editor

Louisville, Ky., May 25—(AP) — Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville Times and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, yesterday, in a statement, criticized the press for the use of the word "dictatorship" in describing the extraordinary powers voted the British government during the present crisis.

Wallace's statement said:

"Great injustice is being done to the cause of the Allies by newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic referring to a 'dictatorship' in Great Britain. The parliamentary process stands between the British and totalitarianism.

"There is no probability of a "dictatorship" in the generally understood sense of the term in Great Britain or France, where government is merely granted emergency powers subject to the will of the people, but, because of the manner in which the 'British dictatorship" is discussed in newspapers, the uninformed may make the mistake of believing that the democracies are going totalitarian."

'With the Help of God We Shall Not Fail,' Says King George

His Majesty, in Empire Day Address, Declares That German Aspiration is to Overthrow Britain Completely and After That to Subjugate the World—His Majesty Asks People Observe Day of Prayer

London, May 25—His Majesty King George speaking from Buckingham Palace on Empire Day, told the Empire that Britain's conscience was clear and warned that the enemy's plan was a long-planned scheme to subjugate the world by force, that it is no mere territorial conquest the enemy is seeking, but the complete overthrow of Britain and after that the conquest of the world. The King said that defeat would not mean some brief eclipse, it would mean "life or death for us all."

Calling the people of the Empire to their supreme task, the King said "We shall not fail."

The text of the royal address is as follows:

On Empire Day last year I spoke to you, the peoples of the Empire, from Winnipeg in the heart of Canada. We were at peace.

On that Empire Day I spoke of the ideals of freedom, justice and peace upon which our Commonwealth of free peoples is founded. Clouds were gathering, but I held fast to the hope that those ideals might yet achieve fuller and richer development without suffering the grievous onslaught of war.

But it was not to be. The evil which we strove unceasingly and with all honesty of purpose to avert fell upon us. In this our conscience is clear. For there is now revealed without possibility of mistake a long-planned scheme to subjugate by force the nations of the world against which all our efforts for peace were doomed to break.

Germany Aims to Crush British Empire

The decisive struggle is now upon us. I am going to speak plainly to you, for in this hour of trial I know that you would not have me do otherwise.

40 NAZI PLANES ARE SHOT DOWN ALLIES LOSE TEN

31 German Planes Were Seen to 'Burst Into Flames or Crash on Landing'

9 MORE 'PUT OUT'

London, May 25—(CP)—The Air Ministry declared today that British planes destroyed or seriously damaged 40 German bombers and fighter planes over the French and Belgian battlefronts yesterday, while losing 10.

A communique said 31 German planes were seen to "burst into flames or crash on landing" and nine more were put out of action. The ministry said this brought enemy losses at the hands of the British to 120 planes in the last three days.

R.A.F. Downs Over 40 Raiders a Day.

The statement said:

"The Royal Air Force fighter pilots are putting out of action more than 40 German raiders a day. Yesterday Spitfires, Hurricanes and Defiants destroyed or seriously damaged another 40 German bombers and fighters over the French and Belgian battlefronts with only a quarter of that number of casualties to themselves.

Britain Seeks Improved Relations With Russia, Spain

London, May 25—Diplomatically, Britain sought to improve relations with Russia and Spain, two countries ideologically opposed to her.

Sir Stafford Cripps, former Labor party leader, was chosen to head a trade mission to Moscow if the Soviet accepts him. The purpose of the mission would be to discover whether a basis for trade negotiations can be found.

"It is the clearest proof which the British government could give of the importance they attach to the relations of this country with the Spain of General Franco.

"The policy of strict neutrality which Great Britain adopted during the (Spanish) Civil War—and which Spain might be said to be reciprocating during what is really a European Civil War—was misunderstood in Spain chiefly because a section of opinion here which sympathized with the so-called Republicans as particularly vociferous."

TWO CHILDREN SEVERELY BURNED

Fire Started at Dickey Lake When Children Upset Lamp on Floor

Bancroft, May 15 (Special)—Two children sustained severe burns and others received minor injuries when the family of Robert Thompson, of Dickey Lake near here, successfully combated a fire in their home early Thursday evening. Twelve children of the Thompson family, ranging from one to 15 years of age, were at home, when one of the children upset a lamp on the floor during the absence of their parents.

Infant Clayton, age one year, sustained serious burns of the thigh and legs, while 11-year-old Hazel was burned badly about the hands and arms, her injuries being sustained when she successfully beat out the flames.

The fire originated when the baby's nipple, from its bottle, fell between the cracks in the floor. The children used a lamp to aid them in finding the nipple and the lamp was accidentally upset on the floor causing a sudden outbreak of flames. The fire was put out by 15-year-old Wesley Thompson and his sister Hazel, while another member of the family ran some distance to an uncle's nearby home for help. The hands and legs of the children were badly blistered and medical attention was needed. The children's parents were in Bancroft at the time of the fire. Twelve of the 13 Thompson children were home.

Allowances Paid To be Uniform

Ottawa, May 23 (CP).—Conservative members, speaking in the general discussion of the measures for a $700,000,000 war appropriation urged in the House of Commons before the Chamber rose for the week-end that allowances paid mothers of men of the fighting forces should be uniform.

Mothers' allowances yesterday shared attention with home defence and the recruiting and training of troops for the 2nd and 3rd Divisions.

The Empire Day session ended at six o'clock and the House will resume debate on the war appropriation Monday. The senate, idle yesterday, will resume Monday evening

Report That Port Had Been Captured by Enemy Was Incorrect

AIR RAID 'UPSET'

8 Civilians Injured in Yorkshire Last Night—First in Actual Air Raid

London, May 25—(CP)—German bombs injured at least eight persons in Yorkshire last night, the Air Ministry disclosed today, but Britons breathed a little easier as France announced that yesterday's report that Boulogne had fallen to the Germans in their drive toward the channel was erroneous.

Three of Yorkshire's injured were taken to hospital and the press association said the Air Ministry's estimate of the injured was low. It said 11 were hurt.

The 10-minute raid was made by one plane, apparently aiming at a steel plant which was slightly damaged by a bomb.

Another bomb struck a side of a north riding communal air raid shelter but caused no damage. Most of the bombs fell harmlessly in open spaces.

The German air attack, apparently aimless or badly upset by defences, also was directed against East Anglia where bombs landed in a chicken run, doing little damage.

UNANIMITY COMPLETE

Paris, May 25 — (CP-Havas)—From Canada, Great Britain and the United States France may expect the speedy arrival of masses of new war equipment, the Catholic newspaper L'Aube said today.

Alluding to recent steps ordered in London, L'Aube wrote:

"Never in history has it attempted such a radical mobilization of all the productive energies of the country. Never has the working class so unanimously show its will to accept such sacrifices for the public salvation.

"Canada at once decided to associate itself with this gigantic work. And from the United States we receive no less encouraging news.

U. S. Army Perfects Plane Detector Giving Defence 15-Minute Warning

Washington, May 25—(AP)—A secret, super-sensitive airplane detector which pierces all fog and darkness to give defending fighters a vital, 15-minute warning of approaching enemy aircraft has been perfected by the United States army for a chain of coastal lookout stations.

Designed to forestall such destruction as engulfed the Polish Air Force, before it got off the ground, the apparatus has been described by Brigadier General George Strong, in charge of army war plans, as "apparently far in advance of any similar equipment available to any of the belligerents abroad."

As secretly safeguarded as the Air Corps' treasured bomb sight, the detector has been in development at the Signal Corps Laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J., for more than two years.

South of Sedan French Recover All Ground Lost to Germans—Atmosphere of Confidence Prevades Paris as Allied Lines Hold Firm

Paris, May 25 — (AP) — The French fought today to narrow further the 20-mile gap in the Allied lines north of the Somme, but Blitzkreig German units — swift motorcyclists and armored cars—were reported still moving through the breach to the English channel.

French troops in the channel coast region, according to a military spokesman, are fighting off the German advance guards and have checked the Nazi advance on the St. Omer region.

The Peronne-Bapaume breach yesterday was 30 to 35 miles wide, but the French in the past 24 hours have cut the distance to 20 miles.

In the St. Omer region, the French military spokesman said, the shifting warfare consists mainly of a series of localized combats while the "battle of Flanders" goes on in full course in the Cambrai-Valenciennes sector.

St. Omer is 22 miles southeast of the channel port of Calais.

Fight at Boulogne

The military spokesman said fighting also continues in the regions of Abbeville, on the Somme River, 12 miles from the channel and at Boulogne, channel port south of Calais.

The whole front is "without change," he said.

The Germans, he continued, have failed to launch a direct attack on Calais, and he described the situation at Boulogne as "uncertain."

The French spokesman said German detachments have appeared in a number of the channel towns in the Boulogne area, but are small in number and lack the support of the heavier German units far behind them.

COUNTRY'S NEEDS ARE SUPERLATIVE

Prime Minister Says Britain Can Meet Them Under New Unity of Purpose

London, May 25—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, in a letter to the Trades Union executive council meeting today, said that "the gravity of the situation deepens hour by hour."

Mr. Churchill in the letter said "The Country's needs are imperative, inescapable and imperious and we shall pay dearly if we fail to meet them."

"We can meet them now as the government is founded upon a new unity of national purpose and with the creative energies of a people awakened to the magnitude of the task," it added.

"We have the fullest confidence in the readiness of organized workers to accept the obligations arising out of the demands which the state is compelled to make upon their endurance and their capacity for sacrifice.

"The gravity of the situation deepens hour by hour and we are all called upon to make a supreme effort to defend the country to preserve our liberties and to win the war."

The conference endorsed conscription of labor and property and in a message to the fighting forces said "We are unitedly resolved that all our industrial resources shall be used to the full to provide the arms and munitions you need."

C.N.R. EMPLOYEE SUFFERS INJURY IN FALL FROM CAR

Harold Hawkins, 36 year old Lindsay employee of the Canadian National Railways, sustained cuts, bruises and abrasions as the result of a fall off a box car in the Belleville C.N.R. yards early today. Hawkins was removed to the Belleville General Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. E. G. Kennedy. Hawkins was walking atop of his train when he apparently lost his balance and fell between the moving cars. He fortunately escaped with only minor injuries, as he fell clear of the right-of-way.

ONLY ONE ALARM ON THE HOLIDAY

Only one fire alarm was turned in at the Belleville fire hall over Victoria Day and that for a chimney fire, thus firemen experienced one of the quietest holidays in years as usually the twenty-fourth of May is marked by numerous alarms resulting from over-exultant celebrants using firecrackers in a careless manner.

Yesterday morning firemen had a short run to the home of Mr. H. C. Thompson at 249 Ann Street, where a chimney fire was reported in progress but prompt work by the brigade resulted in no damage being done.

TWO BOATS DOCK IN LOCAL HARBOR

Two boats have docked at the Belleville harbor since mid-week being the "Henry C. Daryaw" in with a cargo of coal for Schuster's while this morning an oil tanker came in from Toronto with a cargo of gasoline for a local dealer.

VALUABLE DOG RUN OVER BY CAR

A valuable collie dog, the property of R. G. Coulter, North Front St., had to be destroyed after the animal was run over by an automobile over the holiday. The canine was destroyed by Constable Thomas Thorne, the city dog pound custodian. The dog, which was a valued pet to the family, was retrieving articles being tossed into the street when it ran in front of a passing motor car and was run over. The injuries sustained necessitated the destruction of the animal.

Pr. Ed. County Plants 90,000 Trees

Ninety thousand young trees, forty thousand of which will be used on farms of Prince Edward County will be planted in Prince Edward County during the next two weeks. The remaining fifty thousand will be planted on the county's famous tourist attraction, the Sandbanks. These trees which are of the Scotch pine variety will be planted immediately.

Young farmers of the county have taken the reforestation proposals seriously and a large number have signified their intentions of reforesting untillable land as well as woods and other plots depleted by timber activities. Orders for forty thousand saplings have already been received by government nursery experts at the Sandbanks.

Belleville Churches To Observe Day of Prayer

Churches in Belleville undoubtedly will be filled with worshippers tomorrow in response to the summons of His Majesty King George, who has appointed the day to be observed throughout the Empire as a day of prayer to invoke the aid of the Most High God in the great dangers in which the Empire is now placed.

POLICE COURT

Motorists, who failed to heed the warning issued by police regarding the prosecution of those apprehended in violation of the city and Provincial traffic laws, today found themselves facing charges in the city police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C.

Leslie Smallhorn, R.C.A.F., and W. B. Sheffield, Belleville, paid one dollar and costs after entering pleas of guilty to failing to stop at the designated stop streets in the city. Frank Lem and Wilmot Maybee were assessed $5.00 and costs after being convicted of careless driving, while Solomon Loft was sent to jail for seven days after being convicted of drunken driving.

Two inebriate cases and a domestic affair concluded the morning's court. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., welcomed Chief Kidd back into his official capacity, the latter having been indisposed through illness for the past week.

Police Blotter

Although the conventional setting off of firecrackers and other types of Victoria Day fireworks displays were in evidence on Victoria Day, no serious injuries were reported to police as the direct result of these activities, Belleville police reporting a quiet and serene holiday period.

Trenton police requested the local authorities to apprehend and hold the driver of a truck bearing licence plates number 73570-C, who was wanted in Trenton on charge of reckless driving. The truck in question was finally located by the local police and William Harrison, the driver who gave Streetsville as his home address, was detained and later turned over to the custody of Sergeant Walter Probert of Trenton.

Belleville police held Pte. Morris Leger, of the C.A.S.F., over the holiday after taking him into custody on a charge of panhandling. Today Crown Attorney Donnan ordered the soldier lad be turned over to an escort that arrived in Belleville today seeking the return of Pte. Leger.

Two inebriates apparently took the matter of Victoria Day celebration too literally with the result they were arraigned in court today, where they admitted imbibing too freely of intoxicant beverages. The conventional fine was imposed by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C.

The holiday night rains increased the number of transients, who sought dry sleeping quarters here over the 24th., when thirty-nine were given warm, dry sleeping quarters during the past two nights.

WAR BRIEFS

Geneva, May 25—(CP-Havas)—Switzerland still faces the threat of German invasion, the Gazette De Lausanne said today in warning the nation against being lulled into a false sense of security. It said in part: "The danger from without remains wholly and exactly as menacing as it was ten days ago."

Paris, May 25—(AP)—The Simplon-Orient express, one of Europe's crack trains, running from Paris through Switzerland to Italy, has been cancelled as an "economy measure," the Ministry of Public Works announced today. It said this action was only temporary.

ANTI-SABOTAGE DEFENCE CORPS FORMED IN CITY

Committee Hopes to Form Volunteer Squadrons to Protect Vital Points

SURVEY CITY

Citizens Urged to be on Guard Against Any Subversive Acts

Steps to cope with any form or degree of 'Fifth Column' movements or sabotage were taken Thursday evening at the Court House when a group of military and civilian authorities formed themselves in a temporary Anti-Sabotage and Anti-Subversive Activities Committee, with His Honour, Judge C. A. Cameron acting as temporary chairman.

It is the hope of the committee to ultimately organise volunteer squadrons all of which will subsequently be properly equipped and trained for the purpose of protecting vital points in Belleville and vicinity against any outbreak of sabotage. "At this time it is the duty of every citizen to keep his or her ears open and report to the police any information that may be heard, regarding any subversive activities. Every report of such persons, their sayings and actions should be given to the police so that it may be immediately investigated," warned His Honour, Judge Cameron.

Those in attendance at the meeting were Judge Cameron, Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., Lieut.-Cols. B. C Donnan K.C., A. P. Allen and T. Y. Wills, as well as Inspector Frank Gardner and Lieut. E. Folwell and Acting Chief Constable Arthur Harman. Lieut.-Cols. A. B. Gribble, John W. Phillips and Mayor Thompson will be added to the committee.

Survey to be Made

A survey of the city and environs will be made by the four Lieut.-Colonels in order to ascertain what points might be vulnerable in case a wave of sabotage breaks out in Canada. It was proposed by the committee organized to equip and drill volunteers who will be organized into flying squadrons and will be used as emergency squads to be rushed to vulnerable points if the necessity arrives. It was proposed to employ veterans of the last war and voluntary citizens to form this type of guard.

"We must take no chances, this Fifth Column work has been charged in our country already. I feel it is necessary we organize to protect our huge gasoline storage tanks, water works, railway bridges so that no repetition of "fifth column" activities may be used by the enemy, such as has been the case in the smaller countries of Europe" warned Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C.

Attorney-General Conant and Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Defence, will be consulted by Lt.-Col. Donnan and Judge Cameron in regard to the advisability and method of arming such a proposed volunteer squadron. Women's auxiliaries will also be necessary to feed and care for such men while they are on duty.

Citizens are being urged to be on guard against any subversive activity, no matter how meagre the information may be, and report the same to the police. It was pointed out by the temporary committee, that any citizen reporting such information to the authorities would not be in any way involved in potential court proceedings nor would their names be made public if they desired otherwise. The police, and the second committee named to trace down subversive activities will carry out all investigations after information is received.

Torrential Rains Viewed With Alarm

Farmers of the district viewed ...ng fields as the fourth day of intermittent rains was ushered in with a torrential downpour.

In Sidney and other districts newly sprouted grain is already under water while other fields are rapidly becoming covered.

Seeding not finished in the majority of districts will be further delayed, it was stated by farmers on the market today, while it is feared that in some parts, new grain will be damaged to a serious extent.

Fields being prepared for the planting of tomatoes and corn and other hoe crops are rapidly being converted in muddy areas. No tomatoes have been planted as yet, but the majority of canning produce growers expected to plant their crops during the coming week.

Consistent rains it was stated, will advance the planting season at least ten days.

On the other side of the picture, alfalfa gives promise of being one of the best crops in years. A farmer today stated that "we will have this crop as high as the fence-tops, if sunny weather arrives."

War Effort Support Urged by Moore

Kitchener, Ont., May 25.—(CP)—Support of the Dominion's war effort by Canadian Trade Unions was urged by President Tom Moore of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, speaking yesterday before the 38th annual convention of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario.

He declared that Trade Unions had been abolished wherever Nazi aggression struck and "for that reason we've got to realize this war is our war."

Complacency about possible protection from the United States was ill-founded because "the States realizes possibly too late, its inability to defend itself".

The Association passed a resolution of loyalty to the Allied cause and Mr. Moore commented that "in passing this resolution of loyalty you should realise that you may have to give more than your loyalty".

OBITUARY

SAMUEL S. FINKLE

After an illness of about one week's duration, Samuel Spencer Finkle passed away at the family residence, 121 West Bridge Street, on Thursday afternoon, May 23rd.

The late Mr. Finkle was born sixty five years ago near Tweed, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Finkle. For some time he resided in the village of Tweed and forty years ago he came to make his home in Belleville. He was well known in the city and was highly esteemed. His death has brought sincere regret to many friends. By occupation he was an accountant, but for some time past he lived retired.

In religion Mr. Finkle was a member of Holloway Street United Church and fraternally he was a member of Eureka Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 283, and Court Moira Lodge of Foresters at Tweed.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Anne Blanche Wilson; one son, Mr. Warner F. Finkle; a niece, Miss Phylis Wilson, and a nephew, Mr. Harry Wilson, both of Belleville; one brother Mr. Abel Finkle, Belleville.

The funeral took place this Saturday afternoon from the family residence, the service in the home and at the graveside in Tweed Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of Holloway Street United Church.

LATE NATHANIEL MAYBEE

The funeral of Nathaniel Maybee, late residence Hastings County Home, took place Thursday morning, May 23rd., from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, Everett Street. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville cemetry was conducted by the Rev. A. L. Geen.

MRS. LILLY (BRICKMAN) HOPKINS, (Toronto).

Mrs. Lilly Florence (Brickman) Hopkins, wife of Mr. John A. Hopkins, 387 Lake Promenade, Long Branch, Ontario, passed away in the Private Patients' Pavilion at the Toronto General Hospital on Wednesday, May 22nd. She is survived by her husband and four daughters, Misses Irene, Doris, Gertrude and Adele. Friends in this vicinity will regret to learn of her death.

The funeral took place this Saturday afternoon and interment was made in Prospect Cemetery, Toronto.

FRANK NAYLOR (Toronto)

Mr. Frank Naylor of Toronto, late of Belleville, passed away suddenly at his residence, 1 Pauline Ave., Toronto, on May 24th. Surviving are his wife and son, Kenneth, and two sisters, Mrs. W. S. Gilbert of Carrying Place, and Mrs. Alonso Black, formerly of Cannifton.

LATE PATRICIA HUGHES

The funeral of Patricia Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hughes, took place from the family residence, 41 East Moira Street, on Friday afternoon, May 24th., to Christ Church where service was conducted by the Rector, the Rev. G. G. Wright, who said also the committal service at the graveside in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers were the following members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton Air Port: Sgt. Howard, Sgt. Semple, Aircraftsmen George Handfield, Fred Waylett, Hubert Smith and Cliff Schack.

TRENTON

TRENTON CADETS VISIT AIRPORT

Escorted and Shown Planes Used in Air Training Scheme

Trenton, May 25 — (Special)—One hundred members of the Trenton High School Air Cadets mingled with their big brothers on Thursday afternoon when they toured the Trenton R.C.A.F. station with the permission of Officer Commanding J. M. Sully. The local cadets left the High School parade ground early in the afternoon and marched to the government base in formation along Dundas Street and on highway No. 2 when they passed the limits of the town. Fred Burtt, O.C., of the Trenton squadron headed his three flights, which were welcomed to the Air Station by Wing Commanding Sully. The lads were shown about the station by Sergeant M. D. Thompson who has trained the youths since they became affiliated with the Royal Canadian Air Force earlier in the year. Sergeant Thompson guided the young birdmen through the mess halls and recreation rooms and gave them a first hand view of the beautiful swimming tank in one of the spacious buildings. The best part of the tour was the trip through the modern aircraft hangars where a number of the Dominion's latest bombing and fighting trainers are kept. The youths were allowed to examine the bombers and fighters from nose to tail and the more adventurous birdmen were permitted to sit behind the controls of the large ships. Some of the planes examined by the cadets were United States fast-flying bombers recently acquired under the British Commonwealth Air Training scheme. These sturdy ships are fitted to fly in the substratosphere and will carry huge loads of bombs great distance at better than the regular rate of speed. They are also heavily armed—some of them bristle with machine guns and cannons. When the squadron took time out to rest they were treated with soft drinks, etc., in the sergeants' mess. All of the boys returned to town highly enthusiastic following their outing.

Public and Separate School Observe May 24.

In a patriotic setting at Governor Simcoe Memorial Park on Thursday afternoon 1600 Public and Separate School children observed Empire Day, better known as Queen Victoria's birthday. The school children congregated around the band stand in the park and heard patriotic speeches delivered by the Rev. W. Robinson, curate of St. George's Anglican Church, Rev. Father Hanley and Charlie Wilkins, chairmen of the program. A huge Union Jack waved in the light breeze over the band stand canopy while the service was in progress. After the speeches the children joined to sing patriotic numbers. Miss Nora McLellan led the singing.

R.C.A.F. Command Softball Loop

The smart-moving softball outfit representing the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station is setting the world on fire this term and to date Trenton or out-of-town aggregations have not been able to cope with the style of game they dish up. In three starts the Air Force crew have failed to meet defeat and their latest victim was McNair Juniors, who gave the classy Glen Millerites their closest call of the schedule. Glen Miller have played two and lost none but they have not faced the Birdmen yet and the ultimate strength of their forces cannot be ascertained until they clash with the Portmen in the near future. The highly touted Canadian Doughnuts fell before Wooler and the latter were beaten by the R.C.A.F. so the league leadership though in doubt is inclined to lean toward the Air Force team. The first of June, however, will give the fans a clearer picture for June 2nd will see two top-ranking outfits—R.C.A.F. and Miller Bros. clash at Bayshore diamond. The Portmen trounced McNair's Juniors 17 to 6 on Wednesday night.

Mr. Chas. Kilgour Is Leaving City

Mr. Charles R. Kilgour, organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church since September 1938, has received his Mus. Bach degree from the University of Toronto.

Tomorrow Sunday, May 26th., he officiates at St. Andrew's organ and conducts the choir for the last time.

He contemplates going to England to attend the Royal College of Music, South Kensington, looking forward to the degree of A.R.C.M. and possibly F.R.C.O. When he will go to the Old Country is indefinite.

Mr. Kilgour was organist in Brantford for five years before coming to Belleville.

THE MESSAGE [illegible] MAJESTY THE [illegible]

His Majesty King G[illegible] Sixth in his broadca[illegible] address to the Empire on Friday sounded the note of high courage in this hour of peril which the Empire and the world are facing from the enemy.

Courage, resolution, confidence and self-sacrifice were the qualities stressed that the men of the Homeland and from overseas in an unending stream are bringing to the struggle.

The King spoke of the treacherous and unprovoked aggression of the enemy. He made plain its aim saying it was the enemy's plan to crush completely the British Empire and then subjugate the nations of the world.

His Majesty spoke of the Nation and Empire as turning "at this fateful hour, as our forefathers before us have turned in all times of trial, to God the Most High."

The Allied cause is that of right. The Allies are fighting for all that is most precious in the world against a savage and a ruthless foe.

His Majesty stressed the justice of the Allied cause as one of its greatest sources of strength. His words called the nation "to commit its cause to God and ask His aid, that we may valiantly defend the right as it is given us to see it."

The King's words were a ringing call to service and duty, "Put into your task, whatever it may be all the courage and purpose, of which you are capable. Keep your hearts proud and your resolve unshaken. Let us go forward to that task as one man, a smile on our lips and our heads held high, and with God's help we shall not fail."

BRITAIN PUTS ON WHOLE ARMOR OF HER RESOURCES

Britain has armed herself with the full armor of national effort and equality of sacrifice against an enemy whose ways are those of destruction.

The entire nation stands by the Parliament in its action in yielding for the duration of the war precious liberties which are left in abeyance for the purpose of preserving them. If there is heard any criticism, it is that this action was not taken before.

The quiet manner in which the new temporary dictatorship was set up is an indication of the depth and firmness of the resolve of the British people that this menace of Hitlerism must be crushed forever.

People in Britain would not be surprised if an attempt were made at invasion but if Britain is prepared, says a London newspaper, the enemy cannot succeed.

Britain means to be ready. She has called for the maximum production of tanks, planes, guns and munitions, she has joined every individual in the nation with one task to do—to contribute to the utmost in the effort to bring victory. No individual can gain or profit by the struggle, no individual can escape his or her share of the duty of the preservation of British liberty.

Britain has fully mobilized her wealth, her people, into a gigantic and effective weapon to deal a deadly blow at the enemy.

A TYPICAL NAZI ACT

German invaders, Nazi lines of transports, mingling with the refugees fleeing along the roads of France in the drive a few days ago—that is what British aviators saw beneath them as they flew over the roads in the battle area.

There is only one inference—those Germans used those refugees to protect themselves from R.A.F. bombers.

That is a sample of Nazi German cowardice. It is like the act of a maniacal person who seizes a woman or child as a shield.

Germany means to use every weapon it can fashion [illegible]d, and every trick and device a destructive mind can conceive of.

Against so despicable a foe, Allied gentlemen have to fight. And the Allies will conquer that enemy, who bears all the marks of treachery, savagery and cruelty.

Civilization has two black blots upon it, a blot made in 1914 by the Germans and the blacker blot of the Nazi Germans in 1940. Hitler and his associates—the super Nazis—are to blame for this. Without their consent or order, such things could not be. For such things, such daubs or smears on the face of the fair earth, they will be held accountable.

THE VANDAL GERMANS

During the First Great War Germany caused damage which can never be fully repaired as it battered at sanctuaries, churches, shrines of the faith of the French and Belgian people. Such blows had all the evidence of a concerted plan to destroy the foundations of those nations opposing the Boches. There was the great cathedral at Rheims, one of the centres of the national and religious life of France. Here was the sacred edifice in which the French Dauphin was crowned as a result of that struggle in which Joan of Arc, the Maid of Orleans, led the French armies to victory. That cathedral stood intact until the Hun in 1914 same on the scene. This temple was bombed and shattered. After the war, at great expense, it was restored as one of the great centres of the life of the French people.

But it was not only churches which were blasted to powder and to bits by the Germans but it was as well the priceless heritages of art and ancient buildings which came out of an age which is long past and which cannot be duplicated in this machine era. They were built in a day when men spent their lives in building memorials to last for all times if the hand of the destroyer would leave them alone. The vandal Germans wrecked the Cloth Hall at Ypres and many another building. The reason is clear—the enemy aimed to destroy all the foundations and sources of the national spirit of the Allies, not only kill their soldiers and sailors and fliers, but wipe out their civilization.

Now the Nazi Germans are doing the same. Their aim is to burn, or blow to pieces, everything of value to another race or to all races. The great library at Louvain has been destroyed in this war. That library with a priceless heritage of volumes and manuscripts was destroyed by the Germans in 1914 and their present-day counterparts, the Nazis, have burned it again. It is only twelve years since the restoration was completed by the Belgian Government with American aid.

The city of Louvain goes back over one thousand years and was the capital of the Duke of Brabant. Louvain University was the intellectual centre of Belgian Catholicism, having been founded in 1426. On the restoration of the library thousands of books had been sent from England to replace the lost volumes, burned by the Germans in 1914.

Why should a nation like Belgium or France be called upon to suffer the loss of men and women and children they have endured, that destruction of national memorials and monuments and national treasures, all because of an enemy which has marked its history with brutality, savagery, destruction of precious things? It is the hope and aim of the Allied nations to put a curb on this super-vandal, this destroyer of everything that is precious, beautiful or good.

Cupid Shoots Canuck

LONDON—Police Sergeant Barrett was walking along Tottenham Court road at four o'clock one morning when he saw a tall, handsome young Canadian soldier standing in a milk bar.

The sergeant stopped and took a longer look at the soldier. He went inside the bar; asked the young man to accompany him outside.

He then told the Canadian that he had reason to suspect that he was a deserter from the Canadian army. The soldier replied: "I am not a deserter. I intend to go back, but I lost my ticket."

Later, he added: "It is all over a girl; I am simply crazy over her."

He came to London on leave from his unit on April 10 and should have returned on April 18.

The soldier appeared at Marlborough street police court the next day. His face was overcast as he came to attention before Magistrate Boyd.

Mr. Boyd asked him if he admitted that he was a deserter.

The Canadian threw back his well-shaped head as he answered: "No, sir, I am not."

He admitted that he was an absentee from his regiment.

The Canadian, who had come to the Motherland to be tripped up by Cupid, was handed over to an escort as an absentee. Not a deserter.—English Exch.

The King Saves a Play

RECENTLY I reported the sad news that the excellent revival of John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" had proved a failure at Westminster Theatre and that the gallant management, which has upheld the cause of serious drama since the beginning of the war, had announced it must close down. During the week, however, the situation has changed as if by a miracle. The King and Queen dropped in to see the show, and this example now is being followed by a satisfactory number of loyal subjects.

"Dropped in" is the right phrase here. The Westminster is just across the way from Buckingham Palace. Not more than two hours' notice was given to the management, and a party consisting of the King and Queen, an equerry and a lady-in-waiting came along without fuss, ceremony, pomp or circumstance, and sat in the stalls.

The audience was taken by surprise, although it was played up admirably that the King's evident wish was that the visit should be considered a private occasion, and so relieved the Royal party from the embarrassment of being made the centre of attraction.

Royalty, when it goes to the theatre formally, is ushered respectfully to the Royal box, from which it seldom is able to see much of the play. Not only "Abraham Lincoln" itself but the novel experience of seeing it properly gave the King and Queen a real evening's enjoyment, and they told the manager so when they left the theatre.

This was not the first time Their Majesties have given friendly assistance to a deserving theatre, for they paid a similar visit to the Theatre Royal Windsor not long ago when a repertory company was trying to establish itself in public favor there.

The kindly gesture had the effect that receipts in the box office since then have doubled — New York Times Special Writer.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 25th., 1920.

A LONG HIKE. As an indication of the strength and endurance of the pioneers of this district, a story of citizen ALEX. O. Petrie, which is still related by the oldst inhabitants, is interesting. Mr. Petrie had some business to transact at Kingston, then the headquarters for military, mercantile and legal business for a considerable area. Transportation in those days was primitive and bumping over corduroy roads on springless stages or pioneer carts was not a pleasant experience. Boat service, more or less uncertain, was maintained and the speed of the packets was extremely limited according to present day standards, depending a good deal on the quality of the cord wood available for fuel to produce steam. Mr. Petrie determined to travel to Kingston by packet, but when he reached the water front, he found that the boat had cast off and was straightened away for the voyage to the Limestone City. Notwithstanding his urgent signals, and the prospect of another passenger, the captain refused to return and the boat continued her voyage. Mr. Petrie had made up his mind to go to Kingston and as his legs were sound and his wind good, he proceeded to walk the distance with the result that he arrived in Kingston in time to welcome the boat upon its arrival. Of course steamers in those days were rather slow, but it was a notable achievement just the same.

Private Shoots Two—Saves Patrol

LONDON—Sergeant A. A. Brown and Private S. Whitehouse, both of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment, have been awarded the Military Medal by Lord Gort, British Commander-in-Chief, for conspicuous gallantry while on patrol in "No Man's land" beyond the Maginot Line.

Their story is told in a communique from G.H.Q. in France, quoted by Reuter. It said:

"On the night of April 10-11, Sergeant Brown was second-in-command of a patrol.

"Having completed its main task, the patrol was returning to our lines through the streets of a deserted village when fire was opened from the left-hand side of the street at about 10 yards' range, the enemy throwing hand grenades and using both rifle and automatic weapons.

Instant Action

"One of the enemy rose from a ditch on the right of the road, behind the leader of the patrol, about six feet away, and Private Whitehouse shot him dead instantly.

"He then shot and wounded a German, in a doorway on the left of the road, whose rifle was afterwards brought in.

"By his alertness, instant action and good shooting, Private Whitehouse undoubtedly saved the patrol leader's life. He was afterwards wounded in the arm.

"His coolness, courage and fortitude gave an excellent example to his comrades.

"Meanwhile Sergeant Brown, who was in command of the rear portion of the patrol, comprising himself and four men, was hit on the shoulder by a hand-grenade, which afterwards exploded, wounding one man in the knee.

"Having shot and severely wounded a German who approached, Sergeant Brown successfully collected his four men into a barn.

Close to Enemy

"Later, he despatched two men to our lines for help, himself remaining with one wounded and one unwounded man very close to the enemy. As help did not arrive, Sergeant Brown, assisting the wounded man, skilfully withdrew, and reached our lines about 3 1-2 hours from the beginning of the action."—London Exchange.

Dreams—Then Walks

LONDON—Dreaming has made Private Victor Cook, of the Royal Corps of Signals, a sleep-walker three times.

Recently at 3 a.m., he walked bare-foot for a quarter of a mile from his home in Clifton Gardens, Maida Vale, N.W.

He was dreaming about a friend who was going to America, and he decided in his sleep to go to say "Goodbye."

He walked in his pyjamas down six flights of stairs, switched off a burglar alarm, unfastened three front-door bolts, and wandered out into the street.

A war reserve policeman saw him and followed him as he crossed Maida-Vale to Sutherland avenue.

There the policeman spoke to him, and persuaded him to go to hospital. There he recovered.

He said about his sleep-walking "It's the third time I have done it now.

"I think it must be something to do with a cycling accident I had three years ago.

"Once when I was in camp at Catterick in Yorkshire I got up in the middle of the night, cleaned my buttons, put on full marching uniform and went out on sentry duty.

"The next time I went into a field in my night clothes."—London Exchange.

Flanders Fields

WASHINGTON, May 25—(CP)—It was no accident that the Canadian soldier poet, Lieut.-Colonel John McCrae, wrote about the poppies of Flanders fields. Those fields and all the lowland plains have been a battleground for the nations of western and of central Europe since time immemorial.

The reason simply is that it's the best spot on the western front for armies to get at each other. Rough terrain makes the upper Rhineland more difficult.

When Caesar blitzkrieged Gaul 2,000 years ago he called the Belgae the bravest of the tribesmen. Even then Germanic tribes were pressing against the Gauls on these plains. Later German invaders, upon the breakdown of Roman power, drove through Belgium.

In the Middle Ages the populous, prosperous lowlands were seized by the dukes of Normandy, and in 1516 they were subjected to the Hapsburg emperor, Charles V. Spanish tyranny brought about the revolution that gave the Netherlands freedom, but left Belgium under Spanish or Austrian control until the French revolution.

Meantime Louis XIV sought to give France its "nautral boundaries" by expanding to the Rhine. Britain led a coalition of Austria, Holland and the Germanic states against him, and in the grandiose schemes of France's grand monarch were drowned in bloodshed on Flanders fields.

For centuries Britain had had a special interest in the lowlands because it was there that her wool was manufactured into fine cloth. And about this time it became evident Britain would never agree voluntarily to the domination of the lowlands by a major power.

Recalling Waterloo

So when Napoleon annexed this territory to France in 1801, he too had a war on his hands. The last shot was fired at Waterloo, in Belgium in 1815.

Belgium was then united willy-nilly to Holland. Soon she revolted and set up independently. Thereupon Great Britain, Austria, France, Prussia and Russia signed a treaty recognizing her as a "perpetually neutral" state.

That treaty held good in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, but by the time the First Great War rolled around, German strategists had evolved the Schlieffen plan. It proposed the defeat of France by an end run through the lowlands. Germany carried it out to the extent of overrunning Belgium, but bogged down in the muddy fields of Flanders.

Following its First Great War experience with a scrap of treaty paper, Belgium abandoned guaranteed neutrality in favor of defensive alliances. After Hitler, however, she renounced these treaties in the hope that no power could point a finger at her as lacking in neutrality and good intentions.

But once more blood flows on Flanders fields.

'Strength Thru Joy'

Most readers of this newspaper will have heard of the Nazi organization prettily described as the "Strength - Through - Joy" (Kraft durch Freude) movement. This is part of the Labor Front, over which the genial Dr. Robert Ley presides. As Professor Henri Lichtenberger described it, "the association organizes hikes and tours which range from the simple week-end excursion up to vacations of ten days aboard a steamer or trips aboard at extraordinarily reduced rates"

It now appears, according to words which have dropped from Dr. Ley's own lips, that what is now going on in Europe is not unprovoked aggression, accompanied by murder, arson, treason, corruption, lies and hypocrisy, but something like a simple week-end excursion, or possibly a longer trip, at extraordinary rates, and intended solely to "bring Europe and the world to reason and thereby make Europe and the world happy."

The Nazis, Dr. Ley maintains, "march as banner carriers of a new and better world of reason and discernment." This is their "holy, invincible idea." They expect to "come away with an unconditional definitive victory" and to give Europe "a new face and the people of our portion of the earth a better, happier future."

There can be no doubt that in so far as Dr. Ley5s Strength-Through-Joy boys can get at it, Europe will need a new face. It will need new hospitals, new schools, new orphan asylums, new cathedrals, new industries, new cemeteries for the war dead whose fate Dr. Ley takes so lightly on his soul—N.Y. Times.

Living a Lie

—"Both in our home and in our foreign policy we were living", Bethmann Hollweg, the German chancellor, said to me in 1915, "in a lie. A strident, pushing, elbowing spirit had been produced in our people. They really were a mass of conceit and totally ignorant of other countries; they imagined that no other peoples were worth their salt, only our own. And that catch-phrase, "The German way shall cure the world'—what should we say if the French or British said that sort of thing of themselves? It would be frightful if after the peace this pushfulness, this overbearingness, should continue to prevail among us. A frightful thought!" — Wolff in Manchester Guardian.

TOO FAST ONE

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

THERE ARE MANY CAUSES OF BAD BREATH

Many physicians get impatient with radio announcers, and with newspaper advertisements which speak or tell of the effectiveness of their preparations to correct bad breath. This is due to the fact that physicians feel that these preparations cannot correct bad breath because there is some local or general condition present that must be removed before bad breath can be cured. And just as long as the patient is using these preparations, he is apt to be satisfied and not seek the cause and have it removed.

What many physicians fail to remember is that many of these sufferers with bad breath have consulted a physician or dentist, or both, and have obtained no relief. They can hardly be blamed then if they turn to these advertised remedies which remove the bad breath for a little while at least.

As a matter of fact, while most cases of bad breath are caused by some mouth or nose condition, or some general condition of the body, the cause often is not easily or readily found. While the search is being made there is no reason why preparations containing thymol, creasote, salicylic acid, benzoic acid, eucalyptis and other drugs should not be used as a mouth wash or gargle.

Most cases of bad breath are due to decayed teeth, infected gums and tonsils, and to the dry form of catarrh. There may be cavities or there may be little portions of food left on the teeth that should be removed by brushing or rinsing after meals.

The large number of conditions that cause bad breath is outlined by Dr. Frederick C. Smith, editor of The Medical World:—

Causes of bad breath are 1. Diseases of the mouth and throat. 2. Diseases of the bronchial tubes and lungs. 3. Systemic diseases and diseases due to poisons in the system. 4. Diseases of the digestive system.

Diseases of mouth and throat are decayed teeth, pyorrhea, cold sores, infected tonsils, tuberculous and syphilitic ulcerations. Mouth breathers with nasal polyps and blocked nostrils often have bad breath. Chronic putrid bronchitis and lung abscesses are other causes.

Systemic causes are fevers, diabetes, pernicious anaemia, tuberculosis, and inflammation of kidneys. Digestive tract causes are acute and chronic indigestion, chronic constipation, worms, cancer of stomach and liver.

While the above is a long list, "most" cases are due to mouth, stomach, and bowel conditions, and these should be searched for first.

ANTI-PARACHUTE SWEDES

Toronto — (CP) — Swedish International Press Bureau mailed reports received here indicate Sweden was organizing "Home Defence Militia" in April to take action (in case of war) against "enemy parachutists and other minor enemy patrols."

Down the Hatch!

"I'd like some beer," said the commander of the German supply ship Posidonia after his ship had been sunk and he himself rescued by the British submarine Trident, it was revealed recently.

He spoke good English. The submarine's crew explained with regret that they did not have any beer on board.

"No beer?" said the commander. "What a pity. You have just sunk 16,000 bottles of it."

The beer was part of a supply for Nazi troops in Norway—London Exchange.

Pilot Failure

DAYTON, O., May 25—(CP)—The Second Great War, with its high casualty rate from what is known in broad terms as "pilot failure", again is raising the question whether the human mind and body are being taxed beyond their capacity by the speed and complexity of today's airplanes.

Reports from abroad indicate that, at a minimum, for every four pilots killed as a direct result of combat, six lose their lives because their judgment suddenly becomes faulty or their bodies refuse to take the strain.

In many instances a pilot is downed by an enemy because he goes to pieces at the wrong moment and presents himself as a perfect target for his opponent's guns.

Here at Wright Field, the U. S. Army Air Corps testing ground, the problem is being studied in the field of pure physiological research into a question of whether the human machine is being overloaded. No attempt has been made as yet to answer it.

Dutch to Us!

NEW YORK, May 25—(CP)—The names by which numerous Dutch towns are known are Anglicized and therefore there is no authority for their pronunciation. Amsterdam and Rotterdam, however, are Dutch names, pronounced phonetically.

The Hague, seat of government, is commonly known as Den Haag, pronounced "Den Hog;" the English tongue is seldom equal to pronunciation of the Hague's formal name, 'S-Gravenhage, but an approximation is "Schawvenhogga."

Here are a few others: (Accent on first syllable): Maastricht, "Mahsschtrick"; Nieuwe Maas, "Neewu Mahs"; Ijsselmeer (Zuider Zee), "Alsalmair"; Waalhaven, "Vahlhahvan"; Roermond, "Roormunt."

Some Belgian names: (Accent on last syllables: Liege, "Leealajhe"; Malmedy, "Mahlmaydee"; Brussels, "Breussell"; Antwerp, "Ahnvair" (French not Flemish pronunciation); Ardennes, "Ardenn"; Namur, "Nahmeur."

YOUNG IRELAND, MAYBE

Boise, Idaho — (CP) — Idaho this year is celebrating its 50th year of statehood, with special emphasis on potatoes, the state's big crop.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

An Allied pincers movement aimed at cutting off the German corridor recently hammered through France to the English Channel is in progress. Heavy attacks are being launched on the corridor from both the north and the south.

The nature of the present battle, particularly the tactics used by the Germans, makes for confusion. Fast moving mechanized detachments range over great distances, striking where defences are weakest. There are no settled lines as during the greater part of the First Great War.

Thus the commanders themselves are often short of accurate information on the true position of affairs at any given movement. For the public, following the reports of the fighting, the confusion is the greater due to a deliberate policy of keeping the secret movements of the Allied forces, the names of towns and cities lost and recaptured.

This policy is sound because the German command cannot maintain constant touch with all its advance detachments.

By telling the full story of the battle the Allied high command would be furnishing the enemy with information which would enable him to direct his forces to better advantage.

Collegiate News

XIIA Wiener Roast—Thursday, May 22, 1940

Last night at 7 p.m. 30 members of that abundant form of XIIA could be seen driving or walking towards one spot the John Street door of the Collegiate. They bore oddly-shaped parcels which at a later hour turned out to be wieners and rolls, mustard and other sundry articles of food. The boys, poor things, supplied the cars and drinks willingly enough it seemed — and everyone bumped merrily off to Gowsell's Grove past Foxboro. We pity the cars which emerged at midnight, practically, wrecks of their former selves.

Gowsell's Grove was finally reached—a perfect spot complete with mosquitos. We couldn't forget them. Boats, mayflowers, full moon, swing and water. The party was grand but where did those odd couples drift off to from time to time. Cookie made her planned spectacular entrance on the scene with Eva and everything went merrily.

The food and drinks and marshmallows were truly nectar of the gods and were followed by songs as "Down by the old mill stream," "Sweet Adeline", "Oh Johnny" and "Down by the bay."

About 11.15 p.m. the party broke up and we rolled home again. The boys actually delivered all the girls to their respective homes.

We conclude that the "Age of Chivalry" is not yet past and wish we could have another wiener roast soon. M. C.

The Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School has had a most active Red Cross Club for about five years. This club has been under the personal direction of Miss Dwyer.

During the past few days, acting on Mr. MacLaurin's advice, an invitation was extended to all the girls in the school to form Junior Red Cross Units. The response was encouraging and about two hundred and seventy girls in all signed up. Now we happily boast six units, each unit under the direction of two teachers.

Wednesday after four the groups met. Elections took place, followed by a discussion of the many ways in which each unit could do most effective work to assist the Empire.

We hope to be well organized before this term is over. The holidays will find many knitting and sewing—preparing for a very busy fall

These are anxious days for all of us, and it seems difficult to keep our minds on books. News of the German invasion seems of more pressing moment than accounts of the Persian Invasions of Greece twenty-five hundred years ago; and the rate of the German advance is more interesting than the most involved physics problem.; The only "study" which seems vital is Cadet work, and all are entering into it with vigor. The little boys are manfully measuring up; so far there has been only one casualty—one of the bigger boys. W. R.

The attendance for all classes in April averaged slightly over 95 per cent. XIIE led the contest with 96.37 per cent. XIIA followed closely with 96.18; and IXH practically tied with 96.12 per cent.

Picton

Picton, May 25—May 24th was observed as a holiday in Picton and there being no special entertainment planned, citizens busied themselves with gardening, motor trips or visiting. Schools closed Thursday for the holiday and before closing special programs were held to mark Empire day. The Ontario Department of Education had sent out programs and these were followed.

A public service has been arranged for Sunday afternoon at the War Memorial when prayers for guidance in the war effort will be offered. This is in accordance with the proclamation of His Majesty the King that Sunday be a day of prayer throughout the Empire. The Sunday service is arranged by the local branch of the Canadian Legion and in charge of Rev. J. F. Reycraft assisted by other ministers of the town. Previous to the service there is to be a parade in which those taking part will include the band, members of Hastings and Prince Edward depot, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, members of the Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion, members of the town and county councils, P.C.V.I. cadets and other organizations. All churches are also holding special services on Sunday.

Picton, May 25—The softball season opened here Thursday evening with an exhibition game between the Dominion Store and the Hastings and Prince Edward Depot, with the soldiers winning 9-8. The men in khaki staged a rally in the seventh to score four. While running to first base, Leo McQuaid fell and suffered a broken leg just above the ankle. The members of the Depot attracted much attention as they paraded to the fairgrounds, headed by Piper Jamie Clark. Mallory went the route for the Depot on the mound with Schriver on the receiving end. For the grocery, Addersley, Minaker and Tuttle each tried their wares and revealed that the Picton entry will have good hurling material to fall back on when they play teams in the Belleville softball league. The Dominions had only part of their league team in action. Score by innings:

Depot .. ........ .... 032 000 4—9

Umpires: Croft at plate; VanCamp on bases.

WEDDINGS

HARWOOD—WEST

Holloway Street United Church parsonage was the scene of an interesting wedding at seven o'clock on Wednesday evening when Dorothy, daughter of Mrs. Henrietta West and the late Arthur West, became the bride of Corporal John William Harwood, son of Mr. C. W. T. Harwood and the late Mrs. Harwood of Port Hope. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. E. Newman.

The bride wore a lovely gown of Elizabeth blue with navy accessories and corsage of Rapture roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Florence Harwood of Port Hope, sister of the groom, wearing navy sheer with wine accessories and corsage of roses and lilies of the valley. Sgt. Stanley Crossett of the 14th Field Battery, Cobourg, was groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. A. Wrightmyer, 79 Octavia Street. The rooms were charming with tulips and pastel Spring flowers. Mrs. West received in a gown of navy sheer, while Mrs. Wrightmyer wore flowered crepe. After a motor trip Corporal and Mrs. Harwood will reside in Belleville.

WHITE—WARDLE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Salvation Army Citadel, Thursday, May 23rd., when Pearl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wardle, was united in marriage to James White, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. White by Major Alderman.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a lovely dress of gaiety blue with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ruby Wardle, wearing navy blue with gaiety blue accessories with corsage of yellow roses.

The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Wm. White.

Mr. Jack Green played wedding music.

After the ceremony a dainty lunch was served at the home of the bride's parents after which the happy couple left for a wedding trip. The bride travelled in navy blue tailored suit with dusty rose accessories.

HARDWICK — MARNER

St. Andrew's Church manse, George Street, was the scene of a lovely wedding at one o'clock yesterday afternoon when Eliza Verdun, (Bessie) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Marner, became the bride of Mr. Herbert Colin Hardwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hardwick. Rev. W. J. Walker performed the ceremony.

The bride was a charming picture in her gown of turquoise blue taffeta with white flower turban and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of pink roses in the centre of which was a spray of white heather from Scotland, the gift of her aunt.

The bride was attended by her sisters, Mrs. C. J. Downey in white satin with white accessories and Mrs. H. Flindall, Kingston, in Elizabeth blue lace with white accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

Mr. K. J. Colling and Mr. Wallace Marner, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, beautifully decorated with Spring flowers for the occasion. Mrs. Marner, mother of the bride, wearing Queen's blue crepe with corsage of roses, and Mrs. Hardwick, mother of the groom, attired in black silk crepe with corsage of roses, received with the bridal couple. About thirty-five guests were present and buffet luncheon was served, the bride's table being most attractive with its centre piece of roses and the handsomely decorated wedding cake.

The groom's gifts to the bride's attendants were pearl necklaces and to the groomsmen, fountain pens.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick left on a motor trip to western points the bride travelling in a smart frock of dusky rose, with navy coat, silver fox fur and white accessories. Upon their return they will reside on Burton Street.

Start Him to School in Health

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS Ph.D.

ONE OF the finest services rendered by the United States Parent-Teacher Association is the Summer Round-Up. This is a health activity "sponsored by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers through its local units for the purpose of arousing interest of parents and improving the health of children entering school for the first time, and to bring about continuous medical and dental supervision of children of all ages, especially those apparently healthy." It is conducted in co-operation with the community medical, dental and nursing professions and health agencies.

The Summer Round-Up program was begun by the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in 1925. It believes that the home is responsible for the pre-school child and that the home should send the child to school physically fit to take full advantage of the opportunity which education has to offer.

Operates in Spring

Although, as a rule, the child enters school in the fall, this program operates in the spring, giving ample time for building up the child and having all remediable physical defects corrected during the summer. Accordingly, there is a spring canvass of the local community to locate the children who will be entering school in the fall. A local representative of the PTA visits the parents to inform them of the value of the health examination and win their co-operation. Parents are induced to bring their children, who will enter school next fall, to a central place, usually the elementary school building, for examinations by doctors and dentists.

The doctors and dentists don't correct the physical defects they find but advise the parents to have this correction done by the family doctor and dentist. In case the parents lack sufficient money to pay for this service, a way is usually found to have proper medical and dental care of the child free, or at a nominal cost, at a clinic, dispensary or hospital. Those children who have not already been vaccinated against small pox and inoculated against diphtheria have this service begun at once, usually during the examination period.

Follow-Up Visits

After this spring examination, follow-up visits by a PTA representative are made to the home to urge that the advice of the examining physician and dentist be followed and to make arrangements for the indigent cases.

Other contributions come from this program. As the mothers take their little children to the school building they meet the principal and teachers who often help them to prepare the child in a wholesome mental and emotional attitude toward coming to school, so that they will look hopefully and happily forward to school entrance in the fall.

Also many mothers see the need of having younger children at home checked by the family doctor or dentist or at a baby clinic; the need, moreover, of having them at once vaccinated against smallpox and inoculated against diphtheria, rendering them safe against these dread diseases. Indeed, this Summer Round-Up program helps make all parents of community more conscious of good health care and education of the entire family.

ELZEVIR RED CROSS

On Wednesday evening, May 16, Elzevir Township Red Cross Branch held a social evening. The second vice president, Mr. Fred Rollins, acted as chairman and after the singing of "O Canada" Mr. Rollins gave a short review of the Hastings County Executive meeting held in Belleville recently.

Miss McCaw gave an interesting paper on the life and work of the First Red Cross Nurse, Miss Florence Nightingale. The Junior Red Cross of Queensboro School gave a Health skit and chorus.

Mrs. Price of Actinolite gave a very interesting report as delegate to the Provincial Council held in Toronto.

Mr. Leonard Summers entertained with a solo after which community singing was led by Mrs. E. D. Snelgrove. Lunch was served and the following items packed by the Women's War Work Committee: 24 pairs socks, 7 wool scarves, 7 pair wristlets, 1 aero cap, 8 sweaters, 4 triangular bandages, 15 knitted wash cloths (Jr. Red Cross), 5 quilts, 5 children's dresses.

Gifts Connected With a Wedding

Customarily, the groom gives his bride a wedding present, and usually the bride gives the groom a gift to commemorate the day. Although the gift may or may not be an expensive one, it should be personal, with a thoughtful and charming touch of sentiment. The groom's gift to the bride is usually something for her personal adornment, usually an ornament worn on her wedding day—a necklace, a pendant, a brooch, a bracelet.

The groom usually sends his bride her wedding bouquet; sometimes pays for (and chooses with the bride's suggestions) the bouquets for the maid of honor and the bridesmaids. On the wedding day, he sends a corsage to the bride's mother and to his own mother.

The bride's gift to the groom should also be something personal; a gold or silver key, in a key-case, to their new home, inscribed with the wedding date, or a message; cuff links., a dress set; a pocket or wrist watch, engraved with his or their initials and the wedding date; a cigarette case, similarily engraved.

Gifts to Attendants

The bride's gift to her attendants may be an elaborate and expensive gift, if the bride can afford this, or it may be a modestly priced but thoughtfully planned remembrance. The gifts are given to the attendants at the bridesmaids' luncheon or at the bride's dinner, or at any other convenient time before the wedding.

The groom presents gifts to his best man and ushers; very often the best man and ushers give the groom a personal present. This gift does not take the place of a wedding present. Most often chosen is a cigarette box or humidor, engraved with the facsimiles of he signatures of the groom's attendants.

Wedding Presents

The gift that we send to the happy couple should, if possible be something for the new home, rather than a personal present. Wedding presents are always sent to the bride-to-be, even when the sender is a relative or friend of the groom and has not met the bride-elect.

The wise bride-elect provides herself with a gift book, and, as each gift arrives, it is recorded, with the name and address of the donor, the date received, and, if possible, the place where the gift was purchased. As soon as possible—the day the gift is received, if she can—the bride-to-be writes a note of thanks, gracious, appreciative. She should never send an engraved or printed card of thanks.

Boys and Girls Swap School Jobs To Mutual Advantage

Boys learn how to cook, plan menus and buy meats and groceries, with regard to food values and economy, on the days they swap instruction with the girls at the Curtis Occupational School in Washington, D.C.

Meantime, the girls take up the work the boys have left off, temporarily, which includes how to upholster furniture, do a first-class painting job, hang curtains, and do other things around the house which have been regarded as exclusively the work of a willing male.

It's been a splendid thing, this swapping of jobs between the sexes and it's a long way past the experimental stage. Nothing has been said about its effect on happy homes in the future. But it goes without saying that a girl who can wield a hammer without smashing her fingers, and can actually upholster furniture, is going to make a better housewife than one who sulks until a man comes around to do these things.

As for the boys on their exchange days, they devour the results of their culinary skill with gusto. Their cooking is not the haphazard thing boys do on camping trips. They are even inducted into the subtle art of making sauces, and the butcher who can put across a tough steak or a scraggy piece of mutton on one of these embryo chefs will have to be a hypnotist.

This exchange of work is part of the school's program for well-rounded living. According to the principal, Mrs. R. K. Webb, boys need to understand homemaking just as girls need to be handy with a hammer, paint-brush and chisel. Don't imagine that the girls have no pride in their cooking, sewing, laundry work. In addition, they are taught how to give themselves shampoos and manicures.

Community life is in full swing in the school itself. For instance, in a nearby lower-grade school, a group of girls from Curtis is detailed to teach these little ones how to play games; the boys are responsible for keeping the playground equipment in good condition.

Students who have passed Red Cross first-aid tests help to take care of children in the playgrounds. In addition to these things, occupational school students study housing conditions and delve into a survey of industry by visiting shops and plants. The school is decidedly not run on the principal of "all work and no play"—in addition to their school work, the students are taught folk dancing in the mid-week recreation period.

Classes at the Curtis School are representative of the occupational work going on in several other schools of the public school system of the National Capital. This type of work has been arranged that boys and girls might find opportunities for occupational work, and the courses are planned for students who are not likely to go into regular academic work. In occupational classes, provision is made to recognize skill and aptitude for transfer of pupils to the vocational school.

If you ask me for one of the best ways to keep that one marriage in six from going on the rocks, I would unhesitatingly answer that the work done in these schools is very helpful.

Presentation

A very happy event took place at the home of Mrs. Mary Hall, Front of Thurlow, on Thursday evening, May 23rd., when the residents of the community, numbering seventy-five, gathered to do honor to her son, W. Aleck Hall and his bride, (formerly Miss Audrey Allin, daughter of Alderman and Mrs. H. J. Allin of Belleville), who were quietly married on Tuesday, May 7th., 1940.

After a social time and the firing of a number of fireworks, enjoyed alike by old and young, the happy couple were asked to take prominent seats and an address was read by Miss Hazel Reid.

The address was signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours R. K. Garbutt, Fletcher Reid, Ted Purdy carried in four large hampers of gifts a veritable deluge instead of a shower, and many articles of a most useful and costly nature were presented them.

Both replied in a happy vein thanking all for their kindness and beautiful gifts. "For they are jolly good fellows" was sung and a bounteous lunch was served by the ladies.

This was followed by community singing with Mrs. F. Parrott at the piano, Mrs. Parrott and Mr. Harry Atchison of Belleville, gave a vocal duet. Mr. Duncan Sr., rendered piano solos and Mr. W. D. Reid a couple of readings all of which was much enjoyed by those present.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, May 26

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a forecast of much steadfast and serious progress in the direction of advancement, preferment, esteem and perhaps dignities at the hands of superiors, employers and those in high place of power and prestige. The intellectual and studious faculties are active and aspiring despite much profundity.

Those whose birthday it is may look for recognition and reward from superiors and those in high places, who may proffer promotion, preferment and tokens of esteem and confidence, possibly in connection with literary or professional versatility and adaptability. These should be sought despite certain ideas of modesty, restraint or limitation. Pessimism should be resolutely routed.

A child born on this day while deep, serious, studious, may be moody and diffident, may have many brilliant talents and charms, recognized and honored by its superiors. It may attain high professional popularity and standing.

For Monday, May 27

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for some tenacious obstacles or thwarting situations which it will be difficult to break loose, especially if too much tempest and high pressure of a rash or drastic quality be brought to bear. Since the higher faculties are unusually keyed up and sagacious it would be best to think through rather than hammer through. Let moderation rather than force prevail.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to encounter some turbulent and frustrating circumstances, which it will be difficult to combat. This had best be done by clear and patient thinking rather than impulsive and violent attack, which may defeat and invite hostility, reacting on the personal happiness. Work through highly stimulated institutions and keen perceptions rather than force.

A child born on this day may have highly stimulated faculties and perceptions, needful to meet much frustration and opposition in life. These should be applied to difficulties rather than violence, passion and impetuosity. Early training in this direction would be particularly beneficial in peculiar situations.

Fashion Flashes

MORE FELT than ever is being worn this summer. Typical is a dramatic off-the-face model in burgundy felt banded and edged with navy grosgrain.

GIVE THANKS for an umbrella which stands firmly on its own support. Instead of a mere tip it has a flower-shaped plastic base as ornamental as it is sensible. The handle matches.

COOL SUIT blouses include silk chiffon striped in red, gray, white, blue and yellow. The neckband has long scarf ends tieing into flowing bow.

A GOOD COMPANION at the beach is the parasol of yellow linen with the handle a ball clock set into a circle of gilt and chronium. Closed, it swings from the hand by loose cord of yellow jute.

SOUTH OF THE BORDER colors and designs are cited by several designers. A daytime frock of white silk crepe has a design of Mexican dancers in bright yellows, blues and reds. Buttons are tiny red sombreros. Bloused line and full, easy skirt.

GIRLS WON'T GIVE UP flowered hats. Delightful and youthful is a black straw calot with a large American Beauty rose in front, and green stem and leaves twined around the crown.

Be Pretty as You Walk

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU walk beautifully or do you just get where you happen to be going? Some day, when loitering along the buy-ways, stop and notice the different ways of locumotion. In five minutes you'll find out how you shouldn't walk. Some poke along, some waddle, some lope with long strides. It is not to the credit of the sisters. More attention should be paid to grace of movement. It isn't what you wear half as much as how you wear it. Women who lack snappy carriage will never line up among the sassy dressers.

Pull up your backbone, balance your head, don't let your chest flatten. Pack your tummy as far back as you can. Let the weight of the body rest between the heel and the toes of the foot. Thumping down on the heels first is a yokel-like habit. So place your foot upon the ground so anyone approaching will not see the sole of your shoe.

Let the arms swing easily. Don't hump your shoulders or plunge the head forward, tricks that are much too common. Don't hang onto your purse as if you were afraid somebody will grab it; that practice makes for tense arm muscles.

When walking take long, deep breaths. You will reap beauty benefits.

What's to be done for pale, hollow cheeks? Oil them, spread out fingers and thumbs and claw them. Get an ice cube and refrigerate them.

A little more intake of nourishing groceries is necessary, also more outdoor exercise to hustle up blood streams. A glass of milk taken at bedtime will provide the body with necessary food elements. More sleep is on the beauty bill of fare.

If pallor exists and there is a sense of fatigue most of the time, there should be a medical examination. A healthy girl has red carnations in her cheeks and is full of ginger, up and at 'em, ready to go places.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Premature Babies

About one in every fifteen or twenty babies is born prematurely. This ratio applies when a premature baby is defined as one carried by its mother less than the nine month period prescribed by nature. Some obstetricians also classify any child weighing less than 5.5 pounds and measuring less than 18 inches as premature. I do not think this is always sound for weight is sometimes considerably affected by other conditions than prematurity.

We know many causes of prematurity, but it is difficult for us to determine which are the commonest causes and which the rarest ones. There is basis for belief that extreme youth, first pregnancy, malnutrition, great daily physical exertion, time of year and sex of the infant may shorten pregnancies for varying periods.

Studies of this subject are made difficult by the fact that even with the help of knowledge of a patient's history and physical examinations and X-rays indicating the duration of the pregnancy and the size of the foetus, no one can predict the actual date of labor with mathematical precision. It isn't even certain it will come in the ninth month: there are cases of pregnancies prolonged beyond 311 days (10 months).

One thing we are sure of: prematurity is to be expected in cases of multiple birth. When a mother is carrying two, three or more foetuses, then there is a very strong tendency for them to be borne early. In such cases prematurity is more often a blessing than not. Carrying two or three babies the full natural term is such a strain that lives of both mother and children are endangered. Of course, this isn't true in cases of twins to the same degree that it is when there are triplets, quadruplets or quintuplets.

If the Dionne Quintuplets had been carried the full term, they would have been so crowded that they might have all died and cost their mother her life as well. However, since they were born at least two months prematurely they had not developed to the stage of crowding each other seriously and so they were safely and easily delivered.

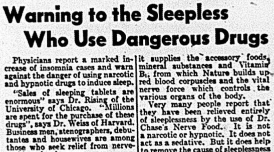
Persons often write me to tell me how highly they think of me for delivering the five safe and sound. Really, that was no feat at all. The real job was to keep them alive after they were born.

The more premature the birth, the smaller the baby, and therefore the easier the labor and delivery are on the baby and the mother. But the more premature the baby, the less is its chance of survival. It is fairly well established that no child can survive if it is born before the 196th day (6 months, 13 days) of pregnancy.

I have written before about the care that must be taken of premature babies; they must have incubators, another source of mother's milk and other things if the baby is to survive. Of course, if the baby is born in a hospital, these things are all at hand. But if the child is born out in the country, or even in a home in a town or village, the necessities are seldom available. Improvised substitutes must be used, and it isn't very often that these substitutes are satisfactory in all respects.

In the case of the Quintuplets, we had no apparatus or equipment, but the facts of their birth were so sensational that heroic things were done to get the equipment in to them. If just one baby had been born, and it two months premature, the world never would have heard about it. We would have had to struggle along without incubators, refrigerators and other aids. The chances of that one child surviving wouldn't have been great. The death rate for premature babies is five to ten times as high as for infants carried the full time.

Fortunately, proper prenatal care of mothers, carried out under the direction of a physician, enables them to avoid most of the hazards that induce or accompany prematurity. When more mothers have proper prenatal care, prematurity will be less of a problem to us.



Warning to the Sleepless Who Use Dangerous Drugs

Physicians report a marked increase of insomnia cases and warn against the danger of using narcotic and hypnotic drugs to induce sleep.

"Sales of sleeping tablets are enormous" says Dr. Rising of the University of Chicago. "Millions are spent for the purchase of these drugs", says Dr. Weiss of Harvard. Business men, stenographers, debutantes and housewives are among those who seek relief from nerve-racking sleeplessness.

"More than 75% of patients in our hospitals had been taking large doses of these dangerous drugs before coming to us", says Dr. Robinson of Kansas City.

When habit-forming opiates, such as morphine and codeine cannot be obtained, other drugs are used. Some of these drugs are destructive to the nervous system, causing mental disturbances, sexual disorders, and even death.

Sleeplessness is a persistent symptom of nervous exhaustion. The natural tendency is for the condition to grow worse and worse unless effort is made to restore richness to the blood and vigor to the nervous system.

For this purpose, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is indicated, because it supplies the accessory foods, mineral substances and Vitamin $B_1$, from which Nature builds up red blood corpuscles and the vital nerve force which controls the various organs of the body.

Very many people report that they have been relieved entirely of sleeplessness by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is not a narcotic or hypnotic. It does not act as a sedative. But it does help to remove the cause of sleeplessness by improving the quality of the blood and thereby nourishing the starved nerves.

Since Vitamin $B_1$ has been added to the formula of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, wider benefits may be expected from this treatment. Among other symptoms to be relieved may be mentioned nervous indigestion, chronic lack of appetite, anaemia, irritability, restlessness, chronic fatigue and general run-down condition of the body.

Instead of deadening the nerves, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food helps to tone up and invigorate the nervous system, and thereby gives new pep and energy to body and mind. It not only makes you feel and look better, but also builds up a reserve of nerve force to help you fight the battle of life.

CITY CELEBRATES VICTORIA DAY IN QUIET MANNER

Traffic Quite Heavy in District but No Accidents Reported

FIREWORKS SEEN

Despite the dark war clouds that are hanging heavily over the Empire residents of this city celebrated Victoria Day on Friday in traditional manner.

While the weather was not exactly all that could be desired a number of driving enthusiasts took to the broad highways for their holiday diversion. A steady stream of out-of-town traffic poured through the city nearly all day. Police however, report careful driving, in this area at least, as no accidents were noted.

Fishing enthusiasts trekked to the northern streams and lakes, as early as late Thursday afternoon. While no sensational catches were noted, several anglers brought back at least some trophies of the chase with pickerel forming the majority of the hauls. Grey trout catches were slim, it was stated.

School children and not a few grownups celebrated the occasion with the traditional fireworks display. Rockets curved into the darkness of the sky late last night to explode in showers of colored fire. The staccato reports of fire crackers echoed in several city streets as the youth of the district indulged in its favorite "24th activities".

Only One Near Casualty

Only one instance of a near casualty occurred on Front Street yesterday morning. An elderly gentleman stood outside a tobacco store eagerly scanning the headlines of a morning newspaper. Behind him crept a young urchin armed with a "cannon". Lighting the cracker, the boy placed it between the gentleman's legs and disappeared within the store. The ensuing explosion caused the E. G. to jump at least a foot in the air. He yelled in sudden fright and a new pipe he had been smoking lay in shattered pieces on th pavement. A minute later the shrill laughter of the youth and his friends rang out in the street, while a red-faced man slowly wandered into a nearby drugstore.

Staffs and pupils of the city public schools celebrated Empire Day on Thursday with patriotic programs. Songs, recitations and in some cases short plays were staged by the youngsters under the supervision of the teachers.

Sporting Activities.

Victoria day saw the official opening of various phases of outdoor sporting activities. At the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club the summer season of bowling on the green was ushered in with an inter-club tournament of impromptu lawn bowling. Treble matches were played with the younger and newer members being initiated and included in the official season opening of lawn bowling. President Frank Correll later announced a complete program of club activities was in the making.

At both golf clubs goodly numbers of golfers took full advantage of the first summer holiday and under ideal weather conditions large attendance was seen at both the Belleville Golf Club and the Country Club courses to give Belleville recreational points a gala summer season's send-off.

At the Belleville Golf Club a men's sweepstakes was held in the morning when the winners were announced as Harry Ridley, Jack Marsh, Archie Graham, R. L. Brown, Cliff Maybe, Sam Hibbard and B. Ogilvie.

The winners of the afternoon two-ball mixed foursome were: Mrs. C. Maybe and Joe Legault, Mrs. Duffield and H. Ridley, Miss Leona Riggs and Len Fozart, Miss Jean Holland and Ross Stiver, and Miss McCreary and Ted Clark.

Rats Prefer Alcohol-Water Mixture, Finding

Remarkable Ability of Rats to Select Food for Ailments is Discovered

New York, May 25 — (AP)— Evidence that rats prefer an alcohol-water mixture rather than pure water is announced in Science, official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The rodents' preference was limited to mild drinks, nothing more than seven per cent alcohol. Above that they returned to pure water.

The experiments were announced as proof of food value in alcohol. They were reported by Curt P. Richter and Kathrne H. Campbell of the Henry Phihps Psychiatric Institute, Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Discovery of a remarkable ability of rats to select food for whatever ailed them was the basis of the claim that the alcoholic preference proves too value.

When adrenal glands were removed, the scientists said the rats somehow knew enough to eat extra amounts of salt which kept them alive; when death threatened from removal of parathyroid glands, they ate extra calcium.

Seventeen rats had the alcohol tests. Thirteen of them preferred the alcoholic drinks, up to seven per cent, one preferred water and three didn't care which.

The War This Week

By Charles Bruce
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Devastation by tank and plane swept over northern France and the remnants of Belgium; but serious as the situation was, probably the most significant happenings — in the long term view—of the 38th week of the war took place in the supreme war council of the Allied nations and the parliaments of Great Britain and France.

Jointly and individually, the disciples of democracy swept aside outworn things and girded themselves for the bitterest days they have ever had to face. Their drastic moves were these:

1. Choice of General Maxime Weygand to command the Allied forces on the western front, succeeding Marie-Gustave Gamelin.

2. Placing in the hands of the British government of full power over industry, property and labor—vertual conscription of labor and wealth.

3. Return to a seat of power in France of Marshal Henry Petain, hero of Verdun.

4. A quick smashing of "fifth-column" threats in Britain; arrest of a member of parliament and of Sir Oswald Mosley, Fascist leader.

The appointment of Marshal Petain as vice-premior and military adviser came first—last Saturday, as the Germans were extending toward the channel the finger of flame they had plunged through the hinge between the Maginot Line and its extension along the Franco-Belgian border. The 84-year-old fighter who stopped the Germans short of Paris in 1916 returned from an easy ambassadership in Spain, to take an active post in a cabinet reshuffle in which Premier Reynoud himself took over the Ministry of War.

Britain Fears Invasion.

One of Petain's stipulations, it was popularly believed, was the appointment of Weygand as commander-in-chief. This came Sunday.

For the first time since Napoleon, the average Briton considered the possibility of invasion in force. The long salient thrust by Nazi mechanized troops between Sedan and Valenciennes, on to Abbeville on the Somme estuary, and up the English Channel coast past Boulogne to the outskirts of Calais, threatend not only to facilitate establishment of German air bases on the coast, but also the safety of the northern Allied army in southwestern Belgium and the French coastal ara.

Glancing back 25 years: The battle of Festubert, an action in the allies' spring offensive in northern France, brought honors to the 1st Canadian Division in the week of May 19-25, 1915. The Canadians gained ground against overwhelming odds, but the general offensive failed to attain the objective of driving the enemy from Lille and the surrounding country. Italy declared war on Austria May 24. In Britain, Prime Minister Asquith announced the formation of a coalition government.

A MISS IS AS GOOD AS A MILE

This is what this Belgian Chasseur is probably telling his nurse in the London hospital where he is recovering from wounds received while resisting the invasion of his homeland. He is exhibiting a dent in his steel helmet where a German bullet nearly spelled the end for him.

WOULD REVIVE DEFENCE COUNCIL

U.S. President Said to Have Prepared List of Names for Selection

Washington, May 25 (AP).—President Roosevelt, it was learned reliably today, has decided to revive the "Council of National Defence"—in the first Great War a board of six cabinet officers and seven civilian experts—to coordinate and speed up the United States $3,297,011,352 defence program.

Mr. Roosevelt, an informed authority said, already has compiled a list of names from which the council members may be chosen, but the names are secret. Administration aides have been studying an enabling statute, dating back to 1916, to determine what revisions in it may be necessary.

Council In Last War.

The word that a defence council was likely coincided with forewarnings of a senate drive to expand the navy's air arm far beyond the limits suggested in President Roosevelt's emergency preparedness program. One avowed objective was a greater armada of long-range planes, as the "surest" guarantee against an invader's attack.

Whether the new National Defence Council would have the same framework as its first great war predecessor was not certain. The fact that the 1916 law was mentioned in this connection, however, led to belief that it would.

As the 24-year-old act now stands, the council would be headed by the Secretaries of War, Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, assisted by an 'advisory commission' of experts from industrial and other fields.

300 Children Undergo Health Examination At Welfare Centre

The three hundred tiny tots, infants of a few months old to toddlers of five and six years, are having their annual Spring dental and physical examination, which has been in progress at the V.O.N. Well Baby Centre for some weeks, and will continue until all the preschool age children registered with the Centre have been examined.

This important preventive measure, began with a dental check-up, possible through the kindness of Dr. J. A. Marshall, who examined the teeth of the children and gave the mothers instruction on dental care. This has become an annual health feature of the Clinic and one which has attracted widespread interest in other health centres.

This year through the co-operation of the Medical Association, the doctors of the city are giving their services voluntarily, for the medical examination of all children in attendance. So far Drs. Noble, Anderson, McDonald, and Bird have given their services for this purpose.

Scene Most Interesting

The scene in the Welfare Centre on clinic days is most interesting, as over fifty children, toddlers, and those who have not reached the walking stage and arrive solemneyed in their prams, are brought for the inspection of doctors and dentist. First the babies are weighed by Mrs. D. Cleland, volunteer assistant at the clinic. There is always the exciting moment of wondering if baby is going to be happy about this process but the tiny veterans of many weekly clinics usually accept the matter in a cheerful mood. Miss B. Soutar, V.O.N., nurse in charge, then interviews the mothers, discussing health progress and measures, after which Miss D. Connor enters all the important facts regarding each child in her weekly records.

Mothers and children are then ushered into the large room where doctors and dentist are waiting for their next "patient." The physician examined the children, who found the ordeal fascinating. Those who could talk conscientiously said "a . . .h", although this appeared to be a quite unnecessary proceeding to others who could hardly be persuaded that the doctor actually wanted them to engage in this odd pastime, but finally relented and not only said "a . . .h" but various other phrases as well.

If evidence of matters needing medical care, such as enlarged or infected tonsils, was observed by the doctor the mother was referred to her own physician. In this way a condition can be checked before illness develops. There are some cases of tonsils needing attention and where the families will be unable to take care of the operation, it is hoped that some interested parties or organizations will assist financially in making the operation possible.

Teeth Examined

Finally the tots come to the dentist who has a special corner of his own in the clinic room. Here he examines the teeth of the children and gives the mothers important advice on realizing the ideal of healthy teeth for their children. Already he has observed the results of this health teaching in the improved condition of children's teeth year after year.

In some cases, immediate dental care is indicated and for those whose means do not permit them to provide this for their children, it has been available through the co-operation of the Dental Society and generous individuals who have contributed to the V.O.N. Dental Fund.

The value of such health and dental examinations is inestimable. It is the aim of health teachers to make the public more conscious of the great importance of yearly examinations as a great advance in the field of preventive medicine. The Welfare Centre in taking the initiative and making possible such examinations in childhood is beginning a habit that the children may continue all their lives with dividends in glowing health and happy living.

Confirmation Lacking Vimy Ridge in German Possession

Berlin, May 25 (C.P.) — Vimy Ridge, the scene of Canada's greatest victory in the first Great War, was claimed today by the German High Command.

(The German claim of the capture of Vimy Ridge was not confirmed from advices from Paris and London.)

The German communique said: "Between Valenciennes and Vimy the attack on both sides of Douai is progressing in a northwesterly direction. The heights of Vimy were taken. Vimy Ridge, between Lilliers and St. Omer up to Gravelines, is in German possession."

Lighthouse Keeper Sustains Broken Ribs

South Bay, May 25.—Mr. Kenneth McConnell, False Duck Island lighthouse keeper, suffered two broken ribs when a large belt broke on one of the engines at the fog station, striking him when the fog alarm was in operation early yesterday morning.

Dr. Walmsley, Picton, was immediately summoned, and taken by boat to the False Duck from Point Traverse, a distance of three miles.

Breaks Large Glass.

False Duck Island light tenders have just completed putting in a large pane of glass in the beacon atop the seventy-foot tower, which a short time ago was demolished, when a large shell-drake duck crashed through the window into the lighted room.

The duck, believed blinded by the powerful rays of the beacon, crashed through the quarter inch plate glass window during the night and was found by the assistant keeper, Everett Lancaster, who reports the duck survived the terrific impact, but was unable to fly again, injuring its wings.

Some years ago, it is said, a wild goose went through one of the beacon windows.

Great numbers of small birds are annually killed by the light. Flying blindly into the tower during night flights, Mr. McConnell has found many rare specimens of bird life at the base of the tower, killed with broken necks by the impact with the light's window.

AT THE CAPITOL

"San Francisco"

"San Francisco" returns to the Capitol for a limited three-day engagement.

Nine musical numbers ranging from songs familiar to every household in the world to the greatest of operatic arias are sung by Jeanette MacDonald in the musical romance, "San Francisco", opening next at the Capitol Theatre with Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy sharing stellar honors.

"Irish Luck"

Monogram has lined up an expert cast for "Irish Luck" with Frankie Darro starring, now showing.

Darro, is seen as the bell boy detective who gets mixed up with murder. Mantan Moreland, colored star, is seen as Darro's partner in crime, Jefferson, the hotel porter.

Dick Purcell, one of Hollywood's finest young actors, plays Steve Lanahan, the captain of detectives who is tired of having Buzzy O'Brien (played by Darro) in his hair. James Flavin is seen as the tough house "dick", and Lillian Elliott plays Frankie's Irish mother.

Boy and girl interest is carried by Sheila Darcy, and Dennis Moore, a newcomer who shows great promise.

Universal news of the world closes the bill.

R. C. M. P. STAGE NUMEROUS RAIDS

Enemy Alien, Name Not Given, Taken in One Raid at Montreal

Montreal, May 25—(CP) — An enemy alien is in custody and tons of evidence expected to result in prosecutions under the War Measures Act have been seized as a result of raids by Royal Canadian Mounted Police in a drive to rid Montreal of subversive elements.

Resuming raids begun the previous night, the R.C.M.P. and detachments of Montreal and Provincial Police entered eight premises last night and early today. Only one man was detained but quantities of evidence were seized to add to the six truck loads collected in the first raids.

Police did not reveal the name of the man taken but he was understood to be a native of Germany who has been in Canada since 1928. He faces immediate internment.

Most of the raids were on the homes of alleged district organizers of the National Unity Party, Canadian Fascist organization, whose headquarters were searched by police the previous night.

In two instances persons in the homes raided declared they no longer were members of the organization and no evidence was found in their homes.

WAR BRIEFS

London, May 25 (CP)—German Aviators continued to machine-gun civilians escaping from Belgium to England on small motor boats, refugees said today on reaching the English coast.

Authorities were unable to issue a list of the large number of Belgian refugees believed lost when a trawler was sunk by German action.

London, May 25 (CP)—The Ministry of Information said today that "a German claim that eight ships and two minesweepers have been lost off the coast of South Africa from the effects of German mines is entirely false."

"No news of loss from enemy mines in this area of a single vessel of any kind has reached London," the Ministry said.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, May 25 (CP).—Three Royal Air Force fliers, returning to an airfield in County Antrim by automobile last night, were shot and slightly wounded by highway police whose challenge they apparently failed to hear.

Paris, May 25 (AP).—Paris dressmakers decided today to keep their doors open as usual despite the heavy fighting in northern France. Lucien Lelong, president of the Dressmakers' Syndical Chamber said the group had voted to remain in the capital as long as the government gave no order to the contrary.

Hamilton, Bermuda, May 25 (CP). —Pan-American Airways' Transatlantic clipper, which landed here Wednesday night when bad weather forced it down remained here today because of heavy seas at the Azores. Censoring of the clipper's mail was completed and all mail returned except some addressed to Germany. Fifteen hundred pounds had been removed from the flying boat on her arrival.

DIONNE QUINTS TO POUR TEA

Will Not be Allowed to Drink the Tea on Birthday but Will be Taken for Car Ride

Callander, Ont., May 25 —(CP)— The Dionne Quintuplets will get a taste of the social whirl when they pour tea for guests at their sixth birthday party next Tuesday, but they won't get a taste of the tea. It's not part of their menu.

However, they will be allowed to partake lightly of their birthday cake, a five-sectioned affair with five candles on each section. Marie will have yellow candles on her portion; Emilie, pink; Cecile, blue; Annette, green and Yvonne, mauve.

While their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, and their other brothers and sisters watch, the famous five will try to blow out the lighted candles with one mighty puff.

Perhaps later in the day, although it is supposed to be a deep, dark secret, the Quints may be taken for a brief automobile ride. No difinite decision has been made.

The Quints still remember the motor trip last year from the Dafoe Nursery to a special train which took them to Toronto for a private audience with the King and Queen. Neither have they forgotten Their Majesties and during a broadcast by the King yesterday the girls blew kisses to the radio.

SIXTY FASCISTS TAKEN IN 2 DAYS

Franz von Rintelen, Voluntary Exile from Germany is Among Them

London, May 25 (CP).—Scotland Yard, which has seized 60 Fascists in two days, was expected to make other arrests this week-end in an intensified drive against suspected "fifth columnists".

Of the "stop-the-war" agitators already under arrest, 42 were seized in London and the others in the provinces.

United States Embassy officials said "We can make no comment whatever" on a report a member of the Embassy staff had been arrested.

Coinciding with the Scotland Yard roundup, authorities in Northern Ireland arrested 76 members of the Irish Republican Army under the Special Powers Act.

Von Reintelen Held.

With Captain Franz von Reintelen, a voluntary exile from Germany who was imprisoned in the United States for sabotage during the last war, among the latest in the Scotland Yard "bag", Britons also cast anxious eyes toward Eire, fearing a possible German attack through the "back door."

Dublin police hunted a German "mystery man" believed to have been dropped there by parachute; but authorities doubted the existence of any widespread "fifth column" plot involving German residents in Ireland, of whom they said there were only 200.

Discovery In Dublin.

Concern was expressed here, however, following the disclosure that police in a raid on a house in Dublin found $20,000 in United States money, a used parachute, modern German Air Force badge, a radio transmitting set, printing press, secret code and maps of airdromes and highways of military value.

The house belonged to Stephen Held, a naturalized Irishman, who was held in jail under military regulations.

TRACK BOSS

Utmost Support In Every Way Urged by Conboy

Toronto, May 25 (CP).—The nation, the province, every municipality and city should make the utmost contribution in every possible way to win the war, Controller Fred Conboy said today, commenting on a suggestion by Mayor Joseph Meinzinger of Kitchener that Canadian cities should buy tanks for the Allies.

"If the government is in need of money to buy tanks, there is no doubt the citizens of Toronto will show the lead in their usual patriotic way," he said. "If the offer of the mayor of Kitchener is accepted, then I feel the citizens of Toronto should raise at least $1,000,000 to provide the war machine that seems to be proving so effective."

Home League Rally

Last Wednesday was a gala day in local Salvation Army circles, when all the Home Leagues within a radius of fifty miles joined in welcoming to the city Mrs. Lt.-Col. Ham, Territorial Home League Secretary for the Dominion of Canada.

Fresh from a successful tour of the Maritime provinces, Mrs. Ham's charming personality quickly captivated her audience as for two hours she spoke of the work in which they were vitally concerned.

In Bermuda the government recognizes the value of the Home League to such an extent that when it was decided to donate cod liver oil to the needy children of the island the Home League was made responsible for its distribution.

In the city of Montreal a number of French women are banded together, while the dark-skinned Alaskin women and the Japanese women of the west coast all enjoy the privilege of attending the weekly Home League meetings where they are taught Canadian customs.

Touching upon the war work of the Home League, Mrs. Ham charged her listeners to care for and visit in particular the soldiers' wives and families.

Following the afternoon session the local members were hostesses to the visiting delegates when the friendly cup of tea which characterizes all Home League gatherings was enjoyed.

At night the Citadel was packed with a most appreciative audience when the various groups were heard in a splendid program presided over by Mrs. Ham.

Amusing Skit

Kingston members put on an amusing "Radio Broadcast," while Captain and Mrs. Rankin, representing the Picton delegation were heard in a vocal duet entitled, "Drifting." The local group was next heard from in a dialogue "The Charmed Circle." Capt. Hewitt of Trenton, gave an interesting piano solo introducing famous patriotic airs. Under the energetic bandmistress the kitchen band from Campbellford rendered a splendid item. Incidentaly Mrs. Ham announced the leader of the band had a husband and two sons engaged in the present conflict. Lieut. Brown of Napanee, sang a well chosen solo, and in conclusion Mrs. Adjt. Hutchison of Campbellford, gave a recitation entitled the "Backslider's Vision."

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of Long Service Badges by Mrs. Ham to Mrs. B. W. Brown, Mrs. Wm. Hart and Mrs. Thos. Naylor, who have been members of the Home League since its inception in Belleville 23 years ago, and have given unitedly 87 years service to God and The Salvation Army.

Major Alderman expressed the thanks of all present to Mrs. Ham for her gracious visit and timely words of help and encouragement. Brig. Riches, the Division Commander, closed in prayer.

During the day greetings were sent to Mrs. Brig. Riches of Toronto, who is the Divisional Home League Secretary, and Mrs. Major Alderman of this city, both of whom were unable to be present due to ill health.

10 Y. P. U. Members Attend Convention

Ten members of the Young People's Union of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church are in Montreal attending the annual B.Y.P.U. convention of Ontario and Quebec, held this year in Westmount Baptist Church on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Included in the Belleville contingent are: John Jury, President of the local union, Jean Thompson, Jean Stephenson, D. Moorman, E. Looker, A. Fitzgerald, D. Anderson, Helen Thompson, E. S. Russell, W. Hales. Lorne Andrews of Hamilton, a former Belleville boy and past president of the local union, is also attending the convention.

The convention speakers are: Rev. W. A. Cameron, pastor of Yorkminster Baptist Church, Toronto and Professor R. J. McCracken of McMaster University. Conferences will be led by Rev. Harold E. Bridge, McMaster University, Rev. Leland A. Gregory, General Secretary of the Board of Religious Education and Rev. E. K. Smith of Port Hope, member of the Interprovincial Cabinet. Other features of the convention include a musical festival, banquet and visit to Grande Ligne Mission, headquarters of the Baptist home mission work among the French-Canadians.

BELLEVILLE JRS. PULL SURPRISE ON POINT ANNE

Steve Hook Limits "Cementmen" to Five Hits and Team Wins 8-3

ALWAYS ON TOP

Four Runs in Eighth Helped Juniors Salt the Game Away

The Belleville juniors got away to a flying start in the Belleville Softball League on Thursday evening when their first game of the season they visited Point Anne and handed the homesters a decisive 8-3 drubbing in a game which saw Hook of the juniors best Luffman, the veteran Point Anne "mushball" hurler.

Limiting the "cementmen" to five hits, Hook was afforded almost perfect support by his teammates and although inclined to wildness at times, settled down in the pinches and never appeared in danger. In holding the Point Anne lads to five hits, Hook struck out nine and walked two, both of which developed into runs. Luffman, on the other hand gave up eleven hits, one a homer by Hook, allowed only one base on balls and struck out five.

Samain, as lead-off man for the juniors, greeted Luffman with a single in the first inning. Sword was safe as Scott dropped the ball at the initial sack and both rode home on Mansfield's double. They added added another in the second frame as Ethier walked and worked around to score on an infield out. Hook homered with no one on in the fifth and in the seventh the juniors really went to town when after one was away, Braddon, Hook and Sward hit safely, which coupled with an error and an infield out, scored four big runs to salt the game away for the visitors.

Poine Anne scored one in the first, one in the sixth and threatened in the seventh when they got two runners aboard with no one away. Scott lofted to centre and Hutchinson scored after the catch to end the scoring.

Yerrow supplied the fielding features of the night when he raced the proverbial mile to pull down hits that appeared labelled for hits in left field. Hutchinson in centre for the losers also made several nice catches.

BOBBIE RANKIN WINS MARATHON

Breaks Own Record in Winning Long Grind on Victoria Day

Toronto, May 25 — (CP) — A steady diet of marathon running, both in practice and competition, has brought bobbin' Bob Rankine, the durable little Scot from Preston, Ont., to the peak of that profession.

Preston folk always are mighty pleased to see Rankine win. They believe he deserves victory because he trains so faithfully through the year. He is a familiar sight jogging about the Preston countryside in sweatshirt and trousers.

Thirty-year-old veteran of two Canadian Olympic teams, Rankine stepped one of the greatest races of his career yesterday to retain his Canadian marathon championship and break the record he set last year. Only 125 yards behind him at the finish was Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., another foremost distance man and winner of the recent Boston marathon.

Rankine's time for the 26 miles, 385 yards, while rain fell all the way, was 2:35:27, just 44 seconds better than the record. Cote's time of 2:36:3 also bettered the previous mark.

But all the plaudits of a slim crowd that gathered at the finish line outside a downtown Toronto hotel weren't for Rankine and Cote. Nor for Fred Bristow of the Toronto Gladstone Athletic Club who finished third in 2:41:7.

A little, old gentleman who plodded the last nine miles in his bare feet won recognition as the gamest in the field. He was 52-year-old Bob (Pop) Whorwood of Hamilton, a five-foot bundle of grit, who "just had to finish." He finished 11th and last.

Rain and perspiration dripping from his bald pate and running togs, swollen and blistered feet incased in mud, Pop explained at the finish line that his canvas shoes shrunk due to wetness, causing big blisters to form. He wouldn't quit so he "just took my shoes off and kept on going."

Fights Last Night

Chicago — Johnny Balmer, 142, Peoria, Ill., outpointed Joey Speigel, 143, Milwaukee (4).

Hollywood—Tony Chavez, 143, Los Angeles, outpointed Red Green, 140, Los Angeles (10).

Surge of New York Giants To Within 2½ Games of Leader One of Bright Spots of Loop

Desperate Giants Being Picked for Second Division Team Playing Fine Ball

FELLER WINS

Aids His Seven-Hit Hurling by Smacking Homer, His First in Big League

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

No matter your personal feelings about Bill Terry, who is hissed at by children and grown-ups alike in his own ball park, the gent must be admired for the nifty job he's done with New York Giants, a second-division ball club in the preseason classifications.

The surge of the Giants, who approached within 2 1-2 games of the National League lead with an 8-1 victory over Boston Bees last night, has been one of the outstanding developments of the season. They've been up there since the start.

What Terry ended last season in fifth place with was a pitching corps that had more sore arms than good ones, a perforated infield and a spot in left field that needed pluggging, unless Joe Moore could recover. Moore's recovery has been only one of the comebacks on the team.

Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacker and Cliff Melton gave magic back in their southpaw wings and Terry after considerable manoeuvring, finally put Babe Young on first, Al Glossop on second, Bill Jurges at short and Burgess Whitehead at third.

With Harry Danning's terrific hitting and catching, the rebuilding was complete.

Gumbert Comes Through

Harry Gumbert, one of the few the Giants could depend on at the start of the season, came through again last night in Manhattan's first big-league night game. There was a minimum of fanfare about the innovation, but the 22,0000 fans it attracted were rewarded amply by Gumbert's five-hit twirling and home runs by Glossop, Moore and Jurges and that made the pitching job easy.

It was also a first night for night ball in St. Louis where the speedball king, Bobby Feller, pitched and batted Cleveland Indians to a 3-2 triumph over the lowly Browns. Bobby gave the Browns seven hits and smashed the tying run with the first homer of his Major-League career. The victory drew the Indians within a game of the American League-leading, but idle, Boston Red Sox.

Johnny Rigney's three-hit pitching gave Chicago White Sox their fifth straight, 2-1 over Detroit Tigers. Tommy Bridges and Johnny Gorsica combined for a four-hit job but the White Sox bunched two walks and two singles to decide the issue.

Bad weather and the schedule kept the other clubs idle.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 25 (AP)—Jack Kearns is in town to try to get the boxing rights at Ebbets Field .... Cyril Walker, former U.S. open champ, now is the pro at a Yonkers driving range....All eyes are on the Boston Bees....They have two guys —Eddie Miller and Max West — either of whom might mean the bunting for five National League clubs....Nate Druxman offered Ken Overlin $25,000 to fight Al Hostak out there but Overlin had to pass it up because he had already signed to give Ceferino Garcia a return bout in three months.

Success story:

Not so many years ago Marvin Leonard was a pop corn vendor with goobers and pop as a sideline ....Today he owns one of the biggest department stores in S.... also, he is the gent who put up the $25,000 guarantee that bagged the 1941 National open championship for Fort Worth.

In Florida last spring the Reds predicted Lee Grissom wouldn't last a month with the Yanks. They missed it by exactly one day .... This anti-fraternizing business has spread to the American League .... The other day Fred Haney, Manager of the Browns was fined for walking over to the stands and saying a word or so to Charley Dewitt, Club Secretary, same day one of the umps went over and shook hands with an unidentified spectator.

YOUTH MOVEMENT IN BUFFALO TEAM COMES TO GRIEF

Rookies Replaced by Veterans and Team Immediately Starts Drive

NEWARK WINS

(By The Associated Press)

The Youth Movement at Buffalo seems to have come a cropper—at least it hasn't been anything like the fans expected while the Bisons were down South in the Spring—but Buffalo is winning its share of International league ball games so practically everyone is happy.

Early season indications were that the Bisons with practically all of last year's team gone, were out to set some sort of a record for breaking in rookies. Some of them didn't fare so well, and neither did the Bisons at the start of the campaign. It was a somewhat older team that battered its way as high as fourth place once and then, after a relapse, took over fifth yesterday by walloping Montreal Royals in both ends of a doubleheader.

In addition to "Old Man" Ollie Carnegie who shared his left field job with Les Fleming, the converted first sacker, the Bisons have Greg Mulleavy and Joe Kroner at short and second, Les Scarsella at first and Mayo Smith, a newcomer but not a rookie, in right field.

It took 10 innings for the Bisons to win the opener, but when they finally got around to it, they made the count 9-6 with a three-run burst on two hits, two walks and a sacrifice.

The second game was decided by a similar late outburst when the herd collected five unearned runs off Al Hollingsworth in the seventh and last inning to win 8-3.

Newark Bears piled up 18 solid swats to bury Baltimore Orioles under 17-7 score in a night game. Mike Chartak and Alex Kampouris belted two home runs apiece to account for six tallies and Tom Holmes drove in six more with a homer, two doubles and two singles. The Rochester-Toronto doubleheader was rained out while Syracuse and Jersey City weren't scheduled.

GEORGE PAVICH EASILY DEFEATS 'NIBS' PALMER

Raw-Boned Grappler From Toronto Had Palmer in Distress for Entire Bout

ONLY TWO BOUTS

E. Sobul Has No Difficulty in Defeating Young Griffin

George Pavich, a big raw-boned grappler from Toronto made his initial appearance on a wrestling card at the local arena last evening and in the main bout of the evening celebrated his arrival in town by taking two out of three falls from "Nibs" Palmer of the R.C.A.F. in a bout, which spelled action throughout.

Pavich, a veritable giant of a man with considerable wrestling experience meted out much punishment to Palmer with the use of his wrists and elbows as the two grunt and groan artists really went to work. Palmer appeared in difficult straits on numerous occasions throughout the first round but always managed to wriggle out to get a counter hold on his opponent until at the twenty minute mark he took a head lock on Pavich to throw him over his head to win the first fall.

Coming out for the second round the crowd were with the airforce lad to apply the pressure and down Pavich for the second straight time but the Toronto man almost immediately gained an advantage and evened matters at one fall each after only three minutes when he put Palmer's shoulders to the mat with an arm press. The third and last fall of the bout was almost a repetition of the second with Pavich meting out considerable punishment to his opponent through roughing tactics and although Palmer proved his gameness by always fighting back he eventually fell victim to a head lock and after being tossed around the ring at the will of his heavier opponent was pinned to the mat for the final fall in exactly five minutes of grappling.

Beamish Falls to Appear

Although there were three bouts advertised for the evening's wrestling card, the second main bout, which was to have brought Ed. Sobel and Jim Beamish together, did not materialize as Beamish failed to put in his appearance. One of the wrestlers who was to have appeared in the preliminary also failed to turn up so Ed Sobel was matched with Young Griffin of Niagara Falls in the opening bout. These two lads, although Griffin was considerably outweighed by Sobel, battled the full limit of one hour to a draw with each of the lads winning one fall.

"Badman" Sobel soon had the ire of the fans heaped on his head with his roughing tactics before gaining a body slam at the fifteen minute mark to win the first fall.

Griffin took an arm lock on Sobel at the outset of the second bout and had his opponent in distress for a time and evened matters by winning the second fall after five minutes. Sobel protested loudly to the referee claiming that he was in the ropes at the time the fall was gained but the decision stood with Sobel putting on a show for the benefit of th crowd before going to the dressing room.

So intense did the feeling of the fans become against the roughing tactics indulged in by Sobel that when the wrestlers failed to break at the command of the referee as they tangled at the ropes that one fan rushed to the ringside and threatened Sobel with his heavy cane. Griffin was in distress several times during the final bout but withstood the punishment and eventually turned the tables to win a draw much o tthe delight of the fans.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

A couple of years ago if the ordinary populace of the provinces, from the Gulf of Mexico to Hudson Bay, had been asked who John Kieran was complete ignorance would have resulted. Today, however, John (The Information Kid) Kieran is one of the best known of radio personages on this continent. Kieran is sports editor of the New York Times, but his general knowledge of world events has startled the radio-listening public and resulted in his contemporaries now referring to him as "The Information Kid", brought about by his work on the weekly radio program—Information Please. His knowledge is startling, a mental giant, a walking encyclopedia, a wit and allround humdinger on a radio quiz program. Perhaps one of his greatest feats of knowledge came when he was called upon to be the guest speaker at the graduation of the athletic class of Columbia University. The chairman introduced Kieran as "A mere sports editor from New York." When it came time for "The Information Kid" to speak, he delivered his entire address in Latin, much to the chagrin of the chairman.

Who is this man Kieran? From whence did he come and whither is he going with his volume of knowledge. Kieran was born in New York City on Aug. 2nd, 1892 and he still resides in that neighbourhood. Following a public school education he went to City College, where he was a fancy diver by athletic choice and shortstop on the Varsity nine. Later Kieran attended Fordham University, where he refused to play baseball when he was asked to shift to third base. After graduating "Information Jack" taught school and raised chickens as a teacher-farmer near his birthplace. It was while farming that Kieran read and digested so much of Shakespeare's works and continued to study Latin. While teaching near Bangall, N. Y., Kieran had six pupils and drew the fabulous salary of $40.00 per month. Finding that farming and teaching held little future, Kieran hied himself to New York again and procured a position with a construction company. Along came the war and Kieran joined the army, to continue his studies while languishing in the trenches in France.

After the war Kieran applied to Fred Birchall, then sports editor of the N.Y. Times, for a position in newspaper work. Birchall was a friend of the Kieran family and looking at John said—"O. K., but there are two things in relationship to the job. First—you won't like it. Second—you won't be any good at it." However, Kieran stuck and two years later went to the N. Y. Tribune, only to return to the Times and his sports colum "The Sports of the Times" was born on Jan. 1st, 1927. Incidentally Kieran's sports column is the only one of its kind registered in the U.S.A. Patent Office and cannot be quoted unless permission is given by the writer. During his first sojourn with the Times, Kieran applied for the boating concessions at Central Park (N. Y. C.) and obtained it, conducting his newspaper work and the boating business simultaneously. "I made quite a bit of money in that boating business, I must confess." Kieran is credited with admitting.

Last fall Kieran told a Pan-American Airways official that if Yale could beat Harvard in their annual football meeting he (Kieran) would fly across the ocean in a paper bag. Yale did beat Harvard and—"right now, I am trying to dope out some way of flying across the Atlantic in a paper bag," Kieran explained recently. Asked to name the greatest ball player, the "information kid" replied: "He wasn't Ty Cobb. He wasn't Hans Wagner. He was Babe Ruth. He was a wonder on the field, hitting, throwing, fielding. He never did the wrong thing in a ball game. He made baseball over. He attracted record crowds, drew $80,000 a year, was the grandest one-man show that team games yet have produced in any country. No argument on that. It was Ruth, out by his lonesome."

Regarding his association with radio and how he happened to get into his role on the "Information, Please" program, Jack said: "A year ago last June, Dan Golenpaul got the idea of starting the program," Jack explained. "Incidentally, he still owns it...Golenpaul wanted a man to answer sports questions, and Franklyn P. Adams suggested me. Golenpaul was not impressed. He asked, 'Who is this Kieran? I want somebody better known.' Adams induced him to give me a trial. I wasn't so sure I wanted any part of it, as I feared it would be too much work. But Adams urged me, as he urged Golenpaul, and I decided to give it a whirl. Golenpaul immediately voted for me. 'Boy, you've made the team,' he told me after my first test. This work on the air is intensely interesting. It requires little of my time, as there is no rehearsing. Lately I have been a bit busier with it as we have been making movie shorts."

"Red" Townsend's junior softballers let it be known they are to be seriously reckoned in the city softball picture. Over the holiday the "juniors" stepped into Point Anne and promptly downed the "cementmen" 8 to 3 and were on top all of the way. Steve Hook who hurled junior softball last year here went the route for the juniors, while "Ding" Luffman was on the mound for the Ox Point nine. Coach Townsend has several new faces with his 1940 junior squad and the kids played grand heads-up ball to move into a tie with the "Oilers" and are leading the league. Incidentally the Picton "Dominions", a new entry [illegible] the league, are making their initial appearance here versus the "Oilers" Monday night.

We have been given to understand that Alex Weir is working on a project whereby Brighton and Colborne may amalgamate their baseball strength and enter the Bay of Quinte League along with Picton and Belleville.

Sport Spice—Understand Lefty Weeks has returned to Northern Ontario where he is to play ball this summer...."Pee Wee" McQuaid, Picton outfielder, fractured a leg playing softball this week ....Secretary Harry Doyle has called a meeting of the Quinte League moguls for next Wednesday in Picton....Alex Weir will be included....Last night's fiasco at the arena rung the curtain down on pro. wrestling here .... The promoters actually lost hard-earned cash on last night's venture....However, Charlie Spalding enjoyed himself and got double his money's worth, judging from his threats and attacks on Eddie Sobul .... Charlie became so irritated with Sobul, that he rapped him across the fingers with his cane....Ken Overl out-boxed Ceferino Garcia and gained the decision over the top man of the middleweight division ....The Petes lost their opener 5-4 to the Port Credit seniors,

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

England Before Job

LONDON—One of the most brilliant aircraft construction engineers in the world is out of a job. He is 40-year-old Trevor Westbrook, over whose resignation as general manager 7,000 employees of Vickers-Armstrong's factory at Weybridge, Surrey, threatened to strike.

"I can't really tell you yet what my future is to be," he said.

"I have been offered half a dozen jobs comparable with the one I have just left, but as the Air Ministry say they have a good job in view for me I am naturally waiting—though I am not sure what it is."

His most handsome offer has come from the United States.

"Do you think you'll go?" he was asked. "Good heavens, no!" was his reply. "You have to stay and do what you can. There's a war on."

During his 24 years with Vickers Mr. Westbrook constructed the Schneider trophy winners of 1929 and 1931.

At Southampton he turned out the first Spitfire. Then he was recalled to put Wellesley and Wellington bombers into production.

He rebuilt Vickers plants at Southampton and at Weybridge and laid out a new works in the North of England.

At Brooklands he had the reputation of wasting no words but getting every ounce out of the men. He built a hairdressing saloon for them and they had a ninepenny lunch every day in their canteen.

He worked eighty or ninety

AT THE BELLE

"THE FIGHTING 69th."

"The Fighting 69th," a new Warner Bros. film starring James Cagney, George Brent and Pat O'Brien, is the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Headed by the three stars, the cast includes a long roster of well-known players such as Alan Hale, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh, Dennis Morgan, Dick Foran, William Lundigan and Guinn 'Big Boy' Williams. The original story by Norman Reilly Raine, Fred Niblo, Jr. and Dean Franklin is based partly on the exploits of the famous 165th New York Infantry, better known as the Fighting 69th, the Irish Brigade of which the late Father Francis Patrick Duffy was regimental chaplain. This is the role played by Pat O'Brien, whose priest role in "Angels With Dirty Faces" will long be remembered. Cagney is cast as a rebellious buck private, and George Brent as "Wild Bill" Donovan, colonel of the 69th. Alan Hale is the crusty top sergeant, and Jeffrey Lynn portrays the wartime poet, Joyce Kilmer.

The ups and downs of training camp life are vividly depicted in the film—the human interest drama of the adjustment of raw recruits from every walk of life to the discipline of life in the army. Cagney, as the tough guy who stubbornly resists falling in line with the military rules and regulations, provides the main thread of the story. In spite of the efforts of O'Brien, as the kindly and humane priest, and Brent, as the hard-bitten, but understanding colonel, he refuses to conform until events place him in a position where there is a true test of his mettle, and he comes through with flying colors.

Critics who previewed the film in Hollywood have sent through advance reports, hailing it as the most exciting human interest entertainment in years, a good, rousing action drama with a leavenin of broad comedy in the tradition of such films as "The Cock-eyed World". Cagney and Alan Hale carry much of the comedy with a typical feud between a cocky private and a bullying top sergeant, which climaxes, incidentally, in one of the most rough and tumble fist bouts ever filmed.

A funny all-star comedy, "Chump Takes a Bump", the popular Belle British Newsreel, and "Miles Standish", a clever Merrie Melody Cartoon complete the program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"LITTLE ORVIE"

Folks! If you have not as yet seen the current two feature program showing at the McCarthy Theatre, it is to be hoped you will, as it offers two of the most enjoyable screen hits of the season.

"Little Orvie", hit number one, is a Booth Tarkington story after the pattern of "Penrod" and "Seventeen", two former screen hits that have already spoken for themselves as being tops in entertainment. Little John Sheffield, the boy hero in "Tarzan Finds a Son" has the principal role in "Little Orvie" and again excels himself as one of the up-and-coming Hollywood juvenile stars. In addition Ernest Truex, Dorothy Tree and little Miss Ann Todd, give remarkable performances. The story of "Little Orvie" is as refreshing as it is splendid entertainment, truly a movie for the young of all ages. The second feature, Charles Starrett in "Blazing Six-shooters" offers splendid contrast to the first feature and is as pleasing, far above the ordinary type of outdoor action films. An amusing cartoon "The Worm's Eye View" and a new episode of "The Shadow" complete the entire offering, which in our estimation is second to none for real satisfying entertainment.

"The Big Guy."

Jackie Cooper and Victor McLaglan, both well-known screen stars, will be seen next week at the McCarthy Theatre in what is heralded as their best, Universal's new dramatic production, "The Big Guy", an all-star comedy entitled "A Fat Chance". Will Osborne and his stage and radio entertainers in a musical novelty and latest Fox News events will be shown in advance of each performance of the feature presentation.

Hog Quotations

London, May 25 (CP)—Military circles said today the French High Command has made a special request that no mention be made of troop movements in the theatre of operations or of places where action is in progress.

A spokesman said that this self-denial of news will be a contribution to winning the battle and that the absence of details of the actions in progress is likely to continue for some time.

The general situation was described as "very grave and very confused."

MEMBERS FEEL HIGHEST PRICE IS RECEIVED

Cheese Sells on Belleville Board at 13 9-16 Against the Pegged Price of British Ministry of Food

LITTLE COLORED

The feeling they had received the highest price which could possibly be paid for cheese ultimately intended for the British market was voiced by farmers and cheese factory officials attending Belleville Cheese Board here Thursday evening when a top price of 13 9-16 cents for uncolored cheese had been offered by buyers. This feeling was prompted through the consideration of 14 cents per pound as being the pegged price offered by the British Ministry of Food on a recent order for 78,400,000 pounds of Canadian cheese to be delivered f.o.b. Montreal.

When questioned regarding the possible effect which the above order might have on the local cheese market, Mr. Fred Mallory, Secretary of the Belleville Cheese Board, said, "We'll never receive any higher price for our cheese this season than was realized here tonight, because the price of grade 1 export cheese has been pegged at 14 cents f.o.b. Montreal which means that a buyer paying 13 9-16 cents, as was paid here tonight, will have only 7-16 of a cent to work on. Out of that he will have to pay costs of wiring the cheese boxes for shipment, pay the handling costs and transportation charges to Montreal." "It looks like a pretty small margin," he said.

The effect of the English preference for uncolored cheese is already being noticed on the Belleville Board as was indicated by the premium received for white cheese over the colored variety at Thursday night's board meeting. A spread 1-2 cent per pound was evident between the two varieties and this, it is believed, will be responsible for many factories switching entirely to the making of uncolored cheese. The Canadian trade and local markets have always shown a marked preference for the colored cheese, however, and for this reason some factories make white cheese only through the summer months. During early spring and late autumn colored cheese for the local trade in manufactured.

Practically all factories in the immediate district are now operating it was learned, with only a few factories listed on the Belleville Board not being represented at Thursday night's board meeting. Some of these factories are now represented on other cheese boards. Far more cheese was offered for sale at Thursday's board meeting than had been offered on a comparable date of other years, thus showing a renewed confidence by farmers in the cheese factory. There were 1711 cheese offered for sale on the Bellville Board on Thursday night.

Rescue Workers Search Debris For 249 Known Dead

Lima, Peru, May 25—(AP)—Rescue workers dug through heaps of debris in Lima and nearby Callao today, seeking additional victims of an earthquake which rocked Peru yesterday with known casualties of 249 dead and more than 3,000 injured.

Thousands were left homeless and the army hastily erected tents to shelter refugees. Many persons, fearful of a recurrence of the earth tremors, spent last night in the open. In the seaport of Callao where the death toll was put at 150, scarcely a building escaped unscathed.

Statement From British Ministry

The Bacon Board planned to store bacon during the winter months to maintain an even flow of bacon to England in the summer months. The much heavier marketings than were expected, and the large amount of American pork imported caused the rate of storing to be much faster than was anticipated. The final result was that the Board found that they had more than enough bacon to meet the calculated shortage of the summer months by the end of March. As the war spread to Denmark the Board took it upon themselves to store more bacon but they were advised that greater supplies were not needed.

The following is a statement from the British Ministry: "The reasons for this situation are as follows — first, excessive amounts of bacon in storage in Great Britain and with the approach of summer weather. British authorities regarded it as imperative to use up stored products before authorizing increased imports. Secondly, production of bacon in Great Britain and Ireland continues at higher than expected levels. Thirdly, problems of shipping continue to present difficulties. Bacon must be handled in refrigerated space. Ships so equipped are not numerous and in view of their speed and construction are often required for other purposes. Finally, it is the apparent intention of the British authorities to restore bacon rationing at an early date and thereby restrict consumption. One purpose of the rationing undoubtedly is to require British civilians to eat home produced food and thereby conserve foreign exchange."

NEW ASPARAGUS FEATURES MART

Lettuce, Onions and Radishes Also Plentiful, Selling at Last Week's Prices

MANY BROILERS

Despite a heavy downpour of rain, vendors of the district afforded a fairly heavy display of Spring and other produce on the city market here Saturday. Prices generally were steady and transactions were brisk.

New asparagus featured the new vegetable offering, selling at 10c and 15c for half-pound bunches. New onions, lettuce, radishes, etc., sold at 5c and 10c for bunchlots. Winter vegetable quotations were steady with parsnips offered at $1, and beets, turnips and carrots at 80c the bushel.

Potatoes were plentiful with the table variety selling at $1 the bag. Certified seed prices ranged between $1.25 and $1.50, according to quality.

Egg quotations were unchanged from mid-week prices. Extra Grade "A" selects selling at 25c the dozen. Mediums and other grades ranged downward to 20 cents. Butter prices were firm at 55 cents for two-pound rolls.

Broiler chickens headed a light poultry offering with choice birds, offered at $1 the pair. Other qualities ranged downward to as low as 50c the pair. A few ducks were offered at $1 each. June and July chickens were quoted at from 90c to $1.25 each, with fowl quoted at 60c and 75c each.

Tomato plants were offered at $1 the large flat with onion seedlings selling at 25c the box. Strawberry plants were priced at $1 the hundred and young raspberry canes at 2c each. Pansies and other flowering blooms brought 25c for a small box. Cabbage plants were marked at 25 cents the dozen for sturdy varieties.

Whitefish and fresh lake trout brought 20c the pound with mudcats and pike demanding 10 cents for the same quantity. A few young pigs were offered at $3.00 each.

BRITISH ARREST M.P.

Capt. Archibald Ramsay, Conservative member of the British House of Commons has been placed in prison as a result of Britain's drive against "fifth column" suspects. Capt. Ramsay served as an officer in the last war with the Coldstream Guards and was a member of the British Military Mission to Paris. Known for his strong Fascist leaning and his anti-semitism, he was arrested by British authorities at the same time as British Fascist Leader Sir Oswald Mosley was arrested.

ITALY SEEMS GEARED FOR WAR

Ominous Indications Include Civil Mobilization Decree

Rome, May 25 (AP).—Geared for war, her entire resources subject to conscription under a new civil mobilization order, Italy was ready today for Premier Mussolini to press the button that could plunge her into the European conflict as an ally of Germany.

All signs indicated that the move might not be long in coming.

Among the ominous indications, topped by passage of the civil mobilization decree were:

1. Reports that additional classes of army and naval reserves had been called to the colors.

2. Postponement of the sailings of three big transatlantic liners—which might possibly serve as troop transports.

3. Intensified blackout preparations.

4. Rumors that Il Duce had rejected allied concessions—including relaxation of the Mediterranean blockade.

5. Increasingly bitter press attacks on the Allies and new anti-Allied street demonstrations.

Many Leave Country.

Many foreigners quietly prepared to leave the country. Those who had booked passage on Italian ships now tied to their docks hastened to transfer their passage to United States vessels.

The new civil mobilization decree was hastily rushed through the senate last night, a week ahead of schedule.

The measure, which can be invoked at a moment's notice, gives the government power to mobilize all citizens over the age of 14 and requisition the services of private capital, industry, labor groups and transportation systems.

It authorizes the government to regulate public consumption of all materials, limit or ban exports and imports, and sets up machinery for distributing food and other necessities.

Three Liners Delay Sailings.

The three transatlantic liners with postponed departures were the Rex, Augustus and Neptunia. New dates for sailings were set, and officials said the postponements were merely a matter of routine. The action was regarded in foreign circles as significant.

The Rex and Augustus, originally scheduled to have sailed from Genoa and Trieste on May 29 and May 27 respectively, are booked for departure June 6.

The Neptunia, which was to have left Genoa June 1 for South America, is listed to go June 21.

Foreigners studied with misgivings reports that Premier Mussolini had rejected Allied overtures on the ground they were made "too late".

These overtures were said to have included French offers of special rights in Tunisia, credit facilities at the Suez Canal, and free port privileges at Djibuti, French Somaliland, only rail outlet to Italy's Ethiopian Empire.

40 NAZI PLANES

This brings their total victories for the past three days to more than 120.

"Thirty-one of yesterday's 40 were seen to break in the air, burst into flames or crash in landing. The other nine were put out of action.

Spitfires Effective

"One squadron of Spitfires accounted for 18 enemy aircraft. This was the squadron which has already announced sent up 11 fighters and shot down 11 Germans in one engagement. Another Spitfire squadron accounted for 13 enemy aircraft.

"Enemy aircraft of seven different types were destroyed. Our fighters fought successfully against Heinkel 111's, Dornier 17's, Junkers 87 and Junkers 88 bombers, Messerschmitt 109 and 110 fighters, the army co-operation Henschel 126's and even a Condor.

Henschels Shot Down

"The day's fighting began and ended with the destruction of a Henschel 126. The first Henschel was attacked by Spitfires early in the morning and was seen to break up in the air and burst into flames southeast of Calais. The last was trying to escape and hedgehopped over fields before it crashed in flames near the same place.

"When the Hurricane squadron attacked a formation of 30 Henkels and Dornier bombers between Calais and Dunkerque their protecting Messerschmitt 100's held off from the fight. The Hurricanes first shot down five and probably seven of the bombers at 11,000 feet. Then they climbed to 22,000 feet and put three of the Messerschmitts out of action.

Heroic Work of British Fliers

"Eleven Spitfire pilots who shot down 11 enemy aircraft were also attacking bombers protected by Messerschmidts. In addition to the 11 they seriously damaged three others. Two hours later, after a rest at their base, they again went into action, this time shooting down four Messerschmitt 109's.

"Another Spitfire squadron spread their successes over the D-6. They shot down a Henschel near Calais at breakfast time, a Condor near Ostend before lunch, a Dornier 17 and a Junkers 88 a little later, another Dornier 17 and two more Junker 88's at teatime and two Messerschmitts before dinner."

FINANCE MINISTER TO LAUNCH SALE

Hon. J. L. Ralston and Hon. Ernest Lapointe to Speak Over Radio Sunday Night

Ottawa, May 25—(CP)—A national advisory panel, representative of many phases of Canadian endeavor, has been set up by the government to assist in the sale of war savings certificates and war savings stamps, opening Monday throughout the Dominion.

The panel includes representatives of the government, the civil service, agriculture, the press, banks, security dealers, trust and loan companies, insurance companies and other business institutions.

As an indication of support being accorded the war savings committee, of which Walter H. Somerville and M. de Gaspe Beaubien are joint chairmen, one industry alone has placed at the government's disposal a skilled sales force of more than 800 men.

Finance Minister Ralston, speaking in English, and Justice Minister Lapointe, in French, will launch the sale over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation tomorrow night at 9.30 EDT.

The committee expressed confidence that when the sale of certificates and stamps opens Monday every man, woman and child in Canada will be able to obtain them without any difficulty or delay.

FRENCH ADVANCE

While the morning communique of the high command reported consolidation of positions on the Somme and the taking of "a certain number of prisoners", the chief objective of the French army was to bite through the German salient driven toward the Channel just north of the Somme.

Prisoners Taken.

The war office spokesman said "hundreds of prisoners" were taken in local sucoesses, mopping-up operations where Nazi troops had established bridgeheads south of Amiens.

He said the irregular, jagged French line from Valenciennes through Cambrai, Arras and St. Omer to Boulogne remained unchanged, while the breech in the Peronne-Bapaume area still was not closed.

But he reported allied troops were moving in a pincer advance intended to trap the fast-moving German "Panzer" units which have streaked through this corridor toward the English Channel and at the same time to establish connection between the main French force on the Somme and the allied armies in Flanders and Belgium.

"The war of movement continued throughout the north and northwest the spokesman said, with detachments moving in between enemy groups while isolated units fought against opposing advance guards.

Recover Lost Ground

South of Sedan, where fighting is progressing favorably in the wooded section, the spokesman said the French had recovered all ground lost to the Germans. He described engagements in this region as "very hot," and said new artillery bombardments began this morning.

Military commentators told of "local successes" in the region immediately north of the Somme and said they were "evidently the beginning of larger action."

Elsewhere the Allied lines were reported holding firm and there was an atmosphere of confidence here.

While the main body of the French sought to drive north from the Somme and cut the German "bottleneck," Allied troops in Belgium hammered at the Nazi right flank in the vicinity of Cambrai.

Heavy fighting was reported in the outskirts of Cambrai, which is about 22 miles north of the Somme.

The battle appeared to be developing into a race against time as the Allies sought to close the breach in their lines before the Nazis could reinforce advance guards which have penetrated to the vicinity of Calais.

If the drive succeeds, the German mechanized units which are now threatening channel ports will be isolated behind the Allied front.

Additional Nazi armored cars and motorcycles were reported roaring through the narrowing "corridor," but the French said that every turn of their wheels are proving costly.

Strafe German Columns

While massed artillery turned the lane into a veritable No Man's Land. Allied warplanes constantly shuttled back and forth overhead, strafing the German columns and returning to their bases to refill their bomb racks.

In northern Belgium another battle was surging along the banks of the Scheldt River as the Germans sought to crack the left wing of the French army that marched to the Belgians' assistance when that country was invaded 15 days ago.

The fighting here appeared to be a war of manoeuvre, with the Allied troops effecting a gradual withdrawal, which was said to be proceeding according to plan.

British, Belgians and remnants of the Netherlands army were reported to be engaged in the battle along the Scheldt.

At the other end of the front, near the junction of the French, Luxembourg and Belgian frontiers, the Germans launched a series of terrific attacks, preceded by heavy artillery barrages, but the French said the assaults were repulsed.

BOULOGNE HELD BY FRENCH TROOPS

A lone German plane appeared over the northeast coast but was quickly driven away by fighter planes of the Royal Air Force.

An Air Ministry communique said:

Bombs Fall in East Anglia

"Enemy aircraft last night dropped bombs in the north riding of Yorkshire. Eight civilians were injured, three of whom have been admitted to the hospital. Some damage was done.

"Bombs also fell in rural areas in East Anglia. No casualties were caused. Slight damage to two cottages is reported.

"Anti-aircraft defences were in action.

While these actions were in progress residents of the southeast coast, nearest to the continent, saw flames shoot skywards from the far side, heard the crash of heavy explosions and believed the Royal Navy was blasting German positions to forestall any German attempt to launch a force that might attempt to invade Britain.

First Civilian Injuries in Raid

Last night's civilian injuries were England's first in an actual raid. A month ago two civilians were killed and over 150 injured when a German mine-laying plane crashed in a terrific explosion at Clacton-on-the-Sea.

On May 10 German raiders dropped 24 incendiary and 20 high explosive bombs near Chilham, in Kent, and three days ago a German bomber flyer over Sussex dropped its full load in order to speed its escape. But there were no casualties in either case.

Scotland suffered casualties earlier in the year, when one man was killed and seven persons were injured in a bombing raid on Scapa Flow.

Superiority of Armaments Needed

A pressing need for armaments was emphasized by military experts who said that under the German technique of employing aircraft, tanks and parachute troops, the Nazis' offensive power had outstripped their defence and that the Allies' best chance to recover lay in achieving superiority in all armaments.

Trades Union leaders representing 5,000,000 organized workers assembled to discuss means for speeding up Britain's arms production. Ernest Bevin, the new Minister of Labor, and perhaps Prime Minister Churchill were expected to address them and unfold the government's plan to mobilize labor and industry.

The government went ahead with arming and strengthening the home defence forces against attack by parachute troops. One military expert suggested that Thompson sub-machine guns (Tommy Guns) be ordered immediately from the United States as the most effective weapon against such raiders.

DANGER OF GOSSIP

the anti-gossip committee, the Ministry of Information," and on the reverse "don't you think gossip may be dangerous?"

Posters plastered all over Britain remind people of the virtues of silence. They warn: "Don't help the enemy. Careless talk may give away vital secrets." Cartoons tell the same story by appealing to the nation's sense of humor. And films supply a vivid visual lesson.

"The first thing we have to do is to teach people what gossip is," an official told The Canadian Press. "There are even plenty of officers who don't know."

Tracing "Gossip"

He told how one false rumor was spread early in the war that Reading would be bombed by enemy airplanes. The rumor was traced from a local grocer to an insurance agent to a town councillor to a plumber and so on. Each one was supposed to have heard the warning in a broadcast but each said he had the information second hand. Finally a girl cashier in a store was discovered to have started the report.

She admitted inventing it and telling a deliveryman for her firm. Asked why, she said: "Oh, just for something to tell. You have to have something to tell, haven't you, or nobody takes any notice of you."

Damaging Rumors

Another false rumor, related to the official by a London businessman "who should have known better," said young R.A.F. pilots were landing at one airport, their lungs filled with ice after hours of flying over the North Sea, and were unable for hours to get a hot cup of coffee or tea. The business man said he had it from a masseuse who lived near the airport.

It was cited as an illustration of damaging humors—some of them believed deliberately circulated by enemy agents.

Nazi Spies Use Subtle Means

The Nazi intelligence service uses subtle means to draw out people who may have useful information. Hints that a battleship on trials attained less than its contract speed may bring a denial—and correct information—from an enthusiastic engineer or naval man. Spreading of rumors of damage to war factory may elicit stories about the factory. Keen war-workers or members of the fighting services may find it hard to resist enthusing about their work to friends and even sociable strangers.

A typical approach was made to a naval officer shortly after the Royal Oak was sunk. A man came up to him and said "terrible news, sir, isn't it?"

The officer asked "what news?"

"Oh, they've got the Repulse," he was told.

"I haven't seen anything in the paper," he replied.

"No, sir," said the stranger, "it's only just come through on the radio. It is really terrible. Now whereabouts would she be, sir?"

"I don't know," said the officer, true to the traditions of the silent service.

VICTORIA DAY OBSERVANCE IS PARTLY CURTAILED

Unsettled Weather Conditions and Anxiety Over War Situation Cause Curtailment

FEW CELEBRATIONS

(By the Canadian Press)

Unsettled weather conditions and anxiety over the war situation yesterday curtailed Canada's observance of Victoria Day. Rain interfered with many scheduled sports events and fireworks displays.

Prayers for an Allied victory were said in many churches and a fireside audience of thousands heard the King's broadcast message to his people from London.

Almost continuous rain in the east and early showers in western Canada spoiled the plans of many holiday-makers who had hoped to celebrate the national public holiday in the traditional way—at picnics, outings and sports events.

All schools and stock exchanges were closed yesterday, 121st anniversary of the birthday of Queen Victoria. Most newspapers breached custom and responded to public demand by publishing all editions as usual.

Indians of the Six Nations Reserve, Brantford, Ont., observed a custom that originated in the Queen's reign—the issuing of bread and cheese. Sports and dancing followed the distribution of 700 pounds of cheese and 700 loaves of bread in the Indians' observance program.

Little Sign of Spirit

In Ottawa there was little sign of holiday spirit. The House of Commons met as usual and debates were pushed ahead. All war department officials worked throughout the day and the important war boards maintained skeleton staffs.

In Toronto, the Canadian marathon championship was run in heavy rain which kept golfers away from the links and marred other sports arrangements. A full dress parade of 3,000 active service men paraded through London streets, lined with drenched crowds.

Short naval and military ceremonies marked Montreal's Victoria Day observance. A wreath was tossed into the harbor at Victoria pier in memory of Canadian naval men and merchant seamen victims of the First Great War.

In Western Canada fair weather prevailed in the afternoon, following scattered showers earlier in the day. Featured in the west's Victoria Day program were a motorcycle dirt track race at Red Deer, Alta., a rifle shoot and amateur golf tournament in Calgary and a pancake-eating marathon in Winnipeg in which Jimmy Lovejoy, United States champion, challenged all comers.

H. R. McBURNEY,

Flight-Lieutenant McBurney received the Bachelor of Science degree in electrical engineering at the University of Saskatchewan. Early this year he taught wireless at Montreal and then was transferred to Trenton where he instructed in flying.

Native of Saint John

Cheesman, native of Saint John, was a member of Sir Hubert Wilkins' Arctic aerial expedition which sought six Russian aviators lost on a long-distance flight from Moscow in 1938. He is taking an instructor's course at Trenton.

He was elected to the Port Arthur City Council for a second term while in the Arctic, finishing third in a field of 16 candidates seeking ten aldermanic positions. He took the oath of office at Point Barrow, Alaska, before a notary.

The document was air-mailed to Port Arthur but it arrived two days after the time limit for accepting office expired. The Ontario Government passed special legislation, approving his election.

Cheesman took over reigns of his office March 28, 1938, three months after the polling. He did not run for office this year.

Flight - Lieutenant McBurney's body is lying at the G. H. Cobley Funeral Home, Trenton, and will be brought to the base for services today, before being sent to relatives in Saskatoon. Flight-Sergeant Cheesman, whose injuries are said to be of a slight nature, is under treatment at the base hospital.

BODY FOUND IN LAKE

'WITH GOD'S HELP'

throw, complete and final, of this Empire and of everything for which it stands, and after that the conquest of the world. And if there will prevails they will bring to its accomplishment all the hatred and cruelty which they have already displayed. It was not easy for us to believe that designs so evil could find a place in the human mind.

Time For Doubt Past

But the time for doubt is long past. To all of us in this Empire, to all men of vision and goodwill throughout the world, the issue is now plain: It is life or death for us all. Defeat will not mean some brief eclipse from which we shall emerge with strength renewed—it will mean destruction of our world as we have known it and the descent of darkness upon its ruins.

I speak to you today with a new vision of this Empire before my eyes. Now that it has come into conflict and sharp comparison with the evil system which is attempting its destruction, its full significance appears in a brighter and more certain light.

There is a word which our enemies use against us—Imperialism—by it they mean the spirit of domination and the lust of conquest. We free peoples of the Empire cast that word back in their teeth. It is they who have these evil aspirations.

British One Object Peace

Our one object has always been peace: Peace in which our institutions may be developed, the condition of our peoples improved, and the problem of government solved in the spirit of goodwill. This peace they have taken from us and they are seeking to destroy all that we have striven to maintain. Against our honesty is set dishonor, against our faithfulness is set treachery, against our justice brute force.

There in clear and unmistakable opposition lie the forces that now confront one another. The great uprising of the peoples throughout the Empire shows without doubt which will prevail. They have risen in just wrath against a thing which they detest and despise. Nothing can shake their resolution. In perfect unity of purpose they will defend their lives and all that makes life worth living.

Confidence Not Dimmed

Let no one think that my confidence is dimmed when I tell you how perilous is the ordeal which we are facing. On the contrary it shines in my heart as brightly as it shines in yours. But confidence alone is not enough. It must be armed with courage and resolution, with endurance and self-sacrifice.

These are the high qualities that the men of the homeland and the men from overseas in an unending stream are bringing to the struggle on land and sea and in the air.

At this moment our thoughts turn to our fighting men and to those who love them; mothers, wives and sweethearts at home. Beside them stand soldiers of our old ally, France, and with them Poland and Norway, Belgium and Holland, peoples upon whose peaceful lands has fallen all the horror of treacherous and unprovoked aggression.

National Day of Prayer

At this fateful hour we turn, as our fathers before us have turned in all times of trial, to God the Most High. Here in the Old Country I have asked that Sunday next shall be observed as a day of national prayer. It may be possible for many of our brethren across the seas to join their prayers with ours. Let us with one heart and soul humbly but confidently commit our cause to God and ask His aid that we may valiantly defend the right as it is given to us to see.

So now, peoples of the Empire, men and women in all quarters of the globe, I say to you: Put into your task, whatever it may be, all the courage and purpose of which you are capable. Keep your hearts proud and your resolve unshaken. Let us go forward to that task as one man, a smile on our lips and our heads held high, and with God's help we shall not fail.

new and powerful material being completed in France, Great Britain, Canada and the United States."

Former Socialist Premier Leon Blum, writing in Le Populaire, said:

"All great Britain applauded the return of the Labor party to the government. All England applauded the language used by Attlee (Lord Privy Seal Clement R. Attlee, who submitted the Emergency Powers Bill in Commons.)

"Unanimity is complete."

Britain Prepares for Invasion

With German forces capturing channel ports, England is preparing for any attempted invasion by German forces. Powerful British naval units are patrolling the Channel and strong detachments of troops have taken up strategic positions on the south coast. Rumbling tanks are shown in this cablephoto as they passed through London to take up their positions.

CHAPTER THIRTY

A week of storms followed, making offshore fishing impossible. Heavy rains drove the ocean herring into sheltered, shallow waters. And though Chris had been driven like a madman ever since Kemp's return, the O'Moore catch grew even smaller.

Kemp came often to Echo House these days; so often that Polena, no longer bothering to announce his arrival, merely waved him toward the stairs and the captain's sitting room. He was looking older and, Sondra thought, more harassed than seemed strictly justified by a mere fish shortage so early in the season.

Sondra felt sorry for him, but she was holding herself strictly to her self-made promise not to meddle again with the business of fishing. And fishing, it seemed, was the one subject with which Kemp and everyone else had become suddenly engrossed. Often, long after she had gone to bed, she could hear him and her grandfather threshing out some knotty piscatorial problem.

On one such night, unable to sleep, she crossed the hall to the Lady Franklin suite to get a new novel from the guest bookcase. Polena was a crank about this suite, she thought, as she surveyed the room's exquisite order. The fresh counterpane on the bed was one of fine cream linen with a lily pattern quilted into it, the work of Sondra's great-grandmother.

Next morning when Sondra returned the book, she was faintly surprised to find the door of the suite wide open. Inside, she noticed a number of things slightly disarranged; but most arresting of all to a woman's eye was the counterpane. Its quilted lily pattern was now upside down.

Leaving everything untouched, Sondra ran down the hall to the sitting room, where she knew the captain would be found at this hour. But her first glimpse of him through the open door drove all thought of the prowler from her mind. Alert, intent, he was facing the bay window, his arms and hands moving with the sharp, sure quickness of a master directing a crew.

Sondra moved so softly to the window that the captain was unaware of her presence. When she saw what it was that so gripped his attention, her own heart gave an ecstatic leap.

From forward and aft on the Glory's deck, two slender, tapering spars towered against the morning sky. Men swarmed about them, adjusting turn-buckles tightening stays. Other men were massed amidships to receive a third gleaming spar, the mainmast. Already it was swinging out from the Bates wharf—and now Sondra recognized the "radio masts" which the Forest Man had left with Jean Reynall more than a month ago. . . . So, from the very first, Reynall had planned and worked to restore the Glory to her old estate.

He was directing the work now from a point of vantage beside the poop-deck skylight, on the edge of which sat Miss Jacqueline, watching and smoking.

The winch roared. The slender mast-tip swayed, trembled, swept upward in a majestic, breath-taking arc. Then, suddenly the winch was silent. Men, at a dozen stations, were snatching hasty turns of stays and guy-ropes, while a rumbling cheer rose from their triumphant ranks.

It was done. The Glory of the West was once more a mistress of the seas; a proud, three-masted clipper.

"The Glory—my Glory! Thanks be to God, she's a ship again."

Sondra turned at the sound of her grandfather's low, husky voice. He didn't know she was there. He was standing very straight and proud, gazing down at his first command with a smile of ineffable tenderness. But his chin was quivering, and his lean, weathered face was wet with tears.

x x x

That morning, Polena came puffing up with a letter."Bag of mail just came in by plane from Juneau," she panted. "Postmaster sent this right over."

"Put it on the table." The captain was frowning over his herring records.

"Dynamite—look!" cried Sondra. "It's special delivery. From Washington, D.C.—the Navy Department. It must be about your charts."

The captain snatched up the envelope and ripped it open. "Bless me soul! So it is, Sondy."

Sondra read the letter over her grandfather's shoulder. "They do want your charts, lamb. And how!"

The captain let out a joyous oath, and the two, throwing their arms about each other, rocked back and forth, laughing.

"May I share in this family rejoicing?" It was Kemp, speaking from the open doorway. He was smiling, but only with his lips. His eyes held the harassed look that had become habitual with him of late.

The captain, sparkling with triumph, waved the letter in welcome.

"Uncle Sam has waked up to me charts at last, Starbuck," he roared. "Here's the proof — signed by the Secretary of the Navy himself! Listen, now, whilst I read you his very words:

"'Your letter relative to certain drawings and other data pertaining to some uncharted portions of the Aleutian Islands has recently been turned over to me by the War Department. This department wishes to express its grateful appreciation of your kind offer to submit these documents for the use of the United States Government.

"'The U.S.S. New Orleans, now en route to Alaskan waters, should arrive off Sitka about August 15th; at which time Lieut. Wayne Shaw will call upon you and take personal charge of the documents in question. Lieut. Shaw will be very glad to receive from you at the same time any verbal information on Alaskan waters and conditions not covered by these papers.

"'It is assumed that you are exercising the utmost care for the safeguarding of these documents, since it appears they may embody information of vital importance to any unfriendly power that might contemplate hostilities against our western seaboard.'

"'Assuring you of—' and so forth.

"Well there it is, Starbuck!" The captain proudly thrust the letter at Kemp, who glanced at the missive and handed it back. "August fifteenth—a week from today," he calculated somberly. "That's quick work, sir. They must think your charts darned important if Naval Intelligence is sending Sh—er—if this chap Shaw is coming up to take special charge of them." He shot a keen glance at the captain's smiling face. "Better have Jarvis set a special guard at the bank, sir. Someone might try blowing the vault to get at them."

"Let 'em blow and be darned," the captain chuckled. "They'll find nothing of mine in Tom's vault."

"Dynamite won't tell even me where he's hidden the charts, Kemp." Sondra was starting for the door. "But I'll bully him into showing them to us before the New Orleans arrives. To, ta, gentlemen."

When the two men were alone, O'Moore turned an appraising eye on Kemp, who was nervously drawing out his cigarette case. "Sit down, lad," he said. "Get it off your chest."

Kemp fumbled a light to his cigarette and inhaled deeply before he spoke. "It's that Japanese Army contract, sir. I've just had another letter. They're crowding me hard for more speed. More fish."

"Tell the yellow heathens to be aisy. We'll more than make up any temporary shortage in a week or two."

"But my contract demands regular shipments, on scheduled dates; and there's a murderous penalty clause for failure. Your fleet brought in barely enough to cover my floor this morning."

"Aye. With divil a herring offshore, my lads are findin' tough pickin's," admitted the captain. "But what's wrong with your own fleet, htat was built for this puss-in-the-corner fishin'? I don't see them fetchin' in many loads either."

Kemp flushed apologetically. "I'm afraid my Japanese aren't much good against native competition, sir. Any time they manage to run down a school of herring, they're sure to find some of Reynall's Siwash boats in there ahead of them."

"Reynall, eh? Chris told me he'd let most of his boats go free-lancin' up the inlets, keepin' only a dozen at Shaman's Lagoon to look after the school he holds impounded there."

"That's another thing I must talk over with you, captain. Reynall has offered to sell me his surplus."

"Surplus!" O'Moore's white eyebrows bushed upward. "He has a surplus, then?"

"So he says. And he's offered to let me have them at the same price I pay you."

"You accepted?"

"I told him I'd have to see you first, sir. I know you're at war with Reynall, but—I have to fill cans for those troops in China!"

"So-o-o." The captain's voice was dangerously soft. "Have ye forgotten, Starbuck, that clause in your contract with me which forbids your havin' any traffic with Reynall?"

"It forbids my selling fish to Reynall, not buying from him." Kemp's haggard eyes met the other's stare unflinchingly. Silence, like a river filled with strong conflicting currents, flowed between them for a space.

"That's true," the captain said at last. "And I cannot blame ye, lad, for takin' fish where ye find 'em, when ye need them. But—will ye turn down Reynall's offer, if I show ye where ye'll not lose by it? How ye may profit, in the end?"

"How, sir?"

"Our boats may strike herring any day now, endin' your worries. Should they not, I'll insure you against loss by payin' your penalty out of me own pocket. Is that fair?" asked the captain.

"Most generous, sir." Kemp shook his head regretfully. "But what's really important is that I get the fish to make those shipments."

"What if ye got them, already canned, for less than they'd cost ye to pack?"

"How do you mean, sir?" Kemp stared blankly into the captain's shrewdly twinkling eyes.

"Look down there, me lad." O'Moore pointed to the Bates wharf, where Reynall's men were stacking cases of canner herring under a makeshift shed. "Reynall has shipped no fish, as yet. He's filled the Glory's hold with what he's canned already, and now he has no place to store his future pack. Even if he had, he couldn't store it, for soon he must raise cash to meet his pay roll. To get cash, he must sell; and to sell, he must ship—and 'tis meself has some small voice in Alaska shippin'. There'll be no space for Reynall cargo in any vessel makin' this port—ye may lay to that. There are other lines out of Juneau, of course, but I'll be goin' over there shortly on other business, and h-m-m—I'll attend to that, too, ye understand."

"That might force Reynall to sell me a part of his pack at cost, or a bit below," Kemp agreed, thoughtfully. "But I can't see how it helps you much, captain. He still has all his early pack in the Glory's hold, and the ship rigged ready to sail. You can't stop him taking that cargo south and selling it at a nice profit. So you still will not have won your fight."

"Har-rumph!" The captain cleared his throat noisily. "I'll have shown the unregenerate whelp he can't kick Dan O'Moore in the ribs, and not be takin' a clout or two in return. Belike, as things look now, I may have been a bit hasty in me past judgment; but I can't be tossin' up the sponge now, whilst the young divil has me covered with blood entirely. 'Tis a draw with him I'm after, no more!"

When Kemp did not speak, the captain leaned forward earnestly. "In any case, you win, me lad. By refusin' to deal with Reynall now, ye get his surplus later—packed, ready to ship, and at your own price. Isn't that clear?"

"The joker there lies in the time element, captain. I need fish at once—not a month or two months hence. My plant should be turning full blast right now. And—well—Reynall can keep it going for weeks, just with that lot he has bottled up in Shaman's Lagoon." After a moment he added, "Sorry, sir," and shot a narrow-eyed glance at the silent O'Moore.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking to school with Shorty Judge talking about different subjects and he started to talk about their parrit being so intelligent and never biting anything except strangers' fingers, and different things, and we started to have a debate about wich are the most intelligent, berds or dogs, Shorty claiming berds and me saying dogs, they'd hop on top of trains and busses whenever they wanted to go some place and save their strength, only they never even think of it, but dogs are always jumping into automobiles hoping they wont get thrown out again.

That's because it's so much fun flying, and berds are intelligent enough to realize it, Shorty said. If dogs were intelligent enough to fly they'd be intelligent enough to laugh at automobiles too, the same as ebrds. And what's more, berds know exactly wich direction they're flying, just from pure intelligence, but if a dog ever got the idea to run south in winter where it was warmer, he'd proberly end up somewheres near the north pole where it was worse instead of better, he said, and I said, No he wouldn't, either, because he wouldn't have such a useless idea in the first place, because he's got enough 'ntelligence to go in houses and places where people have gone to a lot of trouble to make it nice and warm and the dog just takes advantage of it without going to any effort or expense.

Well everybody likes to hear berds sing and hopes they'll come around again, even if they never saw them before, but they just get mad when strange dogs start to bark and hope they never see them again, Shorty said, and I said, Well if that's a way they feel it just proves they're dum instead of proving the dogs aren't intelligent.

Being a good answer and the end of the debate on account of the last bell for school ringing just then.

Allies Withdraw To New Positions In Northern France

Prepared Positions West of Scheldt River Occupied as Germans Menaced Left Flank With Attack Without "Regard to Losses"

FIERCE FIGHTING

Nazis Attempt to Push North After Capture of Boulogne — Citadel Held Out Long After City Fell but Finally Capitulated—Allied Troops in France Well Supplied

Paris, May 27—(AP)—The Allied armies of the north fell back today before mass Nazi attacks rivalling in violence the German assaults on Verdun of the First Great War and took their stand on a new line defending the English Channel.

Apparently without regard to losses, the German commanders threw into the drive the old infantry and artillery as well as the new dive bombers and armoured columns.

The French last night withdrew to new positions in the Valenciennes sector to straighten their lines while the Germans pitted men and material against the Allied armies around Menin in Belgium.

The battle continued today, with the Allies reported checking the German offensive on the new front.

The Nazi drive, aimed southward along the Lys River valley, was centred on Menin, 35 miles northwest of Valenciennes, on the French-Belgian frontier.

It appeared that the Germans were attempting to cut the Allied army of the north in two by hammering through their lines to make connections with their forces in northwestern France which the High Command yesterday acknowledged had captured the channel port of Boulogne.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 27—(CP) — The weather has been fair in Manitoba and the greater part of Saskatchewan, while light showers have occurred in some sections of Alberta. Showers have been general in Ontario.

Lake Superior: Moderate northerly winds; partly cloudy and cool with light scattered showers. Tuesday, mostly fair; not much change in temperature.

Manitoba: Mostly fair and a little warmer today and Tuesday.

Saskatchewan and Alberta: Mostly fair today and Tuesday, some scattered showers, probably a little cooler on Tuesday.

Science Service Meteorologist

people feel too hot or too cold, Wet-bulb temperature! When they often look at the thermometer to see why they feel uncomfortable. Probably they should consult the wet-bulb thermometer, which is an ordinary thermometer with a piece of wet muslin rapped tightly once around its bulb. As evaporation takes heat, this thermometer reads lower than the ordinary thermometer (called the dry-bulb). The difference between the wet- and dry-bulb thermometer depends upon the degree of humidity; the drier the air, the greater the difference. So it is better to consult both the dry- and wet-bulb thermometers; and when their readings are very close together it means the humidity is high and one had better rest a while, because perspiring, which gives comfort, is retarded by high humidity.

NAZI, AUSTRIAN WOMEN INTERNED ON ISLE OF MAN

Those Interned Over Week-end Previously Under Police Restrictions

RAIDS VEILED

London, May 27—(CP) — The Home Secretary today ordered internment on the Isle of Man of all German and Austrian women who previously had been under police restrictions.

Under the decree, all enemy alien women between the ages of 16 and 60 who have previously been in "B" category will be interned as well as men.

It was explained that the women can, if they wish, take children under 16 with them.

A gigantic police dragnet swept hundreds of women into custody in the early morning while censorship veiled the raids.

The great round-up started at

French Air Chief Tells Forces 'Sky Must Remain French'

Paris May 27.— (CP-Havas) — "Our sky must remain French'" General Victor Vuillemin, commander-in-Chief of the French Air Force, told his troops Sunday in an order-of-the-day.

The order:

"Since the beginning of the war and above all during the last 15 days of battle you have expended yourselves unstintingly, victoriously facing the numerically superior enemy.

"I knew that I could count on you. Today the hour is decisive. Our sky must remain French.

"Wing to wing with our Allies you will again write victory in the sky which has known so much glory, the sky of Guynemer, following the example of your elders".

(Georges Guynemer, famous French ace of the last war, shot down 54 German planes.)

Make Forced Landing Near Cobourg Sunday

Cobourg, Ont., May 27—(CP) — Making a forced landing because of fog Sunday morning, an R.C.A.F. two-seater training plane turned upside down in a muddy field on the farm of W. J. Johnston. The two occupants escaped injury, Johnston said.

Visibility was only about 100 feet when the fliers decided to land, intending to wait until the fog cleared. The plane, however, flipped over in landing on soggy ground.

The aviators unhooked their safety belts and crawled out to find the propeller smashed, the wings crumpled and the rudder damaged. They telephoned for air force trucks which removed the wreckage.

TWO HOSPITAL SHIPS ARRIVE IN ENGLAND

London, May 27—(CP)— Two hospital ships arrived at a south of England port today with wounded from the British Expeditionary Force in France.

Three hospital ships brought several hundred wounded to the same port yesterday and reported 14 had died enroute. Earlier yesterday a number of wounded were landed in the west of England.

A War Office casualty list for the B.E.F. yesterday listed 10 killed, 17 wounded, two taken prisoner, 163 missing and 38 who died.

SIR S. CRIPPS LABOR MINISTER GOES TO MOSCOW

Chances for Improved Relations Between Two Countries Now "Quite Favorable"

MAISKY MEETS HALIFAX

Soviet Ambassador Insistent That Labor Man be Sent to Negotiate

London, May 27 (CP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor member of parliament, is en route to Moscow on on economic mission.

The Soviet Union was reported today to have welcomed a proposal to send Sir Stafford and Russian circles here said chances for improved relations between the two countries now seem "quite favorable."

Sir Stafford, however, did not wait for the Foreign Office to complete formalities of protocol and already has begun the first leg of his journey to Moscow. He was there earlier this year on his way back from China and was said to have conferred with Joseph Stalin.

Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky talked over with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax yesterday the proposal that Cripps go to Moscow in connection with negotiations for a trade agreement.

It is understood that the Russians desire that Sir Stafford should be empowered to make decisions and take actions regarding details of such an agreement.

Observers see in the fact that Russia has not increased her demands in connection with proposed trade negotiations an indication that the two countries may be able to get together.

Foreign Office circles said the reply from Moscow regarding the proposal to make Sir Stafford a special envoy were not "unfavorable," but added that certain formalities must be arranged before he can assume the post.

FORMWARCOUNCIL IN NEW ZEALAND

Council Will Represent All Sections and Have Sweeping Powers

Auckland, N.Z., May 27 —(CP—Cable) — Immediate establishment of a war council representing all sections of the population to take charge of war activities, was announced Sunday by Prime Minister Peter Fraser.

He said the council will be clothed with powers to call for compulsory national service—civil, military and financial—but added these would not be used except where necessary for the war effort.

The council will consist of members of the cabinet associated with the war effort, representatives of the Opposition, industrial employers, trade unions and farmers. The cabinet and the council will hold joint sessions where necessary.

Mr. Fraser said the country was pursuing an "all in" policy—with every one and every atom of the country's effort subordinated to the requirements of the Dominion and the Empire.

Farmlands Littered With Broken Fences

Kitchener, Ont., May 27 (CP) — Farmlands littered with broken fences and other debris remained today after yesterday's torrential rainstorm. A washout on the Canadian National Railways delayed traffic two hours at New Hamburg, 12 miles west of here.

Rushing water gouged foot-deep ruts in the Kitchener-Stratford highway at several points, delaying heavy Sunday traffic many hours. Permanent repairs already have been completed on the railroad washout, 250 tons of rock ballast being used to bolster sagging rails.

Here is a view of Calais, French port on the English Channel, which is threatened by the German army. Calais is opposite Dover, England, and is a very vital port. French today asserted that Calais is held by the Allies despite a German announcement to the contrary.

'Allied Military Situation Improves Faster and Better' Than Expected, Says Chief

Allies Are Going Through Period of Holding Germans at Any Costs and Readjusting Troops and Lines—Gigantic Work Accomplished by Allies—Germans Feel Out Maginot Line and Leave 25,000 Dead and Wounded Outside Line Before They Give Up Attack

New York, May 27—(CP)—The Allied military situation is improving "faster and better than anyone could have imagined earlier in the week," General Maxime Weygand, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied armies, declared in a message broadcast from Paris early today.

"In a month France will be on the march to victory," said General Weygand's message read over a Paris radio station and heard here by the National Broadcasting Company. The message said:

"In a month France will be on the march to victory. Tonight we feel that this one month might well be cut down to a fortnight. Yet, in any case the military situation is improving faster and better than anyone could have imagined earlier in the week.

Hold Germans at any Cost.

"The Allies are going through a period of holding the Germans at any cost and readjusting their troops and their lines in the situation forced by the great German break-through. Gigantic work has been done in this direction, and the French, all of them, with their Commander-in-Chief, are convinced that they and their Allies will not have to wait long for their chance to come. There is something in the air in Paris now—it is something big.

"Along the Maginot Line, the German command tried to cut through the Maginot Line, feeling out the actual strength of the line. After several hours of artillery fire, the German sentries swarmed out of the Siegfried Line to attack.

German Losses

"Wave after wave came over. It was not a battle, it was a massacre. Eye witnesses estimate that the number of German dead and wounded outside the Maginot Line was at least 25,000."

Latest Bulletins

CONTINUE ATTACKS ON SUPPLY LINES

CURFEW ORDERED AT MALTA

MALTA, May 27 (C.P.-Reuters)—The governor of this important British naval base today ordered curfew from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m., effective tonight, as a defence precaution against parachute invasion. The public was warned violators of the curfew would risk being shot. The warnings emphasized the death penalty for treachery.

SYSTEMATICALLY SHELL FORTS

BASEL, Switzerland, May 27 (AP)—French guns systematically shelled the German railroad and forts below Baden, just north of the Swiss frontier, for the third successive day today, with only sporadic replies from the German West-wall batteries.

The major part of the French fire seemed to be directed against the six forts in and around the rock of Istein, towering above the Rhine Rapids and the big Kembs dam.

ITALY APPEARS SPEEDING ALONG ROAD TO WAR

Americans Advised to Leave Malta at the Earliest Possible Moment

DUCE HOLDS PARLEY

Banners Bearing Words "We Want to March" Held Before Mussolini in Forum

By CHARLES H. GUPTILL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Rome, May 27 (AP).—Italy appeared today to be speeding along the road to war despite British hopes of mollifying Italian bitterness against the Allied blockade.

British authorities said Italy had proposed "a very satisfactory basis" for a contraband agreement but this brought no immediate sign of relaxation of preparations of the Italian military machine or dimming of the popular spirit for intervention.

Most Italians believed any relaxation of the contraband control would fall far short of meeting Fascist "aspirations" for territorial and other concessions so long as the British held the keys to Gibraltar and the Suez Canal, the two gateways to the Mediterranean which Italians call "mare nostrum" (our sea).

Advised to Leave Malta.

(A dispatch from Malta, British Mediterranean base only 60 miles from Sicily and 150 miles from the toe of the Italian "boot", said Americans there had been advised to leave at the earliest possible moment.)

In the atmosphere of intense preparations for war, these developments occurred yesterday:

1. Premier Mussolini conferred with army chiefs, directors of mobilization and arms producers and subsequently orders were issued to expand the production of artillery and to conserve the nation's gasoline supplies by suspending civilian motor traffic June 1.

2. Banners bearing the words "War, War!" and "Duce, We Want To March!" were raised before the premier in Mussolini Forum at the end of a gymnastic exhibition by 10,000 Fascist youths. Mussolini watched impassively.

3. Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano returned from a tour of Albania—conquered and annexed by Italy in April, 1939—in which he received pledges of Albanian support in any Italian war effort.

Satisfactory Basis.

The British announcement that Italy had proposed "a very satisfactory basis" for a contraband agreement came as Sir Wilfrid Greene, British economic expert, left Rome after conducting negotiations regarding the contraband control and trade questions.

Foreign observers said they were puzzled by the announcement because they had been given to understand that Mussolini had rejected both British and French offers as being "too little and too late".

The British were reported to have been ready in effect to lift the contraband control to permit large supplies of raw materials to reach Italy in return for an Italian promise to prevent them from reaching Germany.

Some observers wondered whether Italy would accept an end to control in the Mediterranean as meaning an end to her Mediterranean "imprisonment"—something she has insisted must be terminated.

Discovered in Boxcar Inside Arsenal Fence

Lindsay, Ont., May 27 (CP) — A man giving the name Wallace Kincaid, Hastings County, was held by Royal Canadian Mounted Police on a vagrancy charge today after he was found in a Canadian National Railways boxcar on a siding of the Dominion Arsenal.

He was discovered by a member of the Midland Regiment which guards the munitions plant. The boxcar had been shunted well within the fence which surrounds the Arsenal buildings.

Germany's Recent Gains Threatening Britain Call for Urgent Action in Strengthening Defences

EVACUATION AREAS

Fifteen Southeast Coast Towns Named as 'Evacuation Areas' and Children Are to be Ready to be Moved to Safer Places

London, May 27 (CP)—Britain and her Allies battled savagely on land and sea today to save Calais from the Nazi invaders and, at the same time, strengthened English coastal defences to hurl back into the narrow channel any attempted thrust at British soil.

Naval guns pounded the Nazi columns pressing into Calais, 22 miles from the chalk cliffs of Dover, while the Allied land troops met the advance units in street fighting and the Royal Air Force hammered German airdromes and communications.

At home the intensive drive against the Fifth Column peril took a sudden turn: More than 3,000 German and Austrian women were arrested for internment on the Isle of Man for the war's duration, and scores of pacifists, grumblers, soap box orators and suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican army were jailed.

Need to Overhaul Training

More speed in training Britain's reserve manpower was demanded by Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard, which declared that 750,000 men ready for service have not yet been summoned to training stations, and that thousands of military age have not been registered.

"It seems that the whole system of training needs to be overhauled," said The Standard.

The government moved toward better relations with Russia by dispatching Sir Stafford Cripps, Labor member of parliament, to Moscow on an economic mission.

Appointed to head the home army against any German attempt to invade the British Isles was General Sir Edmund Ironside. General Sir John Dill was appointed to succeed him as Chief of the Imperial General Staff.

These vital changes in the Army High Command, made as Germany's mechanized columns extended their gains in their struggle for a springboard for a direct assault on Britain, reflected urgent action for strengthening resistance to the threatened invasion.

Former Officials At Rideau Hall To Serve Athlone

London, May 27 (CP Cable) — When the Earl of Athlone takes up his duties at Rideau Hall it is probable that two men who served earlier Governors General of Canada will be members of his suite.

It is reliably reported that Lieut.-Colonel Eric MacKenzie, former Scots Guardsman, will be Lord Athlone's Comptroller of the Household. He served the Earl of Bessborough and the late Lord Tweedsmuir in that capacity.

Sir Shuldham Redfern is talked of as the Governor General's likeliest choice for Secretary, in which post he acted for Lord Tweedsmuir.

Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, is said to have appointed Miss Ariel Baird, Lord Stonehaven's daughter as Lady in Waiting and Private Secretary.

APPEALS FOR UNITY

Washington, May 27—(AP)—In a solemn appeal for national unity President Roosevelt coupled a pledge of United States military security last night with a warning against trojan horse treachery and the "undiluted poison" of foreign-sponsored dissension.

Calling for an end to fear, illusion and calamity-howling, Mr. Roosevelt said in his 14th radio "fireside chat" that American defence forces would be built up "to whatever heights the future may require."

He denied charges of critics that money spent for the army and navy in the last few years had "gone down the rat-hole." Instead, he said:

"This money has been used to make our army and navy today the largest, the best equipped, and the best trained peacetime military establishment in the history of this country."

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL HIT BY CAR

Seven-year-old Donna Cook of 23 St. Paul Street, sustained head lacerations and leg abrasions when she ran into the side of a moving motor car and was knocked down near her home Saturday evening. The motor car was driven by Lloyd Dutton, of Toronto, who told Sergt. Arthur Booth that the child had suddenly darted out and ran directly into the moving vehicle. Dutton stopped and rendered what assistance possible.

The little Cook girl was playing with neighbour children, who were setting off firecrackers. As one of the pieces of fireworks exploded near her, little Donna became frightened and ran out into the street where she was knocked down by the car. The injuries were not considered serious.

FOX TERRIER DOG KILLED BY CAR

A small Fox Terrier dog, the property of Thomas E. Pigden, 177 Church Street, was killed when run over by a motor car driven by Austin Blackwell, Toronto, on East Dundas Street, early today. The dog ran beneath the wheels of the moving vehicle and was instantly killed when run over. Later the carcass was disposed of by Mr. Pigden personally.

Rowing Coach Fatally Injured

Montreal, May 27 (CP).—Urbain Molmans, 61, coach of the McGill Rowing Club and winner of more than 100 international rowing awards, was fatally injured Saturday night when descending from a moving train at Lakeside station near here.

He stumbled in getting off the train and his left leg was caught under one of the wheels. Taken to hospital, he died about an hour later.

A native of Belgium, he had been coach of the McGill Club for the past seventeen years.

Rowing with a partner named Viser, Mr. Molmans was at his best as an oarsman in 1910-11. The pair were presented with gold watches by Leopold II, King of Belgium, and in 1910 were the only foreign crew ever to win the grand challenge cup of Great Britain.

25 Children Take Part In Pageant at Bridge St. Church on Sunday

A square-rigged, three-masted sailing ship took form in Bridge St. United Church Sunday morning as some 25 younger children from the Sunday School unfolded the theme of a pageant entitled "The Building of the Ship". Under master builder Jack Dixon, each child brought a part for the ship and then told of the symbolism of the part in relation to the ship of life. Stanley Hagerman was leader, with Campbell Cameron as helper to the master builder. Those bearing parts for the ship were—

Buddy Stratton, Marilyn Seldon, Lenore Griffin, John O'Flynn, Frances Jean Finkle, Carol Morden, Merle Massey, Isabel McCabe, Shirley Clarke, Jack Campbell, Margaret Williams and Mary Ann Emery. Other bearers were —Charlotte Finkle, Bruce Blatherwick, Audrey Correll, Donald Muir, Barry Muir, Beth Holmes, Jimmy Laughlin, Peter Miller, Barbara Arnott, Barbara Jean Houston, Beth Wilbur, Marilyn Andrews, Carolyn Thompson, Carol O'Flynn and Bruce Hefkey.

The pageant was preceded by a brief address, "The Navy of the United Church", by the minister, Dr. James Semple.

Canadians, by Buying War Savings Certificates, Help Canada to Win War

Canadians today are being asked to buy War Savings Certificates. What does this mean? It means this: That our answer will be the measure of our real devotion to democracy. To freedom.

We have been told that democracy is decadent. That our ideals of freedom are meaningless. That our way of life cannot compel the devotion that goes to the totalitarian creed.

War Savings Certificates can answer, and powerfully, to that indictment. To the extent that we buy them we will tell whether or not devotion to democracy and liberty does exist; whether there exists the reality of democratic responsibility, of democratic loyalty, of democratic unity.

In France today the watchword is: Advance or die. In England Mr. Churchill exclaims: "I offer you blood, tears, toil and sweat." And he adds: "For all that Britain means, I appeal to you...... We must save ourselves from the black night of barbarism."

In coming weeks, the people of this country have the chance of showing whether their thought of freedom's meaning, their understanding of the meaning of this terrible conflict, is as deep and real as that of the peoples of Britain and France.

The real challenge of War Savings Certificates is the challenge of whether the fibre of democracy is as strong as the fibre of dictatorship. The challenge of whether the discipline of the lash is as powerful as the discipline of freedom.

Let Canadians, by buying these War Savings Certificates, by answering with all and the least of their means the great cry for help that goes up, show how strong is the discipline of freedom. Let them determine that it will be remembered in years to come that Canada did not vent its anger at brutality and injustice solely in words and gestures, but that it turned at least a part of it into sacrifice for freedom in freedom's hour of dire need.

K. N. Dyson, C.N.R. Ticket Agent, Receives Transfer to St. Catharines

Has Been Stationed in City for Five Years — Large Circle of Friends Will Regret Having "Ken" Leave City

SERVED IN FRANCE

Announcement today of the transfer and promotion of Mr. K. M. (Ken) Dyson, Canadian National Railways city ticket agent here, to St. Catharines where he will assume charge of the City Passenger and Ticket Office of the company, brought mingled feelings of regret and congratulation from a large circle of city friends. Mr. and Mrs. Dyson leave for their new home on June 1st, Mr. Dyson assuming his new responsibilities on June 4th.

Mr. Thomas MacDonald of the General Passenger Office, Toronto has been appointed to succeed Mr. Dyson here as City Passenger and Ticket Agent.

Interviewed in his office today, the amiable "Ken" as he is familiarly known to his friends here, shook his head, a trifle sadly perhaps. "While I am thrilled, as naturally one would be, over my promotion, it will be hard for Mrs. Dyson and myself to sever the many happy associations we have made since coming to Belleville five years ago. We have made many friends here, and we naturally hate to part with them."

He smiled when he told a reporter that he was one of the few men in the world who readily recall their first birthday. "I was born on Feb. 29th, 1896," he laughed, "and since 1900 was not a leap year, I did not really have a birthday until I was eight years old."

Joined G.T.R. in 1913

"Ken" joined the Grand Trunk Railway in February, 1913, associating himself with the engineering department. He remained in that capacity until 1916 when he answered the call of duty and enlisted in a machine gun battalion. He served in France and was wounded at the battle of Passchaendale.

Returning to Canada in 1919, after serving as an instructor in England for a year, he returned to the Canadian National Railways and for some length of time worked with the Board of Arbitration.

Sent to Toronto in 1921, he was associated with the Passenger Department, at the Union Station Ticket Office, and the City Ticket Office, until 1935. During this period, he was sent to North Bay where he acted in a relief capacity for a period of six months.

Late in 1935 he was transferred to Belleville relieving Mr. H. C. Thompson who retired from the service.

Member of Rotary

During his stay here, Mr. Dyson has been one of the most active members of the Belleville Rotary Club, serving that organization in various capacities. He was appointed this year as a director of the club, a position he must perforce, relinquish he says, with keen feelings of regret.

A member of Bridge Street United Church, he was an elder of that denomination, taking a great interest in the furtherance of its work and the many phases of its activities. Mrs. Dyson also played a prominent part in the work of the church, being treasurer of the Women's Missionary Society for some time.

Above is Mr. K. M. (Ken) Dyson, City Passenger and Ticket Agent for the Canadian National Railways here whose transfer to St. Catharines, Ont., in a similar capacity was announced today. Mr. and Mrs. Dyson leave for their new home on June 1st.

POLICE COURT

Today's post session of holiday police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., was of short duration. Two inebriates, who were apprehended over the week-end, admitted having imbibed too freely and were found guilty. One, who is an old offender, replied—"That's all right" when given a month's jail sentence, after being convicted of a second offence under the Liquor Control Act, while the other was given two weeks in which to raise the conventional fine of "ten and costs".

Stanley Archer, Belleville, appeared charged with breaking and entering the premises of the Belle Billiards. Archer stated he desired the counsel of a lawyer. "Actually I believe this boy wants to talk to Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan before he enters his final plea", revealed Chief Kidd.

Belleville Churches Observe National Day of Prayer

Churches of All Denominations Filled to Capacity for National Prayer Sunday in Answer to Appeal of British Sovereign

PRAYERS FOR VICTORY

Symbolic of the faith it has in its King and Empire, Belleville on Sunday in conjunction with other cities, towns and communities of the far-flung sectors of the British Commonwealth of Nations, forsook its week-end diversions and sought Divine aid in the present crisis through the medium of National Prayer Sunday.

It was a cross-section of the life of the city and district, that observed His Majesty King George's appeal to the Empire that all his subjects join in the services. In an unending stream, rich and poor, the high and low, bound by a common bond, flowed into church auditoriums in numbers seldom seen in the religious history of the city.

Evening and morning services saw capacity congregations fill churches of all denominations. Ministers and other speakers, in addresses that bespoke the seriousness of the situation and the necessity for prayer in an Empire's crisis, rose to heights of eloquence. Special music was featured in many of the services and perhaps never before in the history of this city has the National Anthem been sung with such devout sincerity as it was Sunday.

St. Andrew's.

One of the outstanding sermons of the day was preached at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church by the Rev. W. J. Walker, before a capacity congregation. Mr. Walker's forceful eloquence brought out to the full the seriousness of the Empire's situation, and the sincerity and ability of the men now at the helm of the state. He urged the necessity for prayer at this critical point. Appropriate music was contributed by the choir.

AT CHRIST CHURCH

Observing a National day of prayer and intercession, Rev. G. G. Wright spoke to a capacity-filled church at Christ Church during all services Sunday. Rev. Wright delivered a special discourse based on the subject of "Peace", as suggested by His Majesty King George VI, at the morning service, at which time special prayers of intercession were delivered to God seeking guidance and peace.

During Sunday Christ Church was open to the public and hundreds of members of the congregation delivered up special prayers during a period set aside for private prayer and individual intercession for peace and victory. At all times during the day of private intercession the church retained its quiet and reverent sanctity as those offering up prayers reverently entered the church and in prayer sought the solace of Divine comfort.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Prayer on behalf of the Nation and Empire.

In accordance with the request of His Majesty King George VI that Sunday, May 26th., be made a day of prayer on behalf of the Nation and Empire the following was read at the Sunday service of Christian Science Society by the First Reader.

"His Majesty King George VI has requested that today be made a day of national prayer on behalf of the Nation and Empire, their Allies and the cause in which they are united. Our leader, Mary Baker Eddy, in her writings repeatedly counsels Christian Scientists to 'pray without ceasing' and thus Christian Scientists may unite today through constant prayer for the realization of the supremacy of the government of divine Love. In her book "The First Church of Christ, Scientist and Miscellany" Mrs. Eddy writes "Faith full-fledged soaring to the Horeb height, brings blessings infinite, and the spirit of this orison is the fruit of rightness,—'on earth peace, good will toward men.' On this basis the brotherhood of all peoples is established; namely, one God, one Mind, and 'Love thy neighbor as thyself', the basis on which and by which the infinite God, good, the Father-Mother Love is ours and we are His in divine Science". (page 281: 7-14).

At the close of the service the congregation joined in singing the National Anthem.

AT ST. MICHAEL'S

The Day of Prayer for Divine guidance in the prosecution of the war, for victory, was observed in the parish of St. Michael the Archangel at the seven, eight-thirty and ten-thirty Masses in the morning. Large numbers of people visited the church doing the afternoon to pray and at three o'clock a Special Benediction took place for the women and children of the parish. At seven-thirty in the evening the men and boys of the parish prayed for this intention. So the entire day from seven o'clock in the morning until nine p.m. was consecrated to this end.

AT THE SYNAGOGUE

Sunday was observed by the Jewish communities of Belleville, Picton and Trenton as a day of national prayer invoking the aid of God for the success and triumph of the Allies. The service which was well attended was held at the Belleville Synagogue and was conducted by the local rabbi, Rabbi L. Axelrod.

Rabbi Axelrod opened the service with a sermon. During the course of his address the Rabbi strongly denounced Hitlerism and dwelt at length on the futility of dictatorship, explaining also that the bed of anti-semitism which Hitler has sown seven years ago was merely a side step to divert the attention of democracy from his main issue, which was to bring ruin and devastation upon the world. But in this time of national anxiety we must be full of confidence and courage. Looking back upon history Napoleon had raced towards his own Waterloo, also the Biblical Pharaoh had pursued the Jews towards the Red Sea and had merely raced to his own doom. It was the fervent hope and prayer of everyone present that this modern Napoleon and Pharaoh is also now racing towards his doom.

At the conclusion of the sermon the Rabbi chanted a prayer for the welfare and safety of the Royal Family and for the ultimate success and triumph of the British Empire and its Allies. Several appropriate verses of the Psalms were chanted by the congregation. The service was concluded with the singing of God Save the King.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Patriotism and loyalty to the Empire were the keynote of the services held at St. John's Church, Herchimer Avenue on National Prayer Sunday. The Rev. W. H. Heaven, conducted the services. He was assisted by the Rev. A. L. Geen who took the Litany.

Girl Guide Sunday Observed in City

Girl Guide Sunday was fittingly observed in the city yesterday. Guides of First, Second, Third and Seventh Belleville Companies, and Brownie Packs of the First, Third and Seventh Companies took part in services at Tabernacle United Church. It was particularly fitting that their church parade coincided with the National Day of Prayer throughout the Empire and Guides whose organization and training stresses fealty and devotion to the Empire should respond in an official manner to His Majesty's plea for the prayers of his people.

Colors Presented

The colors of First, Second and Third Companies were presented at the opening of the service, after which God Save the King was sung and the choir sang two anthems.

Rev. D. T. McClintock, pastor of the church, gave an inspiring sermon to the Brownies and Guides on their law which stressed obedience and self control. Interesting stories illustrated for his young listeners the importance of these qualities in their lives.

The Guides then joined the junior choir at the front of the church and sang with them.

Norma Corell, of Second Belleville Company, read beautifully, giving her hearers a splendid picture of the organization and aims of the movement.

Organized in 1909

The Girl Guides Movement, the speaker said, was organized in England in 1909 by Sir Robert Baden Powell and his sister, Miss Agnes Baden Powell. The first Canadian company was formed in 1910. The movement has now a membership in Canada of 67,448. It has three branches: Brownies from 7 to 11, Guides, 11 to 16, and Rangers over 16. In the Guide program emphasis at present is being laid on physical fitness, ambulance work, secretarial work, chauffeur work, knitting, making bandages, and above all, having peace in the heart.

Each week the Cadet Rangers are donating their knitting, etc., to the Red Cross. The Belleville Guides are engrossed this week in their part of the Empire campaign to raise $100,000 for two air ambulances and a motor life-saving boat.

Aim to Make Good Citizens

The aim of the Guides is to make good citizens, good homemakers, to want to help and to be capable of helping and above all to realize that God is the centre of life.

The Guides were then asked to stand and to repeat their promises.

The speaker then told how the name "Brownies" was adopted from fairy lore, these being the only fairies who came to the mortals with good deeds and devoted their lives in doing good turns, never taking a reward, mischievous, but always working for love.

The Brownies were then asked to stand and repeat their promises. Hymns were sung concluding the service, after which the Guides were dismissed in the Collegiate Grounds by the district commissioner, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs.

St. Michael's Guides

The Fifth Belleville Company of Girl Guides paraded to St. Michael's Church to attend eight-thirty Mass yesterday morning. Forty members of the company of which Miss Rose Mary Gibson is acting captain, were present in charge of their patrol leaders; Doris Trudeau, Jean Allore, Mary McDougall and Rita Frawley. The color party included Marie Carey, Barbara Flurey, Catherine Moher, Betty Reycraft and Gwendolyn Doyle.

Rev. F. Gallery, C. SS.R., addressed the Girl Guides on the importance of their work and congratulated their leader on the splendid company. The Guides received Holy Communion in a body.

TENSION IN ITALY UNABATED

ROME, May 27 (AP)—War tension continued unabated in Italy today in the face of Great Britain's overtures to relax her contraband control. Italians contended such concessions would fall far short of their "aspirations" and were a last-minute effort to deprive Italy of a powerful motive for entering the war.

War Savings Certificates And War Savings Stamps Put on Sale Across Canada

Ottawa, May 27.—(CP)—Across Canada, in chain stores, brokerage and investment offices, banks, post offices and insurance offices war savings certificates and war savings stamps went on sale today as the nation rallied her people of small means behind the war effort.

Finance Minister Ralston and Justice Minister Lapointe launched the new financial venture last night in National broadcasts in which they appealed for support "to save the most precious life in the world—the life of liberty".

The stamps went on sale at 25 cents each and the certificates in denominations of $5, $10, $25, $50 and $100. They may be purchased at four-fifths of their face value and fall due in 7 1-2 years. Purchasers of the stamps, when they have 16, may turn them in for a $5 certificate.

So that the greatest number of people possible may hold certificates the government has ruled that that no one can buy more than $500 worth, face value, in any one year.

Thanks For Loan Support

The Finance Minister, who hinted at such a move to rally Canada's small change behind the war effort when he thanked the public for their response to the $200,000,000 war loan, last January, said the recent German successes made the new financial appeal imperative.

The Nazi advance placed new responsibilities on everyone, he said and it means Canada, must rearrange and speed her plans, "sparing nothing—in one great effort to bring to the aid of the Allied cause all the military, all the naval, all the air force strength and all the industrial and financial assistance which our utmost effort can marshal at this critical time".

"While the lines of defence have been broken the determination to persist and to conquer remains unshaken," he said.

Canada on her Own

In the last war Canada was able to borrow abroad but in the present crisis "we are on our own and in addition must provide financial assistance for our Allies".

"It takes money, and a lot of it, to carry this out", said Col. Ralston. "Whether you count your savings in dollars or in quarters, dimes or nickles, you can help and you will have something put away for the rainy days that may follow."

Justice Minister Lapointe referred too to possible rainy days ahead and said the war savings certificates and stamps give everyone the opportunity to serve and save at the same time.

"Every man and woman and child of the country will have with the new plan, the opportunity to supply the Allies with 'silver bullets'," he said.

He added it was reasonable to foresee inevitable financial difficulties for the period after the war and suggested savings made today would be reimbursed in 7 1-2 years at a time when many might be in need of them.

"I consider it one of the imperative duties of the present to make a pressing appeal to the patriotism, to the generosity and to the spirit of sacrifice of all our people to ensure the success of this movement destined to supply to the nation part of resources required to support its war effort".

DEFENCE FORCES

the present emergency justified breakdown or cancellation of "any of the great social gains" under the new deal, Mr. Roosevelt said that "today's threat to our national security is not a matter of military weapons alone."

"We must deal vigorously," he said, with "spies, saboteurs and traitors." The new technique of weakening a nation at its roots, he continued, is discord aimed at creating "confusion of counsel, public indecision, political paralysis and, eventually a state of panic."

New Forces Unleashed

"Campaigns of group hatred or class struggle have never made much headway among us, and we are not making headway now," he said. "But new forces are being unleashed, deliberately planned propagandas to divide and weaken us in the face of danger as other nations have been weakened before.

"These dividing forces are undiluted poison. They must not be allowed to spread in the new world as they have in the old."

The President said that "the past two weeks have meant the shattering of many illusions" for persons who have "closed their eyes" to events abroad or "who would not admit the possibility of the approaching storm."

"They have lost the illusion," he declared, "that we are remote and isolated and, therefore, secure against the dangers from which no other land is free."

The President's address was largely a review of the expanded defence program and its effect on industry, labor and consumers. He spoke at a desk in the "diplomatic cloak room" on the basement floor of the White House, surrounded by a few invited friends.

"We are calling on men now engaged in private industry to help us in carrying out this program," he said, "and you will hear more of this in the next few days.

"Private industry will have the responsibility of providing the best, speediest and most efficient mass production of which it is capable."

Rebekah Lodge Welcomes Head Of the Assembly

A meeting of importance and special interest to the members of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 was held on Thursday evening, it being the occasion of the official visit of Sis. Christiana Munro, Owen Sound President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario and also the 27th birthday of the lodge. A special meeting was called by Sis. Florence Pollitt N.G., to receive and welcome Sis. Munro. Sis. Munro was accompanied by Sis. Meda Lewis of Toronto, Past President of the Rebekah Assembly and Sis. Mabel Stockloser of Madoc, Deputy President of District Number 30. Sis. Munro was presented and introduced by Sis. Ethel Sandercock P.N.G., Sis. Lewis by Sis. Jane Rowsome P.N.G and Sis. Stockloser by Sis. Irene Aman J.P.N.G.

Inspiring addresses were given by the three guests of honour — Sis. Munro spoke on the meaning and principles of Odd Fellowship and stressed co-operation; Sis. Lewis' address took the form of a plea for continued work for the Red Cross and Sis. Stockloser paid tribute to the President and her work. She also thanked the lodges of the district for their support during her year. Short speeches were also made by Sis. Oulette P.D.D.P. of Windsor, Sis. Anderson P.N.G. of Owen Sound, Sis. Countryman P.D.D.P. of Tweed, Sis. Baillie P.D.D.P. of Stirling, Sis. Fraser P.D.D.P. of Frankford, and Sis. Morrison P.D.D.P. of Madoc, the last four named lodges belonging to Belleville District No. 30. Bro. Frost P.N.G. the first N.G. of Quintena Lodge also spoke a few words. A number of visitors from the other lodges of the district were welcomed by the N.G. The Guard of Honour was composed of Sis. Patrick P.N.G., Sis. Rose P.D.D.P., Sis. Belnap, Sis. B. Turvey, Sis. Collins and Sis. Kingston. Sis. P. Twiddy was the musician.

Gifts Presented

Gifts were presentd to Sis. Munro President, Sis. Lewis P.P. and Sis. Stockloser D.D.P., Sis. McKeown P.N.G., Sis. Newman P.N.G. and Sis. Carter P.N.G. read the addresses and the gifts were presented by Sis. Rose P.D.D.P., Sis. Kitchen P.D.D.P. and Sis. Patrick P.N.G. respectively. Suitable words of thanks were tendered the lodge by the recipients.

Lodge was then closed following which a splendid program was greatly enjoyed by the members, Oddfellows and visitors after which all repaired to the banquet hall to partake of a very enjoyable supper. At the close of the banquet Bro. Pinkston who was Master of Ceremonies for the evening asked the charter members who were present to stand. There were six—Mr. and Mrs. C. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. J. Carter and Mrs. M. Miller, these members were given a hearty handclap and three rousing cheers. Bro. Pinkston then lit the candles on the birthday cake and requested Sis. Munro, President and Sis. Pollitt N.G. to blow them out, after which Sis. Munro and Sis. Pollitt together placed the knife into the cake.

A toast was then drunk to our King, and the National Anthem was sung followed by Auld Lang Syne.

The remainder of the evning was spent in dancing and social intercourse. The music was played by Mrs. Smith and Mr. Tommy Mason. All present voted the evening a most enjoyable one.

Those taking part in the program were: Chairman: Mr. F. Pinkston; Readings: Mrs. M. Plumpton, Mrs. A. Boneham, Miss B. Arbuckle and Mr. G. Cornish; Solos: Miss E. Smith, Master George Shepherd; Duet: Miss Smith and Master Shepherd; Accordion solo, Mr. Sills, Piano solo, Mrs. Smith.

The success of the evening was largely due to the efforts of the committees: Sisters Beal, A. Kerr, Pinkston, R. Kerr, Baker, Sandercock, Rowsome, Cooper, Shaw, E. Turvey, Aman and Boneham.

Men's Mission Closes At St. Michael's

The men's mission which had been in progress in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel for the last week came to its close last evening. The Mission Masses at 5.30 and 8 o'clock were well attended and a deep interest was manifested in the sanctifying work of the renewal of the Mission.

Last evening at seven-thirty the men assembled and after the recitation of the Rosary listened to a very inspiring sermon by Rev. Dennis Coll, C. SS.R., on the Sacrament of Baptism. At the end of the sermon an impressive spectacle ensued when the men, with lighted candles in their hands, renewed their Baptismal vows. This was followed by a reception of forty new members into the Holy Name Society, the candidates pledging their allegiance to God and country.

This ceremony was conducted by Rev. F. Gallery, C. SS.R. Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given by Monsignor Nicholson assisted by Rev. D. Coll and Rev. F. Gallery concluded the events of the day.

BRIGADE'S ONLY RUN IS CHIMNEY FIRE

The Belleville Fire Department made only one run over the week end, that to the residence of Mr. Harry Woodcock, South Front St., where a chimney fire was in progress. No damage was reported however.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, May 28

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

FAIRLY FORTUNATE and active conditions are predicted on the basis of planetary and lunar operations. The mind will be seriously focused on the development and promotion of new ideas, with practical and constructive projects for enlisting the financial support of employers, superiors or those whose friendly cooperation is urgent. These will be found approachable, but do not negative business interest by stressing social angles, which are under adverse configurations. Anxiety and depression should be vanquished.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a rather fortunate year, in which their own skill, initiative and enterprise will find hearty support for putting over new and fairly important projects. The mental forces and creative ability may be deeply concentrated on developing very constructive ideas, and the support of those in influence for promotion will be available. But it would be wise to refrain from overdoing the social contact slant, as such is adversely aspected. Refrain from depression, worry and cross-purposes.

A child born on this day may be talented and ambitious, having studious mind and much constructive ability, which should be encouraged by influential persons who will help in its advancement and good fortune.

AN EMPIRE AT PRAYER

The world beheld the wholesome scene on Sunday of the Empire at prayer in this critical hour of civilization. Here is an Empire which trusts in God for aid and with His help and its own efforts fights for victory. Today the Empire, her staunch support, France and the other Allies, are bearing the burdens of the world against the gravest threat which civilization has faced in the task of saving it from the ruthless, savage hand of the enemy, who has desecrated everything noble and broken every promise and international law.

Sunday's service was a formal dedication of the Motherland and Empire to the knightly task of overthrowing the gigantic evil which has developed through Nazi Germany. Like knights of old young men and older men go into battle on a scale unprecedented in the history of the world. The people who serve the home front in every phase of life are likewise dedicated to the task of helping to save society from the most barbarous threat.

The knights of old gained strength through their dedication to the high task of faith and the people of the British Empire feel strength in their faith. Faith in the ultimate triumph of justice and reliance upon God give such a satisfaction as all the violence of which a barbarous foe is capable cannot bring the Nazis.

In the words of the Archbishop of Canterbury at Westminster Abbey in the presence of His Majesty, "The centuries rebuke the fears and calm the anxieties of the hour. Here in the stillness of this church, moved by the memories which surround us, we commit ourselves and our cause to God."

The Archbishop defined the conflict — "We have been called upon to take our place in a mighty conflict against the powers of evil and we ask God's strength that we may be found worthy of that great calling."

In Protestant and Roman Catholic cathedrals and churches, in Jewish synagogues, in small places of worship, the nation's and empire's prayers were made that the people be worthy of the great task that rests with them of conquering the sinister forces which are trying to dominate the world.

The times through which the world is passing are intense. The Empire's hope found its expression in prayer through the farflung Empire and the Dominions.

The Empire's prayers for the great nations who are the Allies, and for the world at large ascended in capital cities, in bustling cities and towns and in villages and hamlets and in the countryside places of worship. Blessing was asked upon all who fight for the right, for the wounded and for the people of the nation and Empire and for the Allies of Great Britain.

DEEDS OF VALOR ON WESTERN FRONT

Deeds of the greatest bravery against odds are being performed in northern France and in Belgium and the Netherlands. Some day the veil will be lifted from this great scene and the valor of the Allied armies will be seen in its true glory. To recount the scenes is impossible today because of the flux of events and it is only probably in the air forces where battles can be counted in some detail. The infantry, the men who serve on the Channel in the various services and the air force are leaving an indelible impression on the future course of events.

It seems more easy to assess the results of fighting in the air than fighting on land in the ebb and flow of the movements of the conflicting armies, in the attacks and the counter blows. Day by day the story is told of the overwhelming superiority of the British airmen against the enemy airmen. German losses are reported at least four to one of the Royal Air Force. That is a proof of British spirit and the same spirit could be seen if the events of the fighting on land were known as fully as those which have taken place in the air.

These British airmen are performing deeds of courage equalling the greatest deeds of any time in history. They have the high ideal of democracy as an inspiration while the Hitler-driven Huns are fired by malice, envy, violence, hope of loot, as the chief sources of the degraded inspiration of the Nazis.

Day after day the story is told of R.A.F. triumphs against the foe, victories so great that they must ultimately have a great effect in bringing about equality in numbers and in the ultimate supremacy in numbers by the R.A.F. over the enemy air arm. To that degree they are making a great contribution to the ultimate triumph which is the Allied aim.

In these days when there is so much reporting of news from all quarters of the world the Air Ministry is able to present actual figures to prove British airmen's fighting supremacy over the enemy. In a great battle on the Channel on Sunday British airmen won, downing 20 enemy craft, disabling a like number, while British losses numbered five only. Havoc was created behind the lines of the Germans on the Western Front. This prevents the foe reaching his maximum of effort, harassing the enemy being one of the essentials of warfare from time immemorial.

When the full story is told, every arm of the service of the Allies will be revealed in the proper light and the great services, rendered at great sacrifice, to the cause of the Allies and world democracy, will be fully told.

SMALLER SAVINGS TO PLAY BIG PART

Smaller savings of the Canadian people are to be made to serve the cause of Canada in helping to win the war for democracy. Under the certificate plan, everyone will be offered the opportunity to serve their country through the medium of savings, particularly those of lesser means. Provision is also made for the savings of those who can save only small amounts at a time, by the use of stamps, which will in time buy a certificate.

With all Canadians bearing a share of the war loan or certificates, Canadians will make sure of the financial sinews of war which will be one of the great factors in bringing victory.

In Col. Ralston's words, "Canada must spare nothing to bring quickly to the aid of the Allied forces all the military and air and financial and economic strength this country can provide."

The small coins and dollars of Canadians represent the wealth and resources of Canada. The Finance Minister has declared that money "is needed to save the most precious life in the world, the life of liberty. That money must be provided both by taxation and by borrowing the people's savings."

Routine Treatment of Migraine—One Sided Headache

I have spoken before of the attempt of a large university medical clinic to learn the cause of migraine—one sided headache. Their advertisement for sufferers to attend the clinic brought over 700 applicants. This shows how common this ailment is and how distressing its symptoms when patients will leave home and work for the time necessary to remain under observation by research workers.

While the cause of many cases was not or has not been discovered it was found that the monthly period is definitely related to migraine in some cases. These cases were relieved by the use of gland extracts and hormones. Extract of ovary relieved headaches due to the menopause.

I have spoken before of the treatment of a large number of migraine patients by ergotamine tartrate as reported by Dr. Mary E. O'Sullivan, New York. Dr. O'Sullivan now reports the results obtained by routine treatment of 300 patients at Bellevue Hospital, New York, during the past five years.

"We have used over a dozen substances and methods in a search for a remedy for migraine. Routine allergic studies were done on our patients. Positive skin reactions (showing that the patients were allergic or sensitive to various substances) were obtained in 70 per cent, and of these 9 of every 10 gave a history of hives at some time in their lives. In these "allergic" cases, calcium gluconate and viosterol seemed to lessen the number and severity of the attacks—particularly in cases where nausea and vomiting were present."

When the metabolism test—rate at which body processes work—showed that the patient was considerably below normal, thyroid extract gave relief.

In speaking again of ergotamine tartrate in the treatment of migraine, Dr. O'Sullivan states that ergotamine tartrae in adequate doses will stop the attacks in over 90 per cent of these patients. Once an attack is cut short by this drug, control of future attacks is assured if it is given promptly.

"While the drug is most effective by hypodermic injection, if 2 to 4 tablets are dissolved under the tongue early in less severe attacks, they are of benefit in 69 percent of the cases.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 27th., 1920.

HOW BELLEVILLE GOT ITS NAME. The coming Centennial Celebration of Belleville, brings up a very interesting story as to how Belleville got its name. One day General Gore, who was then Governor of Upper Canada, was driving from Kingston to Toronto. On his way he drove into the little village, then called Myers Creek, by some, and Thurlow Village by others, and a stop was made for the party to take dinner. Being delighted with the picturesque little place and the people whom he met, he decided to remain overnight. The only hotel in the village was kept by a man named John Simpson, and stood at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets. Some of that historic old Inn is still standing and forms part of Mr. William Clarke's blacksmith shop. The Inn had a good reputation in those days for good liquors, good food, comfortable beds and cleanliness. The Governor and his wife, Lady Bella Gore, were taken out fishing in the afternoon and in the meantime arrangements were made for Belleville's first Great Ball that evening. The Governor and Lady Bella made such a favorable impression on the inhabitants of the little village, that it was decided to name the place Belleville after Lady Bella Gore. This is interesting in connection with the Centennial and Old Boys' Reunion to be held this summer in Belleville.

Looking West From Gibraltar

S. S. Washington, May 21.

"Governor Landon demurs against coalition government, on the ground that he does not wish to impair the vitality of the two-party system. Democrats generally withhold public comment but privately see the proposal as stupid and silly."—Item from the ship's news.

It would seem to this column that the vitality out of the two-party system has been almost extinct for the last eight years and that there is little probability that it will be revived in the next four.

While sitting at Gibraltar — the rock on which an empire is so precariously resting, and with half the western civilization at stake — the forthcoming party conventions seem to belong to another epoch and to hve little relation to reality. In fact the remembrance of the last ones, with their atmosphere of a Shriners' jamboree, fills one with a faint nausea.

However this war turns out in Europe, one prophecy is fairly safe to venture: The party system of political government, as it has been practised for a generation in most democracies, will not survive. Already in Paris the word "politician" has become an expression of contempt, for the people of France are furiously aware of how much of the nation's essential and priceless time has been lost in irrelevant party bickering; how often necessary plans hve been wrecked or delayed for purely partisan reasons; now often the party leaders have frivolously pandered for votes, instead of telling the people the truth; how criminally they have sought the interest of special pressure groups, regardless of the crisis of the nation.

A democracy which degenerates into a party squabble in which the interests of the politicians transcend those of the nation as a whole is a menaced or lost democracy in this hour.

Nor is such party politics the inevitable accompaniment of democratic government. I have seen a democracy in Europe which can be extinguished only from without and by force, and that is the Swiss. It is the freest country in the world today, in which the tolerance of divergent opinion goes so far as to permit four separate languages and a degree of cantonal autonomy far surpassing our state rights; numerous parties and active political life; an emphasis on differentiation expressed in a flag for every city and village, and a hatred of dictatorship which goes so far that Switzerland has no president even for four years, but government by a council of seven, which changes its chairman every twelve months. Yet, in emergency, the instinct of this, the oldest existing democracy, is to fly together and accept a voluntary discipline in behalf of Switzerland which is imposing—as tough and as closely knit as a totalitarian state.

And Switzerland, almost alone among democracies can say with confidence, "A hundred years from now Switzerland will be a democracy, or she will not be."

In this hour it would be well to bring out again Washington's often quoted but seldom read farewell address and read what he had to say on the evils of factions—and by factions Washington meant just those sorts of bodies which our political parties have become, groups whose object is less to furnish constructive criticism, honest opposition and proposals for the modification of policy and more to take or to turn over offices for the benefit of existing or would-be job holders and of organized or sectional groups.

Such an operation of the party system invariably moves away from government by, for and of the people, to government of, for and by the pressure groups. The least represented of all in our party system, the real forgotten man, is the citizen who able to stand on his own feet, earn his living, support his family and pay his debts, asks least of the state for himself but carries its greatest burden. He pays his taxes without grumbling and volunteers first for its wars; he is the patriot, the man with the sense of the whole community.

There are hundreds of thousands of such men and women in America who, in the forthcoming elections, will see a new ticket for which they can vote without serious reservations.

Realizing the exceptional qualities of the President's leadership, which rise to their greatest under pressure of emergency when action must be swift and courageous, and conscious, too, of his prestige in the world, they would like to avoid a change. They would like to retain the experience, imagination and intuition which the President has regarding world affairs in which he stands head and shoulders above any candidate yet proposed.

What they think of the President in this connection does not extend to all his advisers, and not at all to the fundamental economic philosophy of the New Deal—to that popular frontism that believes that the less you produce the more you will have, the more you spend the richer you will be; the philosophy that mortgages uncreated wealth the while it slows down creative profit; that dissipates and discourages saving; that makes the population increasingly lax and increasingly dependent in the very moment when it must face the most formidable competition from the tough and the toiling.

France is paying today with the lives of her men for the same philosophy which struggled for a forty-hour week while her neighbors were being forced to work sixty hours. It is better—and the people of France now know it—to work long enough to produce a tank than to be rolled into the ground by one, or to capitulate and work the sixty hours for a foreign overlord.

But France is also paying for the cupidity of her capitalists, who sterilized their wealth rather than put it at the service of the nation; who withdrew in haughty disgust rather than face the issue; who set the very standards which they criticized in their workers, unwilling to match sacrifice for sacrifice.

Now, today, they all fight side by side, with unexampled heroism, with the sacrificial devotion of a really great people, knowing at last that there are values common to all of them, values for which they offer not a few working hours or a percentage of profit, but their life's blood.

But, whatever the outcome may be God help the politicians, whether they have been politicians of labor or politicians of capital! For they have been below the level of the nation itself. No one will survive who has thought more of himself, or of his group, or of his interests than his country.

Foresight is not a quality of democracies. It seems to have become a law of their natures that they must teeter on the very brink of a precipice before they realize their danger. Then they are firm. But while they teeter on the precipice one big shove may send them over.

NAZI, AUSTRIAN

7.30 a.m. (2.30 EDT). Police cars, manned by more than 1,000 detectives, sped to the women's homes, waited while they hurriedly packed their luggage, and then took them to headquarters.

The action followed a decision of Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary and Minister for Home Security, to intern the alien women without re-examination by alien tribunals. Most of them were taken from the thickly populated areas of South London.

Under Minor Restrictions

Enemy alien women previously had been classed in category B, which placed them under minor restrictions. These forbade possession of automobiles or cameras, as well as travelling more than five mines from home. Special police permission was required for changes of address.

The decision followed widespread press criticism that enemy alien women should be regarded as potentially as dangerous as men.

On May 16, 3,000 German and Austrian men between the ages of 16 and 60 who previously had been in category B, were interned. Four days earlier male enemy aliens of the same age had been detained in the eastern half of the country and along the south coast.

Sir John Anderson told the House of Commons May 23 he had not ordered the wholesale detention of women enemy aliens but individuals had been imprisoned when there was cause for suspicion.

It was estimated today that more than 6,000 aliens have now been detained. Many of those rounded up are domestic servants. There are still thousands of aliens in the country in category C, that is exempt from any restrictions.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Capture of the channel port of Boulogne by the Germans despite vigorous resistance indicates the enemy is able to move forces and supplies forward through its corridor across France and Belgium in the face of Allied pressure on the sides of the corridor.

The corridor has now been narrowed to a width of 20 miles, according to weekend reports and further pressure is being exerted by the Allies with a view to cutting it off completely, isolating the German advance forces in the coastal region and restoring communications between the British, Belgian and the French troops in the north and the main French armies in the south.

That pressure against the corridor, combined with the work of the Royal Air Force in bombing German assembly points and communications constitutes a real threat to the enemy. So long as the present situation continues and Allied pressure is not relaxed enemy losses in mechanized equipment and supplies, not to speak of men, are bound to be heavy.

The Allies may be inferior in numbers of aircraft and in the quality and quantity of land vehicles but they are not inferior in gun power and the long German corridor is exposed to Allied gunfire on both sides.

Yosemite Offers a 'World of Beauty'

(By Temple Manning)

If California had nothing else to offer on its travel menu than Yosemite, it would still be well worthwhile to cross the continent for a visit. For this great pleasure ground, of which Yosemite Valley is but a very small part, encompasses a world of beauty. Its location on the west slope of the Sierra Nevada, about 200 miles east of San Francisco, is ideal. The rivers which water it originate high in the eternal snows. A thousand icy streams converge to form them. They flow west through a marvelous sea of peaks, resting by the way in hundreds of snow-bordered lakes, rushing through luxuriant valleys, tumbling over rocky heights, swinging in and out of the shadows of mighty mountains. And they all spell Yosemite, America's all-year-round playground.

Yosemite Valley is an old friend to many who have never visited the park, but who have seen pictures of Three Brothers, El Capitan, Bridalveil Falls, Cathedral Spires, Mirror Lake and Glacier Point, to name just a few of its highpoints. The sheer immensity of the precipices on either side of the Valley's floor, the waterfalls, the majesty of the granite walls, the unreal, almost fairylike quality of the place is beyond description. The Upper Yosemite Falls drops 1,430 feet in one sheer fall, a height equal to nine Niagara Falls piled on top of one another.

A Scenic Grandeur Unsurpassed

Glacier Point, above the Valley rim, offers one of the world's supreme panoramas, including the domes, the pinnacles, the waterfalls and Half Dome, a mythical Indian turned to stone. A few steps away and one looks down into the Valley 3,254 feet below. From the little stone lookout, perched on the very rim of the gorge, one may study the detail of the High Sierra and the flanking ranges for miles distant as though the impressive peaks were almost at hand.

In the extreme south of the Park is Mariposa Grove, dedicated to the giant sequoia, the oldest living things on earth. There is no accurate way of knowing the age of the Grizzly Giant, the government ranger-naturalist told us, but its size and gnarled appearance indicate that it is at least 3,800 years old.

What's the Answer

BY THE ACE CAMERAMAN

(Distributed by the King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

1.—How will Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota and Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts figure in the Republican National Convention in June?

2.—Questions on the prairie dog: (1) Why is he called dog? (2) Do the animals live exclusively or in colonies? (3) Why is it said of the prairie dog that his "voice is tied to his tail"?

3.—The largest gift ever received by the United States Government came from the late Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury. Recall that gift.

4.—A crew, say on a British warship, mans pom-poms. What are these?

5.—Give the titles of the two recent books by John Gunther, dealing with world events.

6.—What interior State in the United States, because of its more than 11,000 lakes, may be called the Land o' Lakes?

ANSWERS

1.—Governor Stassen will be temporary chairman; Representative Martin will be permanent chairman. Digression A: What is a charwoman, and why that name?

Madoc

Madoc — The May meeting of Trinity Women's Club was spent pleasantly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Kincaid.

A devout period of worship, having as its theme "Mother" was ably conducted by Mrs. McClean in which fitting Scripture passages were read by Mrs. George White, a vocal duet "My Mother's Prayer" by Mrs. T. Jones and Mrs. J. Vowles, prayer by Mrs. Vowles and in conclusion, a poem "A Little Parable for Mother" by Mrs. McClean.

To the strains of appropriate music by Miss Minnie Ferguson, and vocal numbers by Mrs. Jones much enjoyment and reminiscing was created by the parade of ladies attired in wedding and evening gowns, peculiar to different periods, worn by Miss Sadie Smith and Mesdames E. Armstrong, C. Tayler, H. Nickle, C. Caverly, R. Caverly, A. Basset, A. Burris, V. Jack, R. Cummings and F. Tumelty. A humorous musical skit by Miss Ferguson and Mrs. Vowles dressed in costume, concluded the program. in the same costumes, a fine lunch, popular to this and other eras was served, with the hostesses being Mesdames F. Tumelty, McClean, E. Armstrong and B. Tanner. A sincere vote of appreciation was expressed by the president, Miss Cummings to Mr. and Mrs. Kincaid for their kind hospitality.

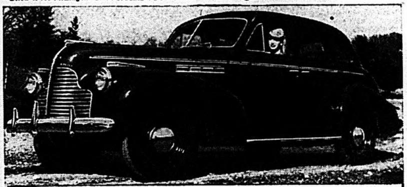
7 out of 10 ... buy again and again!

Below is the McLaughlin-Buick SPECIAL 4-Door Sedan.



ASK a hundred typical McLaughlin-Buick owners what car they expect to buy next, and somewhere between seventy and eighty of them will answer firm and sure, "A Buick!"

Follow up those owners when they have bought again—and you'll find virtually all of them made good on their expressed intentions.

Now, it's plain that back of this high owner loyalty there's something more than just new-model attractiveness.

It's something that doesn't stop with the efficient brilliance of Buick's traditionally fine valve-in-head straight-eight engine, or the staunch steadiness of Buick's stout and roadworthy chassis.

It's something that has to do with the very character of this car—something born of the precision with which a Buick's built, precision insured by the accuracy of its 12,000 various parts.

It's something springing from Buick's inspection routine, whereby each man is a jealous guardian of his own good work—a tough and exacting critic of the craftsman just before him.

It's something that comes, too, from the care Buick takes to deliver a car fine and trim and ready to travel when you get it.

Many special operations might be eliminated, and the average driver might not know the difference. But we rather suspect the experienced Buick owner would.

That's one reason we take extra pains. The other reason is that we wouldn't be satisfied ourselves not to do the best job we could.

That's probably the best single explanation why seven out of ten Buick owners buy Buick again and again.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

The Mail Bag

My mail bag has made me realize more than ever how lucky we are here in North America to be living here with the good old Atlantic Ocean between us and Europe.

Nothing can be more affecting than a letter from an unoffending, defenseless and peace-loving person whose home is threatened by violence every hour of the day.

I have a letter from an old toy maker in the Tyrol. For generations his family has lived there. Now he finds himself torn up by the roots from everything he loved. Frantically, he is writing to persons abroad whose names he knows from reading about them in the papers. So he wrote to me here in Callander, to tell me his dream of setting up a little toy factory here beside the Dionne Quintuplets. He has grandchildren of his own, and he wants them to enjoy the freedom the Quins and other North American children do. If only he can bring his dream to pass, he has promised to keep the Quins supplied with dolls.

There is another letter from a young doctor in Vienna He was a distinguished member of the staff of one of the better Vienna hospitals. Now he can no longer practise his profession. If only he could get to the United States or Canada—"Perhaps there would be a place for me in your hospital at Callander", he writes.

These are only two of a succession of letters from unfortunate people in Europe whose lives are being ruthlessly wrecked for what purpose I don't know. They don't know where to turn, but they know there is freedom on this continent and so they write to the names they know here.

Fortunately all my mail isn't so sad. I get enough amusing letters to keep me from getting despondent about the state of the world. For example, there is one from Quebec City, here in Canada, that tells a story of three youngsters to whom my sympathy goes out.

A woman gave birth to a baby boy on Christmas morning, between one and two o'clock in the morning. Now that in itself isn't unusual because babies have a way of being born on Christmas just as on any other day. The unusual thing was that one year later—between one and two Christmas morning, the same mother gave birth to a baby boy. Quite a co-incidence, you say? Well, note this: Between one and two a.m. the next Christmas morning, the same woman gave birth to another boy!

The letter filled me with sympathy for the three children who have the same birthday with only one celebration for the three of them. And on Christmas day at that. The Quintuplets have to share a birthday, but they at least get a separate Christmas celebration.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER
It may be the cause of your troubles. Buck it up the right way, with Fruit-a-tives. Feel grand.
Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, stores energy, allows the proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headachy, backachy, dizzy, dragged out all the time.
Rid yourself of these miseries, as thousands have—with Fruit-a-tives, for 35 years Canada's largest selling liver remedy. Fruit-a-tives stimulate your liver, bring prompt relief—make you feel like a new person. Get Fruit-a-tives at your druggist's today, 25c, 50c.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Informal Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. If we have an informal wedding reception in the evening (we are going to be married that morning), with only closest friends present, will it be necessary to have a receiving-line? If so, who should be in it and how should it be arranged?

2. When the bride and groom leave the reception during the evening to change to travel clothes, should anyone of the immediate families accompany them?

Althea

1. Usually, even when the reception is informal, there is a receiving-line. Naturally, the bride's mother and father—the hosts—wish to greet the guests, and they stand first in the receiving-line. However, the bride's father may, if he prefers, circulate among the guests, rather than take a place in the receiving-line. Next to the bride's mother, stands the groom's father; then the groom's mother; then the groom, with the bride at his right; then the maid or matron of honor, and then the bridesmaids. The best man and ushers do not stand in the receiving-line.

2. When the bride goes to her room to change to her travelling clothes, her mother, her sisters, and her bridal attendants follow and stay with her while she changes. She says her good-bys to them then, for there will be no time later. When she is ready, she sends a sister or a bridesmaid for her father, and says good-by to him.

In the meantime the groom has gone, with his best man, to the room reserved for him, to change to his travelling clothes.

And then—and this is most important, and often forgotten by brides—the bride should send for the groom's mother and father, so that she and their son may say good-by to them.

Too Forward

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently my mother invited a woman and her 22-year-old son to dinner.

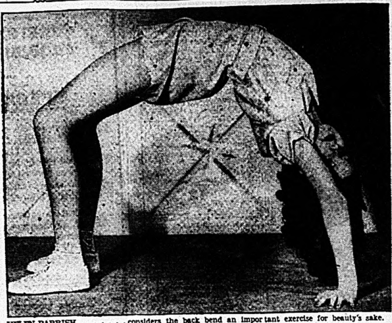
The son and I talked a great deal about sports. He said he liked dancing and I told him that I did, but had no one to teach me. To that he readily replied that he would be glad to teach me. I accepted this offer, and no more was said. A few days later, however, I wrote telling him that I hoped he had enjoyed himself at my home and in the letter expressed my desire to have him teach me to dance when he came to town.

My mother objected to this letter.

Do you think this was wrong as we do not know them very well? I am eighteen years old.

A Reader

I definitely agree with your mother. Since the young man was so kind about suggesting that he would be willing to teach you to dance, you should have let the matter rest there, until he had time and inclination to pursue his suggestion. He undoubtedly very soon would have written you or telephoned you, to tell you what a good time he had dining at your house, asking if he might come to see you, and mentioning his promise. I doubt very much if he will appreciate your "forcing" the issue, which your letter certainly did.



HELEN PARRISH . . . . . . considers the back bend an important exercise for beauty's sake.

Muscle Work For Beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

THOSE OF you who make terrible faces when anyone mentions exercise should remember that the foundation of good looks is composed of health, vitality, good circulation, sound digestion and a nervous system that doesn't have fits. These component parts of beauty cannot be attained without plenty of fresh air and a little strenuous muscle work.

To carry fashionable dry goods in a distinguished manner the feminine shape must be slender of limb, not scrawny, but neatly padded, trim of waist, chest fully developed. The best way to get chesty and to have a normal bust is to inflate the lungs, give them air washings, and hold yourself beautifully at all times. Poor posture means a flat chest. Yessum, and horrid back lines. And a ploppy place below the belt.

Without muscular activity the muscles of the abdomen go slack, stomach and intestinal tract drop cause digestive disturbances. The muscles of the mid-section should be strong and resilient, form a natural corset. Then the figure is trim and graceful. Pretty little loafers whose chief exercise is lifting an eyebrow now and then will be sorry later in life when youthful lines have disappeared.

Before using soap and water at bedtime, remove make-up with a cosmetic oil or a cream of light consistency. That's the neater method and it is what the beauty doctor orders. The cream or oil will allay the drying effects of the soap that is used afterwards.

Whenever the skin is rough, feels sensitive, cream should be used again after the soapy cleansing. If lines are forming the emollient should be a heavy one to offer resistance to the fingers when it is applied, and it should be left on over night. No chance of its growing facial fuzzers; that's just a superstition; nuthin' to it.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Irish Luck"

A snappy mystery comedy is "Irish Luck," Frankie Darro starring picture which is now playing at the Capitol. In a role tailor-made to his talents, Darro is at last given plenty of opportunity for light comedy, and, needless to say, he makes the most of it.

"Irish Luck" is really a mystery story. Adapted from Charles Molyneux Brown's "Death Hops the Bells", it is the tale of an inquisitive bellhop at the Hotel Royale, whose hobby is "detecting." Because of this addiction to criminology, Buzzy gets in bad with the police, especially with Captain Steve Lanahan, when he insists on rounding up crooks on his own. But Lanahan is really Buzzy's pal, and helps him out of many a tough spot, especially when the kid gets involved in a couple of murders at the hotel.

It is Buzzy, however, and his colored porter pal, Jefferson, who solve the mysteries, and how they do it is exciting and amusing screen fare.

Frankie Darro was never better than as the wise-cracking Irish kid who buffaloes both the law and the lawless. "Buzzy O'Brien" is a screen character you'll want to see again.

Lillian Elliott, for the fourth time in pictures, plays Darro's mother, to whom the Irish can do no wrong, and she is excellent. Another story of the film is Mantan Moreland, who plays the colored porter, Jefferson. He had the audience in stitches every time he came on the screen. Dick Purcell did a good job as the pugnacious Lanahan, and Sheila Darcy got oh's and ah's as the girl in the case.

"San Francisco"

A special return limited engagement only of the greatest thrill drama of all time, "San Francisco", featuring three great stars, Clarke Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy. It's an electrifying thrill when beautiful Jeanette MacDonald sings "Would You?" to handsome Clark Gable.

Thrills to see! See the "Paradise," hottest spot of Frisco's most daring days! See the fountain of champagne in San Francisco's New Year's Eve revels! See "The Chicken Ball" . . with a pot of gold for the most popular entertainer! See San Francisco in flames . . a roaring cauldron of death and destruction!

AT THE McCARTHY

"TOO MANY HUSBANDS"

Even if you haven't any—two's too many! It's scandalous! Uproarious! Gay, grand and glorious! W. Somerset Maugham's "Too Many Husbands", a hit play of marital merriment brought to the screen by distinguished Wesley Ruggles.

Lovely Jean Arthur is the perplexed wife of Columbia's "Too Many Husbands", which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre, and Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas are the husbands whom she loves; She could be happy with either....if the other would go away! Enough is enough.....even of husbands....but who could get enough of the laughs dispensed by this gleeful threesome of mirth-sparkling stars?

Others in the brilliant comedy cast include Harry Davenport, Dorothy Peterson, Melvyn Cooper, Mary Treen and Tom Dugan. Claude Binyon adapted the Maugham stage success to the screen. Watch this paper for an important announcement regarding a special attraction to be presented on the program with the above laugh-packed feature "Too Many Husbands."

"The Big Guy"

Victor McLaglen, Jackie Cooper and Peggy Moran in Universal's exciting dramatic production "The Big Guy" is now the current feature presentation at the McCarthy Theatre. Latest Fox News Events of important war pictures, an all-star comedy and a peppy musical revue, are on the same program.

AT THE BELLE

"The Fighting 69th."

"The Fighting 69th." starring James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and George Brent, is now showing at the Belle Theatre. Supporting the star trio are Jeffrey Lynn, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh and a host of others, playing featured roles in the story written by Norman Reilly Raine, Fred Niblo, Jr. and Dean Franklin, and directed by William Keighley.

A rousing action drama, "The Fighting 69th." shows Cagney as a cocky young private, bucking army discipline in the form of domineering top sergeant Alan Hale. Pat O'Brien plays the role of Father Francis P. Duffy, well known and beloved chaplain of the 69th., and George Brent portrays "Wild Bill" Donovan, daredevil colonel of the regiment.

"The Fighting 69th." is unique in that, with the exception of but four characters, all in the picture represent real persons, many still living. The Cagney and Hale roles are fictional, but the O'Brien and Brent roles are taken straight from famed real-life characters.

"Chump Takes a Bump", a new multiple reel all-star comedy, the popular Belle Newsreel and "Miles Standish," a clever cartoon in technicolor will be exhibited on the same program.

"Saps at Sea"—Funny

Uproarious fun and side-splitting laughter is provided in Hal Roach's new comedy, "Saps at Sea," which stars Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy and will be presented next at the Belle Theatre. Brilliantly directed by Gordon Douglas from an original story and screenplay by Charles Rogers, Felix Adler, Gil Pratt and Harry Langdon, "Saps at Sea" is being released by United Artists.

In "Saps at Sea" sad-faced Stan and rotund Ollie are presented as a pair of horn testers in a musical instrument factory. It is their job to test D flat horns, but after a while the work gets on the nerves of Hardy. He proceeds to go berserk. Stan consults a medico and a sea voyage is prescribed plus a diet of goat's milk. The comics engage a boat that is destined to sink if it goes out to sea—so they decide to remain in port. Then the wild fun begins.

A gangster comes upon them and refuses to believe that they are living solely on goat's milk. The tough guy demands honest-to-goodness food and the comics realize they are faced with a problem which may cost them their lives if they don't come through. Madness and merriment cut loose as they try to solve this ridiculous business and then they get into real trouble with the arm of the law.

Gordon Douglas has directed "Saps at Sea" with swift pace, so that the film unreels with a laugh a minute, while Laurel and Hardy prove again that they are the screen's leading funsters. All the scenes in the film were cleverly contrived for side-splitting humor, and the acting of the stars and the supporting cast is uniformly excellent. "Saps at Sea" was designed for fun and laughter and fills the bill on every count.

"Adventure in Diamonds"

Scintillating comedy and high intrigue vie for the spotlight, against the romantic background of little known South Africa, in the latest hit from the Paramount workshop, "Adventures in Diamonds" which is the associate feature attraction, with George Brent and Isa Miranda co-starred.

RECENT RAINS FLOOD LOW-LYING LANDS IN COUNTRY

Streams Raised to Flood Levels Sweep Over Highways in Many Places

SFEDING ENDANGERED

Rising eighteen inches, according to city officials, within the last few days, due to overflow waters that have inundated northern areas, and flooded lowlands, pouring into it from tributary streams, the Moira River today assumed a miniature "flood" aspect today.

Torrential rains of the past few days have inundated grain and pasture fields throughout the district, while travellers returning today from week-end trips reported highways of the county to be under water in many places.

Number 7 highway, near Actinolite, it was stated today, is under water in parts, and driving conditions said to be hazardous. Highway number 38 extending southward from Actinolite to Tweed has been practically washed out in three adjoining places and travellers are forced to follow a detour. Water covers the Bancroft highway in several places also.

Farmers and other rural residents are viewing sprouting crops with speculative eyes. Flat lands and low lying fields are inundated in several parts of the district, while fields already prepared for planting have been converted into muddy areas. Autumn grains, formerly reported to have wintered well, are in danger of severe setbacks and possible heavy damage if the rains continue, a prominent Prince Edward County farmer remarked today.

In some places, he added, where early potatoes have been planted in loamy soil, there is a danger of rot setting in, if there is no change in the weather.

In the city, amateur gardeners, viewed their gardens with more or less alarm. On Church street, new onions and radishes wave their green heads bravely above the surface of a miniature pond, in one "vegetable ranch" as it is termed by its owner.

City relief garden work will experience a further delay, due to inclement weather condition, officials said. Ploughing is nearly finished, but actual preparation for planting must of necessity wait until warmer weather sets in.

'We Must See This War is Won For Canada, Empire'

Hon. Ian Mckenzie Tells Legion Convention Canada Must Give All, if All is required

Montreal, May 27—(CP)— Canadians must do all in their power "to see that this war is won for Canada and won for the British Empire." Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions and National Health, said today in an addess at the opening of the Canadian Legion's eighth Dominion Convention.

"Canada must give all—if all is required—in the struggle for civilization," the Pensions Minister said to the cheers of nearly 700 delegates, after declaring that "an Empire built upon the bulwarks of freedom is at stake."

Mr. Mackenzie added that "Canada and the Commonwealth will not go down but will surely triumph in the battle that lies ahead." He told his listeners that "if you want to criticize, be not afraid to criticize, for we need all the united strength and courage of this nation."

The Pensions Minister said that not only have the old soldiers of the First Great War personally volunteered their services to the last man, but they also have given leadership, inspiration and enthusiasm to the whole country.

[illegible] only natural, he said, that the veterans of the last war [illegible] ask the question as to whether "we as a nation are doing everything possible in this war."

Flag, That Once Fluttered Over British Army Headquarters in France, Graces Church Altar

Faded Union Jack, the Property of Rev. Beauchamp Payne, Displayed at St. Thomas Church Service Sunday

NEED SINCERE PRAYERS

A Union Jack that fluttered over an army headquarters in France in the last Great War, when His Majesty the late King George Vth inspected his troops during the dark days of that great conflict, draped its colors in a new environment on Sunday.

The fading bunting that flew proudly over General Sir Douglas Haig's headquarters at Airle-sur-Lys, near St. Omer, France, when His Majesty the late King, the first British Monarch to set foot in France on military service since the battle of Agincourt, five hundred years previous, was a visitor there, graced the pulpit of St. Thomas Church at a solemnly impressive National Prayer Day service Sunday morning.

The flag, now the property of the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of the church, who was present at Airle-sur-Lys on the occasion of the historic Royal visit in 1915, was brought back from France and is now a highly-treasured memento of its owner.

The two-part service, beautiful in its very simplicity was attended by one of the largest congregations in years. The first part, bespeaking humility, was followed by intercessional prayers.

In an inspiring address, the vicar urged his congregation not to offer prayers as "forms of words from souls unknown to God, but from living souls who love the right, offered to a Father who hears."

"It is no easy matter to give up those things we hold dear, perhaps only when we see the possibility of losing them do we realize what they actually mean to us," he said. The machinations of evil are afoot in other lands, the speaker pointed out. "This war is another crusade against these forces and we who belong to the Kingdom of God must awake to our duty. We should not be proud of our complacency. Those who sit in the high places of government are as much on active service as the boys overseas. We, in the lines of communication at home, too, are on active service. We must do our duty and those in authority must not fail us."

"For we must realize" Mr. Payne said, "that divided from God we can do nothing. But with Him and our determination to dedicate ourselves to and sacrifice ourselves for the common cause, will come a new light and a new vision, for this God is our God forever and ever."

At the evening service students of Albert College were present with two assisting in the service conducted by the vicar.

War Communiques

FRANCE.

Paris, May 27 (AP).—Text of the French high command's morning communique follows:

"In the north the enemy is continuing his attacks, particularly in the region of Menin.

"French and Allied troops are holding his advance.

"Fighting is of extreme violence.

"The Germans are throwing into battle large and powerful armed units without regard to losses.

"In the Valenciennes region we withdrew during the night the troops which had been established on the Escaut (Scheldt River) to prepared positions.

"On the Somme and Aisne fronts and in the east no important event."

GERMANY.

Berlin, May 27 (AP).—Following is the text of today's German high command communique:

"In Flanders and Artois our troops continued their attacks and have further hemmed together encircled enemy armies.

"North of Menin an especially deep breach into the enemy front was made which brought us close to Ypres. As on previous days strong air force units participated in the fighting in the west, facilitating the army's advance.

(The French high command announced the Allies were standing their ground in the Menin region in fighting of "extreme violence".)

"The severity of the attacks was most effectively centred on the region where the enemy armies are trapped. German troops attacked northeast Lens and later attacked, with bloody losses for the enemy, counter attacks by French Colonial troops.

"As previously reported in a special announcement, Calais, which was encircled behind and in front, fell into our hands after hard fighting. At Boulogne First Lieut. on Jaworski of an armored regiment, whose tank was a target for several enemy warahips, set one destroyer on fire by gunfire.

(Calais is still in Allied hands, German claims to the contrary, it was announced in Paris. No confirmation was available for the German claim to have set a destroyer on fire by gunfire.)

"To frustrate attempts of the English to bring parts of their encircled troops across the Channel to England, the air force again raided those ports on the Belgian-French Channel coast which are still in enemy hands. The port facilities of Dunkerque are burning. No special events on the southern front.

(The only British soldiers evacuated have been wounded. The Germans are known to have attacked hospital ships.)

"In recent fights south of Sedan, Lieut. Mueller of the anti-tank detachment of one infantry regiment incapacitated five of 11 heavy enemy tanks and damaged the others so seriously that their attack foundered.

"The raids of the air force were also concentrated against airports in the vicinity of Paris, against traffic facilities south of Reims and against enemy troop movements. On one airport alone 20 enemy planes were destroyed. Enemy losses yesterday amounted to 73 planes of which 32 were shot down in air fights, 15 by anti-aircraft guns and the rest destroyed on the ground.

"Fifteen of our planes are missing.

(The Air Ministry in London announced that over the weekend 60 German planes were either brought down or damaged. The R.A.F. lost less than a dozen machines.)

"On the Narvik battlefields, mountain chasers were again landed yesterday by parachutes. An enemy airplane carrier which on May 24 already was heavily struck by a bomb in Ofotfjord near Narvik was sunk May 25 off Harstad after having been hit anew by three bombs one of which was of the heaviest calibre as already announced.

"Furthermore we succeeded in sinking by bomb hits one merchant ship of 8,000 tons, besides hitting with heavy bombs, with apparent fires and explosion effects, one large warship and two cruisers as well as one transport of 18,000 tons.

(None of these claims could be confirmed. The Admiralty in London announced the loss of two ships, a destroyer sunk off the French coast by German aircraft and a 290-ton trawler, lost after hitting a German mine.)

"Several airplanes were destroyed on the ground on an attack on an airport at Barduvos. The enemy, during the course of the night of May 26-27 continued aimless raids against non-military targets in western Germany without causing greater damage."

(These "non-military targets" included gasoline and ammunition depots in the Rhineland, a troop train in the rear of the German army, two airdromes, a motor vehicle convoy, and railway junctions and sidings.)

Officers Named To Command 5 Summer Camps

WEYGAND TOURS FRONT BY PLANE, TRAIN, WARSHIP

Generalissimo Was Involved in Air Battle While Travelling and Bombed at Sea

SEVERAL VISITS

Paris May 27 (CP-Havas)—Paris Soir today told how the Allied Commander - in - Chief, General Maxine Weygand, during his first 24 hours in command toured the fighting fronts, by plane, train, car and warship to reorganize defence against the German blitzkrieg.

The energetic French leader, Paris-Soir disclosed, conferred close behind the front with King Leopold of the Belgians and with commanders of Allied troops in action. He personally visited points where the Germans were launching their most furious assaults and was involved in an air battle while travelling by plane and was bombed while at sea.

"Just a week ago, on May 20," Paris Soir said, "Weygand took over as Commander-in-Chief of the Allied armies. On the next day he visited the fighting fronts.

"At 8:40 a.m. he took off from Le Bourget (airdrome) aboard a bombing plane with an Ordnance Officer. A Liaison Officer followed in another plane. A patrol of six Morane pursuit planes protected them.

Weygand's Plane Bombed

"The two planes came under violent fire from German anti-aircraft guns. Soon afterward, they were attacked by a patrol of Messerschmitts. But the Moranes deployed and forced the enemy to flee. Then they landed at a northern airdrome and the General, while waiting for the authorities who were to meet him, entered an inn and ordered an omelette and a cup of coffee.

"Later the General left for a nearby city. There he met the King of the Belgians, with his ministers and military adviser.

"At a rapid conference he also met the General commanding the French forces in the region and the French Admiral commanding the northern sector. He gave his orders. He knows the Allied positions perfectly. He understood at once what the Germans were attempting to do.

Embarks Under Hail of Bombs

"His return to Paris was partly by sea. His embarkation aboard a destroyer took place under a hail of German bombs. Our anti-aircraft guns succeeded in driving off the planes marked with black crosses, but fires were started on the pier close by.

"At seven in the evening the destroyer was racing under forced draft through a narrow channel which had been cleared through a mine field. The General landed the next morning at 5 a.m. and took a train for Paris. His private car was not at the station.

"'Taxi!' At 9 o'clock the taxi-driver deposited the General and his colleagues at General Headquarters. In another moment Weygand was back at his post.

"Since then he has returned several times to the battle fronts to see himself the spots where the enemy was launching assaults, to reach immediate decisions with the heads of the operating armies, to strengthen by his mere presence the confidence and ardor of the troops."

SCHOOL BANDS GIVE CONCERT IN AID OF "Y" FUND

St. Michael's Band and Collegiate Institute Band Display Fine Instrumental Talent

ARTISTS ASSIST

An enthusiastic capacity crowd, fired with the stirring rendition of "Coronation" a British patriotic medley played by the scarlet blue and white clad members of St. Michael's Band, cheered the diminutive musicians to the echo Sunday night at the Capitol theatre where another of the series of concerts was held under the auspices of the War Service Committee of the Y.M.C.A.

Applause nearly drowned out the melodies of the "British Grenadiers," "Rule Britannia," "The Maple Leaf," and "O Canada" as the audience spontaneously gave vent to their feelings during the selection.

It was youths turn to give a musical contribution to the coffers of the "Y" War Service Fund, for providing the other half of the program was the splendid band of the Belleville Collegiate Institute under the baton of Mr. Alfred Cooper. The student organization showing steady improvement gave a splendid performance that bespoke fine training and individual and collective ability on the part of the musicians. This band opened the program and played several marches, waltzes and an overture as their musical donation.

The St. Michael's Band, with dainty little Barbara Forhan wielding the baton, almost "stole the show" however, with the outstanding renditions of difficult marches and other selections. An overture brought out the versatility of the small musicians, while individual ability was evidenced in a saxaphone duet by little Miss Agnes Marie O'Connor and Master Bobby Young, and a bells solo by Helen Grant. A quartette of saxaphones and trumpets offering "Melody in F" brought well-merited acclaim, but it remained for the patriotic medley to "bring down the house."

Other highlights of the concert included a vocal solo by Miss Ann Brown with Alec Gordon at the piano, a concert duet by Ronnie Moorman and Jack Green, and the always popular Eric (Jimmy) Corradi, at the piano in a trio of his own arrangements of popular melodies.

Mr. Fred Wiggins, President of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201, acted as chairman and in his capacity thanked the contributing artists as well as the Capitol theatre management for its generosity in offering the use of the theatre gratis.

A silver collection taken at the door netted nearly $40.00.

WAR BRIEFS

London, May 27—(CP)— A hospital ship machine-gunned while en route from the continent arrived at a British port today. The vessel showed traces of the aerial attack which was carried out despite the fact that the vessel bore all the regulation hospital markings.

London, May 27—(CP)— The War Office announced today the emergency officers reserve, closed in November, 1939, because the number of applicants at that time was "overwhelming", will be reopened on a "limited basis."

The reserve is open to men with army experience who have been or are likely to become good officers.

Alexandria, May 27—(CP)— The Egyptianvazette gave some editorial advice to its readers on the subject of radio broadcasts today.

"Every minute you spend listening to enemy broadcasts is a minute spent in the service of Hitler," it said, and added that listening is "treasonable in effect if not intent."

London, May 27—(CP-Cable)— Sir Keith Fraser, 28-year-old baronet, intends to join the Canadian Active Service Force in Canada, his counsel stated during the hearing of an action in court of King's Bench today. Sir Keith, said to be in Chile at present, is being sued for recovery of 3,343 pounds ($14,876), allegedly lent him at a Venice casino in 1938.

London, May 27 — (CP)—For calling Prime Minister Churchill "butcher" in an address before Communists, Charles Findlay, 23-year-old mechanic, was sentenced today to three months in jail and fined $220.

London, May 27—(CP)—Robert Montgomery, U.S. motion picture actor, was disclosed last night to have joined the American field service as an ambulance driver. He is to leave Wednesday for France.

Asked his reasons for joining volunteer service, Montgomery, who has been in England since January, answered only with a grin.

ENLIST FOR HOME GUARD

Calgary, May 27 —(CP)— More than 300 Calgary ex-service men have registered for enlistment with the Veterans' Home Guard which will shortly be organized by Military District No. 13, officials said last night. The Alberta company of the Veterans' Home Guards will have a strength of 250 men.

Harry the Hoss Danning Leads New York Giants to 3rd Place With Batting and Fine Fielding

N. Y. Catcher Hitting Smart 394 and Generally Ball of Fire for His Teammates

SECOND IN HOMERS

Dodgers and Reds Unable to Break Tie for Firtt Place

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Up there in the place all good baseball souls go, the old man must be dancing a jig these Spring afternoons as he looks down on his New York Giants.

For, Harry the Hoss Danning, last of the "McGraw men" to arrive, is a rip-snorting bronco now.

Not only is the Hoss head man in the Giants' sudden surge toward the National League roof—they were only 2 1-2 games out after a 10-8 decision over Boston Bees yesterday—but he's the complete answer to the dream John McGraw always had of presenting to New York a classy Jewish ball player. Definitely, Harry the Hoss is it.

Harry hasn't yet picked all the splinters out of the seat of his pants from riding the bench for four years waiting for Bill Terry to give him the "break."

Since Sweet William invited him to play, too, last season, Danning has been coming along steadily. Now he's a large ball of fire as the Giants ride on a four-game winning streak. He's leading the league in batting with a neat .394 and is out in front with 31 runs batted in. His total of seven homers—two of them in yesterday's affair accounting for four runs—is second only to Johnny Mize's mauling.

Reds and Dodgers Win

The only reason Danning's walloping war club didn't knock the Giants any nearer the National League's driver's seat yesterday was because both Brooklyn and Cincinnati decided to win too. The chief development in the American League, meantime, saw New York Yankees bounce right out of the cellar and all the way up to a tie for sixth place, by beating the league-leading Boston Red Sox 7-2.

The Dodgers, blanked for eight innings, handed a heartbreaker to Kirby Higbe and the Phillies, 2-1 in ten innings. Higbe tossed a four-hitter altogether. He gave up the tying run in the ninth and pee-wee Reese broke up the ball game with his first big-league homer in the 10th. The Reds blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 4-0 behind the one-hit elbowing of Paul Derringer, who had lost three of his last four outings.

Six-Hitter Wins for Klinger

Bob Klinger turned in a six-hitter to nip Chicago Cubs 3-2 on behalf of Pittsburgh Pirates, thus giving the Bucs a two-game winning "streak" for the first time in more than a month. Charley Keller clouted a homer and a double, sending in three runs in the Yanks celebration. Since the A's dropped a 4-3 affair to Washington Senators on Johnny Welaj's 10th-inning homer, the Yanks moved up and Connie Mack's lads sank to the bottom of the loop.

Boston's setback sliced the Red Sox lead to a mere half-game over Cleveland Indians, who split with the Browns. Left-hander Emil Bildilli and a five-run rally in one inning gave the Brownies first blood 5-3. Then left-hander Al Milnar and a five-run rally in one inning brought the tribe a 31-1 win in the nightcap. The Tigers and White Sox were rained out.

Craig Wood Shoots New Record For Competitive Golf

Bloomfield, N.J., May 27—(AP)—The other 169 guys who will shoot for the national open golf title at Cleveland June 6-8 might as well take warnings now, Craig Wood finally has reached the stage of winning an important tournament.

Wood, 38 years old and a veteran of a good many years of pro campaigning, has missed more titles in playoffs or by narrow margins than most golfers hope to win in a lifetime. But there wasn't any "almost" about the way he took the Metropolitan open crown at the Forest Hill Field Club.

Starting with a six-under-par for a course and tournament record Friday, he followed up with rounds of 66, 68 and 66 for a 72-hole total of 264. This was not the lowest four-round total ever recorded but it was believed to be a record for important competition on a full length course. The only better score for a major event shown in the record books was 262, made over the short San Remo course in Italy by Percy Alliss when he won the 1935 Italian open title.

Wood won by an 11-stroke margin over Ben Hogan, the Texan who performed so sensationally during the winter. He slashed 16 strokes off a par that was reduced to 70 for the tournament and bettered by 14 strokes the Metropolitan championship record that was set by Mac Smith in 1914 and equalled by Tommy Armour in 1928.

JAPANESE BOY BEST PROSPECT

Tadao Kato Wins Flyweight Title for Amateurs in the Dominion at Cardstone

Cardston, Alta., May 27—(CP)—Tadao Kato, a 16-year-old Japanese boy, representing the North Vancouver Olympic Club, emerged today as the most promising prospect among competitors in the three-day Canadian Amateur Boxing championships which ended here Saturday.

The tall Japanese gave the best display of ringcraft at the tourney when he outpointed the rugged Jack Turner of the Vancouver Britannia Beach Athletic Club in the flyweight final.

A crowd of 1,000 cheered the British Columbia champion lustily as he rallied in the third to win clearly over Turner who had reached the final as a result of a default, the sequel to a decision that came near to ending the tourney.

Turner who won the British Columbia bantamweight division but dropped down a class for the Dominion meet lost to Grant Bates of Cardston in the semi-final. The Vancouver contingent refused to continue unless the decision was reversed.

Officials refused and Bates saved the show by agreeing to another match and then defaulted because he had taken part in a track meet a few hours before the bout was scheduled to begin.

The big surprise of the finals came later when Gerald Berthiaume, 17-year-old Montreal High School boy, was awarded a decision over Jack Patterson, Vancouver, representing the Canadian Scottish Regiment.

The stocky Quebec champion who has never been knocked down took everything Patterson had to offer and landed some heavy punches himself. However, the classy coast boy might have won by a slight margin had he not committed fouls in the second and third rounds.

JEFFRA TAKES FEATHERWEIGHT TITLE

Harry Jeffra skims the jaw of Joey Archibald with a fierce right uppercut, in the third round of their bout for the world's featherweight championship in Baltimore. Jeffra, who took the decision, and the title, knocked the Providence, Rhode Island, battler down three times in the second round. This is a Speedray photo,

ALEX KAMPOURIS CARRYING BEARS TO TOP POSITION

Sudden Spurt of Long-Distance Hitting Helping Newark in Pennant Fight

LEAFS LOSE TWO

Kemp Wicker and Steve Rachunok Winning Hurlers Against Leafs

(By Thee Associated Press)

One explanation for the thrust that promises to carry Newark Bears into their usual position in the thick of the International League pennant race is a sudden long-distance hitting spurt on the part of Alex Kampouris, veteran second sacker who came down from New York Giants this season.

In his National League days Alex was no great shakes as a clouter, but he's making up for it now and his teammates are following his example. They won five of their last six games to move 4 1-2 games behind the league-leading Rochester Red Wings.

Kampouris belted his sixth and seventh home runs of the season in yesterday's opener against Syracuse Chiefs to lead the way to a 7-5 victory. It was the second straight game in which he had hit for the circuit twice.

The long-range hitting dropped off against rookie Pep Rambert who allowed the Bears only two singles in the nightcap and the Chiefs won out 1-0, when Roy Johnson hit his second four-ply wallop of the day in the sixth inning.

Chiefs Out of Cellar

That victory lifted Syracuse out of the league cellar in the day's only change in the standings. Toronto Maple Leafs dropped a doubleheader to Montreal 4-2 and 3-2 and dropped back from a sixth-place tie with the Royals.

Rochester stretched their margin to 1 1-2 games by trimming Buffalo Bisons twice 6-2 and 2-1, while Jersey City and Baltimore split, the Giants taking the first game 5-4 and the Orioles the second, 9-7.

Two good pitching jobs accounted for Montreal's two victories. Kemp Wicker pitched six-hit ball in the opener, then Steve Rachunok turned in a five-hitter and won when Roy Hughes scored from second on an infield out in the fourth inning.

Mike Ryba, veteran Rochester moundsman, chalked up his sixth victory in the Red Wings' first game. The Wings had to go eight innings to gain their second decision when Greg Mulleavy muffed a grounder.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, May 27 (AP)—Week's wash: Bob Pastor dashed here from Saratoga at 80 M.P.H. to donate blood for his mother-in-law, but she died before he arrived....Sorry to have to report it, but it looks like the arm of old man Mose Grove is really dead this time.... The Dempsey separation didn't surprise the main stem, but it caused a lot of head shaking....The Grapevine says one of the conditions of the Joe Gould-Mike Jacobs settlement was that Gould shortly will go into the 20th Century as matchmaker. (We reported that weeks ago).

Did you know that—

Bucky Walters eats liver and bacon for breakfast on the day he pitches....Irish Meusel, the old Giant outfielder, is head bar keep in a New Glendale, Calif., joint.... Also that Ed (Strangler) Lewis, who already owns a restaurant in Glendale, will open a half million dollar boxing and wrestling emporium there in the fall....Gamblers along the Great White Way have raised Boston Red Sox to a parity with the Yankees—but are overlooking Cleveland....Mel Ott, who has hit more homers than any other National Leaguer, is 102 behind Jimmy Foxx—373 against 475.

SAM LUFTSPRING MEETS BELLOISE

Toronto Boxer Opens Outdoor Season in N.Y. in Important Match

New York, May 27—(CP)— With the indoor season at Madison Square practically over, the boxing spotlight shifts tonight to Starlight Park where Steve Belloise of New York and Toronto's Sammy Luftspring fight eight rounds or less outdoors.

For Steve, the heavy punching younger brother of Mike Belloise, former featherweight champion, the bout with the holder of Canada's welterweight title will he his second start in five days—and perhaps the most important of his whole career.

Last Thursday in a semi-final to the Overlin-Garcia middleweight title clash, Belloise took only one minute and 24 seconds to finish Vic Dellicurti—the first time Dellicurti was knocked out.

Belloise rules a 6-5 favorite, but there is a lot of support for Luftspring. Though he cannot match Belloise's natural hitting ability, the Canadian is far the more clever boxer. Belloise has been promised a chance at Henry Armstrong for the world welterweight championship if he gets past Luftspring.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

DID YOU KNOW THAT it was just three years ago yesterday that Mickey Cochrane was "beaned" by a ball pitched by Bump Hadley in the Yankee Stadium? . . . And that although "Iron Mike" recovered, he never played ball again? . . That an average of 33 balls are used in a major league game, the majority of which are retained by the fans as souvenirs? . . . That the balls used in major league play are between 5 and 5 1-4 ounces in weight and between 9 and 9 1-4 inches in circumference? . . . That "Red" Townsend says he has the nucleus of the best junior softball team ever gathered together locally? . . . And that in Sword he has an outstanding shortstop in the making? . . . That the Picton "Dominions" make their softball debut here versus the Corby's tonight, after having lost to the soldiers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Depot on the holiday?

Three Belleville girls, who received their early education into ladies' softball in this city, were recently publicized in a Toronto evening newspaper in connection with the opening of the Ladies' Softball League at Sunnyside. Action pictures of Marie Genereaux and Lela Empey were shown with Marie taking a healthy cut at a pitch and Lela shaking hands with an opposing player prior to the opening game. No doubt the photographers thought "shooting" one of the Genereaux family was sufficient as no pictures of Kay Genereaux were seen. The Genereaux sisters are back with the S.M.C. nine, while Lela is catching for the Kiks team this year. The production of photographs of former Belleville girls in Toronto news columns reminds us that the revival of girls' softball is scheduled to open at the Armouries Lawn here Tuesday evening when the "5 and 10's" clash with the "Big Z" nine. League officials today laid out the Armouries diamond, and sank a new home plate, along with the bases. Military and civilian notables will be asked to assist in the opening of the Ladies' Softball League, which sees an attempt at revival after nearly a decade of inactivity.

Commenting on the deplorable condition of baseball in the Central Ontario zone, Kingston Scribe Bill Walshe says Kingston and Belleville were not prepared to enter teams in the Bay of Quinte League. That's not exactly right as Belleville is prepared to carry on, but the higher-ups of the Limestone City baseball circles apparently do not appreciate the efforts put forward by Yammy Jamieson, Bob Elliott, Jimmie Arniel, Joe Corkey and the boys who made the Kingston junior loop a success by their unselfish efforts in the tutoring of the Kingston kids, especially when the Kingston veterans wanted to play a little baseball for their own recreation. Continuing Mr. Walshe suggests that the O.B.A. should protect its interests in ball by forcing the senior and intermediate clubs to foster and promote the game among the juniors, which is a very good idea in theory, but when a town is situated like Belleville it is difficult to arrange a suitable junior grouping.

Continuing Scribe Bill hits from the shoulder regarding the operations of baseball in the east with the following comment, which we are afraid comes too late. He says:

"It is regrettable to think that the once flourishing sport was allowed to die but officials of teams and leagues are to blame. They played a suicide game and killed the goose that was hatching the golden eggs by not developing young players for the day when the seniors got too old to play. Senior teams in former years made big money but there was never much thought given to the future of the sport.

"To the credit of Kingston sportsmen they have reorganized the game and it should not be long before they have senior baseball going again here. Other communities will have to follow the example of the Kingston Baseball Association and concentrate on the young boys."

Do you remember when Primo Carnera tottered to his corner and lost a 10-round heavyweight boxing bout to Leroy Haynes, Philadelphia Negro, at Brooklyn two years ago tonight? The fighting Italian suffered temporary paralysis in his right leg in the ninth round. Haynes was ahead on points.

Here's one for the book: A certain western club in the American League recently asked waivers on a certain outfielder. The Yankees at once wired in a claim. The western club came right back with this one: "Will let you have Doakes but only in a trade."

The American League last December passed a rule preventing the Yankees from trading.

One last effort to organize the Bay of Quinte Baseball League will be made in Picton on Tuesday night, when a meeting has been called at the beckon of President McKibbon. H. M. (Dolly) Gray is still willing to place a local ball club on the O.B.A. field, but isn't any too pleased with the calling of so many organization meetings. The latest rumours suggest that Alex Weir is endeavouring to amalgamate Brighton and Colborne diamond interests thus giving the Quinte loop at least three starters. Tuesday's meeting will be held in the County Buildings in Picton and will be the final effort to reorganize the Quinte League.

Sport Spice — Lefty Lougheed finished second in the 440 yard run at the Eastern Ontario O.A.C. track meet held at Kingston Saturday... The meet was held in a pouring rain and saw the minimum number of entries. Doug McCracken of Napanee won three senior firsts.... Paul Derringer, Reds' veteran moundsman, narrowly missed the inner ring of pitching when he let the Cardinals down with one hit and blanked 'em 4-0 yesterday.... Even the amateurs are at it — Tommy White hurled a one-hitter against Niagara Falls Saturday.... Albert College completed its program of track and field events over a period of some three weeks, the field day champions being named today....Toronto Leafs are losing those one-run decisions again.

U. S. NAVY YARD AT FULL CAPACITY

15,000 Working on Shipbuilding Night and Day and More to be Hired

Philadelphia, May 27—(AP)—The noises of construction ring through the Philadelphia navy yard today as never before—turned to the United States resolve that the noises of destruction shall not cross the Atlantic.

Here on League Island 15,000 welders, electricians, boilermakers, steel workers and other laborers are putting together key units in the nation's expanded defence system—powerful ships of war to keep the country at peace with a navy "second to none".

The number of civilian shipbuilders already is 2,000 larger than the navy year's first great war peak and officials expect to hire about 3,000 more men to speed up current and future production.

Climaxing the yard's greatest undertaking, the 35,000-ton battleship Washington will be launched Saturday amid the strictest precautions since 1917. The navy rates this $65-000,000 floating fortress and a sister ship, the North Carolina, to be launched at the Brooklyn Navy yard, June 13, the most powerful units of the fleet.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

The captain, who had been staring speculatively into space, now repeated softly, "Bottled up—in Shaman's—Lagoon!" Then he turned to Kemp with a brisk, "Three days, he said? Give me those three days, Starbuck, before ye make any deal with Reynall. Meself, I'll be settin' a flea in Chris's ear which, it may be, will hatch some fish for ye before the three days are up. Should it not, then take over Reynall's surplus—if he has one! Will ye do me that—as a favor?"

"I'll do it, captain." Kemp smiled suddenly and got up, extending his hand. "And now, perhaps you can do me a favor, sir."

"Put a name to it, me boy."

"I'm scheduled to make a shipment on the T.K.K. liner sailing from Seattle in five days. Because of the strike, that shipment's still here on my wharf. The only way I can land it in Seattle on time is to get it aboard the freighter Makari, southbound out of Juneau tomorrow afternoon.

"But the Makari's not calling at Sitka."

"How well I know it!" Kemp amiled ruefully. "I thought they would, if I made it worth their while, so I sent Ikeda to Juneau by plane early this morning to arrange it. He just wired back he hasn't been able—"

"Ikeda!" the captain snorted scornfully. "Well, 'tis too late to fix it up now. Why the divil didn't ye come to me sooner?"

Kemp flushed. "I didn't think fast enough, sir. But it just struck me we might load the cases aboard the Tanya, and have her meet the Makari in Juneau. And, since you have business there anyway, I thought you might go along and—er—exert a bit of influence, if needful." He arched his eyebrows inquiringly.

The captain nodded. "It could be done, if ye get busy at once with the loadin'. The Tanya must haul out on the beach for a tide or two, but the Windflower will serve as well. Ye'd best start your men loadin' her right away."

"Then you'll do it, sir?"

"Aye. We'll sail from here about seven this evening, and be in Juneau fourteen hours later. Consider it done, me boy!"

He looked sharply at Kemp, who still lingered uncertainly by the table. "Well, well!" he said testily. "Ye've got about everything ye asked for, Starbuck. Why, then, do ye stand there lookin' as if ye'd just seen your best friend dumped over the side?"

x x x

He started for the front door, automatically searching his pockets for his cigarette case. Failing to find it, he whirled irritably about, and swore under his breath. "Darn! Must have left it upstairs."

He went back up the steps, his feet making no sound on the thick carpet. But at the top he halted abruptly and stood staring through the partly open door of the captain's sitting room. The aperture was just wide enough to show O'Moore at his table, with the model of the Glory drawn close up before him. Sunlight fell on his bent silvery head, on the Lilliputian ship—and on a full-length plank, pulled straight out from the vessel's hull, revealing a shallow drawer.

The captain, with a look of complete satisfaction on his old face, lifted several pieces of folded tracing linen from the drawer and, after inspecting each one briefly, replaced it. Then he gently pushed the drawer inward until, with an audible click, the plank snapped back into place.

Kemp's face was a mirror of mixed emotions as he realized what he had, inadvertently, spied upon. Making no sound, he turned and hurried from the house, his cigarette case forgotten.

x x x

"I promised Starbuck fish, and you've been swampin' him with water-hauls and excuses. And d'ye know who's goin 'to take over the contract you couldn't fulfill? Reynall! Reynall, with his Thlinget egg-crates and rotten nets! Reynall can get fish! Reynall can fill his own cans and Starbuck's, too. But you can't even—"

"Darn it, Cap'n!" Chris was almost in tears. "Reynall's got all those fish in Shaman's Lagoon to draw on; besides—"

"And why has he got 'em?" O'Moore's fish banged the table. "Because you couldn't see past your nose, Mister Sandvik. Because he could cripple O'Moore's whole fleet, smack under the eyes of O'Moore's dumb fleet commander! That's why his hell-dredged lagoon is now burstin' with herring. But Dan O'Moore's boats must go empty—and all because his fleet boss hasn't the nerve enough to fill 'em. Bah!"

"All right! All right!" Chris leaped to his feet and pounded the table. "I'll show you whether I've got nerve or not! I'll bring Starbuck his fish —or nobody else will!" With that he slammed out of the room.

x x x

Sondra and her grandfather were about to sit down to an early dinner, when the Forest Man appeared. He had just come from Cape Edgecumbe, he said, and he brought a basket of wild strawberries for Sondra. Though his clothes were travel stained, and he looked as if he needed sleep, he yielded to Sondra's coaxing and stayed to dinner.

Delighted to have a new and appreciative audience, the captain talked at length of his letter from the Secretary of the Navy, the recent strike, the turn of circumstance which was taking him now into Juneau. In rare spirits, he prolonged the meal until Alexander brought his bag and reminded him, "The Windflower, sir, is whistling for you."

The Forest Man went down with Sondra to see the captain off. They found Kemp nervously pacing his float, where the Windflower lay, ready loaded. Though plainly anxious to see his cargo on its way, Kemp had a smile and a pleasant word for the Forest Man. "Just been admiring the Glory," he said. "I never saw a prettier set of sticks in a ship. You got them out, I believe"

"Yes. They're all clear, straight-grained spruce. Such spars are hard to find, but they'll be harder to break."

The little group stood silent for a moment, all eyes upon the Glory of the West, lifting the tracery of her new masts and cross-trees high above her snowy hull.

"What a beauty she is!" Kemp exclaimed. His face, for a moment, had lost its harassed look. "It seems a shame her kind had to give way to steam and gas. But then—we moderns must have speed."

"Speer—hah!" the captain ejaculated. "Give her a fair slant of wind, and the old girl yonder will show clean heels to anything in these waters, I'm tellin' ye."

Kemp smiled dubiously "She has grand sailing lines, sir. But the Dragon there can reel out her fourteen knots or more, each hour of the twenty-four."

"Aye, and the Glory will sail three knots to her two—given a wind! Meself, I've logged her at nineteen knots, and she with more to give had her masts and gear been fit to take the strain."

"Those masts will take it," the Forest Man said confidently. "I'd gamble they'll stand more gaff than any pine that ever came out of Oregon."

"So? Belike, we can be testin' that, sometime." The captain's head was tilted back, his eyes narrowed lovingly upon the top-masts of his old command. "I'd reinforce that mizzen backstay, and run a — Humph!" He caught himself up, with a belligerently embarrassed glance at his companions. "Well, well! I'd best be castin' off, if we're to catch this tide through the Narrows."

He stamped aboard the Windflower, looking very sturdy and lovable, Sondra thought, in his gray suit, with his hat tipped forward aggressively over his eyes, and the brim turned up behind. On deck, he turned and leaned over the rail to grip Kemp's extended hand.

"I've wired ahead to the Makari's agent, and all is arranged, Starbuck. Do ye want I should bring Ikeda back with me on the Windflower?"

"Why—er—if he's ready to come, sir. He hada lot of things to do in Juneau. I'll wire him, of course, that you're bringing the shipment in."

"We'll be off, then." O'Moore nodded to the Windflower's skipper, who immediately yanked a short blast from the whistle.

"Misteh Stahbuck! Mistah Stahbuck! Wait boat, prease! Vancouver package!" Kemp's bookkeeper was running toward them, calling excitedly and holding aloft a small wooden box.

"Hold her, skipper," growled O'Moore.

The bookkeeper came up, panting, and thrust the little box at Kemp. "I think, prease, you forgetting."

"Oh, yes! Thanks, Ohashi." Kemp took the box and turned to the captain. "This is a small special pack of herring I put up for a dear friend —a little old English lady in Vancouver, B.C. She's very fond of it, and I'd hoped to get this down there in time for her birthday—four days from now. But I guess it can't be done."

O'Moore reached for the box, whose lid, unnailed at one end, displayed oval tins neatly packed inside. "Let's see, now," he calculated. "From Juneau to Seattle on the Makari takes a good four days. 'Tis only a few hours, then, to Vancouver —but no. 'Twould be all of five days before it reached her."

"Confound it! I promised her—"

"Too bad we can't catch the Canadian liner, Princess Julia, southbound out of Juneau tonight," said the captain, sympathetically. "She'd land your package in Vancouver in forty-eight hours. But — she'll be gone long before we get in."

"The Princess Julia! By George, sir, I just heard over the radio that she's making a lengthy unscheduled stop at Taku Harbor, this trip. She'll be there until noon tomorrow—and Taku Harbor is almost on your way to Juneau, isn't it?"

"Aye. To call there would add an hour or two to the trip, but we'd still reach Juneau in good time for the Makari."

'Splendid, sir. Then if you'll just put it at—" He broke off, his face falling. "I was forgetting that Vancouver's foreign, sir. I've left the box open for customs inspection, as you see. But of course there's no customs agent—probably no postmaster, even—at Taku Harbor. The Julia wouldn't take the box, unless all red tape—"

"Wouldn't she, now," the captain broke in, chuckling. "Me boy, the master of that floatin' hotel is none other than Captain Jerry McGrath —and that melancholious Mick was born in the same County Clare that fostered the tribe of O'Moore! As one mariner to another, I'll be puttin' your small box into old Jerry's own hands for delivery—and divil an inch of red tape called for."

"That's fine, captain! Really, it will mean a lot to my little old lady to get my present in time for her birthday."

"'Tis glad I am to be helpin', me boy. This card, nailed to the box—that's her name and address?"

"Yes, sir. Here—I'll just pencil the phone number on that. If Captain McGrath will call up when he gets in, someone will come right down after it."

"Better use my pencil—it's indelible." The Forest Man proffered a worn stub, and stood at Kemp's shoulder until he had finished and handed it back.

The captain tossed the little box in beside his own bag on the pilot-house bunk. "So long, darlin'!" he called to Sondra, as the Windflower breasted out from the float. "Remember—ye're admiral of the fleet whilst I'm away."

"I'll try to be just as mean a boss as you are, lamb!" Sondra tossed him a mock salute with one hand, and a kiss with the other.

"Y" Directors Bid Farewell To Geo. Griffin

The Y.M.C.A. Directors gathered in special meeting on Saturday afternoon last to bid farewell and to extend congratulations and best wishes for success to George Griffin on his removal to Toronto. Mr. Griffin has been active in the Y.M.C.A. and a member of the Board here for some twenty years. On behalf of the Directors, Mr. Newton Thompson presented Mr. Griffin with a fine pen and pencil set in engraved case.

Messrs. Howard Clarke, Burt Jennings, Morley Duff, Past President and J. E. Shortt, Secretary, all spoke briefly in paying tribute to George's helpfulness and regret at his parting with the Board, and their pleasure in his personal and business advancement.

Mr. Griffin expressed his appreciation of the gift and his loss in severing his connection with the Association and men of the Board.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on Shorty Judge's steps talking to him about different subjects, and I had a idea, saying, Here comes Reddi Merfy, what'll you give me if I insult him.

I'll give you a gold meddle, Shorty said, and I said, I'll insult him all right, you just listen, you'll see.

Wich just then Reddy came up, saying, Hello, shrimps.

Meaning me and Shorty, and I said, How do you mean, shrimps? Why you're as crazy as a fish, I said.

Hay, what's that, who do you think you are, you take this back and take it back or you'll be a fish, you'll be a jelly fish, Reddy said, and I said, Why, what's a matter dont you now a compliment when you get one?

Yes and I know a insult too, are you going to take that back or do you want me to make a invisible grease spot out of you? Reddy said, and I said, Well hay, wait a minute. That was a compliment and I'll prove it, because there's nothing crazy about a fish and I'll prove it, because a fish has got sense enough to stay under water all the time because it knows its gills wouldn't work right any ploce elts, Is that crazy? I said.

Nobody's going to call me any kind of a fish, Deddy said, and I said, I didn't call you any kind, I just said you were as crazy as a fish and a fish isn't crazy at all and that means you're not either, and what's that but a compliment? Holey smokes when a fish sees a worm on a hook it just winks its eye and goes the opposite direction, is that crazy? G wizzickers I'm glad I'm no crazier than a fish and everybody elts ought to be too, unless they're crazy, I said.

Okay, all right, shut up about fish when you're talking about me, Reddy said.

And he kept on going, me feeling exhawsted but lucky.

Produce Unchanged

Toronto, May 27 — Unchanged prices ruled for all lines during Saturday's short session of the Toronto Open Produce Market. Due to the closeness of the holiday to the week-end, dealings were extremely quiet.

Sales were few on the butter market, but light offerings kept prices steady. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids closed at 22¾c per pound. Prints moved through retail channels at the previous levels of 24c to 24½c.

Dealers reported a steady egg market, with small receipts meeting small demand. The ½-cent per dozen premium on Government inspected shipments was still quoted.

800 FOOD DISTRICTS FORMED IN BRITAIN

London, May 27—(CP)—Britain could feed itself for a few weeks without any outside help if an invasion disrupted transportation and communications, Food Minister Lord Woolton said today.

To care for the people in an emergency he said the country had been split into 800 self-contained areas, each with one main food depot and one reserve.

Read

Read — The euchre and dance held in Read parish hall Monday evening was an enjoyable event. Aces Orchestra supplied the music for the occasion.

Mr. John Killoran of Erinsville visited in this vicinity on Sunday.

The farmers in this district have their seeding well on the way. The fall grain and hay crop appear to be very promising.

Mr. Kenneth Callaghan, Tweed, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Callaghan.

A number from this vicinity attended the opening dance at Tweed pavilion. Jack Denmark and his orchestra were in attendance.

SWEDISH GUNS FIRE ON TRESPASSING PLANE

Stockholm May 27—(CP- Havas) —Anti-aircraft guns opened fire at several points today as foreign warplanes flew low over Northern Sweden. The planes fled toward Norway.

ALLIES WITHDRAW

If the Germans are successful in making connections they will have succeeded in encircling the Allied troops fighting between Cambrai and the Belgian border.

The other half of the Allied army of the north will be backed up against the channel.

Allies Stand Ground

The French High Command said the Allies were standing their ground in the Menin region, in fighting "of extreme violence."

The Germans were reported to be using "every possible weapon" in an attempt to break Allied resistance, but their losses in infantry, tanks and airplanes were described as "enormous."

A War Ministry spokesman said the Allied withdrawal in the Valenciennes sector was because the positions were "too far out in front."

Before retiring, he said, the Allied troops beat off two German attacks.

Great Defensive Battle

At present, a military commentator emphasized, Allied troops are now engaged in "a great defensive battle," the results of which are still undetermined. He declared the Germans' complete disregard for losses in men and material has weakened their hand.

Heavy fighting was reported along the Channel in northern France as the Germans attempted to push on up the coast after the capture of Boulogne. The old Boulogne citadel, where a small French garrison continued to resist long after the city fell, finally was captured by the Germans.

British troops who assisted in defending the Channel port were said to be withdrawing northward along the coast toward Calais, which the French asserted they still held despite a German announcement to the contrary.

Rush Fresh Troops in

In an effort to strengthen their forces along the Channel, tired after 17 days of continuous fighting, the Germans were reported to be rushing fresh troops from the Swiss border and the Westwall through the narrow gap in the Allied lines north of the Somme.

The French declared that the corridor was being raked by Allied artillery and bombed without rest, and that the Germans were paying a terrific price to keep the breach open.

North of the corridor, French, British and Belgian forces were said by the high command to be putting up a successful defensive fight against repeated German assaults.

Although slowly withdrawing from Belgium, military spokesmen said, these forces were giving the Germans so much trouble they could not concentrate on their operations in northern France.

Weygand Flies Over Front

The Allied lines in the north were said to extend from a point north of Ostend southward to Courtrai and thence along the west bank of the Scheldt River toward Cambrai. From Cambrai the line turns northwest through Arras and St. Omer to strike the coast between Boulogne and Calais.

General Maxime Weygand, the Allied Commander-in-Chief, was reported to have flown over the northern armies yesterday to study their position and later landed to confer with their leaders.

Military sources said these troops were being kept well supplied through Zeebrugge and channel ports further south.

They also minimized the danger that the Allied forces in Belgium might be attacked from the rear by German troops separating them from the French armies along the Somme.

Motorized troops who have played a large part in the Nazi drive to the channel would find the "wet clay ground of Flanders, studded everywhere with rugged vegetations and criss-crossed by canals, an unpropitious battlefield," one commentator said.

French Take Initiative

The flying trip which Weygand made to the army of the north duplicated a similar inspection tour he made May 21.

On that occasion, it was reported that he and his aide-de-camp were fired upon by German anti-aircraft guns as they flew over the Nazi lines in a powerful bomber. Three German Messerschmitt fighters also were said to have attacked the plane, only to be driven off by six French Moranes.

South of the Somme and along the front extending westward to Montmedy and the Luxembourg border the French were said to be holding everywhere.

At several points, according to the high command, they took the initiative along the Somme, establishing new bridgeheads on the northern bank and further narrowing the Peronne-Bapaume corridor—now something less than 20 miles wide.

Take Tremendous Toll

Further east, between the Aisne and the Meuse rivers the deadly accuracy of the famous French "seventy-fives" were reported to have taken a tremendous toll as German infantry attempted unsuccessfully to pierce the Allied lines.

Stunned German soldiers wandering into the French positions were said to have confirmed reports that complete companies of Nazi foot troops were wiped out.

The French said bodies of Germans were "piled high" between the lines.

Another German assault in the Montmedy sector also was reported repulsed with severe losses for the attackers.

French military men gave high praise to the Belgians for the part they have been playing in the fighting in the north.

At Courtrai, it was said, the Belgians first gave ground under heavy German attacks and surrendered their foothold on the banks of the Lys. A subsequent Belgian counter-attack, which the French War Ministry described as exceptionally courageous, was said to have recovered the lost ground.

Heavy Fighting

South of Courtrai, heavy fighting was reported in the Valenciennes sector in northern France, where the War Ministry said the Nazis had suffered "considerable" losses in repeated attacks "on a very long front."

(Reports from Basle, Switzerland, said that French heavy artillery literally had pulverized the important German rail junction at Weil, just north of the Swiss border, during a seven-hour bombardment. The junction links two important German Rhine railway lines.)

Reviewing the general military situation, General Duval, writing in Le Journal, said it appeared that "the first rush of the enemy has almost come to an end."

"Our soldiers", he said, "have maintained under fire all the traditions of valor and discipline of our army. Good blood will tell"

VITAL CHANGES

The great preparedness drive extended to other sections of the home front, including arming of "parashooters."

Captain Arthur John Power was made Chief of Staff of the Fleet air arm and appointed to the Admiralty Board Since 1938 he had commanded the aircraft carrier Ark Royal and for two years before that had been in command of the gunnery school at Portsmouth.

While the Empire joined King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in their national day of prayer, the armament plants worked at full speed throughout the week end, Scotland Yard rounded up another score of British Fascists in a drive against potential fifth columnists.

Including their leader, Sir Oswald Mosley, about 70 are confined in Brixton jail.

Police also swooped down on the "soap box" orators in Hyde Park yesterday and arrested Ted Bramley, leader of the London Communist party, and a number of other "stop the war" agitators.

The government at the same time announced a new list of 15 southeast coast towns as "evacuation areas" and prepared to move children to safer places. Among them were Dover, only 22 miles across the Channel from Calais, and Folkestone, 26 miles from German-held Boulogne.

Deny Calais Taken

The War Office gave only a meager account of the actual fighting for the channel ports but a London source denied the German claim to have taken Calais.

A communique merely said British troops went to the assistance of their Belgian allies when the Germans launched a strong offensive against the left flank of the Allied armies in northern France and Belgium. It disclosed that British tanks were in action against Nazi mechanized forces.

A series of communiques from the Air Ministry were more detailed. The most important of these described a four-hour battle over the French coast between Calais and Dunkerque yesterday morning in which 20 German planes were shot down and 20 more put out of action, against a loss of only five British planes.

Other week-end operations, the communique said, accounted for 60 Nazi bombers and fighting planes either brought down or damaged, while Royal Air Force bombers renewed their raids on the Rhineland and the German rear lines, destroying a gasoline and ammuntion dump, bombing German supply lines, important bridges, roads and railways.

British Destroyer Sunk

At sea, Britain announced loss of two naval vessels, the 1,100-ton destroyer Wessex, victim of Nazi air attack off the French coast, and the 270-ton mine-sweeping trawler Charles Boyes, which struck a German mine. The Wessex, which lost six men and had 15 wounded, was the fourth British destroyer put out of action by bombs and the 12th destroyer lost in the war.

Rifles and uniforms were issued in the London region last night to local defence volunteers — the so-called "parashooters" who have enlisted to help handle the threatened German invasion of Great Britain.

The L.D.V. meanwhile grew by leaps and bounds, at a rate never before achieved by any military body organized in the United Kingdom. Formed hardly more than a week ago, it already numbers 400,000 members.

The force is being given a maximum of local autonomy on the theory that the men on the spot best know how to deal with problems peculiar to their home neighborhoods, and the progress accomplished therefore varies widely in different parts of the country.

Authoritative quarters said, however, that results already achieved were impressive and promised rapidly to become even more so.

The L.D.V. is counted on to maintain continuous guard over specified strategic points, to protect factories and administrative centres against fifth column activities and to harry an invader.

New Chief Has Fine Career

The new Chief, an Ulsterman born on Christmas day, entered the army in 1901, became a Captain in 1911, a Major in 1914, and in the first Great War won the Distinguished Service Order for bravery. He became a Colonel in 1920, a Major General 10 years later, and a Lieutenant General in April, 1936.

Later he commanded the infantry base at Aldershot, and went to France last October as Commander of the First Corps of the B.E.F.

In the first National Day of prayer since Aug. 6, 1918, the King and Queen, together with Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands and Prime Minister Churchill, attended services at Westminster Abbey, where they heard the Archbishop of Canterbury say:-

"The centuries rebuke the fears and calm the anxieties of the hour. Here is the stillness of this church, moved by all the memories which surround us, we commit ourselves and our cause to God."

After describing the dangers now facing the nation as the darkest in its history, the Archbishop continued:-

"We have been called to take our place in a mighty conflict against the powers of evil and we ask God's strength that we may be found worthy of that high calling."

The day's services were marred by only one incident. A woman shouting "peace" interrupted the broadcast of Arthur Cardinal Hinsley's sermon in Westminster Cathedral.

Screaming "murderers!" she was ushered from the church. The British Broadcasting Corporation told the public the incident resulted from the woman's "overwhelming religious emotion" and had no political significance.

Though Ironside relinquished his post to "Devil" Dill, 58-year-old Irishman who has been described as "one of the most able soldiers in the whole British army," and who won fame by crushing the Arab revolt in Palestine, British asserted this in no way was a reflection on Ironside's ability to hold the job as Chief of the Imperial General Staff.

His new post is regarded as equal in importance to that of Lord Gort, Commander-in-Chief of the British field forces in France.

The press approved the High Command changes, which were announced after French Premier Reynaud flew here to consult with Prime Minister Churchill and other members of the war cabinet. It was predicted in well-informed circles that other shifts among high-ranking officers might be made.

Ironside Given Supreme Job

The Daily Express, raising the question "has Ironside gone up or down," commented:—

"General Ironside has moved out of the supreme job in the army—but for this reason:—

"He is given a position of such importance that only the man from the top could have been entrusted with it."

"General Dill has the highest abilities for his new task. In the opinion of some he is in certain respects our best soldier.

"The public may be assured that Mr. Churchill's confidence in both is well-founded."

The Express added that Ironside, the man who revitalized the Gibraltar defences, "must now turn the whole British islands into another rock of Gibraltar"

The Daily Mail said:—

"These two great soldiers now are in their right places, in positions where their eminent abilities can be used to the best service of the nation"

In supplanting General Ironside, who succeeds 63-year-old General Sir Walter Kirke as anti-invasion chief, Dill moves up from the post of Vice-Chief of the Imperial General Staff, a position to which he was named last month to "relieve the strain" on Ironside.

SIR JOHN DILL CHIEF OF STAFF

Sir Edmund Ironside Removed from High Command to Post of Chief of Home Defences

London, May 27—(CP-Cable)— The Press gave approval today to the changes in the British High Command which made General Sir John Dill chief of the Imperial General Staff, replacing General Sir Edmund Ironside, who became Commander in Chief of the Home Defences.

The Express' commentator said General Ironside's transfer "means the battlefield is moving toward Britain" and the man who revitalized the Gibraltar defences "must now turn the whole British islands into another Rock of Gibraltar."

The paper's lengthy editorial said the move was not concerned with events across the channel because Viscount Gort, Commander of the British forces in the field, is under command of General Weygand rather than the chief of the Imperial General staff.

The Times was non-committal about the changes, referring to them in one paragraph of an editorial on the general situation. It said General Dill was the "inevitable choice if changes were considered desirable." And General Ironside's new task also is one of extreme difficulty and responsibility.

The News Chronicle said General Dill's appointment was one in which the country could have full confidence. The Telegraph said the new staff chief had the complete confidence of the army and the war cabinet could rely on his judgment.

"These two great soldiers are now in their right places, in positions where their eminent abilities can be used to the best service of the nation," the Mail said.

FOUR TEEN-AGED BOYS ARRESTED BY LOCAL POLICE

Series of Break-ins on East Hill in Last Few Weeks Probably Solved by Apprehension

REMANDED WEEK

Crown Attorney Comments on Fact There is No Juvenile Detention Room in City

Belleville's phantom-burglar, a will o' the wisp marauder, who has been terrorizing the residents of the east hill sector with repeated entrances into private homes, operated for the last time Sunday night when Belleville police arrested four 'teen-aged boys at their respective homes. The apprehension of the quartette came suddenly and as the result of nearly a month of continued police investigations. Twice over the week-end, what had been termed as "the phantom-burglar tactics" failed to function as the marauders did not gain entrance to two homes. It was shortly after an attempt was made to enter a house at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Albert Street, that Constables Evans and Arnott apprehended one of four 'teen-aged boys and later took three more of the same age from their homes under arrest.

Shortly after midnight at the police station last night the youthful quartette made separate statements to Sergeant Arthur Harman. Although police refused to comment on the statements received it was learned that the juvenile burglars were not operating as a unit, but rather two or three would commit an offence one night, while on another occasion one or two would move into action. It is believed that their statements clear up the majority of the break-ins that have been centralized on the east hill, and have caused considerable anxiety among the residents of the district. The alleged ringleader of the gang stated that he had thrown all of the house keys taken into the Moira River last night. Police say the lads failed to gain entrance into the home of Mrs. E. N. Baker, Queen Street, on Saturday night, and again failed in a break-in on Victoria Ave. last night.

Appear in Court

Today the quartette appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in City Juvenile Court on charges of breaking and entering and theft. The boys were not asked to plead. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., asking a week's enlargement in the cases. Three of the lads' mothers were present in the court and made their presence known in tearful grief. The boys were all 15 years of age. As there is no juvenile detention room in Belleville the quartette of youthful delinquents were given into the custody of their parents, with strict instructions from Magistrate Butler to keep the boys off the streets of Belleville at night. Their cases will be heard next week.

Inspector T. D. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society, was present in court and when asked if he could place the boys in custody, Mr. Ruston stated the C.A.S. had no juvenile detention room, but that the city must provide one for its own use. "I would suggest you bring this matter before the Police Commission, your Worship," urged Crown Attorney Donnan, directing his words towards the Bench in suggesting that Belleville provide a detention room for juvenile delinquents.

Special Keys Used

Since the innovation of the work of the so-called phantom-burglar in Belleville, householders in the eastern section of the city have taken precautions by installing the newest and most up-to-date burglar-proof locks as a measure to stop the increased number of break-ins, that up until last night had even puzzled the police.

"When three or four boys enter into such a life of crime as this and they do not operate together on each occasion, it is difficult for the police to cope with their efforts. However, we have been reasonably certain that the break-ins were the work of juveniles ever since last week and it was only after the two unsuccessful attempts over the week-end and a careful observation that we were able to make the arrests and clear the case up so promptly," commented Chief Kidd today.

Some seventeen break-ins are attributed to the work of this quartette, police say.

PRINCE WILHELM DIES OF WOUNDS

Oldest Son of Crown Prince Frederich Wilhelm and Was Wounded in Flanders

Berlin, May 27—(AP) — The death of Prince Wilhelm of Prussia from a wound while fighting in Flanders was announced today. He was the oldest son of former Crown Prince Fredrich Wilhelm and the second Hohenzollern victim of the war.

The other member of the House of Hohenzollern to die was Prince Oscar, cousin of Prince Wilhelm. Oscar fell on the Polish front.

Wilhelm received a heavy abdominal wound in fighting in Flanders on May 23. He was hurried to a military hospital near Brussels where he died Sunday moning after being decorated with the Iron Cross, first class.

Wilhelm was born July 4, 1906, in Marmor Palace.

He was married June 3, 1933, to Dorothea Von Salviati, descendant of an Italian family which emigrated from northern Italy to Prussia during the reign of Frederick the Great. He met her at Bonn, during his student days of 1927-29, and in Bonn they were married.

They had two daughters—Princess Felicitas, born at Bonn June 7, 1934 and Princess Christa, born at the castle of Klein-Obisch, Oct. 31, 1936.

Prince Wilhelm was a first lieutenant commanding a company of infantry.

Full Military Honors Paid Flight - Lieutenant H. R. McBurney at Funeral at Air Station

Trenton, May 27. — (Special) — Struck by a motor car at the Dufferin Avenue and Dundas Street inter-section on Saturday night, Russell Yarrow, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Yarrow of Trenton died later in the Belleville hospital from fatal head injuries suffered in the crash. The youth was riding a bicycle, when the car hit him. Leo Dube of Trenton, the driver of the car, was charged with reckless driving following the accident. He was held in jail by local police until last night, when he was released on bail. Young Yarrow a messenger boy for a local merchant was returning from a trip when he was struck. An ambulance rushed him to the hospital but he died a short time after admittance despite the efforts of surgeons to save his life. Earl Wood, Mrs. E. Fulford and Thomas Cain Sr., witnessed the accident. Trenton Police are in charge of the investigation. Young Yarrow a popular boy in the community is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Yarrow of Sidney Street, also, one sister Mrs. Adrian Sills and two brothers, Wilbert and Harry all of Trenton. The funeral for the youth will take place from the Salvation Army Citadel on Tuesday and burial will be made in Bayside Cemetery. Capt. Hewitt will officiate.

Flight Lieutenant McBurney

The funeral ceremony was solemnized in front of the masthead at the Trenton Royal Canadian Air Force Station here yesterday afternoon for Flight Lieutenant H. R. McBurney, who was killed in a flying accident on the airfield on Friday night, when the Harvard trainer in which he was flying crashed after striking a wind sock on the boundary line of the field. Sergeant Pilot Al Cheesman of Port Arthur, Canada's famous 'flying alderman' was in the rear cockpit of the ill-fated craft and escaped with a few cuts and bruises. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Province, chaplain of the Air Station. The cortege moved slowly away from the air base and along Highway No: 2 to the upper railroad depot, where Flight Lieutenant McBurney's remains were placed aboard a westbound train for Saskatoon. Flight Lieutenant McBurney is survived by his parents and two brothers, Wing Commander Relph Edward McBurney, Ottawa, and Dr. Donald McBurney of Geraldton, Ont.

Honourary pallbearers were — Flight Lieutenants D. R. Bradshaw, E. M. Mitchell, K. B. Hodson, and Flying Officers M. Lipton and J. D. McKnight. Pallbearers were—Sergt.-Pilots W. M. MacRitchie, F. M. Henderson, J. Wynn, . A. Bodway, R. W. Lovey and Sergt. J. E. Wilson.

Jimmy Kerr and Don Wright Called to Colours

Jimmy Kerr Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kerr and Donald Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hedley Wright have been called-up under the new British Commonwealth Air Training Scheme and are awaiting further instructions from headquarters at Ottawa. The boys obtained their civil aviation license earlier this year at Kingston where they learned to fly at a training school there. After graduating the youths came home and since have been waiting for their call to arms. They expect to start a R.C.A.F. course on June 10th.

Golf Season Opened

The Trenton golfing season officially opened on May 24., when members took part in club competition. The course was in excellent condition for the occasion but the weather was far from being ideal. It rained most of the morning and the sun only peeked out from behind a cloud for a short time later in the afternoon. The opening day turn-out indicated that the Trenton organization is in for a banner year this term.

GENERALS OF THE FIRST AND SECOND WORLD WARS

Marshal Ferdinand Foch—63

Gen. Sir Douglas Haig—53

Gen. Paul von Hindenburg—67

Gen. Erich von Ludendorff—49

Marshal Maxime Weygand—73

Gen. Lord Gort—53

Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch—56

General William Keitel—56

In the first world war it was Germany who turned to its retired military leader General Paul von Beneckendorf and von Hindenberg, then 67, in seeking victory against the Allies. The task proved too great for Hindenberg and his comparatively young chief-of-staff, General Erich von Ludendorff. Now France has called its military genius, General Maxime Weygand, from retirement to lead the Allied armies. Marshal Ferdinand Foch is reported to have said on his deathbed, "If ever France is again in peril send for Weygand. He has never been beaten." By a strange coincidence the chief of the British forces, General Lord Gort, is the same age as was Sir Douglas Haig, who commanded the British forces in the last war. The average age of leading world war generals, TOP ROW, was 58. The four most important military leaders of the present struggle, BOTTOM ROW, average 59 years of age.

TACTICS CRITICIZED

General Andre Corap, divisional commander of what Prime Minister Paul Reynaud described in the French Senate as the "Corap army," which Reynaud said was a major factor in the break through of the German invaders along the Meuse river. Describing failure to hold defences in that area, Reynaud said, "more than half the Corap army divisions had not yet reached the Meuse, although they had the shortest movement to make as they were close to the pivot."

Paris. May 28.—(CP)—The Belgian Army surrendered to Germany today on order of King Leopold III, leaving the armies of Great Britain and France in an ominously weaker position to resist the Nazi drive toward the English channel.

The Allies lost the military support of about 250,000 men in 18 Belgian divisions and the French port of Dunkerque, where supplies have been reaching the hemmed-in Allied Armies, was left undefended.

Belgium's unconditional surrender was announced to the startled French nation by Premier Reynaud in a bitterly sarcastic speech in which he called the action "without precedent in history".

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Temperate zones! "Temperate" is hardly the word for the climate in most parts of these zones, for the extremes of summer and winter are certainly not temperate in many areas in them. The average annual temperature of the temperate zones lies somewhere between those of the frigid and torrid zones. There are many areas in the so-called temperate zones where the summer afternoon temperatures often rise higher than those within the tropics, as the interior of continents; and also where the cold of winter rivals that of the polar regions, as in northeast Siberia where the temperatures go lower than in any other place in the world where human beings live.

King Leopold is Denounced By French Press For His Action

His Abandonment of Allies Without Warning in Face of Nazi Attacks Rouses Frenchmen

ACT CALLED 'TREASON'

The French press today denounced King Leopold of the Belgians as a traitor for abandoning his allies without warning in the face of German attack.

L'Intransigeant said:—

"The King of the Belgians may find temporary shelter under the German boot. But he will suffer the opprobrium of the world.

"However difficult the extra effort imposed on us by his felony, we shall find a way to stave off this new attack, the most cowardly of all, and shall find strength even in our disgust for him."

Paris-Soir said:—

"The unbelievable treason of the son of a valiant knight provoked anger and consternation in the French public. These feelings are justified.

"All those who have a loved one fighting at the front will never forget that the Sovereign criminal has today allowed our heroic soldiers and their valiant British comrades to be stricken in the back by the enemy.

"Belgium unanimously splits off from its king. A Belgian Army will be raised in France and will fight at our side. Let us not blame this man's fault on the Belgian refugees in France, who are his first victims.

"Those Belgians, without homes, without support, without country and henceforth without a king, who are our guests, may rest assured that nothing will change in the brotherly welcome that has been extended to them."

Paris, May 28—(AP)—Shouts of "treason!" and "pro-German!" were heard in the streets of Paris today when Frenchmen learned of the capitulation of King Leopold 111 of the Belgians.

The man in the street automatically contrasted Leopold's action with the four-year dogged stand of his father, "the beloved and fearless" Albert.

The French recalled how their frontiers had been opened to millions of Belgian refugees.

But French morale apparently has not been shaken.

"We've been betrayed from within and betrayed from without but we'll win just the same" seemed to be the general reaction.

EMERGENCY STEPS FOR EXPANSION OF CANADIAN ARMY

Fourth Division Announced With 30,000 to be Recruited Immediately

Ottawa, May 28—(CP) — The military crisis abroad has altered the course of Canada's war plans, making necessary emergency steps for expansion of the army and air force and an increasing tempo for the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

The House of Commons received this word from Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his war ministers yesterday. It followed close on announcements of accelerated war endeavor given the House last week.

Preparations for formation of a 4th division of the Canadian Active Service Force are included in plans to enlist upwards of 30,000 army recruits immediately.

To the Royal Canadian Air Force some 5,000 airmen will be added.

GANANOQUE FIRM GIVEN CONTRACT

Order of $1,500,000 Placed for Manufacture of Link Trainers

Ottawa, May 28—(CP) — The British Air Ministry has placed a $1,500,000 order for Link trainers with the Link Manufactuing Co. of Gananoque, Ont., it was learned today from the Department of Munitions and Supply.

There were no other details of the contract available. It is presumed that many of the Link trainers will be used in this country in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. The machines are utilized in early training of pilots to give them initial instruction in aerial manoeuvres without leaving the ground.

Strong and Powerful America Only Assurance Against War

Trenton, N.J., May 28 (AP). — James H. R. Cromwell, defending his pro-ally speech in Toronto Mar. 19 when he was United States Minister to Canada, said today it was "a very quiet alarm indeed" in the light of world events of the past few weeks.

Cromwell, who resigned his diplomatic post to become Democratic candidate for the United States Senate from New Jersey, said in a keynote speech for the Democratic State convention.

"I had dared before election day to tell the truth and thereby to create the suspicion in the minds of my fellow countrymen that perhaps the soothsayers had lulled them into a false security."

He said he had felt compelled to warn Americans "of the grave threat to our peace, prosperity and democratic institutions. I was convinced that there was no safety in smug complacency. I knew that the outcome of this war was a matter of vital importance to our people."

Cromwell, who was reprimanded for the speech by State Secretary Cordell Hull, pledged himself to support the foreign policy of President Roosevelt and the Secretary. That policy, he said, was to employ "every means, short, of war to assure the success of Allied arms."

"How are we going to defend our coasts if Hitler wins and takes over the British fleet?" Cromwell asked in a question directed at "isolationists" among whom he included his Republican opponent for the Senate post, United States Senator W. Warren Barbour.

Barbour's reaction to his Toronto speech, Cromwell declared, was to call it "warmongering". This he denied, asserting subsequent events must have made Barbour wish the remark "had never been uttered".

"A strong and powerful America," he said, "is the only assurance against devastation and destruction of war."

Access to Inner Harbor Gained by Blowing Bridges Under Machine-Gun Fire at Few Hundred Yards Range

London, May 28 —(CP)— An epic story of the removal of British troops from Boulogne by the Royal Navy, with German bombs and guns causing severe casualties, was disclosed today in a report by a naval eyewitness.

He said the forces were withdrawn from the seaport by British destroyers under a constant hail of bombs and fire from field guns, machine - guns and pompoms (multi-barrel anti-aircraft guns.)

Boulogne fell to the Germans Sunday.

Lindbergh Ceases To be Member Lafayette Esquadrille

Trench and Air Association Withdraw Honorary Membership Conferred in 1927

Paris, May 28 —(AP)— Honorary membership in the Lafayette Escadrille conferred on Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh after his 1927 Atlantic crossing was withdrawn today by order of the Trench and Air Association of American volunteer combatants in the French army in 1914-18, representing former pilots of the Escadrille.

The Association announced its action was the result of Lindbergh's speech of last Saturday, which it classified as "definitely opposed to the spirit of the American volunteers of the Lafayette Escadrille and Foreign Legion who rushed to the defence of France in 1914."

The Association's announcement said the title of honorary member was conferred on Lindbergh "in a moment of enthusiasm—mistaken but understandable."

The former pilots of the Lafayette Escadrille's announcement concluded:

"We believe that his words are an insult to the memory of the comrades who fell on the field of honor and who rest in the crypt of the Lafayette Escadrille monument at Garches."

U. S. Army Plane Crashes Near Mojave, California—One Seriously Injured

March Field, Calif., May 28.—(CP)—Two officers and a crew of four in a Douglas Bomber were killed last night in a crash near Mojave, Calif.

One man, Sergt. John B. Stewart of Midway, Ala., survived the crash but he was injured seriously. He was flown to hospital in San Francisco early today.

Those killed were—

Second Lieut. Jess A. Smith, 30; Second Lieut. Charles A. Nisbett, 25; Sergt. Thurman T. Owens, Private Wayne G. Kaufman; Private Doyle H. Bean, and Private Eugene A. Schulz.

The plane, a B-18 Douglas Bomber, was on a night bombing mission.

Southward Push By British Force Believed Probable

London, May 28—(CP)— British military sources expressed belief today that the British Expeditionary Force in France faces two alternatives, to drive southward in an effort to join the French forces massing along the Aisne River, or to retire upon the Channel ports.

The military sources viewed the position as of "the utmost gravity."

It was stated either movement could involve the sacrifice of some stores of ammunition, material and guns.

A push toward the Channel would mean that troops would gather to be taken off in transports or warships to be landed at other points in France or in Britain.

A southward push by land was believed the most probable plan. When completed it would mean the Allies could mount a general offensive northward against the German armies holding The Netherlands, Belgium and the occupied area of France.

Belgian Government Had No Part in Capitulation by Leopold, Pierlot Says

GOV'T BROADCAST

Paris, May 28 —(AP)— Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot broadcast a declaration today that Belgium's government had no part in the capitulation of King Leopold III and "the act of one man does not commit the entire nation."

Pierlot, speaking over the French radio, said the Belgian government had decided to continue the battle against the Germans and had ordered reorganization of the Belgian army in France, as Premier Reynaud previously had announced.

All Belgian forces will be placed at the disposal of the French command, the Belgian Premier said.

Paris, May 28 (CP-Havas).—"Among our youth a new army will be raised to fight faithfully at the side of the Allies in our common cause and for the liberty and independence of the fatherland," Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot said in a radio speech today repudiating King Leopold's capitulation to the Germans.

London, May 28—(CP) — The British people today heard unflinchingly that Belgium had capitulated on orders of King Leopold and that British and French forces are fighting alone on Flanders Fields under conditions of the utmost gravity."

No immediate official comment was forthcoming on the Belgian action but huge headlines spread the news across front pages, including one, indicating the nation's typical reaction, which said: "Action taken behind backs of his Allies."

The government rushed ahead with its preparations to meet any eventuality by arming 400,000 "parashooters" to help the regular army throw out any possible invaders and by dividing the country into 800 food areas.

The Press frankly told the public the military situation in northern France and Flanders was serious and that the Germans were pouring men and machines into a tremendous push designed to encircle the British Expeditionary Force.

Britain and France Will Fight Their Way 'Through Disaster and Grief' to Ultimate Defeat of Germany, Prime Minister Declares in Commons — House Cheers as He Tells How Britain and France Had Dissociated Themselves from King Leopold's Approach to German Government for Armistice

SITUATION VERY 'GRAVE'

Prime Minister Tells How Belgian Army Ceased to Resist Enemy at 4 a.m.—Mr. Churchill Declares That the 'Feeling of Brotherhood of People Who Have Fallen Under or Met German Aggression Will Play Its Part in Better Days' — Praises Bravery of Belgian Army

By J. F. SANDERSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer))

London, May 28 (CP).—The capitulation of the Belgian army will make no difference in the determination of Great Britain and France to fight their way "through disaster and grief" to the ultimate defeat of Germany, Prime Minister Churchill declared in the House of Commons today.

While cries of "Shame! Shame!" echoed through the crowded chamber, the prime minister told of King Leopold suing for a cessation of hostilities.

Those derisive cries turned to prolonged cheering when he added that Britain and France had expressly dissociated themselves from the approach of the German government.

British Force In Good Heart.

Despite their precarious position, the British Expeditionary Force are "in good heart and fighting with the utmost energy," Mr. Churchill said.

The prime minister's voice took on added emphasis as he concluded that "nothing which may happen in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves."

"Nor should it," he added, "destroy our confidence in our power to make our way, as on former occasions in our history, through disaster and through grief to the ultimate defeat of our enemy."

Not Passing Judgment Now.

"I have no intention to suggest to the House that we should attempt at this moment to pass judgment on the action of the King of the Belgians in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the Belgian army," Mr. Churchill declared.

Cries of "shame" followed the prime minister's opening announcement of Belgium's capitulation.

Mr. Churchill said the Belgian government had dissociated itself

3 MILLION DOLLARS ADVANCE FOR PLANES

Seattle, May 28—(AP) — A $3,000,000 advance payment for airplanes, to finance expansion of the Boeing Aircraft Company plant here, was reported yesterday by Jay Morrison, assistant to the president of the company. The sum is a partial payment on 300 Douglas bombers which the Boeing company recently contracted to build.

Text of Statement By Mr. Churchill In British Commons

London, May 28 (AP).—Text of Prime Minister Churchill's statement in the House of Commons today follows:

The House will be aware that the King of the Belgians yesterday sent a plenipotentiary to the German command asking for suspension of arms on the Belgian front.

The British and French governments instructed their generals immediately to dissociate themselves from this procedure, and to persevere with the operations in which they are now engaged.

The German command agreed to the Belgian proposals and the Belgians ceased to resist the enemy's will at four o'clock this morning. I have no intention of suggesting to the House that we should attempt at this moment to pass judgment on the action of the King of the Belgians in his capacity as commander in chief of the Belgian army.

This army fought very bravely, and both suffered and inflicted heavy losses. The Belgian government has dissociated itself from the act and declared itself to be the only legal government of Belgium and formally announced its resolve to continue the war by the side of the Allies, who came to the aid of Belgium on her urgent appeal.

Whatever our feelings from facts so far known to us, we must remember that that sense of brotherhood between the many peoples who have fallen into the power of the aggressor and those who still confront him will play its part in better days than those through which we are passing.

The situation of the British and French armies now engaged in a most severe struggle and beset on three sides and from the air is evidently extremely grave.

Surrender of the Belgian army in this manner adds appreciably to the grievous peril, but our troops are in good heart and fighting with the utmost discipline and tenacity. I shall, of course, abstain from comment on what, with the powerful assistance of The Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force, they are doing or hope to do. I expect to make a statement to the House on the general position when the result of the intense struggle now going on can be known and measured.

This, perhaps, may not be until the beginning of next week.

Meanwhile, the House must prepare itself for hard and heavy tidings. I have only to add that nothing which can happen in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves, nor can it destroy our confidence in our power to make our way—as on former occasions in our history—through disaster and grief to ultimate defeat of our enemy.

The lilac, one of the most popular ornamental shrubs cultivated in North America is again in full bloom. The flowers of this shrub, the large bluish colored conical panicles so well known in this country, have a delicious odor while the wood of the shrub is very fine-grained and is used for inlaying, turning and the making of small articles. The common lilac, of which there are many varieties, often reaches a height of 20 feet.

TWEED STEEL PLANT AT FULL CAPACITY

In line with the Canadian government's decision to speed up Canada's war effort, Kingston's one industry working on a big war order, the Kingston Shipbuilding Company, will work a seven-day week as long as it is deemed necessary.

Sunday men worked on the naval patrol vessel, which is being constructed at the Kingston Shipbuilding Company. Work also continued uninterrupted May 24 with the work coming along well and much of the steel has been put in place.

The Tweed Steel Works have received a large order from the Department of Munitions and Supplies for military training camps. This company will also run night and day to make the necessary early deliveries as ordered by the Department of Munitions and Supply, necessitating the addition of extra employees to take care of the new order.

POLICE PROBING POISONING OF DOGS

The finding of two dead dogs in the seventh concession of Sidney late yesterday led to police investigation. Provincial Constable W. E. Smith opened the probe and on investigation found that the canines had been destroyed by the taking of strychnine. The dogs were the property of H. Carlette and Leo Ryan, neighbors. A dead cat was also found. Provincial Police are of the opinion that the strychnine was placed for the purpose of the destruction of at least one dog but the other animals became innocent victims of the alleged setting out of the poison. Additional investigations are in progress.

Police Blotter

Several motorists were summoned into court after being apprehended in violation of the city traffic ordinances yesterday. Infractions of transporting excessive loads on trucks, excessive speeding and motorists who failed to observe the city "stop street" signs, were among those to receive court summonses today. "Drivers of motor vehicles must come to realize sooner or later that these traffic regulations are enacted to be observed and court charges will continue until the violation of these regulations cease," warned Chief Kidd this morning.

A lone inebriate and eleven transients shared the cell block at the police station last night. The former was remanded to the custody of the county jail after appearing before H. B. Wilson, Justice of the Peace, on a charge of drunkenness today.

City police are continuing their investigations looking into the question of several local break-ins and today it was revealed that satisfactory progress was being made in the cases.

Survey of Gas Situation In City Being Conducted His Worship Tells Council

Lengthy Discussion Precedes Announcement and Motion is Passed

DELEGATION HEARD

J. V. Doyle Appointed to Board of Health to Fill Unexpired Term of Geo. H. Griffin

After a lengthy discussion had taken place relative to Gas Plant and its operation, at the regular meeting of the City Council on Monday night a resolution was introduced by Alderman Armstrong, "that owing to a misunderstanding relative to the operation of the Belleville Gas Utility, and the rumors, that a program relative to the discontinuing of the operation of this utility be dismissed by the Belleville Utilities as the rumors are not in the best interests of the Utility and we would suggest that a statement should be made to the public by the Utilities that it is the intention to continue operation of the Gas Plant and any action taken to discontinue operation of the plant, full details will be submitted to the taxpayers for their approval either at the annual election or by special vote," was unanimously passed by the Council with the opinion that although the Commission may have announced formerly they would continue the operation of the gas plant, it would again set the rumors at rest.

A delegation composed of ex-Alderman B. F. Jennings and representative business men and women of the city waited on the council with Mr. Jennings as their spokesman and after his address the meeting was thrown open for general discussion. In part Mr. Jennings stated:

Monday evening, April 15th, you will recall that a citizens' delegation came to this council with the expressed purpose of making sure of the continued operation of our gas plant.

Mr. Wesley, who addressed the council that evening, clearly stated what we wanted. This address was carefully prepared, that no doubt as to its meaning would later arise in the minds of the Council, the Public Utilities Commission or the general public.

Following the address we were told by the Mayor, to take our grievance to the Commission, and that if we did not get satisfaction, to then return to the council when our matter would receive the attention and some action by the council. We took your advice, asking the Commission for an early meeting, but did not get an appointment until May 21st. In the notice to attend we were requested to put our questions in writing. This we did. Three members of our Citizens' Committee attended the meeting. Though our questions were immediately taken up there was some hesitation about answering them. We suggested, after a period of discussion, that the members of the commission consider the questions further, after the delegation left, furnishing us a written report in time for this meeting with the council tonight. Up to now no such report has been received by us.

Of General Interest

You are wondering what those questions were. In our several opinions, each question was of general interest. I have a copy with me and shall hand it to you after the talk is finished. We would have liked to include the letter and questions in this address, but are passing them on to you instead.

After these questions are brought up in Committee of the Whole and given due consideration by the council, if you find they are of sufficient interest and importance, you are at liberty to give them to the Press, if you wish.

Tonight we have brought you another deputation, made up of members of the Chamber of Commerce Directorate, other citizens, as well as several industrialists. These last mentioned, if for any reason our gas utility discontinued operation, would face having to make material capital expenditures with consequent inconvenience and loss while making alterations to their respective plants. In one case, we are told that a forced change would cost around two thousand dollars. More than this firm would care to arrange for in these times. As a matter of fact, this particular equipment could not be had until after the war. The result would be obvious.

This body, the Belleville City Council, and every business man or person who has given this matter consideration, know that action to conserve this utility must not be delayed.

Want to Save Utility

We have been questioned as to how many are interested in the matter we now have under discussion. Who and how many make up your delegations or committees? Whether there are few or many in this deputation, is of no significance. Every person interested in the welfare of our city, whether present or absent, is wholeheartedly supporting this movement to save this utility.

You in authority hold the key to the solution—the necessary funds.

If the gas plant is not to be sacrificed, your response must be immediate. If this financial help is given by this body, certain provisions must be asked in return. What ought those provisions be? Just plain business commonsense ones. No business can be run blindly. Certain basic principles underlie successful operation and management of every modern business. Therefore, every angle must be carefully examined, so that no unnecessary moves are made in outlining the provisions. Several of these provisions suggest themselves at once. They are as follows:

Provisions Asked

Provision No. 1 A thorough survey or investigation of the entire gas system should be made by a gas expert; nothing less.

Provision No. 2. An agreement must be entered into, that an experienced sales and service man shall be regularly employed.

Provision No. 3. There should be another agreement that citizens should be consistently informed through advertising, of recent great improvements made in gas ranges, water heaters, and other equipment, such as gas furnaces.

Provision No. 4. There must be given to the gas user, the same assistance the electric user gets.

We have now carefully gone over the situation that confronts us, which is more or less stated in detail. At least part of what we think ought to be done.

Now we state what we consider important reasons why the gas utility should be continued in operation.

1. It would be good business, in order to uphold the city's prestige, at least in some degree, otherwise our city would fall into the category of a has-been—a second-rater.

2. To save the confusion and distress, if not continued.

3. And highly important; to assist as far as possible in reducing the great debt of approximately $175,000 still unpaid.

Confusion and distress have been mentioned. Let me explain.

We are given to understand that a change can not be made in less than one and a half to two days That means wiring alone. There are between seven hundred to perhaps seven hundred and fifty domestic services. How could this necessary work be done under 30 to 60 days? The cost would run into thousands of dollars. The cost alone would work a hardship on many people that could ill-afford it. We assure you that the picture is not overdrawn.

Not Asking Impossible is Claim

This delegation has come to you, not to ask the impossible, but to make a constructive proposal toward the solution of this difficult problem. This being our one aim and desire, we now wish to present our plan, which we sincerely hope will be of assistance, and received in the spirit in which it is offered.

Our proposal is that you enact two by-laws. The first one to read roughly, as follows:

That the people be given an opportunity at the next municipal election, to vote the rturn of the gas utility to the management and care of the city. Also that the City Council be empowered to make contract with private capital, if at any time found desirable.

That at the same time another by-law be enacted that the people may vote the return of the water utility, to the city.

Could Control Funds

With the return of the two utilities to the municipality, the City Council would then be able to control funds that never should have been diverted. What is most important, more of the total earnings would be made available.

In the meantime, or until the end of this year, 1940, we see no other way than for the Council to supply sufficient funds to make the necessary repairs to the plant.

Our impression is that if there are not sufficient funds in the hands of the Commission, that the City Council will be obliged to guarantee excess operating costs, until such time as the utility is returned to the municipality.

I feel quite sure that you will receive our suggestions and proposals, as one citizen to another.

Any questions you may wish to ask will be gladly answered if I am able, or at liberty to do so.

I now wish to thank the Mayor and members of the council for the courtesy extended in receiving this deputation.

Mayor Thompson—"Your committee appeared before the Commission on May 21st. and the questions that you asked were laid on the table some fifteen minutes before the Commission met and ample time was not given to fully discuss the whole question. I never heard that the plant was going to be closed and I don't think the Council has any right to put the taxpayers' money into this plant until the Commission has washed their hands of the whole scheme."

Ald. Pringle—"What was the attitude of the Commission to your proposals?"

Mr. Jennings—"I am not at liberty to make a statement due to the fact that the answers given would not be used in public."

Mayor Thompson—"Every time we mention gas and it gets in the paper, we lose more customers."

Mr. Jennings—"What do you do when a business is not paying and goes bad?"

Mayor Thompson—"Make an assignment I guess."

Ald. Pringle—"The Mayor has given us the assurance that the plant will not be closed."

Mr. Jennings asked permission of the Mayor to repeat an answer given by the Commission and receiving permission he stated that it was stated if the plant breaks down then it will be carried on by the Commission for a period of three months and the plant is in danger of breaking down."

Need Use of Gas

Mr. Arthur Young—"With the gas as it is at present we have not been using all the gas we could use at the Stewart-Warner-Alemite plant. Some equipment has been turned over for the use of oil but there are definitely some processes that need the use of gas. As a company we would like to use gas but it is impossible under the present state."

Mr. Jennings—"The fault of the present situation is largely one of meters I have been told by an expert. In many cases the meters are slow and thus the city is not deriving the full revenue from the gas produced.

Mayor Thompson—"Then you are suggesting that your only trouble is in the management of the Gas Plant. Probably you did not know it but there is an expert in the city at the present time making a survey."

Mr. Young—"I am not criticising the management of the Gas Plant and my only reason for being here is to find out if there will be sufficient gas for my Company to use.

Like to Meet Commission

Ald. Rollins—"I would like to see this same delegation here tonight meet the Commission and demand that they get some action. I think the whole situation should be given to the public at the next general election and the question clarified once and for all."

Mr. Jennings—"We were cautioned not to come with a large delegation."

Mayor Thompson—"Who cautioned?"

Mr. Jennings—"The Chairman of the Commission."

Ald. Haig—"I think we as a Council should go a little farther than the Mayor has gone. This gas plant belongs to the citizens and if the Commission won't do anything about it then I think the Council should take a hand. I am not prepared to say whether the management by the Commission has been good or bad, but I do think the Gas Plant has been given a courteous, efficient and painless death for a good number of years and the Council should tell the citizens if the plant is going to be closed and that a survey be made and make the report of the survey public and that the citizens should be given two questions to decide: First, if they want the plant closed, and secondly, if they want the Gas Plant operated by the Commission or the City Council."

This ended the discussion and the motion formerly given was introduced and passed.

Ask for Grant

Mr. H. Legate and Mr. J. L. Jewell appeared before council asking for a grant of $50 to assist in defraying the expenses of a banquet that will be tendered the Bandmasters, who will visit the city for their annual convention this summer. Mr. Legate explained that the banquet would cost $100 and that $25 had been donated by the Retail Merchants' Association and $25 by the Chamber of Commerce and he asked that the Council supply the remainder of the money. Mayor Thompson informed the delegation that the matter would be given earnest consideration by the Council.

A delegation headed by ex-Ald. Laurie Lewis, veterans and representative citizens waited on the council requesting their attendance at a meeting to be held in Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon next when the question supporting the war effort of Canada to the hilt will be discussed. Mr. Lewis explained that the meeting would not be one of protest but one asking for a greater effort on the part of Canada in prosecution of the war. Mr. Crerar also spoke to the motion and Mayor Thompson stated that the council would give the matter consideration. After the delegation left the members of the Council were agreed they would not attend in a body providing the meeting was one of indignation and protest.

Alderman Harvey thought that the Council should be behind the meeting 100 per cent. as the boys over there were fighting for us and that we should see to it that the City of Belleville is fully behind the Motherland in her fight for freedom.

Ask Better Lighting

The Retail Merchants at an executive meeting on Thursday night last requested the Council to do something about better lighting for Front Street and suggested that through the summer months from June 1st. to September 30th. that the special lighting system on the streets be used at an approximate cost of $85 per month. This request was forwarded to the City Council and the members referred the matter back to the committee for further consideration. The Council concurred in a resolution that any person convicted of subversive activities be defranchised and requested that legislation to that effect be passed by the Ontario government.

The contract of J. B. Boyce for a chassis at a cost of $876.06 for the Fire Department was accepted. The Kinsmen Club was granted the use of North Front Street hill for their annual Kid Kar Derby. A light will be placed on the last pole on Ridley Avenue. The police station will be re-roofed and the tenders already submitted will be referred to the Chairman of the Market and City Property, the City Engineer and the Comptroller with power to act.

Aldermen Rollins, Armstrong, Clarke, Butler and the City Solicitor and the City Engineer will be a committee to investigate the request of certain citizens with respect to traffic on West Bridge St. The delegation on this matter appeared before the Council at the last regular meeting and complained of the noise made by the large transports in trying to negotiate the West Bridge St. hill.

Asked to Prepare Lists

The City Engineer was instructed to prepare a list of all special "No Parking" signs issued to private citizens or corporations and why the same were ganted. Aldermen Kennedy, Cooper, the City Engineer and Chairman of Public Works, Ald. Harry Rollins, were appointed as a Special Oiling Committee. Milk vendors will be supplied with only one licence plate and any additional plate issued will be at the rate of 20 cents each. The Belleville Hospital Auxiliary was grated September 14th as a tag day for their work in connection with the Belleville General Hospital. The Police Commission was requested to arrange for new uniforms for the Police Force to be won during the summer months and also that the commission be notified that in the opinion of the council each employee of the Police Department have one day in seven as a holiday. The City Solicitor was instructed to prepare a by-law for the collection of rags and refuse.

J. V. Doyle was appointed to the local Board of Health and Mr. Doyle will fill the unexpired term of George H. Griffin, who was called from the city to accept a more responsible position with the C.N.R. Deeds of conveyance were given to Catherine Watson, Victor White, H. C. Reid and Thomas Royle. Under the heading of inquiries Alderman Harvey asked the Chairman of Labor what was being done to protect labor in the city? Alderman Harvey was in the chair for the committee of the whole.

Letter Received

A letter was received from R. E. Perry, owner of Belle IVila, which stated: "Just opposite that large Belle Villa sign that surrounds a tree, on Highland Avenue, there is a section of the sidewalk, which has tilted up at the outside edge towards the street, and the result is it forms a water pocket, which is rather unsightly as well as messy and I was wondering if anything could be done about it so that it would drain off? In front of my lot is the mecca for hitch-hikers, the like of which I have never witnessed in all my rambling over the greater part of Eastern Canada and Eastern States, and it is bad enough to have to clean up all kinds of rubbish daily which is left behind by these people. This stopping of cars on a curve of a traffic artery as busy as No. 2 entrance and exit at the west end of the city is in my opinion a very dangerous practice." The letter was referred to the Police Department and Mr. Perry advised that action will be taken.

Potential Oldfields Prepare For Kinsmen Kid Car Derby

Backyards, kitchens, garages and other buildings throughout the city resounded to the clatter of hammers and other tools today as the potential Barney Oldfields of the city went into action on construction of the cars which they hope will carry them to victory in the forthcoming Kinsmen Club Soap-Box Derby.

The incentive of a free trip to Akron, Ohio, where the ultimate winner will vie with other ambitious young drivers for the International Championship, has fired local youngsters with an enthusiasm that dims the spirit of former years. The entry list is practically complete and within a few days the wheels, and axles, which are being donated by the Club men to bona fide entrants will be in the hands of the proud young drivers. Parents will be asked to sign a guarantee that their offspring will carry out his agreement to construct and enter a car. Failure to have the car ready at least ten days before the day of the race, July 9th., will automatically bring forfeiture of the wheels and axles.

Committees Functioning

Meantime the members of the sponsoring club are showing as much enthusiasm as are their young proteges. Committees are functioning rapidly and present indications point to not only a record crowd attending the annual sports classic of the Kinsmen, but one of the most closely contested races since the inception of the event here four years ago.

But behind the enthusiasm of the members of the club is a deeper feeling. The Eye Clinic, one of the forms of service work undertaken by the organization, which provides eye treatment and glasses for underprivileged children of the district, is badly in need of funds, and on the response of the public attending the Soap Box Derby will rest the responsibility of providing this much needed service to the kiddies.

Doing Fine Work

Already the Kinsmen have done a noble work among the children of the city, as school nurses will testify, but the need is still great and much work along these lines remains to be done. The Kinsmen spare no expense in providing special and other treatment for these kiddies and finances are urgently needed.

President Geoffrey Marvell urges that all who attend the Soap Box Derby give as generously as they can. The funds will be devoted in their entirety to the Eye Clinic Fund.

CANADA TO AID BRITAIN, FRANCE WITH REFUGEES

Chief Problem at Present is Finding Transportation for Them to Dominion

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Ottawa, May 28 (CP)—The government has decided to assist in relieving both Great Britain and France of refugees but the chief problem at present is finding transportation for them to the Dominion, Prime Minister Mackenzie King indicated in the Commons yesterday.

Answering questions concerning the government's attitude on the refugee question, posed by Dr. H. A. Bruce (Con., Toronto-Parkdale), Mr. King said:

"With respect to the first part of this question, namely, as to whether or not the government has decided to relieve Great Britain and France of the burden of their thousands of refugees, the answer in the matter is one, the main concern of which is connected with transportation. The decision to assist in relieving both Great Britain and France of refugees was made some time ago.

Concerned With Means

"Concerning the second part of the question, as to whether or not the government has set up the machinery necessary to give this immediate effect, the answer is, as I have indicated, that in the main the government has been concerned in finding a means whereby at this particular time some of the refugees can be brought to this country.

"Concerning the third question, as to how many refugees the government has contemplated bringing to Canada, the answer is that that will be a matter to be decided as time goes on."

In the Senate, Conservative leader Meighen asked government leader Dandurand what the government's attitude was towards welcoming to Canada anyone who may desire to come from Britain or France.

"I am not referring to the general refugee problem but solely to those who may wish to come out to Canada from those two countries" he said. "I feel there would be no request made by Britain or France and the proposal must come first from this country."

Senator Dandurand said he would obtain the information at cabinet today.

ANTI-SABOTAGE GUARDS PLACED

Hydro-Electric Plants Along International Boundary Better Protected

Ottawa, May 28—(CP) — The Dominion Government strengthened anti-sabotage guards of Ontario Hydro-Electric plants along the international boundary by "certain military distributions" made over the week-end, Defence Minister Rogers told parliament Monday.

The posting of soldiers, said Mr. Rogers, followed consultation with the Ontario Government.

Norman J. Lockhart (Con., Lincoln), raised the question by declaring that Hydro plants supplying vital power to industries in other parts of Ontario were inadequately protected against sabotage, particularly in view of the large influx of tourists expected shortly from the United States.

In particular, said Mr. Lockhart, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police guard over the Welland Canal was far from adequate. From a personal investigation over the week-end he had learned there were one R.C.M.P. guard at some points and two in others, which he contrasted to the protective measures the United States, "who aren't even at war," had taken at the Sault Ste. Marie locks on the American side.

Mr. Lockhart declared the guards in the Niagara peninsula might well be increased "100 fold" and pointed out that 12,000,000 tons of goods had passed through the Welland Canal last season.

Rypa Tank Trainer Provides Real Test For Marksmanship

Threading a needle, while riding a dipsy-doodle in an amusement during an earthquake is a cinch compared to operating a machine gun on a tank. At least that was the impression received during a demonstration of a training device set up in the local Armouries and which is used by the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) to promote accuracy in their tank-gunner's shooting abilities.

The complicated machine, the "Rypa" Tank Trainer, is designed to produce conditions similar to the actual operation of a tank during wartime activity and resembles a cross between a fire-control tower on a battleship and the rear platform on an old-fashioned streetcar. When in motion the machine is intended to make the gunner think that he is on the inside of a tank travelling over rough terrain. It gyrates in several directions mechanically, and had a small-calibre rible mounted in place of the regular tank-gun with which the gunner tries to concentrate on his target.

The machine in itself would be of no benefit without something to shoot at, so army-men have devised the "Pellet" range which works as a counter-part of the tank trainer. At the far end of this range about 30 feet away there is a white sheet used as a background across which numerous targets travel automatically, propelled by a system of ropes driven by an electric motor.

Idea is to Hit Targets

The general idea is for the gunner sitting in the machine to hit these little targets as they travel across the range with the tank trainer all the while indulging in lateral, horizontal and diagonal movement. The gunner has some control of his machine and can follow the target across the range by spinning a little wheel but to the tyro, who is just learning the ropes it all seems a bit intricate.

Although it is possible to display an adequate, if not startling, performance, while the machine remains still, when it is set in motion, it is a problem to keep the gun concentrated on the target. Just as the gunner thinks he has everything under control and his rifle aimed directly at the objective, which is supposedly the enemy tank some distance away, the innards of the machine give a couple of clanks and instead of having a bead on his target, he has some corner of the building covered, that lies several points to starboard of his intended objective. Briefly gunners not only miss the little black spot, but if the truth were to come out, possibly the backstop as well.

And yet there are tank gunners, who will bet the beers anytime that they can put three shots out of five into that little moving black spot.

Britain Prepared to Meet Invader With Calmness and Courage Says R. B. Bennett

London, May 28 (CP-Cable)—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett told Canadians last night that Britons are calm despite the proximity of Nazi invaders and that while Britain's position is serious it is "not disastrous."

Canada's former Prime Minister, in a broadcast to the Dominion, said that "the enemy is within striking distance of our shores but there is no sign of panic on the part of the people of these islands."

"With calmness and courage they prepare to meet the invader," he said. "Never was their determination greater, their courage more striking, their calmness more apparent."

Mr. Bennett drew a picture of a country at war—marching men, planes droning in a blue sky, buildings protected against air attack. Sentries on the alert, parks converted into air raid shelters.

He said the Commonwealth's response to the Empire's call of war vindicated the policy of British statesmen of the past who bestowed on newly-settled communities their natural resources.

Best Answer to Claim

"The richness of that heritage administered by the governments selected from amongst their own people brings no financial return to these islands and it is the best possible answer to the German claim that Britain acquired vast overseas territories merely to exploit them," he declared.

The courage of the people here is strengthened by the contribution of men and materials from the descendants of those who founded the new settlements beyond the seas, Mr. Bennett said.

"Nothing gives Britain greater joy than the thought that those to whom they entrusted the fullest measure of freedom, even foes of other days, have justified by their spontaneous response the confidence reposed alike in the Boer of South Africa and the French of Canada," he said.

"This island may be besieged — invaded—its buildings and treasures destroyed, but the spirit of its people is invincible and will not be conquered."

Many demands, Mr. Bennett said, would be made upon the peoples of the Empire, but sustained by the determination of the people of the British Isles, the Allies' effort will preserve the world from the domination of Hitlerism.

FISH ESCAPE POND

Benkelman, Neb., May 27 (CP)—City officials stocked their new park pond with several thousand fish last summer, but when it was opened recently youngsters complained they couldn't catch anything. Mayor J McDonald found nearly all the fish had escaped through a drain pipe.

U.S. Equally Responsible With British Empire in Upholding International Law States Ex-Mayor of Watertown

John R. Harris Addresses Rotary Club on New Order in Civic Affairs and Unbalance of Economic Forces in the World

FAULTY DISTRIBUTION

The responsibility of the United States in upholding international law is equally great with that of the British Empire, John R. Harris, former mayor of Watertown, N. Y., and president of the Mayors' Conference of New York State, told the Belleville Rotary Club at their regular weekly luncheon Monday.

"Before international law can be restored the great navies of the world must take their places side by side against men whose word cannot be trusted," Mr. Harris declared. He expressed a belief that the ascendency of might over right could never prevail, and that justice must ultimately triumph. The great majority of the people of the United States had come to a realization of their country's responsibility and were ready to uphold it.

Mr. Harris' remarks were preliminary to an enlightening address on the new order in civic affairs. He spoke of the unbalance in recent years in civic, political and economic forces. The civic government was the foundation upon which national government rested, and if civic government was unstable it was inevitable that a similar condition would prevail in national administration, Mr. Harris asserted.

A few years ago the Mayors' Conference of New York State had been formed with the object of exchanging ideas and experiences in civic administration. This conference had developed rapidly and now a Bureau of Municipal Information is maintained at Albany where information and suggestions on all matters pertaining to civic administration is available to those bearing responsibilities of civic government. Also there had been established some 23 training schools for civic officials of all types, including schools for policemen and firemen.

The Mayors' Conference also initiated studies of problems common to all municipalities, said Mr. Harris. He instanced the problem of civic insurance. He said that, without knowing it, one municipality was paying fire insurance on a marble statue, while another was paying theft insurance on the police station. Rates had been regularized and reduced as a result of the investigation.

The next step planned was the establishment of a university of civic affairs. Altogether, said Mr. Harris, the Mayors' Conference had proven the greatest step forward to better civic government in New York State.

The speaker then turned to a discussion of the unbalance of economic forces in the world.

When Columbus discovered America he had glimpsed the Indians running naked through the bounties nature had created. Today, said Mr. Harris, people are lost amidst the things man had created. He had mastered the problem of production without mastering the problem of distribution; consequently the great mass of people are without the wealth to purchase the good produced.

The capitalistic system, asserted Mr. Harris, was capable of creating even greater wealth. People must be taught how to possess a share of the means of production so that they will have the income with which to purchase the increasing quantity of goods produced. Years ago most industry and commerce was on an individual basis, with deeds marking possession. The small factory and small shop now have become part of the new order with its huge factories and great stores.

People, said Mr. Harris, have lost the knowledge of how to enter into ownership. When they again possessed stock certificates, as they once possessed deeds, then would democracy of production and consumption be assured. The speaker suggested that one of Rotary's functions might well be the teaching of sound economics. Further, he said, economics and finance should be subjects taught in our public schools. Even as the Greeks developed the arch to support great weights, so must we develop an educational and spiritual arch to uphold the vast productive facilities that steadily are being developed.

Mr. Harris was introduced by J. C. McCormick of Watertown Rotary Club, and District Governor J. Owen Herity voiced the appreciation of Belleville Rotary for an inspiring and instructive address. McLean Haig introduced the guests who included: Messrs. Harris, McCormick, George Berow and Cecil Aiken of Watertown Rotary; G. F. Knight of New York City, Clare Northey of Trenton, Mac Gordon of Peterborough, and Raymond Lennox of Belleville.

President Howard Clarke, in the chair, announced that the meeting to formulate plans for the Rotary Regatta on Civic Holiday would be held on Monday night, June 3rd.

Young Scotsman Finds Trying to Get Into The Army Difficult

"My people are in Scotland, and I am going to help defend them if I have to walk to Montreal and swim to England," a clean-cut young man, given a ride to Picton from Belleville recently by Mr. George A. Reid, of this city, told his highway host.

He had originally come from Peterborough, the young Scotsman told Mr. Reid, but had failed to join a military unit there because no recruiting was going on. Hearing that recruits were needed in Madoc, he walked to that village but again met with disappointment. He turned his face toward Belleville — again no luck.

"This is my last attempt to enlist here" he said. "If I cannot join with the Picton unit, I am going to Montreal, secure some sort of passage on a boat and get to Scotland where I will rejoin my old Territorial unit". He had been in Canada five years, he said, and had had considerable experience in the militia.

New Registration Of Man Power Adds 600,000

London, May 28—(CP)—Great Britain called her men aged 28 and 29 last night for military service under a plan to put British war machinery into high gear.

The 28-year-olds are to be registered June 15 and the 29-year-olds a week later, it was announced.

The new registration is expected to add 600,000 men to the armed forces and raise the army to the 3,000,000 mark.

Informed sources here said the decision to register two classes within a week resulted from the government's desire to have available a sufficient number of men to meet any call.

DROWNED IN SOUTH SASKATCHEWAN RIVER

Saskatoon, May 27.—(CP)—Bobby Reid, 15, drowned Saturday in the South Saskatchewan River when the boat in which he was paddling with Arthur Coumont, 16, overturned. Jack Coughlin, 16, saw the accident from the River Bank and, plunging into the water, managed to rescue Coumont who could not swim.

Madoc

Madoc — On Friday evening, May 24th, the young Men's Club at Madoc treated the boys and girls to an hour's fun in the Thompson Memorial Park with a splendid exhibition of fire works. By the sounds of merriment and cheer that came from the park, the club and their leader, Mr. C. Foster are to be commended on the splendid evening's event that gave so much pleasure to the young folk.

Mr. Don Kinlock of Oshawa and Mrs. Olive Wilson of Belleville spent Sunday with their father, Mr. J. Kinlock.

Mrs. Latimer and Mr. Ross Latimer of Peterboro spent Sunday with Mrs. E. J. West.

Miss Olga Wilson of Toronto spent the week end with her uncle, Mr. Jas. Burns.

VISITOR SAYS BELLEVILLE GIRLS BEST DRESSED

He's been everywhere and he keeps his eyes open. When he praised the way Belleville girls dressed we asked him whether it was their hats or their dresses that impressed him.

"Well", he hedged, "that well dressed impression just seems to start from the ground up." So we looked them over from the ground up and we saw what he meant.

It was the Nugget shine on their shoes, of course, just as we had suspected. It just goes to show that the first step in well dressed appearance is a smart, lasting Nugget shine.—Adv.

HIS MEAL INCLUDES 8 ROAST BEEF DINNERS

New London, Conn., May 27 (AP)—On a bet Frank Mariani ordered and ate: Two bowls of soup, three portions of spaghetti and meat balls, eight roast beef dinners with potatoes and vegetables and a roast chicken, all washed down with four glasses of beer. He said he'd like dessert, only sweets disagree with him.

Wooler

Wooler — When Mr. Everett Ellis was on his way home from Trenton, little Marlene, daughter of Mr. John Anderson, Front Street, ran from the house into the side of his car and sustained a bruised shoulder, also cut her lip.

Mr. and Mrs. Stillman Terrill were callers one day this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dafoe, Belleville.

The Women's Institute met at the home of Miss Edith Austin to talk over plans of the year's work.

BRITAIN, FRANCE BATTLE ON FOR WORLD CAUSE

Capitulation of the Belgian army at the order of King Leopold III has caused the greatest sensation of the war. The Belgian Government immediately disassociated itself from the action of the King as Commander-in-Chief of the Belgian army and declared itself the only government of the country. Prime Minister Churchill stated that the capitulation of the Belgian troops did not alter British and French determination to fight on to the defeat of Germany.

The development indicates the extreme gravity of the situation as there are large armies of British and French who have been in the sector with the Belgians. It is the future of these armies and the question of the Channel ports which concern the British and French peoples.

Britain and France have adjusted themselves to the situation.

In spite of the heavy blow, the British and French peoples are undismayed though greatly surprised and disappointed. They carry on the struggle against the Germans with all the energy of which they are capable.

Criticism of the King of the Belgians has been outspoken in some circles and in newspapers. Others see that he has been under a terrific strain as King and general. Prime Minister Churchill paid a tribute to the Belgian army which has fought "very bravely" and "suffered and inflicted heavy losses." He said that there would be no attempt at this moment to pass judgment on the action of the King of the Belgians as commander-in-chief of the Belgian army. Rt. Hon. Alfred Duff Cooper also suggested withholding of judgment on the development. Belgian leaders are said to be particularly bitter against King Leopold.

The Belgian Government is endeavoring to form a new army and has promised all its resources to the Allies. The British Expeditionary Force is in good heart.

Again the fact is hammered into the minds and hearts of the peoples that upon Britain and France has rested and will continue to rest the greater share of the burden of defeating the Germans. That fact has never been doubted but it is made clear again with the development in Belgium, when King Leopold sent a plenipotentiary to the Germans asking for an armistice.

The words of Mr. Churchill express the spirit of the two democracies—"Nothing which may happen in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves." Britain will "make her way, as on former occasions in our history, through disaster and through grief to the ultimate defeat of our enemy."

TWO GROUPS OF PICTURES

Two groups of pictures appeared in an American newspaper the other day. The one group shows photographs of Adolf Hitler conferring with his generals and of Hitler being cheered by his troops as he enters a town somewhere in the west war zone.

Against this group are set two pictures of human suffering caused by the Nazis through their war aimed at the conquest of the world. One shows an Allied soldier in a hospital near London, the other shows a group of refugees reaching an undisclosed port in the haven of Great Britain. Here are aged women carrying all they have left in the world in a satchel or grip, and younger persons, whose dream of the glory of life has faded for the time being in the fiery savagery of the Hun desecrator of life.

The German pictures show the Nazi leaders and reveal glorification of the Nazis' deeds. This war is shown by the picture released by the German censor as a war of self-gratification of those who rule Germany. No one could have exposed more clearly the Nazi spirit than the German censor has done in the photograph of the Fuehrer, leaning over the front of a car as he is driven through the town, receiving the acclaim of his soldiers.

The pictures passed by the British censor show what a crime rests on the German Government in the treatment of the innocent peoples who have been driven from their homes. Others have been driven along the roads where the German columns use them for shields against attack.

MANY TOURISTS ARE EXPECTED DURING SUMMER

Canada stands ready to welcome what is expected to be the greatest tourist year in her history for with the foreshortening of travel possible for those who seek recreation in other lands, American citizens, it is believed, will seize the opportunity to visit the Dominion. Every effort is being made to stimulate the visit of the good neighbors to the South to see Canada in every aspect. This land has the features of a vast territory which may be explored with lasting influence on the visitors. There will be no restriction on the visit of bona fide visitors and Canadians will extend every hospitality.

The President of the United States has asked Americans to make this year a visiting year, the Prime Minister of Canada has extended a welcome to Americans to visit the Dominion. There should as a consequence be a greater number of U.S. tourists here than ever before.

One factor which will help Canada and Americans, too, is the fact there is a premium on the U.S. dollar. It will help Canada by bringing in a great many U.S. dollars which are of great value in purchases today and it will help Americans by the amount of exchange which will be allowed visitors from the United States.

Canadians like to welcome their American cousins and to show them what Canada is and has.

Preventing Melancholia at Menopause

Until very recently, most women looked toward the change of life, menopause, with great misgiving, as about four of every five women suffer with nervousness, hot flushes, excess amount of bleeding, and more or less mental depression. Fortunately, the discovery that extract of ovary, by making the "change" more gradual, has greatly lessened the degree of the symptoms, and women are able to attend church or other gatherings with some comfort.

One of the distressing symptoms of the menopause is great depression, melancholia, in many cases becoming so severe that the patients have to enter a mental hospital for months and years. By the use of estrogen—extract of ovary — prescribed by the family physician, most of these severe cases are now controlled and the patient is able to remain at home with her loved ones.

A recent report on the splendid results from treatment by estrogen is reported by Dr. J. B. Dynes, Boston, in Archives of Neurology and Psychiatry, Chicago.

Dr. Dynes gave large doses of the extract by injection into the muscles to seven patients with melancholia due to the menopause. The extract amount of activity produced by the estrogen was determined by certain tests. The patients' improvement or failure to improve was in exact relation to the results found by these tests.

The lessening and gradual disappearance of the acute agitation and tension occurred from two to five weeks after the beginning of the use of estrogen. Only two of the patients failed to respond to the treatment owing to lack of the natural body changes that should have occurred during the menopause.

There was apparently no way, either mental or physical, by which it can be foretold with certainty what benefit will result from the estrogen treatment.

"However every patient presenting definite evidence of melancholia due to the menopause should be given adequate treatment by estrogen".

I am again speaking of estrogen and how it helps women at the menopause, because there are still many who do not know about it. The family physician is now able to help his patient at this critical time.

Vision of King George

Some time ago, long before the outbreak of the present European war, I wrote you a letter concerning a vision I saw in the sky. The heavens wee streaked with red and there appeared to be guns mounted on the hillsides. I am not an interpreter of dreams or visions, but at that time I predicted the coming of conflict.

The other day I saw another vision here in Pensacola, Florida, while walking down Palafox street. I glanced at the sky and it seemed to be full of golden crowns. It looked something like a gigantic snowflake. I looked more closely and then I saw, in the very midst of this blittering display, the perfect likeness of King George of England in what appeared to be pure gold.

I cannot interpret the meaning of this golden image, but I do wish I knew.—From a letter by Mrs. Florence Post, Pensacola, Florida, to the Detroit News.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 28th., 1920.

About one hundred and twenty years ago, Capt. John Walden Meyers, a United Empire Loyalist, started the first industry in this vicinity by erecting a mill on the river bank. The river was then called Singleton's River, the Indian name being Sagonaskaon. Later on the river took the name of the man who was the first to make use of its power for industrial development and was called Meyers' Creek and later the Moira. Capt. John Walden Meyers built the first brick house in Upper Canada upon the brow of the hill here across the road from the residence owned and occupied by Mr. D. M. Waters. The Meyers' house has long since disappeared.

Mr. James Wills of Toronto spent the holiday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wills, Yeomans Street.

30 YEARS AGO

Mrs. Archibald Ponton has returned to Belleville to spend the summer.

Mr. H. Gilbert Parker has left for Vancouver, B. C., in the interests of the English journals which he represents and will be absent from the city for five weeks.

Daniel Foretells Adolf Hitler

Daniel foretold Hitler, according to Right Hon. Ernest Brown, Secretary of State for Scotland. In mact, the Bible has quite a lot to say about him.

Addressing the 1,500 delegates at the opening of the Baptist Union Assembly at the City Temple, Mr. Brown said a young man recently asked what the Bible had to say about Hitler.

"I told him," declared Mr. Brown, "you will find it in James Moffatt's translation of the 11th chapter of Daniel, verse 21. It is an intimate account and career of a tyrant and it reads:

"'A despicable creature shall arise, one on whom the royal honor is not conferred, but who comes when men are off their guard and gains the kingdom by means of crafty promises.

"'He shall work deceitfully. He rises to power by aid only of a small party. When men are off their guard he attacks the leaders in each province.

"'He shall scatter prey, plunder and property among his followers. He shall exult himself and magnify himself. For he shall magnify himself above all.

"'He shall not heed the gods of his fathers....or any other god, for he shall exult himself above all gods.

"'But he shall honor the god of forces.

"'His favorites he shall advance to high power and make them rulers over the masses.

"'His heart was against the Holy Covenant.

"'Yet he shall come to his end and none shall help him.'"

"He Seems to be Annoyed"

Some day, my ill-mannered friend, you are going to go too far. Some day when you swerve around a street corner, you are going to clip the buttons off the wrong pedestrian's vest, and he is going to catch up with you, haul you off your comfy upholstery and deal you the smacking-down you deserve.

You're a vertible Titan of self-assurance, aren't you, when you're behind an eight-cylinedr engine? But how do you look on your feet? Are you the same dashing, imposing, self-assertive personage for whom the rest of the world must make room? Would you dare shove another pedestrian aside; would you jostle a sixfooter? You would not, for you're just a grubby little inferiority complex who's been sublimated by a shot of gasoline.

And what's the reason for this breakneck rush of yours, anyway? You're in an automobile. You'll arrive at your destination 10, 15 or 20 times quicker than the pedestrian you're crowding back on to the curb. The best he can do is five or six miles an hour. You are going 25 or 30, perhaps 40 miles an hour. Is your business ten times more urgent than his? My, my, what an important fellow you are! What vast designs, what momentous projects must occupy your waking hours to justify such impatience.

The automobile, it seems, is the devil's gift to the Little Man. Put him in control of a motor car and he's cock o' the cross-walks. But if you suddenly yanked that ton or two of iron and steel out from under him, you'd find him just a measly momentity with the mental setup of a public school bully.

You may say I'm in a bad frame of mind. You're right. And I'll get over it when fellows like you begin to use a little care, caution, courtesy and common-sense when you're driving on the streets and highways of this province—An Angry Pedestrian writes in the Stratford Beacon-Herald.

The Nazi Pace

At the beginning of the third week of Hitler's lightning war it is still permitted—in fact, it is one's duty—to keep up heart. For us, the watchers, it is not a case of standing around waiting for a miracle on the battifield. There is nothing else we the outsiders can do in the next few days except wait and hope; and perhaps the thing we hope for is something less than a miracle.

One way to keep up heart is to argue, bold as it may seem on the face of the returns, that the German Blitzkrieg is not quite as "blitz" as in the crisis of the moment we are apt to assume. In other words, the Allies are in great danger, but after all they are not pitted against an enemy incomparably more powerful and more swift than were the Germans in 1914. Those motorized columns of Hitler's have made good time to the Channel, but the pace of the German march on Paris in 1914 was very fast too.

The Nazi army may be travelling one half as fast again as von Kluck's army did in August, 1914, but the Nazis are not moving five or ten times as fast as they did in 1914; which is the state of mind into which we are apt to fall when the news is at its worst.

One difference between the 1914 time-table and today's is that the present war started with the armies completely mobilized and concentrated, whereas in 1914 it was ten days after the formal war declarations before the French and Germans came into serious contact. It was on Aug. 15, 1914, that the Battle of the Frontiers began. That would be the 1914 base line corresponding to Friday a fortnight ago when the Germans marched into Holland. Corresponding to this present date, May 25, 1940, the point in the other crisis would be Aug. 31, 1914. Where were the Germans on that day in 1914?

That was the day when von Kluck made his historic swerve away from Paris to the east; and his scouts were then less tran twenty miles from the French capital. In those days before the Blitzkrieg the German Army performed some extraordinary maches—on foot; as for that matter they did last September in Poland, according to Berlin's proud claims. Roughly, one might say that in 1914 the Germans between Brussels and Paris made almost as good time as the Nazi motorized columns between the Meuse and the Channel this week.

That is as far as one need carry the argument. It may be that Hitler by now has won his war, but it is not something that one can predicate on the mere basis of his blitz tempo. The Allies, by their own confession, are in greater danger than they ever were in the last war, but it is not because they are confronting an enemy speed with which there has hitherto been no comparison. In 1914, three weeks after the declaration of war, eleven days after the first great clash of the armies, the Germans thought they had the war won. They began shipping army divisions from France to the Russian front.

It was the defeat of Poland in eighteen days last September that brought Blitzkrieg to the fore, with its hurtling bombing planes, its high-speed tanks, its "steel fingers" slashing and ripping through the enemy. But in the older style Germany would probably have beaten Poland in approximately eighteen days. In 1866 Prussia overwhelmed Austria in fifteen days. In 1870 the Germans overwhelmed France and took Napoleon III prisoner in thirty-two days.

Today the Allies stand in grave peril against German speed and momentum. But the German impact is not incomparably greater than anything hitherto known; not incomparably greater than the German rush of 1914, which in the end broke down. This is all that can be said, but it is permissible to say it.—N. Y. Times.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

If the Allies Lose

S. S. Washington, May 23.

If the Allies lose this war it will prove to be the worst catastrophe for the United States in our whole history.

Four empires—the British, the French, the Belgium and the Dutch—with their vast raw material resources and markets in Africa, Asia and throughout the world will have fallen into the lap of the Nazis, with sops thrown to Mussolini for his willingness to act as foreign Gauleiter No. 1.

This world empire, of a size undreamed of by Caesar or Napoleon, will feed raw materials into a huge European workshop drained of capital, and will produce goods by enslaved skilled and unskilled labor working under taskmasters as maximum hours and subsistence wages; it will dump these goods at prices with which no free country can possibly compete.

The idea that North America can hold South America economically under these conditions is illusory. The very products of which South America has a surplus are the products of which we, too, have a surplus. The markets of South America have always been chiefly in Europe, and Hitler's Europe will buy South American products in exchange for armaments, machinery and consumers' goods offered at prices with which we cannot compete unless we cut our own standards of life to the bone.

x x x

The economic drive which we have already seen on a large scale will be carried forward on a stupendous world scale and will be accompanied by a political and propaganda campaign through fifth columns, augmented by every commercial agent.

The fall in the standard of living, and the loss of markets and possibly even sources of raw material such as rubber and tin will produce new unemployment in America and social unrest, which these fifth columns will systematically inflame.

In the crises they will set class against class, race against race and party against party. Old racial and national allegiances ill be appealed to, and America will escape this war only to risk the worst kind of war: Revolution—civil war — fomented from without and carried on through agents within.

What America risks is to be turned into another Spain!

x x x

It is hard to write what one sees, what one has seen coming, irresistably and ruthlessly and encountering only the resistance of words, for seven long years of nightmare. There is another fifth caolumn, and perhaps it is the most dangerous of all. It is found in those who pooh-pooh the danger and strangle the words in the throats of the warners by wisecracks. They tap their foreheads and smile in a superior way, whispering sympathetically, "hysterical," "poor fellow—a little cracked; he sees bogies." "Why does he speak so loudly?" Or they look severe and say "if he keeps on talking about this he will conjure it up. He is inciting to action, and action is dangerous."

They are close to the very entourage of the President, some of them, and they have stripped his own words of much of their strength. He has not dared, either, to tell the whole truth.

One must not tell the people more than they can bear.

Who knows how much truth the people can hear? Do they not in the end see it—in the eyes of the gangster at the door and the bayonet at the breast?

x x x

We should send aid to the Allies now, today. Every airplane that can be shipped, every gun that can be crated, in every ship that can be floated and convoyed, while there is a toehold in Europe where they can men alive offering their bodies to be be landed and while there are still broken. We should send aid regardless of all the mistakes which all the Allied governments have made; for their mistakes are our own mistakes—the errors of incredulity and complacency. They — and we — have been giving away our world, inch by inch and position by position, retreating to the last sand, in the last trench.

The last trench is a trap.

x x x

The war is not lost for a world where men can still live, free and unafraid. It is not going to be lost. But 1,000 airplanes today will be worth 20,000 tomorrow.

Armaments are useless unless one uses them on the right side. Czech armaments equipped forty Nazi divisions and revealed the secrets of the Maginot line. They are being used all right—to kill a Czech legion in France and to keep down the Czechs at home.

The fleet that fights in our interests today will, if captured, be used against us tomorrow.

x x x

Hitler's secret weapon is not a thermite bomb or a surface detonater. It is bacteria all right, but new bacteria: the germs of defeatism. It is his knowledge of the deathly slowness, the childlike credulity, the easygoing complacency of democracies and their apparent incapacity, in the twentieth century, to take an audacious decision in time.

Hitler won his first war against the German Republic and observed then that the characteristic of democracies is that they wake up too late.

The British and French thought they would get really going in 1941.

x x x

This is no time for panic—for the organization of American mothers to receive parachutists! The Nazis won't come to America in parachutes—not for a long time, anyway, and probably never. But they have already been among us for some time, agitating American mothers not to permit us to be drawn into war by sending aid to the Allies.

x x x

What we need are not Minute Ladies with rifles, but a council of national defense with full powers to plan the organization and speeding up of our industries for the most rapid delivery of weapons to England and France—and the delivery of what we have now.

Last Will of Adolf

During the last war there was a Last Will and Testament of the Kaiser — as a matter of fact we printed a number of them and they went to all parts of Ontario. At present there is being circulated in Scotland, the native land of some of the finest jokes in existence, a last will and testament of Adolph Hitler, which reads like this:

This is the Last Will and Detestament of Adolph (Heil) Hitler, made after witnessing his 8,000th performance of the Merry Widow.

I hereby revoke all Peace Treaties and Promises previously made by me Signed Adolph Hitler, Physical and Mental Degenerate. Witnessed by Herr Mein Kamph Herr Gore Reiching, Straffsburg.

I appoint Tommie Atkins to be my sole executioneer.

I give and bequeath.

To Benni Mussi all my Axis to grind—and may he be Heer today—and gone tomorrow.

To The Starving German Population copies of my nursery rhyme, Mein Kampf that they may eat my words.

To my Gallant Air Boys my latest composition Bombs-a-Daisy.

To all those Umbrella-Carrying, Comical-Hatted Politicians who fail to grasp the fact that without Adolph there would be no world—I give my mental home at Eden.

To Russia my eternal hate for Stalin in a march on me!

To The Inquisitive British Navy the whole of my fleet. (Before they help themselves to it!)

To General Goering my famous painting, The Two Mad Dogs of Europe.

To All Married Men my loathing and contempt.

To Slovakia all my Blank Cheques.

To The Memory of Shakespeare my eternal hate for the creation of Shylock.

And.

The Remainder of my belongings I reluctantly give equally between France and Britain.

Tweed — Hon. Dr. J. L. Simpson paid a visit to Tweed Consolidated School on Wednesday afternoon after the ceremony of formally opening St. Carthagh's new Separate School had been concluded.

As a result of the torrential and almost continuous rains of the past few days the level of the waters of Stoco Lake has risen nearly two feet. The precipitation since Thursday has been in excess of four inches according to local figures establishing a record rainfall for this district. Some damage is reported by the farmers of the vicinity as seed grain has been washed out to some extent. Given favourable growing conditions, however, abundant harvest appears certain.

The boys of Mr. Geo. Elwood's Sunday School class of the United Church, numbering about twenty had an enjoyable outing at Silver Lake on Highway No. 7 on the afternoon of Friday, May 24th. Transportation was provided by three cars furnished by Mr. Elwood, Mr. T. N. Beatty and Mr. McNeill. Swimming, softball and other sports were enjoyed by the boys.

Which is You?
Mrs. "A" belongs to a family which uses Hydro power only for lighting and a few small appliances. Still cooking the hard way—with a hot, old-fashioned range—she obviously doesn't know that the more Hydro Power you use, the lower its unit cost.
Mrs. "B" has an Electric Washer, Cleaner, Refrigerator and other appliances. The "B" family uses twice as much Hydro power as the "A" family ... yet because the Hydro rate goes down as the use goes up, their bill is increased only 50 per cent.
Mrs. "C" has many more hours of freedom every day than either of her two neighbours. That's because her kitchen, laundry—every room in the house—is completely electrified. Don't think Mrs. "C" and her family are extravagant! Far from it, they are really thrifty—because they have learned that the fullest use of Hydro service gives the greatest economy. Thanks to Hydro's "step-down" rates, they enjoy six times as much Hydro service as the "A" family—for less than three times the cost. The simple chart below tells the story.
HOW MUCH DOES $3 BUY?
IN MILK: As every housewife knows, $3 buys just three times as much milk as $1 buys. The cost per bottle remains the same.
IN HYDRO SERVICE for the home: $3 per month buys not three times, but approximately SIX TIMES as much Hydro service as $1 per month. Cost per unit drops with increased use.
Nowhere else can you get such a bargain for your money as in the fullest use of Hydro service. For most economical electric service, use more electric appliances in your home and obtain the advantage of the lower unit rate.
N.B.—All cost figures based on domestic rate in use in many Hydro Systems throughout Ontario.

WEDDINGS

SCOTT—HOLDEN

A pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Stirling, on Thursday, May 23rd., at three o'clock, when Dorothy Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Holden, became the bride ot Mr. Ross Gerald Scott, Belleville, son of Mrs. Scott and the late Mr. Scott. The ceremony which took place beneath a lovely arch of evergreen, white lilies and apple blossoms, was performed by the Rev. W. J. Scott, Stirling.

Given in marriage by her father the bride looked charming in her gown of Heavenly blue crepe, with blue veil and white acessories. She carried roses and delphiniums in two tones.

Miss Edna Reid, Belleville, was bridesmaid and was attired in a frock of dusky pink with matching hat, and white accessories. She wore a corsage of pale pink snapdragons and blue cornflowers.

Mr. Roy Juby of Stirling, was groomsman.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Ashley Brooks.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served by five friends of the bride. The bride's mother received her guests wearing navy blue crepe with corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott left on a wedding trip to Kingston and eastern points. The bride travelled in a frock of navy blue with Dubonnet coat and matching hat. Upon their return they will reside at 23 Forin Street Belleville.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting was held at the home of Mrs. S. Kilpatrick on Tuesday, May 21. During the morning a missionary quilt was quilted. At noon fifteen members and one visitor sat down to a sumptuous pot luck dinner served by the hostess and her assistants. Promptly at 2.00 p.m. the President called the gathering to order and opened the meeting. Mrs. Mitz led in prayer. A reading entitled "Dont's" was read. It was decided to order copies of the "Blue Book". Miss Cora Prest group leader No. 1 then took over the meeting. Mrs. Reid gave a reading. Mrs. Lovibond, Mrs. Cooney and Margery Prest took the Watch tower. A paper on Temperance entitled "Repentance" was given by Gwen Reid. Hymn 356 and silent prayer closed the meeting. Proceeds of the last day meeting for the summer months was $4.45.

CANDLE BURNING

By McKEOWN'S DRUG STORE

Living too fast, trying to do too much, working all day and playing all night constitutes what is known as "burning the candle at both ends." The poet was right—"it gives a lovely light" —this rapidly burning candle, but "it will not last the night."

Less Brevity

BY ALICE ALDEN

IT GETS to be very important to little girls whether their frocks are as pretty as Mary Jane's. Some mothers pick up a dress here and there because it's on sale and is the right size. Others take their little daughters on a shopping lark, allowing the youngsters some say in selection. Expense hasn't much to do with it since you can get smart clothes for a song. Hollywood's Peggy Ann Garner wears a blue cotton play suit trimmed with flower-pot pockets. It has a matching smock.

Famous Poem Recalled By Present Battle Going On in Flanders Fields

In view of the seriousness of the battle now raging in Flanders, Belgium, it is inspiring and challenging to recall the memorable lines written by the beloved Canadian soldier, Lt.-Colonel John McCrea, who gave his life for Canada. Lt.-Colonel John McCrae died during the last war while serving with the Canadian forces in Flanders in 1918.

In Flanders Fields

In Flanders fields the poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the dead; short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

U. S. Grant Anecdote a Vivid Comment On Good Taste

The teling of a questionable story is full of social dynamite. You may think that the story is funny but the telling of that obscene or lewd story will at once and inevitably reveal the quality of your mind ,will reveal either that you don't sense the difference between clean humor and dirt, or that you are indifferent to the point of view that decent-minded people may have toward you.

If you have made your choice and wish to tell coarse stories, if you enjoy collecting them and telling them, if you insist on telling them even to people who find them repulsive, probably nothing that anyone can say can change this habit.

But if you're willing to take thought about this, if you're open to persuasion about choosing a cleaner conversational pathway, maybe the great story about General Grant will be the determining influence.

During the Civil War General Grant was presiding over a meeting of army officers. One of the officers, prone to tell questionable stories, began to relate one of his latest finds. To whitewash his lack of good taste, he began, "Since there are no ladies present......" General Grant immediately interrupted, "No, but there are gentlemen."

The officer did not continue his story.

Gift for Daughter-in-Law Elect

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son has become engaged. Please tell me what I should give as an engagement gift? Also what is appropriate for the members of the family to give the engaged couple?

Engagement gifts are usually personal gifts for the bride-elect. One of the most popular gifts for the bridegroom's mother to give is a set of lingerie, embroidered either with the bride's first name (often in the facsimile of her signature) or the initials or monogram of her maiden name. Sometimes the bridegroom's mother gives the bride an especially beautiful handkerchief, lace-decorated, to be carried at her wedding.

Sometimes the other members of the groom's family combine resources to give the bride a set for her dressing-table. A travelling-clock, or a clock for her dressing-table or desk is another suitable gift. Beautifully - monogramed white handkerchiefs are an excellent choice or stockings or gloves for her trousseau. Or a white evening bag or purse to wear with her travelling-suit or a compact, or vanity-case, or a piece of costume jewelry or real jewelry, or an overnight bag or other piece of luggage, or a writing-case. And a most lovely gift is a white "Bride's Book", for the bride-to-be to use for recording her wedding presents.

Monogram Correct

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My engagement was announced about a year ago and before that time I had quite a few linens. Most of my towels have my monogram on them. My fiance's mother tells me that it is not correct to have my monogram on the linens, that I should use my fiance's initial. Do I have to have my monogram ripped out, if it should be possible or shall I leave the linens as they are?

Bride-to-be

I'm happy to be able to tell you that it is thoroughly correct for a bride-to-be to have the initials of her maiden name embroidered on her linens, or engraved on her silver. As a matter of fact, this is the conventional thing to do.

Some brides-to-be do choose to break with convention and use the initials of their names-to-be. This now is also considered correct. But it is the bride herself who chooses which form she is to follow.

Courtesy Tip

In speaking of an invitation, the words "refuse" or "refusing" should not be used. We should say that we "regret" an invitation, which is obviously more polite.

The Stars Say

A PARTICULARLY lively and enterprising day is presaged from the lunar and mutual configurations. The mind will be quick, alert and prone to jump into new-and very constructive channels, where aggressive action may hasten progress, with rich results, but there are certain dangers involved, with elements of trickery, misrepresentation and downright dishonesty. In the personal relations there is definite augury of much social affectional and domestic excitement, with probably romantic adventure. Be wary of small accidents.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very lively and enterprising year, with much stirring in both business and personal relations. The mind will be keen for new ventures and the energies under aggressive stimuli, but avoid dubious, treacherous and illicit entanglements. There are strong auguries for romance, social and emotional stresses, with affairs moving in such direction at high tempo. In this be vigilant as to slight accidents.

A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed for an active, creative and adventurous life, with its personal as well as business life giving much pleasure and gratification.

CHATTERTON W.I.

The Chatterton Women's Institute held the May meeting at the home of Mrs. Ben Bleecker on Tuesday, May 13 with 14 members attending. The business was attended to and it was decided that Mrs. Harry Reid be sent as a delegate to district annual, and that the Institute take aprons for their demonstration. It was also decided to give $2 to the Junior Farmers towards a prize for the Home Improvement Plan.

Mrs. Gerald Frederick then gave a talk "The Parent's Life is the Child's copy book." Mrs. Leonard Prest, gave a talk "a Tribute to Mothers." Mother's Day poems were read by Miss A. Horton, and Mrs. G. Frederick. Meeting closed with Mizpah.

Mrs. Ed. Emerson then took charge of the election of officers for the following year who are as follows: President, Mrs. Bert Finkle; 1st Vice, Mrs. Leonard Prest; Secretary, Miss Aleita Horton; Treasurer, Mrs. Harry Reid; Director, Mrs. Ben Bleecker; Organist, Mrs. Gerald Irvine; Song Leaders, Mrs. B. Mitts and Mrs. Gerald Frederick; Auditors, Mrs. Cadman and Mrs. Leonard Prest; Press Reporters, Mrs. Gerald Frederick and Mrs. Cecil Roes.

Visiting Committee, Mrs. Cadman, Mrs. Will Frederick, Mrs. Demille, Mrs. Carson.

Flower Committee, Mrs. Snider, Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Ross.

Programme Committee: Mrs. Mitts, Mrs. Finkle, Mrs. Prest, Mrs. Will Frederick, Mrs. G. Frederick, Mrs. Emerson, Mrs. Townsend.

The members joined and paid their fees then a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

Mt. Pleasant W.M.S.

The Ladies of Mt. Pleasant W. M. S., W. A. held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. Russel Glass. In the absence of the president Mrs. Frank Treverton, Mrs. John Boldrick took the meeting. Hymn 499 followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. McKenzie. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Charlie Treverton. A letter was read about an invitation to a convention at Victoria. Miss Lottie Goodman was appointed delegate. A reading was given by Mrs. Helen Spencer. The meeting closed with God Save the King.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her helpers and a social half hour was spent.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

No Longer Loves Fiancee

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Four years ago I began going steady with a girl who is just one year my junior. We were very devoted to each other and saw each other every evening.

Then I accepted a chance to be transferred to a larger city at a very good salary. I fell in love with a girl who works in the same building with me. Of course I haven't told my girl back home, but I think a break is necessary, and I want to tell her in a gentlemanly way that I have ceased to care enough for her to marry. I'm only 22 and want to enjoy myself before settling down.

Junior

I'm afraid there isn't any painless way you can tell this girl that you've been enjoying yourself with other girls.

Going "steady", I find, means different things to different people. A positive engagement, sometimes; again, it's a temporary "best girl" arrangement. If you weren't engaged, to this back-home girl, you can drop off gradually in your letter-writing and I'm sure she will understand. However, if you were really engaged, you'll have to tell her in a straightforward, manly way that you find you were mistaken in your feelings.

For gracious' sake, my dear boy, don't become engaged to any girl at present. You're only 22, a divine age at which all girls are fascinating. Wait a bit longer.

Friend Gossips About Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A certain man I once adored has been telling false stories about me and some of them have come back to me. I would like to get in touch with this man to persuade him to stop spreading these rumors about me, but I'm afraid he will tell my husband. He seems to delight in making me miserable.

B.

You haven't told me enough about this affair. Did you "adore" this man before or after you were married? If the latter, I don't wonder at your anxiety.

However, the kiss-and-tell type of man has always been held up by both men and women as the most contemptible of his species, even by people who may listen to what he says. If the rumors are false, the law can stop them.

Suppose you write me more about this affair. In the meantime, please don't worry; that won't help matters.

Doesn't Get Enough Attention

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married for ten years, and my husband has the most maddening habit; When we go out he is forever calling my attention to other girls saying, "Did you ever see such pretty ankles," or, "What a figure that woman has", and other similar remarks.

We may be having what seems a most interesting talk, when all of a sudden he will pipe up with something on an entirely different subject. Let me tell you, Miss Fairfax, other men find me quite amusing, and I could have dates every day in the week if I happened to be one of those two-timing creatures.

I really love this man, but I just can't stand his way of receiving my conversation. His mind always seems to be somewhere else.

Bored

I don't blame you in the least, my dear. Nothing is more maddening than this type of inattention toward the one you've promised to cherish. But don't take it so hard. When you see a good-looking man, admire him first, or you might say, "Once, dear, you were almost as handsome as that man across the street." That'll fetch him, or I miss my guess.

Why take this thing seriously? Your husband is only thinking aloud, and if there were any harm in his thoughts, he'd keep them to himself. If you admire men as against his girls I honestly believe he'll pay more attention to what you're saying.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

CALLANDER Ont., May 28th—I think I must feel today something like a mother does when she sees her "baby" set off to school with books under arm. The Dionne Quintuplets are six years old today and although they haven't left us to go to school, their age signifies that they are lost to us as babies.

It really only seems like yesterday that we were gazing down into the incubators, watching their feeble movements, wondering if by some miracle they would survive. And now they have already completed the five most important years of an individual's education—I quote Dr. Arnold Gesell of Yale in this respect. It is his conclusion after an intensive study of babies and children for 30 years. This is to say, they have spanned the period of life which perhaps influences their lives more than any other period.

In this span the education of the child is usually pretty much in the hands of the mother. At six she is required to turn over much of the responsibility to the school. This is why that first day of school gives many mothers so much of a pang. It is a sign that she has lost a "baby"; it has become a child and is taking a big step toward becoming self-sufficient and freer of its home ties. And, as I say, I suppose my feelings today about the Quins are something like a mother's at the same time.

The Quins were helpless babies longer than normal children. That was because they were so much premature, so riddled with rickets, so poorly equipped for living. Bringing them up the first year or so, was certainly a day by day job. We never planned ahead very far, we didn't stop to think back over yesterday. Even after they got a firmer hold on life and we could begin to think of the next day without dread, all five were slow in their development in nearly all respects. That was natural in premature children, of course but it was nonetheless a constant problem.

Yet the child who is slow, who is backward, who depends more than usual on those caring for him, is apt to get a firmer hold on the heartstrings than the one who walks at a year, talks a few months later, and never is a source of worry.

In those first years we were always on the defensive for our Quins. The whole world was watching them, and when they didn't start walking, talking and doing other things when normal children should, a good many critics wagged knowing heads and declared they knew all along that the five would never be normal.

Well, this last year has pretty well confounded those critics —or should have. During hte year the Quins made their most rapid strides. They have developed in every way. I think the most spectacular evidence was given when they left their nursery, went out among people and calmly travelled down to Toronto to be presented to their King and Queen. The general public could see and came to realize fully for the first time, I think, that the Quins are normal children growing up.

This was followed by another reminder that they are growing up when they began to shed their baby teeth. First Emilie lost her two lower incisors, followed by Marie. Last to lose hers was Yvonne, ordinarily the most progressive of the five.

Entering, as they are, childhood the coming year holds much in store for them. Now of legal school age, their education is in the hands of the department of education for Ontario. This means, among other things, that they will begin the study of English. Up to now, in obedience to the wishes of their parents, they have spoken only French the language of their forbears.

Consideration is being given to a schoolhouse adjacent to the nursery. In the meanwhile they will attend classes in the nursery with other children.

Also now they must know more about religion. Father Victor Pilon the parish priest, visits them every week to give them religious instruction and the time is coming when they will attend mass.

A vitally interesting test of their physical conditions lies ahead of them. They have had few of the normal exposures to disease and infection. Criticis have used my own description of them as "hot house children" against us. But in their early years it was essential that we insulate them against diseases until they were adequately equipped to combat them. Now as they grow older and take up more of the activities of normal children they will be exposed increasingly to infections, of course. I trust they have already built up such an immunity or resistance at the nursery that they won't be any more susceptible than any child of more normal beginnings. This year should show if I am right.

As they continue to grow older and develop they will, of course, have less and less need of the constant attention of 'Le Docteur Dafoe." I hope the day will never come when their need for "Le Docteur Dafoe" will go completely. But as I say, today I feel a good deal like a parent does when his offspring goes away from home for the first time.

DIONNE QUINTS CELEBRATE SIXTH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Famous Five Attend Early Mass and Then Proceed to Have Plenty of Fun

FORMER NURSE PRESENT

Guardians Approve Purchase of $500 Worth of Canadian War Savings Stamps

Callander, Ont., May 28 (CP)—Looking like excited little princesses in new floor-length gowns of taffeta, the Dionne quintuplets today celebrated their sixth birthday.

The famous five attended early morning mass and this afternoon had a riotous birthday party.

The whole family was together for the great occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne and the two grandfathers, Oliver Dionne and Moise Legros, sharing in the fun. Their brothers, Daniel, Oliva Jr. and Victor and sister Pauline, had their part in the festive doings.

The first surprise for the quintuplets came when Judge J. A. Valin, chairman of the Board of Guardians, arrived at the Dafoe nursery in time for the mass, bringing Mrs. Charles MacMillan, the former Molly O'Shaughnessy, long the favorite nurse of the little girls. It was Mrs. MacMillan who took the girls to Toronto last summer when they were presented to the King and Queen.

When she appeared again today Mrs. MacMillan was smothered in kisses and all but swept off her feet by the delighted quintuplets.

The quints were highly excited when they were dressed specially for the occasion in dresses cut on the same style as the gowns they wore for the King and Queen last June. Marie was clad in yellow, Emilie in pink, Cecile in blue, Annette in green and Yvonne in mauve. Each girl carried a rosary into the little chapel.

Grandfather's Present.

The parents and grandfathers received Holy Communion, a religious event which is set for the near future in the lives of the quintuplets themselves.

The Mass was served at an improvised altar in the Dafoe Nursery, special permission having been obtained from the Bishop of Pembroke, Rt. Rev. Leo Nelligan, to transfer candles and the Holy Chalice from the little church in the nearby French-Canadian settlement.

The older Dionnes returned to the nursery this afternoon for the birthday party bringing their gifts for the girls. Part of the gift ceremony was the presentation of the Rosaries which the sisters used at the morning Mass.

Each quintuplet had her own section of the big birthday cake, each section being topped with candles in the same color as the quintuplets' dresses, which not only carried out a nice color scheme but prevented any argument as to which piece was which.

It was announced the quintuplets' board of guardians had approved the purchase of $500 worth of Canadian war savings stamps for the girls.

This is the third contribution to the war effort by the quintuplets. The sum of $1,000 was previously donated to the Canadian Red Cross, and $10,000 was spent in buying Canadian Government War Loan bonds.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

The opening game of the "Midget" Ki-Y Softball League was played at the Queen Mary School grounds when the "Bat Busters" lived true to their names and banged out a well-earned 16-5 victory over the "Flying Hawks."

Scoring eight big runs in the initial frame the winners early proved their superiority with the hickory and continued in the second to score four while they added two in the third and one in the fifth and seventh, as the Hawks tightened down to hold the winners. The Hawks were blanked in the first two innings but shoved across three runs in the third and two in the seventh to end the scoring.

The teams:

Flying Hawks: C. Vesterfelt, L. Phillips, G. Patterson, Spafford, Semark, Young, Stephenson, Weaver and Snell.

Bat Busters: Smith Woodley, Carson, Turner, Potter, Bishop, Clark, Sword, Greatrix Lummiss.

E. Blaker acted as umpire.

WAR BRIEFS

London, May 28—(CP)— Authoritative circles today reported vessels sunk "by enemy action" in the week which ended May 19 included one British ship of 629 tons, three Allied vessels totalling 29,552 tons, and four neutral ships totalling 16,120 tons.

These circles said the German tanker Kattegat, 6,031 tons, and the steamer Rosario, 6,079 tons, had been sunk by the Norwegians, bringing Germany's total shipping losses up to May 19 to around 830,000 tons.

KING OF BELGIANS TOOK COMMAND ON MAY TENTH

On That Day He Said 'Belgium of 1940 Will Resist as That of 1914'

KING 38 YEARS OLD

(By the Canadian Press)

King Leopold III of the Belgians whose order to the Belgian army to surrender to Germany was announced today, took personal command of the forces on May 10 as his father, the late King Albert I, had done in 1914.

He declared that "The Belgium of 1940 will resist the same as that of 1914."

"The power of our country today is infinitely greater than in 1914," he said.

Leopold is 38 years old.

Belgian Resistance in 1919.

The forces led by his father delayed the invasion of the imperial Germany army in 1914 by strong resistance. King Albert remained with his troops until conclusion of the First Great War, commanding an Allied northern force in the later stages.

He died Feb. 17, 1934, in a fall while mountain-climbing near Namur, scene of fierce fighting in the present war.

Leopold, who ascended the throne then, married Princess Astrid of Sweden in 1926. She was injured fatally in August, 1935, when a car driven by the king struck a tree.

Their children, Princess Josephine, 12, Prince Baudouin, 9 and Prince Albert, who will be six next month have been reported safe in a chateau "somewhere in France."

RAISE 3 BILLIONS IN NEW TAXES

Amount to be Raised in Five Years to Pay the Costs of United States Defence

Washington, May 28 —(AP)— The Roosevelt administration and Congressional Leaders agreed today to raise $3,000,000,000 of new taxes in the next five years to pay the costs of United States defence.

The plan, ratified by President Roosevelt, was drafted in a three hour conference by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, Chairman Doughton (Dem-North Carolina) of the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee and Chairman Harrison (Dem-Mississippi) of the Senate Finance Committee.

It calls for the immediate financing of defence costs by the sale of $3,000,000,000 of special 'national defence obligations." It also calls for the levying of additional taxes, amounting to between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 annually for the next five years, the proceeds to be used to retire the "national defence obligations, and pay interest on them.

The conferees agreed to ask the Congress to increase the treasury's $45,000,000,000 debt limit to $48,000,000,000, to make possible the borrowing of the new defence funds.

Mrs. (Capt.) A. Hunter has returned to the city after spending the past six months with her daughter, Mrs. Perley, and the Rev. Mr. Perley in Sidney, B.C., not far from Victoria. Mrs. Hunter, an ardent traveller, has crossed the continent eighteen times to visit her daughter, each time declaring it will be her last trans-Canada trip, only to recall her resolution and again make the long journey. Her friends are delighted to welcome Mrs. Hunter back in the city after her lengthy absence.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Big Guy"

Scoring impressively in a story which combines dramatic force with rapid action and emotional suspense, Victor McLaglen and Jackie Cooper co-star in one of the year's best pictures "The Big Guy" which is now showing at the McCarthy theatre. The production is reminiscent in many ways to "The Informer" the film which brought stellar honor to Victor McLaglen by way of receiving the Academy Award.

Jackie Cooper, too, displays a naturalness and sincerity which is sure to add to his growing prestige as one of Hollywood's best.

In the supporting cast are Ona Munson, Peggy Moran, Ed Brophy and Wallis Clark, to whom much credit is due for making "The Big Guy" a motion picture triumph of the year which can be recommended as class A entertainment. Latest Fox News from the war zones, an all-star comedy and a clever musical revue, also now showing at the McCarthy theatre, add splendid variety and make up a two hour program which once more will receive deserving praise by every one who after reading this column, goes to the McCarthy.

"Too Many Husbands"

Legal or illegal.... it's uproarious fun and even girls who haven't any will agree that two is too many when they see Wesley Ruggle's laugh-crammed production "Too Many Husbands" starring Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas, which opens next at the McCarthy theatre.

Text of Proclamation Broadcast by Pierlot

Paris, May 28—(CP—Havas) — Following is the text of the proclamation broadcast today by Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot repudiating King Leopold's surrender to the Germans:—

"Belgians! Ignoring the official and unanimous advice of the government, the King opened separate negotiations and treated with the enemy.

Belgium will be dumbfounded, but the fault of one man cannot be imputed to a whole nation. Our army did not merit its present fate.

The act we deplore is without legal validity. It does not commit the country. Under the terms of the Belgian constitution, which the King swore to observe, all powers spring from the nation. They are exercised in a manner determined by the constitution. No document signed by the king can take effect if it is not countersigned by a Minister.

This principle is absolute. It is a fundamental rule of the functioning of our institutions. The king, breaking the bond which united him to his people, has placed himself in the power of the invader. Henceforth he is not in a position to govern. For it is evident that the functions of the head of a state cannot be under foreign control. Officers and officials are therefore freed of the duty of obedience imposed on them by their oath of fidelity.

Provides For Continuity.

Moreover, the Belgian constitution provides for continuity of powers. Its provisions specially envisage the present case, in which the king finds it impossible to reign. In this case a meeting of the chambers of parliament is called. Meanwhile the constitutional powers of the king are exercised in the name of the Belgian people by the ministers meeting in council and on their own responsibility.

To this principle the present government intends to have recourse. It is the only government regularly constituted and invested with the confidence of the chambers, who approved its will to defend, in community with the Allies, the independence of Belgium and the integrity of her territory to the enemy against the most odious aggression.

The government will not fail to do its duty.

Meeting at Paris in agreement with the presidents of the two legislative assemblies and in agreement with the ministers of the governmnt who could be consulted, the government, certain that it is interpreting the will of the nation, is resolved to continue the struggle for the country.

New Army to be Raised

A new army will be raised and organised among the courageous youth who responded to the appeal of the United Government to Belgian military units now in France. This army will enter the lines beside those of the Allies. Belgians not liable for armed service will be attached, according to their abilities, to civilian mobilization work or munitions manufacture.

Thus all the forces at our disposal will be put at the service of a cause which has become our own since the German aggression.

From today onward the necessary measures will be taken with a view to as speedy an execution as possible of these resolutions.

It is important to affirm at once and in a tangible way the solidarity which still unites us to the powers which gave us their guarantee in conformity with their engagements.

Belgains! We are passing through the greatest ordeal in our history. The hour has come to remember the lessons of valor and honor given us by those who fought from 1914 to 1918. Come what may, we shall show ourselves worthy of them.

Heavy Bombers Will be Built Near Toronto

Toronto, May 28 (CP) — Heavy four-motored bombing planes will be built near Toronto according to plans laid down by Federal Air Ministry in co-operation with the Ontario government, it was learned today.

Engines for the big machines will be supplied from England but the planes otherwise will be completed here. The move is part of the speed-up of air-production.

JAY P. MOFFAT U. S. MINISTER TO THE DOMINION

Is Descendant of First U. S. Secretary of State and Succeeds Cromwell

23 YEARS' SERVICE

Washington, May 28—(AP)—Jay Pierrepont Moffat, descendant of the United States First Secretary of State and one of State Secretary Cordell Hull's key assistants, is President Roosevelt's choice for Minister to Canada.

At a moment when events in Europe were giving Canada a heightened importance as a neighbor of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt nominated Moffat yesterday to succeed James H. R. Cromwell.

Cromwell, whose pro-ally utterances while minister at Ottawa brought a public rebuke from Hull, resigned last week to accept the Democratic nomination for senator from New Jersey.

In Europe with Welles

Moffat, a career diplomat for more than 20 years, has been chief of the State Department's European division since 1937. In that capacity he accompanied Undersecretary Sumner Welles to Europe a few months ago on the fact-finding mission for the president.

Born at Rye, N.Y., 43 years ago, Moffat attended Harvard University. In 1917 he became private secretary to the United States Minister at The Hague. Later assignments took him to Warsaw during the Bolshevik invasion, to Tokyo during the earthquake to Turkey in time to see the republic declared, to Switzerland for the disarmament conference and to Australia. Moffat's nomination was received with satisfaction in Ottawa last night. Particular significance was attached to the fact that he was a career diplomat of wide experience.

MURDER, SUICIDE AT KINLEY, SASK.

19 - Year - Old Farmhand Kills Father of Girl and Then Flees With Daughter, Later Shooting Self

Saskatoon, May 28—(CP)—Police today said that Alfred Norman Dybvig, farmer, was shot and killed by Norman Abel, 19, who later shot and killed himself.

The shooting of the farmer occurred at his home northeast of Kinley, 27 miles west of Saskatoon. Police said Dybvig was killed last night. The body of Abel who had been employed on a neighboring farm, and had fled with Dybvig's daughter, was found in the bush this morning.

According to the police information Abel who had kept company with 15-year-old Thelma Dybvig, borrowed a rifle from a neighbor Monday. This weapon was used in the shooting of the farmer.

Abel called at the Dybvig home last night. After the farmer was shot and killed, Abel fled in the Dybvig automobile with Thelma.

Thelma told police that after driving a few miles in the automobile, they quit the machine and plunged into the bush. She said Abel then ordered her to return and he dashed on alone.

A few minutes later, she said, she heard a shot. When police found Thelma early today she led them to where the youth's body lay.

Gayda Praises Leopold's Action As Humane Wisdom

Rome, May 28—(AP) — Virginio Gayda, writing today in the Giornale D'Italia, called King Leopold's surrender "an act of high political and humane wisdom."

The editor accused Britain of planning to withdraw from Belgium, leaving the Belgian army to cover the retreat.

It was disclosed that French citizens attempting to leave Italy had been stopped because they had no exit visas. Allied sources said the requirement for exit visas was new and that thus far it had been invoked only against Frenchmen.

The stopping of the visa-less Frenchmen—suddenly and without notice, Allied informants said—gave rise to rumors that Italy had closed her frontiers with France and Switzerland. These proved unfounded.

Fascist militiamen among university students were ordered to gather with their arms throughout Italy tomorrow for "specially significant military ceremonies" marking the 16th anniversary of the establishment of the University Militia.

REMOVE 8,000 CHILDREN

London, May 28—(CP) — The government announced a decision today to remove from a 150-mile stretch of the English east coast 8,000 children previously sent there from London districts.

An area within about 10 miles of the coast of Suffolk, Essex, Kent, and a part of Norfolk is affected. The children will be taken to safer areas inland.

30 Allied Divisions Reported Massed For Offensive to Relieve Pressure in Flanders

Berne, Switzerland, May 28 (AP) Thirty Allied divisions were reported moving into position tonight south of the Aisne River near Rethel for an offensive to get through to the French and British forces in Flanders which are cut off from the main French army.

Reports reaching here from both sides of the war zone indicated that General Maxime Weygand had placed a major part of this force in position before the Belgians surrendered.

Allied divisions range from 15,000 to 18,000 men—making 450,000 to 540,000 in the 30 divisions reported preparing for attack.

Both Allied and German sources here believe that if Weygand found that he had time, he would strike within the next 36 hours.

The centre of the French concentrations were reported to be midway between Rethel and Montmedy, on the Aisne River.

Killer of Deseronto Garage Mechanic Given Life Term

Detroit, May 28 (AP)—John Kasap, 22-year-old taxicab driver, was sentenced to life imprisonment today after a jury convicted him of the murder-for-profit killing of Philip G. Loyst, garage mechanic, formerly of Deseronto, Ont.

Judge McKay Skillman expressed regret Michigan law provides no death penalty. John Kurzawa, 21, who pleaded guilty in the same killing and testified Kasap shot Loyst "twice in the back and once in the head," is serving a life term.

The jury of 10 women and two men deliberated just a half hour. Loyst's body was unearthed from a shallow grave in the basement of a house Kasap had rented.

From the witness stand yesterday Kasap repudiated a confession in which he had admitted shooting Loyst in order to profit from the sale o fthe victim's automobile. sale of the victim's automobile. signed under duress.

Hitler's Headquarters Issues Statement

Berlin, May 28 (AP)—Following is text of a statement issued at Hitler's headquarters today on the surrender of the Belgian army by King Leopold:—

"The King of the Belgians in order to put an end to further bloodshed and the wholly purposeless destruction of his country has arrived at a decision to lay down arm, contrary to the wish of the majority of his government.

"This government, which is chiefly responsible for the catastrophe which befell Belgium, now also seems willing further to remain in the company of their English-French employers.

"The Fuehrer has ordered that the King of the Belgians and his army be accorded such consideration as due bravely fighting soldiers.

"Since the King of the Belgians personally expressed no wish, a Belgian castle has been designated him for a temporary sojourn until a definite domicile is determined.

"The total number of Belgian units affected by the capitulation may roughly comprise half a million men.

"The German armies now will strike out with increased vigor at the destruction of the chief culprits."

AT THE BELLE

"Adventure in Diamonds"

High intrigue in the form of an attempt to loot the fabulous Kimberley diamond mines, and high comedy, in the form of a young airman's infatuation for a lovely lady crook, are the poles about which Paramount's new film drama, "Adventure in Diamonds", revolves. Starring George Brent and Isa Miranda, it is now on the Belle Theatre screen.

The first picture to bring together these two popular stars is a novelty in many ways. For one thing although it's a melodrama about a vicious international crime ring, its dialogue, situations and flavor mark it definitely as comedy. Secondly, although the dramatis personae is fairly crammed with lawbreakers, there is not one really unattractive personality among the chief conspirators. And in its setting "Adventure in Diamonds" is most extraordinary of all, taking place in the South African diamond mining region and its metropolis, Cape Town, a locale seldom pictured on the screen.

"Adventure in Diamonds" maps the amazing romance between a handsome young officer in Britain's famed Royal Air Force, Brent, and an international girl crook, Miss Miranda, a beautiful creature as adept at stealing a man's heart as his fortune!

The two meet accidentally aboard a luxury liner enroute to South Africa, where the young man plans to vacation and the girl hopes to rob the world's great cache of precious stones, Kimberley. The two form an attachment which, before it reaches its climax, smashes one of the world's most desperate criminal rings and nearly brings death to the partners in romance.

Cape Town the gay, sophisticated metropolis of South Africa, has been filmed in all its color and novelty. On view are its lively, its world-famous scenery, its undercover intrigue and even its favorite sport, ostrich racing.

"Saps at Sea", Funny

In his latest laugh-filled comedy, "Saps at Sea", Hal Roach presents those master comics, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy as pair of testers in a horn factory. This hilariously funny picture is announced as the companion feature attraction.

Based on an original story and screen play by Charles Rogers, Felix Adler, Gil Pratt and Harry Langdon, "Saps at Sea" opens with daffy action in a horn-manufacturing plant where our heroes are employed to tune up D flat horns exclusively. The work, however, gets on the nerves of corpulent Mr. Hardy and a sea voyage is prescribed by his medico. The boys hire a boat that isn't seaworthy, planning to stay in port and benefit from the sea breezes without battling with the deep. Peace, however, remains a far-off dream, for the comics become involved with a gangster and then with the police.

What ensues provides the film with a long list of screamingly funny situations in which everything goes wrong for the vacationists. The plumbing on the boat works in reverse because the plumber is cock-eyed; Laurel inadvertently takes a trombone lesson and his music drives Hardy so wild he beats up their visiting gangster; their high jinks attract the attention of the harbor police and get them in a pretty mess.

Laurel and Hardy are supported in "Saps at Sea" by James Finlayson, Ben Turpin Dick Cramer, Harry Bernard and Eddie Conrad.

Cincinnati Reds Win Twice From Pittsburg Pirates but Fail to Gain on the Dodgers

Brooklyn Ahead on Percentage but Half Game Behind in Win-Lose Calculations

CLEVELAND SLIPS

Buck Newsom of Tigers Holds Indians to Six Hits in Night Game

(By Judson Bailey)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

National League fans, who have endured enough hair-raising races in recent years that they can feel blase about the child's play now going on in the American League, never have had anything closer than Cincinnati Reds and Brooklyn Dodgers are today. They are tighter than a tie, if such a situation is possible.

The Dodgers are on top in percentage .714 to .710, but they are half a game behind in won-lost calculations. Cincinnati has won two games more (22) than the Dodgers, who have lost one less (eight) than the Reds.

The Reds did all in their power to capture the lead in stopping Pittsburg Pirates 2-1 and 7-3 yesterday. In the first game Whitey Moore and Joe Beggs combined to hold Pittsburgh to four hits and won the game on two runs donated them in the first inning. Helped by two three-run frames, Jim Turner went the route in the nightcap scattering nine hits.

Dodgers Continue to Win

But Cincinnati's best just wasn't good enough to erase that percentage margin as long as the Dodgers continued to win and they chalked up their fourth straight victory with a 6-0 shutout of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Whitlow Wyatt kept four hits nicely spaced while his mates ganged up on Clyde Smoll and Frank Hoerst for an even dozen. Five of the blows came in succession in the fifth inning for three runs.

Pitching keynoted most of the day's games. Bill Posedel held New York Giants to four safeties while Boston Bees pounded out a 7-1 triumph with 13 hits off three pitchers.

Chicago Cubs kept the National League design four-cornered by belting St. Louis Cardinals 7-1 and closing the gap between them and second place to 1 1-2 games. Claude Passeau limited St. Louis sluggers to seven hits.

Indians Slip a Notch

Cleveland Indians slipped half a notch in their efforts to overtake Boston Red Sox in the American League by losing a night game to Detroit Tigers 6-1. Buck Newsom held Cleveland to six hits and struck out nine. The Red Sox were rained out at Philadelphia.

New York Yankees got only four hits, the same as Washington Senators, but triumphed 5-0. The Yankee blows included Charley Keller's fifth home run with two on and Joe DiMaggio's third.

This enabled Chicago White Sox to climb back into the first division by outslugging St. Louis Browns 15 hits to nine for a 7-5 victory.

Wooler Triumphs Over Trenton 11-7

Trenton, May 28.—(Special) — Wooler tucked another game under their belts last night when they defeated McNair's Juniors 11 to 7 before a good sized crowd at Bayshore diamond. The Junior boys were never in the lead and the Wooler outfit secured a five run advantage at the start when Austin the first man up to bat opened the bombardment. The north village lads lengthened their margin the second frame and added to it again in the fourth while the Juniors were only counting two runs. McNairs rallied in the fifth frame however and gave the Wooler crew some of their own medicine with a four run splurge. Anderson started the rally which ended somewhat short of the mark when Downs struck-out. The Wooler team was definitely stronger in all departments but the Juniors gave a good account of themselves despite the superior odds they had to fight against. The teams: Wooler—Austin, Ruttan, McColl, F. Redcliffe, Stacey, Bryant, Adam, S. Redcliffe, May. McNairs Juniors: J. Anderson, Belear, Weller, Orser, White, Watson, Shensel, Roberts, Downs.

TORONTO LEAFS LOSE 3 IN ROW

Defeated by Montreal Royals 5-4 After Being Ahead in Early Frames

(By the Associated Press)

A little more of this and maybe even Tony Lazzeri will become discouraged.

Tony isn't the kind of guy to give up easily. He showed that last season when he accepted the task of trying to hoist Toronto Maple Leafs out of the International League cellar.

This spring prospects looked brighter, but the standings show Tony and his Leafs down in the cellar again.

They have reached that low estate by losing three straight games to Montreal Royals, the third by a 5-4 count at Montreal yesterday. The Royals are only a half game behind the fifth-place Buffalo Bisons.

It was mainly the relief pitching of veteran Charles (Red) Lucas, that enabled Montreal to win yesterday's game. Bob Porter was belted out in the first inning as the Leafs scored twice. Then Lucas took over and pitched five-hit shutout ball until the eighth when he began to weaken and Bill Crouch came to the rescue.

The Syracuse-Newark game, only one on the schedule yesterday, was rained out.

STEVE BELLOISE WINS DECISION

Luftspring of Toronto Loses on Split Decision in Eight Rounds at New York

New York, May 28—(CP)—Steve Belloise of New York and Toronto's Sammy Luftspring waged their own little private war last night and when the smoke had cleared away Steve's heavy artillery had proved better than Sammy's light weapons.

Twelve thousand spectators saw Belloise gain a split decision over the holder of Canada's 147-pound crown in eight tough rounds. Luftspring entered the ring at 147 1-2 pounds, three-quarters of a pound more than Belloise.

Luftspring's in-fighting and aggressiveness was enough to earn him the decision of one judge but referee Billy Cavanaugh and the other judge voted for Belloise.

Sports Roundup

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, May 28.—(AP)—Benny ($45,000). McCoy is besieged by get-rich-quick boys in every city the A's visit. . . . Here are the Boston Red Sox leading the loop and they haven't seen a starting pitcher finish a game since May 4. Up to yesterday the Sox have thrown in 67 pitchers this season . . . .In a College Golf match at Jackson, Mich. last week, Phil Williams of Jackson rimmed the cup on a 281-yard par four hole. Then his opponent, Orv Ruttle of Kalamazoo dittoed. So they halved the holes with Eagle two's.

Byron Nelson and Ben Hogam both started out as southpaws . . . Their first tournament was a nine-hole caddy meet in Fort Worth and Nelson beat Hogan in the finals . . . A few weeks ago Byron vanquished Ben in the play-off of the Texas open . . . A friend gave Charley root of the Cubs a zebra hide and he had a glove made from it—only one in the majors . . . If you've been wondering what on earth the Dodgers want with Jimmy Wasdell, well, they hope to use him in a deal . . . . Coast papers are blasting the baby Arizmendi-Sammy Angott fight, booked for June 11 at Hollywood.

Today's guest star.

Box Stedler, Buffalo Evening News: "Compliment Connie Mack for his candor . . . He said recently the pitching staff of the A's is the worst in the League and will remain so."

50 NAZI MACHINES DESTROYED IN DAY

R.A.F. Attack Batteries, Transports and Lines of Communication in Germany

London, May 28—(CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that units of the fleet air arm operating with the coastal command of the Royal Air Force made a series of heavy and effective attacks yesterday on enemy positions on the French and Belgian coasts.

"Batteries and transports were destroyed by bombs and troops were scattered by machine-gun fire," it said. "None of our aircraft was lost in these operations.

Royal Air Force medium bombers continued their attacks on enemy concentrations in northeast France during the evening. Two of these bombers are missing.

"Throughout last night R.A.F. heavy bombers, again without loss to themselves, delivered further attacks on enemy communications in the Rhineland and the Low Countries.

"Fourteen of our fighters are missing."

Sentenced for Week For Utterance in Street

London, May 27.—(CP)—Donald Patrick O'Byrne 23, was arrested in the Croydon district south of London today for shouting: "When the Germans get here they'll show you how to run Croydon". He was sentenced to a week in prison.

O'Byrne was selling copies of Sir Oswald Mosley's Fascist newspaper, Action. Police said they found a revolver, ammunition, and Fascist and German literature in his apartment.

FALLS INTO RIVER CARRIED FOR MILE AND THEN RESCUED

Ottawa, May 27—(CP)—John McAtee, 56-year-old partially disabled war veteran, was reported out of danger in the hospital today after he had fallen in the Ottawa River and been carried for more than a mile in the swift current below the Chaudiere Falls yesterday. He was pulled from the water and treated for shock and exposure.

HOMER — UNDER LIGHTS — FOR GIANTS

The New York Giants set off a mess of home run fireworks to mark their inaugural game under lights at the Polo Grounds in New York. They scored three homers against the Boston Bees in first two innings of the game. Jurges is shown here crossing the plate on his second inning circuit clout. Danning, who scored ahead of him, congratulates Jurges. Glossop (27), next man up, also congratulates him.

STARTING GATE ADDS WOODBINE TO SUCCESSES

12-Stall Steel Get-Away Machine Pleases Eastern Racetrack Official at Recent Opening

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, May 28 (CP)—The Puett racing gate, a far cry from the walk-up start of early turf days, made its eastern Canada debut this spring. So far there has been general approval of the stream-lined 12-stall contraption.

Thomas (Nipper) Rowe, official starter for the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association, summed up the consensus after the gate was used at Woodbine Park. "It's the best gate on any circuit," he said.

He made that statement after he had pulled a "boner" at the start of the 81st running of the King's Plate. Ring Wise was left at the post even though the gate is designed to eliminate such happenings. The fault rested on Rowe, however. He neglected to make sure Ring Wise was locked properly in the stall.

After the horses are placed in the stall a heavy bar is dropped in slots at the rear, preventing the horses from backing out. Double doors at the front fit together in a v-shape.

An assistant starter did not fit the rear bar properly and as Rowe pressed the button deleasing the front gates, Ring Wise backed from the stall.

Cliff Puett, official starter at Vancouver tracks, designed the gate last year and tried it out at Lansdowne Park. Other Vancouver tracks also used it. Then Alfred G. Vanderbilt decided to give the gate a trial at Pimlico Park. It was in big-time to stay.

Use in Other Parts

Hialeah and Tropical parks used the gate during the winter and then Jamaica, Belmont, Aqueduct, Empire, Saratoga, Santa Anita, Agua Caliente, Arlington, Washington and Detroit installed it.

The gate, however, hasn't gained the same popularity in Canada. So far Vancouver tracks and tracks under the Incorporated racing association in Eastern Canada are the only ones which will use them this year.

On the Prairies two gates will be tried. Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon will use the Cowell gate. It was designed by Mark Cowell, western Canadian trainer, and is similar to the Puett Gate. The Metropolitan Racing Association, operators of Long Branch and Dufferin Park in Toronto, will also use the Cowell gate.

Whittier and Polo Park in Winnipeg will test the "Improved Speers' Gate." It was designed by R. J. Speers, honorary secretary of the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and racing association.

The gate is featured by stalls which jut forward from the superstructure, leaving horses without obstruction and giving the starter a clear view of the field.

In Quebec, the Quebec Racing Association will continue to use the Cattarinich Gate, a 10-stall open affair. It will be used at Connaught, Dorval, Blue Bonnets and Mount Royal.

B. HOGAN FAILS TO QUALIFY IN NATIONAL OPEN

Seventeen Players Qualify Over Wet, Soggy Field

Tuckahoe, N.Y., May 28—(AP)—Splicing together a par 71 and a sub-par 69 for a 140 total, Al Brosch, Farmingdale, N.Y., pro, paced the field of ninety-five starters in the Metropolitan district qualifying rounds for the national open tournament at the Mount Vernon Country Club yesterday.

Seventeen players qualified in the 36-hole test over the soggy course. Missing from the list was Ben Hogan, winner of the recent Goodall Round Robin tournament and an outstanding performer on the winter golf tour. Hogan turned in 74-76 for 150, and won the first alternative position in a one-hole play-off. Seventeen players scored 149 or better.

Aside from Hogan, other outstanding players who failed to make the grade were Willie Macfarlane, former open champion, and Willie Turnesa and Ray Billows, leading amateurs.

Safely within the fold was Gene Sarazen, forced to qualify for the first time since 1920. After a wobbly start with a 75 for his first round, Sarazen settled down to par golf in the afternoon to finish with 146.

Jimmy Thomson, the slugger, tied with Frank Walsh for second place behind Brosch with 143.

Ken J. Colling

DID YOU KNOW THAT due to the lack of interest and entries the proposed Ontario Amateur Boxing Championships have been postponed? . . . Apparently the boys are taking the big fight "over there" much more seriously than the little ring scraps over here. . . That Dr. E. G. Kennedy's jumping colt was named "Cloudburst," because it was born during the height of last Friday's heavy downpour? . . . That plans and negotiations to build a strong junior O.H.A. team in Belleville for 1941 are likely to be abandoned until another more important campaign is settled elsewhere in the world? . . . We have a letter of communication from a touring professional basketball team from Waterbury, Conn., seeking a playing date here. . . . That tonight will see the final effort to revive the Bay of Quinte baseball loop . . That the Ladies' Mercantile Softball League is already contemplating war charity games for the Red Cross, etc.

Naturally the girls playing their first softball game before the public at the opening of the Ladies' Mercantile Softball League tonight at the Armouries Lawn will have a bad case of the jitters. However, after these lassies become climatized and acquainted with the ribbings of the fans, they'll soon improve in their game. Coach "Doc" Doherty, of the "5 & 10's" has two pitchers groomed for tonight's opener versus the "Big Z" nine, in Grace Stewart and Ruth McClelland, while Skipper Chuck Barnett is pinning his hopes on pitchers Betty Adams and Doris Ferguson. Incidentally, we hear that Coach Barnett is making overtures towards Molly Gray, veteran Belleville moundsman of a decade ago or more, in case his present staff of hurlers falter. Prior to tonight's opening, Reg. Moncrieff, chairman of the Board of Education, will present the Frontenac Trophy to chairman T. E. Schwab, this trophy to be awarded to the team winning the league.

The city softballers ran into their first case of postponement, on account of rain or wet grounds, in over two years when the Picton-Corby A.C. game was called off on account of wet grounds at the Coleman Flats last night. Last season the local "mushballers" completed a full schedule and concluded their play-offs without running into inclement weather, but that good fortune could not last forever and this practice of forcing the playing of postponed games within 24 hours may also have its drawbacks before the present season has advanced far. Incidentally the first big game of the season seems slated for tomorrow night when the two league leaders, the "Oilers" and the Juniors clash. Both won their initial starts and with the splendid showing given by "Red" Townsend's kids in Point Anne, Coach Bawden's league champions need not look for any push-over when they meet the Juniors this semester.

Peterboro' Scribe Perdue scoffs at our suggestion of an oldtimers' versus Petes C.O.B.L. game under war charities sponsorship this summer. It may not be a good idea for Peterboro', but in Belleville a highly successful "old-timers" game was staged in 1936, when between fifteen hundred and two thousand fans attended. Of course Belleville fans had such stars of yesteryear as Freddie Goyer, Jack Williams, Peeney Mills, Babe Casey, Wicky Ross, Walt Gerow and others to parade before the appreciative patrons of the game. If the game could be staged in Peterboro when Jake Solomon is vacationing in Peterboro' Riverside Park wouldn't hold the crowd, palsie.

Atley Donald, Yankee pitcher now in his second season as a Yankee regular, doesn't see why he can't have another winning streak this year—maybe as many as 12 wins in a row.

"Nothing so amazing about it," he said. "I always win a lot of games in streaks. I won 12 straight at Binghamton in 1936. I won 14 in a row at Newark in 1937 and barely missed putting together another long one in 1938.

"I never worry about those things. Streaks don't make me tense or nervous. I'm not worrying about a second-year jinx, either. All I ask is that my arm stay strong. It was lame at the end of the 1939 season but I rested it all winter and I think it is all right again."

The past rains have wrought havoc in the ball schedules in Western Ontario. Only three of twelve games slated to be played in the Intercounty last week were completed, all of which reminds us that perhaps the ball schedule makers throughout Ontario were imbued with too much enthusiasm after a year of ideal playing weather in 1939. In such cases history does not repeat itself and the ballsters of 1940 can look for a goodly number of postponements.

SPORT SPICE—The latest song along old Broadway should be —"The Yanks are Coming," referring to the New York Yankees of course. . . . They won their last two starts, one against the powerful Red Sox. . . Understand the Belleville Collegiate band will help to open the lassies' softball league activities tonight. . . . Even though the Kingston Clothiers acquired pitcher Stan Scrutton from the Tanners, they can't seem to win. . . . Yesterday the Frontenacs beat 'em 11 to 7. . . Alex Simpson's Corby's A.C. "mushballers" journey to the Airport on Wednesday night for an exhibition game with the "Flyers." . . Cecil Hart, former manager of the Montreal Canadiens, is seriously ill in a Montreal hospital.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

AT THE CAPITOL

"GAUCHO SERENADE"

Gene Autry, Republic's Singing Cowboy No. 1 has boosted himself to the top of the popularity poll by sheer force of his pleasant, friendly screen personality, and the charm which he projects on the screen has created an audience which always awaits with eagerness his next musical western for Republic. The latest of his pictures is "Gaucho Serenade," which comes next to the Capitol theatre.

Autry was born on a ranch in Tioga, Texas, which has since been re-named "Autry Springs" in honor of its most distinguished son.

He rode the range throughout his childhood, and on Sundays sang in the choir of his father's church. This early choir singing, plus some travelling medicine show experience he gained while in his teens, started him on the singing cowboy path.

When he was eighteen he took up telegraphy and got a job in Sapulpa, Okalohma, as telegraph operator for the Frisco Railroad. To while away the dull hours when he wasn't busy, he learned to play a guitar, and soon was making a name for himself as "Oklahoma's Yodeling Cowboy," over radio station KVOO in Tulsa.

From this it was a quick jump to the National Barn Dance program broadcast from Chicago, from which he was recruited for films.

Gene never makes a public appearance without being garbed in full cowboy regalia. He has a formal white cowboy evening suit, and various rainbow-hued day outfits ranging in color from pale blue to a bright mustard yellow.

"San Francisco"

A limit return engagement of the greatest thrill drama of all time! "San Francisco", starring Clarke Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy is now showing at the Capitol. This will be your list opportunity to see this most amazing thrill drama that the screen has ever known! Come and enjoy the beautiful voice of Jeanette MacDonald, America's singing sweetheart.

lived regime to co-operate with the Germans in Oslo upon the Nazi invasion of Norway.

"A savage, treacherous blow has been struck at the cause of the Allies," it said. "It was not thought that the example of capitulation would be set by a king."

The newspaper added that "We always knew the brunt of exertion would fall on the British Empire and the French republic. Now the fact is branded inexorably on our brains."

The Star soberly commented that "This incident, which only history will see in its true light, has revealed still more clearly what we are fighting against, and fight we must."

"The king must have borne a specially heavy burden," it added. "But his final collapse beneath it will bring profound regret to many of his compatriots and a sense of astonishment to the rest of the world."

A writer in the Evening News recalled the recent words of the Belgian Minister of the Interior, M. Van Der Poorten, that King Leopold was "filled with deep concern for the fate of his troops." The Evening News writer suggested that this sentence provides a key to the king's decision.

"Lover Come Back"

by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Echo House seemed empty and very lonely when Sondra went back, after seeing her grandfather off.

From the big bay window upstairs, she watched the sun sink, leaving the clear, red-gold west etched across with wind-clouds.

Just before the last crimson faded from the sky, black smoke mushroomed up over the distant island of St. Lazaria. The Pelley, Sondra thought, coming to anchor after a day's work. It occurred to her that tomorrow would be a good time to pay her promised visit to the destroyer.

When Polena came in to do her last-minute tidying-up, Sondra said, "I'm going off in the Spindrift tomorrow, Polena. I may not be home until quite late."

The old Creole nodded, and moved over to the window beside Sondra. A canoe was slipping in through the shallow water around the Tanya, and Polena jabbed a fat finger toward its occupant. "There's that one again. Always prowling on the waterfront! Making a show of hershelf at all hours, around any place where something is that wears pants! In my young days, no decent girl would go alone to the waterfront in daytime—let alone at night. That is, no one except Miss Jacqueline Reynall."

"What was Miss Jacqueline like, as a girl, Polena?"

The old woman straightened her dumpy figure and lifted her chin. "Dark and wild and proud, Miss Sondra, like a she-pirate. Always she was aboard the Glory, when Captain O'Moore made port. I've seen 'em on windy evenings, walking the deck—arm in arm, singing and laughing. . . . The captain, young and slim and sort of sparkling, with his dark red hair waving in the wind. . . . Ah, they were crazy in love, those two. . . But that—" Polena guiltily jerked herself back to the present—"that was before he met your grandmother, Miss Sondra."

"Of course!" Sondra laughed. But to herself she wondered if Dynamite Danny O'Moore had ever loved the dainty, quiet Tanya Karmanova as he had loved that proud, wild "shepirate", Jacqueline Reynall.

The old hall clock struck midnight as she switched off her room lights.

She had not been asleep long when she was awakened by a sharp staccato rattle against the upper pane of her window. Startled, she sat up. It came again, and this time several small pebbles hurtled it through the open sash. "Sondra! Sondra!" someone outside called urgently.

She sprang to the window. Below, dimly discernible in the gloom, stood Liane. "Let me in, Sondra," she called. "Hurry, for heaven's sake!"

"Now, Liane, what is it?"

The two girls stood facing each other in Sondra's room, Liane, wildly beautiful in her mother's crimson shawl, was struggling with some ill-suppressed emotion.

"It's Chris. He's out to steal Jean's fish. He's on his way now to cut that net at the mouth of Shaman's Lagoon."

"Chris well knows Dynamite would never stand for that kind of dirty work." But even as she spoke Sondra remembered what she had heard of fish wars. . . . Nothing too dirty to pull.

That was the way men played this game. But it certainly was not the way Sondra O'Moore would play it. And she was playing it now. She was in charge until her grandfather returned, and she would . . .

"Sondra! Wake up! Do something!" Liane was shaking her frantically. "We must get out there —take the Spindrift—follow before it's too late!" She was almost incoherent in her anixety. Sondra thought dully, "She must be desperately in love with Jean Reynall."

The hall clock whirred and struck a single note.

"Chris has been gone a full hour, Liane." Sondra loosened the girl's fingers from her arm. "We never could overtake him now."

"We could try! We could get out there—at least be there, to—to—" Her voice broke and, suddenly flinging herself to the bed, she buried her face in a pillow.

Sondra tried to reason. . . . Chris could reach Shaman's Lagoon in another two hours—three o'clock, or a bit later. But three o'clock, at this season of the year, was—

She turned toward Liane. "Why, it will be daylight when Chris gets out there! He won't be crazy enough to—"

"He's crazy enough to do anything!" Liane leaper from the bed. "He'll—he'll—oh, Sondra! Have you no heart—no feelings—no—"

"Look here!" snapped Sondra, in hot unreasoning resentment. "I'm just as anixous as you are to save Jean's net and his fish. But I—"

"Jean? What do I care about Jean? It's Chris I'm worried about! The big, dumb baby—going in there unarmed against men with guns! He'll get himself killed, I know he will!"

"So that's . . . the way . . . it is." Sondra was already diving into her outing clothes; and for some reason she was suddenly, fiercely happy. Liane was half-crying. "Katlean guards that net with a Winchester, and he won't hesitate to shoot! Carlisle or no Carlisle—Katlean is all savage. Oh, Sondra, there must be some way—"

"We'll find a way." In her newfound buoyancy, Sondra felt she could do anything, surmount any difficulty. "I've never been to Shaman's Lagoon, but we can get sailing directions from Dynamite's herring records.

"The wind's rising," she said. "We'll start at once before it gets worse, and run for St. Lazaria. The Pelley will be there, and I'm sure Commander Ellsworth will agree to take us the rest of the way."

x x x

Crouched in the open cockpit, with Liane beside her, Sondra swung the Spindrift out across the dark, windy bay. She steered by blinker lights that winked from the gloom of islands whose nearness she could feel, rather than see. A heady stimulus of high adventure rode with her.

The Spindrift nosed out past the last light on the last sheltering island, and into the open sea.

"Keep your eyes peeled for the blinker on Vitskari Rocks, kid." Sondra called to Liane. "That's halfway to St. Lazaria. . . . There—" as the Spindrift soared on a wave. "I saw it! Ahead and off to Starboard." She swung toward the beckoning light.

A towering graybeard, hissing out of darkness, loomed suddenly beside them. Sondra spun the wheel, sent the Spindrift slanting up its face. Half-cheated, the angry comber roared under and over them, leaving a swirling foot of water in the cockpit.

Liane screamed. "Turn back, Sondra! We'll drown out here! Turn back!"

Sondra laughed in a sort of fierce joy, and with her foot fished up a galvanized pail that was sloshing about her ankles. She thrust the pail at Liane. "Bail, you lubber!" she shouted. "Keep the Pacific Ocean in its place!" She twisted the Spindrift smoothly across a second comber, and added, "Did you never hear Dynamite quote the slogan of the O'Moores, Liane? What we start, we finish! Hop to it, baby! Bail!"

Liane was still bailing frantically when they lunged past the light on Vitskari Rocks, and on toward the low smudge of St. Lazaria, faintly visible in the first gray light of dawn.

An hour later Sondra slowed the engine and coasted into quiet water under St. Lazaria's lee.

"Well, we're here—but where the deuce is the Pelley?"

A mooring buoy farther out marked the Pelley's anchorage; but the destroyer was not there, nor anywhere in sight on al lthe gray-green expanse of empty sea.

On the right, gauze-blue in the dawn light, stood Mount Edgecumbe and, close on the left, the ghostly lava pillars and arches of St. Lazaria rose, like the somber stronghold of some ancient, vanished race. Surf, beating in at the open maws of the seaward caves, wrenched moans and gurglings from the lava's vents and fissures — the island's "devil voices" that mingled wierdly with the screams of millions of hovering seabirds.

"Brrrr!" Liane shuddered. "All that's needed to complete this nightmare is a sight of the 'ghost ship'. Bue—" She hastily knocked on wood.

"The ghost ship seems loath to court scientific observation," Sondra laughed. "It's been reported from a dozen places along the Aleutians and the Gulf of Alaska, lately; but it hasn't shown up here once since the scientists arrived on the Pelley."

Liane stared uneasily at the lava shore. "Let' sscram, anyway. The wind has died down some, and we can quarter the waves more, going back."

Sondra gave her a level look. "We started for Shaman's Lagoon. That's another twenty miles, all open ocean; but, once we get around Cape Edgecombe yonger, we'll have the wind and sea behind us. So—what do you say?"

Liane studied the spray-drenched headland around which they must go, then turned a measuring look on Sondra's small figure at the Spindrift's wheel. After a moment, she grimly picked up her battered pail.

"I'm darned if I don't think you can make it," she said. "Let's go!"

x x x

With a following sea and the early sun at their backs, Sondra brought the Spindrift charging in through the wide, exposed entrance to Shelikoff Bay. "Reach in there over the engine and get Dynamite's herring record, Liane," she directed. "What does it say about finding the mouth of the lagoon?"

Liane spread the volume on the low cabin roof, a wicked-looking marlinspike weighing the pages against are fluttering of the wind.

"Lagoon opens behind group of barren rocks and islets off northwest shore," she read. "Largest islet conspicuous for beach of golden sand."

"Here's our barren rocks and islets." Sondra swung the Spindrift's nose sharply inshore. "And here we go—past the sand beach!" A moment later she added, "There's Katlean, on the shore ahead."

The young Indian had appeared somewhat challengingly, a Winchester in the crook of his arm. But when he recognized the occupants of the Spindrift, he beckoned them into a narrow break in the wooded shore. Sondra, swinging her boat accordinly, found herself in the narrow mouth of the lagoon, bucking a tide that poured out like a millrace. Ahead at the narrowest point of the narrow, twisting channel, some Indians were working waist-deep in water. Beyond them, where the lagoon widened into quiet water, a number of Thlinget seineboats lay at anchor. But the Tanya was nowhere in sight, nor was the Baltic.

With her hands on the wheel automatically fighting the Spindrift up against the brawling currents, Sondra headed for a eddy that made a quiet backwater near the working men. Katlean now stood there on the shore, waiting. His Carlisle sweater gave him a young, collegiate air, but his narrowed black eyes were alert, wary.

"You honor us early, Miss O'Moore," he greeted, as Sondra brought her boat close in to the shore at his feet. But she had just perceived that the working men were stretching a length of bright new web across the channel.

"Katlean!" she cried. "Your net! Chris did—it was cut, then? I—I hoped—"

Shannonville

Shannonville—The W.M.S. of the United Church, Shannonville entertained on Wednesday evening in the United Church the ladies of the neighboring societies. The church was lovely with potted plants and flowers. Mrs. Stanley MacDonald and Mrs. K. R. Vivian received the guests at the church door. Mrs. Clifford Holmes read the address of welcome and was also the pianist for the evening. Mrs. C. P. Heaven, President of the W. M. S. replied to the address of welcome. Mrs. Frank Doxtator, president of Shannonville W. M. S. took charge of the meeting, which opened with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer. Rev. Sterling led in prayer. Mrs. Jack McFarlane, Melrose President, and Mrs. Frank Bennett had charge of the devotional, with Scripture readings and prayer.

The program was put on by the different societies. The W. M. S. of Shannonville contributed a duet by Mrs. H. Shetler and Mrs. Elmer Vivian, a solo by Mrs. Powell and a dialogue, "Value of Christian Stewardship in terms of talent and money." Cannifton contributed a reading. Bethany and Gilead, music. The Front Road group sang a chorus "Joy of Spring." Mrs. A. Clarke, Miss Helen Brown, Misses Bradshaw, Mrs. Harry Greatrix accompanied them on the piano, which was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Everett Stratton and Mrs. Arthur Houston received the offering which was dedicated by prayer by Mrs. Sam Elliott. A delicious lunch was served, sandwiches, pickles, cakes, and tarts and coffee in abundance. A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. (Rev.) Armstrong of Cannifton to the Shannonville W. M. S. for a very pleasant evening. A hearty handclap showed the appreciation of the visitors.

On Monday evening May 20th, a large number of friends gathered at the Orange Hall in honor of Pte. Eddie Keating. The evening was spent in dancing to a good orchestra. Eddie favored with a song which was greatly enjoyed. Pte. Tony Bascian of Peterboro, a pal of Eddie's was also a guest. Eddie was presented with a wrist watch and a flash light by Mr. Borden Sexsmith. Mr. Henry Toppings read an address, which was signed by Robert McFarlane, Henry Toppings and Borden Sexsmith.

All joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Dancing was enjoyed till the morning hours and a delicious lunch was served by the ladies.

Because it dont, that's why, I said. G wizzickers I had a fierce experience this afternoon and I'm still mad about it. My ant promised to take me and my cousin Artie to the movies, and I was just getting ready to go and meet thm and my mother claimed my face was dirty and wouldn't leave me go out of the house till I washed it, I said, and Puds said, Well holey smokes what's that? It's worth washing your face a exter time to go to the movies, isn't it? he said.

Maybe it is, but anyways, I put up a argument [illegible] and then I went and washed it, and just after I got it good and washed what did my ant do but call up and say she couldn't take us for some bum reason, I said. G roozalem if she was going to call up why didn't she do it before I went and washed my face right in the middle of the afternoon? I said, and Puds said, Well wait till you hear what just happened to me. We had frankferters and saurkraut for dinner, and of course that's all right but I wanted to decide how many helpings to eat so I asked what we had for dizzert and my mother said we didn't have anything for dizzert so I ate about 5 helpings of frankferters and sauerkraut and then what came in but a big lemmon merrang pie, and my mother had told me there wasn't any dizzert just to teach me not to ask, and I hardly had room for 2 helpings of lemmon merrang pie, so was that hard luck or wasn't it? he said.

Me having to admit it was, making me feel partly better but not all a ways.

ALL CHEESE MUST BE WHITE

Ottawa, May 28—(CP) — The Dairy Products Board announced Monday all cheese manufactured in Canada after May 31 "to be acceptable for export to the United Kingdom must be white and unwaxed."

Under a recent agreement the British Ministry of Food will buy up to Nov. 30, 1940, a total of 78,400,000 pounds of Canadian cheese at 14 cents a pound for first grade, F.O.B., Montreal.

Toronto, Montreal Produce Markets

Toronto, May 28—Canada's increased egg production is taking care of domestic requirements and the greatly increased requirements of the export market, according to the weekly review of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Egg shipments since the first of the season to the end of last week are estimated at over 3,000,000 dozen, which compares with 1,786,273 dozen for all of last year, while the movement of eggs into storage appears to be continuing well up to normal and the domestic trade so far has had no difficulty in covering their daily needs.

The Toronto egg market maintains steady levels as quotations here are governed by the price fixed by the United Kingdom. Receipts cleared well yesterday, and premiums of from 1-2 cent to 1 cent per dozen were possible on inspected lots of grade A-large and grade A-medium eggs.

Trading was fair on the butter market here Monday. Supplies, which were not heavy, cleared satisfactorily at unchanged prices. The Western product sold at 23 1-4c per pound.

Held in Three Churches

It was decided that the Vacation School should be held in Holloway Street Church, Bridge Street Church and Tabernacle Church with morning sessions only from 9.15 to 12.15 for the ten days. It was further decided that children from 4 to 12 years of age would be admitted.

Miss Semmens of Toronto, outlined in some detail the programme of the Church Vacation School. This programme included Interest Groups, Music, Study Groups, Worship, Handicraft, and Recreation. It was arranged that additional meetings for the instruction of leaders should be held the first week in June under Miss Semmens' guidance.

Rev. D. T. McClintock and Mr. Lemon were appointed a Publicity Committee. A Housing Committee was also appointed, consisting of the Superintendents of the three Sunday Schools and Mrs. Branscombe.

Mr. Chas. Hyde was named to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Newman expressed the appreciation of the meeting to Miss Semmens and to Mrs. Morrison of Tweed, for their assistance.

The meeting closed with the Benediction by Mr. Newman.

MAGINOT GUNS

ing withdrawn for action elsewhere.

Then the German's had Switzerland's observers worrying over a possible swoop around the southern end of France's Maginot Line.

A German army of more than twenty divisions including motorized troops, gathered near the northern Swiss frontier as the Blitzkrieg against Holland and Belgium began.

Units Vanish

Several days ago almost all of these units vanished while trainloads of German wounded started moving into hospitals around Lake Constance.

Then, without preliminaries, the French Maginot forts north of Basel opened fire. Their big guns have been directed mainly against the German forts in Istein, the "Gibraltar of the Rhine".

Military observers pointed out that the French activity which has brought little reply so far from German guns, might mean an attempt to cover up reported shifting of troops from that area into the western battle zone, or an effort to force the Germans to strengthen their defences with troops needed on their side of the northwestern fronts.

Preliminaries Seen as Necessary

They agreed that at least two things must precede any French drive across the Rhine:—

1.—Weakening of the German Rhine communications and smashing of many German fortifications —objects of the renewed cannonading.

2.—Dynamiting of the Rhine-Rhone canal locks to permit diversion of enough Rhine water so that troops could wade across certain points of the boundary river. In blowing up many of the locks, French engineers left the main locks and gates partly standing to give partial control of the water level.

ENTIRE NATION

one man "must not be imputed to the entire nation."

"The army," he declared, "did not merit its present fate."

The premier called upon Belgians in Allied territory to make themselves available for for work on civil projects of defence industries.

Officers and officials of the Belgian government are relieved as of today from all duty of obedience to their king, Pierlot said.

"No document signed by the king can take effect if it is not countersigned by the ministers," he continued. "The king, in breaking the bonds which united him to the people, has placed himself in the power of the invaders. He is therefore no longer in a position to govern and officers and officials are therefore freed of the duty of obedience imposed upon them by their oath.

Government Will Not Fail.

"The government will not fail in its duty. Assembled at Paris and in accord with members of parliament whom it could reach, in the interest of the Belgian nation it is determined to continue the struggle for deliverance of the country.

"Belgians!" We are passing through the greatest ordeal in our history. The hour has come to remember those who fought from 1914 to 1918 and to show ourselves worthy of them."

ARMY LAYS DOWN ITS ARMS

But the French High Command declared the Allies would continue the fight and their lines were reported holding solidly along the Somme and Aisne River lines to the Maginot bulwark in the East.

German Attack Collapses

Heavy German attacks along the Meuse River were said to have collapsed under hot fire from French positions.

Although the Belgian army admittedly was an "important force" in the Allied campaign to stop the German advance, Reynaud said it had suffered many casualties and many other Belgian soldiers undoubtedly hd been taken prisoner.

Belgian Leaders Disown King

Belgian leaders in France announced they had decided to disown Leopold. The leaders said they would meet at the Belgian embassy to lay charges against the monarch and organize a provisional government.

Reorganization of the Belgian army will also be taken up at the meeting, at which President R. Gillon of the Belgian Senate and President Frank Von Cauwelaert of the chamber will preside.

A number of ministers who had been in London came to Paris during the night, on urgent summons for the "new Belgium" meeting.

Belgian Premier Hubert Pierlot, broadcasting over the French radio, repeated Reynaud's statement that the Belgian Government had decided to continue the fight and had ordered reorganization of Belgian forces in France.

Government Has No Part

Pierlot said his government had no part in Leopold's decision and declared that the "act of one man does not commit the entire nation".

Authorized French Military sources called the Belgian King's order "personal treason, of which the King alone must support the total responsibility".

Belgian newspapermen in France echoed this charge.

"The King is dead", they declared "Long live Belgium."

Reconstruct Belgian Army

The Belgian Government announced officially immediate reconstruction of Belgian forces in France.

"Belgium will put into action her entire army in France, composed of units already reorganized," its statement said, "and will launch into the battle all the forces of the nation to triumph against the invader."

The exact numbers and types of reorganized Belgium units remained military secrets. Previous information indicated that the bulk of the Belgian forces had been fighting on the northern wing of the Allied front, well removed from France.

French military sources called the capitulation "full of extremely grave consequences" and said it came just as the Allies were beginning to achieve local successes.

Home Defence 700,000 Men

(The British Broadcasting Corporation, in a broadcast heard in New York, said that when the German invasion began the Belgian army for home defence numbered 700,000 men. The government ordered all other males not old enough for service or otherwise exempted to make their way to a foreign country to avoid capture. "Most of these men now are in France and in military training, the B.B.C. said. They number many thousands, although definite figures are unavailable. This force," said the broadcaster, "will be valuable help to the Allies in holding the line which runs roughly east and west across northern France.")

Shortly after Reynaud spoke, the French high command issued a brief communique declaring the Allied troops are "continuing to fight." It acknowledged the situation had become much graver.

Of operations elsewhere, the communique said merely: "Nothing important to report."

A War Office spokesman termed Leopold's capitulation as "high treason" against his Allies.

France Prepared to Hold On.

Reynaud declared that France was prepared to hold "on the new line which has just been established on the Somme and Aisne Rivers and thence west to the Maginot Line."

The Premier said that King Leopold had decided to capitulate "in full battle" against the advice of his cabinet.

The cabinet, Reynaud said, had informed the French government of its desire to "raise a new army" to fight with the Allies, and had placed at the service of France all the resources which it still has available.

The radio speech in which Reynaud made his announcement was hastily arranged after an emergency meeting of the French cabinet which lasted until the early hours of the morning.

Faith Still Intact

He said that the French "faith in victory is still intact" and called upon the nation for a supreme effort.

No attempt was made in Paris to hide the fact that King Leopold's order was a distinct setback, but it was pointed out that the possibility of the loss of the Belgian sector of the battlefront already had been taken into account.

It was believed that at least part of the Belgian army, which was understood to number more than 500,000 men before the German invasion, might disregard the king's order and continue fighting with the French and British.

May Recruit New Army

Hundreds of thousands of Belgian refugees are now in France, and the Pierlot Government was expected to draw on these to recruit a new army.

As the British and French battled on throughout the night the French cabinet met almost until Reynaud went on the air at 8:30 a.m. (3:30 a.m. EDT) with his astonishing announcement.

Scornful and bitter, he started by saying: "I must announce to the French people a grave event. This event occurred last night. France can no longer depend on the help of the Belgian army."

Then he told his audience that the French and British had been fighting alone since 4 a.m. He went over the situation in detail, recalling how the Germans forced a breach in the Allied lines May 14, pushing them apart and breaking their land contact.

Supplied Through Dunkirk

He explained that the northern armies, British, French and Belgian, were being supplied through Dunkerque. Then he added angrily:—

"It was this Belgian army which has just brusquely capitulated unconditionally on the field of battle on orders of its king and without warning their French and British comrades in combat, opening the way to Dunkerque to the German divisions."

He continued: "Eighteen days ago this same king, who, up to that time had seemed to attach the same value to the word of Germany as to that of the Allies, sent us a call for help."

Now, the Premier said, "without consideration or a word for the French and British soldiers who had come to the help of his country in response to his anguished appeal," Leopold laid down his arms.

Against Advice of Cabinet

The President called this action "a fact without precedent in history".

He declared: "The Belgian Government has told me that the decision of the King was taken against the unanimous sentiment of the responsible ministers.

"The Government added it had decided itself to put at the service of the cause all the forces of its country which are still available, and particularly, it wishes to raise a new army and collaborate in the work of arming France".

(A Havas Agency report said the Belgian government had taken the attitude that Leopold's action was unconstitutional.)

In any event an immediate meeting was arranged to lay the groundwork for efforts to raise a new army or contact units that may have decided not to surrender at the behest of their King.

Tribute Paid to French

Reynaud paid tribute to the efforts of France's soldiers, "making a magnificent effort along the whole front".

He declared: "France has been invaded a hundred times and never beaten. How much our courageous populations in the north must remember. It is from tests which we are awaiting that the new spirit of France will be forged which will be greater than ever.

"Our faith in victory is intact".

He predicted the Allies would hold along a new line on the Somme and Aisne Rivers, "and because we will hold we will win".

Sympathy Expressed

French military circles said they were at a loss to account for King Leopold's decision, and expressed "sympathy" for the Belgian army.

At the time Leopold's order was issued, one spokesman said, the Belgians were holding all along the line from Menin, on the French-Belgian frontier, to Ghent.

He declared the French forces on the Belgians' right flank had counter-attacked successfully on the Lys River near Menin, with tanks leading the assault.

The spokesman said the situation along the Somme and Aisne apparently was "stabilized," and declared that two heavy German attacks in the Meuse River region had been baten off.

German losses were described as severe.

On the coast, Calais was reported still holding out against German advance driving northward from Boulogne.

TROOP REMOVAL

The eyewitness said the Germans in "greatly superior" numbers attacked with aircraft, tanks, and field guns and the destroyers removed the soldiers "in circumstances of great difficulty and peril."

A naval officer, he said it was impossible to describe the events in chronological order because "we had not time to look at our watches" and censorship prevented disclosure of the day of the withdrawal.

A demolition party of seamen, Royal marines and a few Royal engineers, taking explosives and other gear, pushed across the Channel in a destroyer at two hours' notice, reaching the main jetty of Boulogne in the forenoon.

Peace Not For Long

On the way into the harbor, the party saw British and French destroyers "shelling high land to the north over which enemy tanks and mechanized troops were advancing toward the town."

Inside the harbor, "there was comparative peace but not for long," the officer reported.

The party landed from the destroyer, occupied the railway station, fitted demolition charges and earmarked all bridges, cranes and lock gates for destruction, which was undertaken, it was said, at the request of the French authorities.

Troops in the station were bombarded by high explosive shells from field guns. Many of them were young, but the naval officer said "they never turned a hair."

Germans Close In

"The Germans were gradually closing in on the town with high mechanized vehicles, followed by tanks and motorized field guns," the officer said, adding that German planes also attacked intermittently throughout the day.

Once, he said, a greatly superior number of planes were driven off by R.A.F. fighters.

Because the Germans were "all around the town," it was "impossible to send field guns or other assistance," the officer reported, and the British "couldn't hold out indefinitely against enemy armored vehicles."

All Roads Barricaded

The officer found all roads barricaded with lorries and protected by machine guns.

"Small parties of Germans were already coming down the streets on the outskirts of the town," he said, "and a slight British withdrawal was ordered to avoid having our flank behind turned and to accelerate the evacuation when the time came."

The Germans were holding the high ground commanding the town massing more guns and troops, he went on, and the British "sustained casualties."

Small naval parties set explosives under bridges giving access to the inner harbor. The bridges were already under machine gun fire at a few hundred yards range, the officer said, but the British could not destroy them until the last troops had been withdrawn.

The naval officer and a small party of men under sniping fire at 50 yards range destroyed a crane and flooded the dock power station and a pumping station.

Raised Steam with Wood

One small drifter found at another dock was manned by stokers, who raised steam with broken wood and other debris so that the craft could aid in the evacuation of troops.

When the "complete demolution" order came, the floating dock was sunk and the machinery in the power station was blown up and "everything that might be of use to the enemy" was hurriedly sabotaged under continuous field gun and machine-gun fire and while 15 German planes made dive bombing and machine gun attacks.

"The Germans were very close and coming nearer all the time," the naval officer said, while British troops were taking shelter at the railway station and "more arriving every minute."

Five destroyers came alongside and began evacuation of the troops under "furious" fire "from enemy guns concealed in a wooded hill and from pompoms and machine guns firing from the windows of a hotel.

Embarked Under Fire

"Then several enemy tanks came down the hill onto the foreshore," the report stated.

The troops on the jetty were embarking "under a tornado of fire with casualties occurring every second." and destroyers were "plastering the hillsides and the German field guns at point blank range and blasting the hotel until the pompoms and machine guns were silenced."

"They stood there like rocks without regard for anything," a naval officer said of the soldiers.

The destroyers, crammed with soldiers, all listing and one "slightly on fire," left stern first through the narrow channel. The tide was falling and there was "very little water under the bottoms."

"It was now evening and there were still many troops ashore and more coming over the bridges under heavy fire," the officer said. "The troops never seemed to end and the enemy was still advancing."

Blew Up Bridge

Most of the demolition party left in destroyers and two officers and two seamen, at the moment the last soldier crossed, blew up the bridge.

"Darkness came and at 10 p.m. the station still was crammed with Germans very close and advancing," said the officer. The navy was told that the evacuation was incomplete and three more destroyers nosed alongside the jetty and evacuated the soldiers "with the many wounded."

"It was a miracle that all these destroyers were not sunk," the officer commented.

Authoritative sources said that "about 10" destroyers were used in the entire evacuation.

Letters From the Troops

Following is a letter received by the teacher and pupils of School Section No. 2, Tyendinaga, at Plainfield, from a former teacher, Lieut. Clifford Holmes, now training with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Aldershot.

Aldershot, England,
May 4th, 1940

Dear Pupils and Teacher:

I have just finished addressing several cards to several people in the section in answer to letters and parcels and have, for some strange reason, a few moments to myself and so am utilizing them, very pleasantly, in writing a few lines to you, among whom I spent so many pleasant hours during the past five years.

When this letter reaches you it will no doubt come upon you in a time of deep sorrows and troubles for the final examinations will not be very far off. Needless to say, I shall be very much interested in the results so please write and let me know how you make out. Good luck to all of you and especially those who have an entrance to face. Do not let it frighten you, but go at it and beat it. 'Bon chance.' Get Bessie to translate this for you.

Comment est-ce que votre francais est, Bessie?

I am rather wondering just what I could tell you that would interest you mostly—something of our life in the army—or—something of England as a whole, or some of the special places of interest that I have seen. Well, perhaps, if my paper holds out and my envelope holds in, I shall try to tell you a little bit about all of them.

Firstly—England! England as I taught you from the Geography text and the England that I see from actual observation, are not exactly the same place. We, you will remember, learned that every available bit of land was cultivated and made use of. In the part of England that I have seen, I find that very little is actually used and most of it is wooded and government land. Beautiful houses, some new, others as old as the hills themselves, are apt to peer out at you from among the most dense of thickets and thickest of forests. Over here a woods is a thing of beauty to be cherished and much to be desired. I know you would be astonished at the amount of woods and scrub-land that covers most of this part of England. Of course, there is a great deal of agriculture with sheep and also cattle, but it was strange to find so much land unused. However, I must not dwell too long on this.

Due to the rationing of petrol, the number of cars as well as the distance a car is driven is low, so that the railways are much more numerous and serve more of the country than they do in Canada. Many of these are electric trains which travel very swiftly and noiselessly from station to station. The coaches are divided into compartments or small rooms with two seats for six persons and with a door opening into a corridor on one side and outside on the other. To open the outside door, one has to lower the window and reaching through it, turn the handle. These compartments are also divided into first and third class. The only difference, other than the price, that I can see is that the first class ones have a linen cloth to lean one's head on which is very little to pay about 5s or 6s (shillings) more for. One of the reasons that railways are so easily operated here is that there is a small village or town at least every two miles, which will give you some idea of the great numbers of people who live here.

All of the roads here are paved, even to the small lanes, some with asphalt, others with concrete. It is easily done here, though, when we consider that there is no frost in the ground to heave the roads as we have in Canada. Speaking of the roads, as I have travelled along on a motorcycle, I have been struck (not really, of course) by the number of beautiful green hedges. Even in the Winter months there were holly hedges and trees as well as many others that I do not know. In the rural part almost every house is surrounded by one of these high hedges or by a wall. Apparently the Englishman likes to keep to himself. The lanes, as they are called, are very beautiful though, especially now as the flowers are in full bloom and 'Once again 'tis Spring.'

Whether it is the spring fever or just the poet in me, as I look around, I keep thinking of some of the memory work we learned about England and as I visit places that we heard of in it, or our history, or reading I try to trip up the writers, but so far they have done fairly well.

"Oh, to be in England now that April's there," and "After April when May follows," is taking place before my eyes, also "Have you seen an Apple Orchard, in the Spring? In the Spring?"

An English apple orchard in the Spring, etc., does not do the blossoms justice as they are a wonderful sight dressed in their best of pink, white, and all the shades of each. Do not get the idea though that they can beat our Canadian blossoms for they can't, not for me, anyhow.

While I am talking of poetry, I have seen several of the poets and writers that we have heard about. They didn't bother to talk to me as they stood about in groups, but perhaps that was because they were made of wax. They were in Madame Tussaud's wax museum. It was a very wonderful sight, though, I must confess, rather creepy to walk into a room filled with people, each as life-like, to look at, and yet not be sure which lived and which was of wax. I think King Solomon and his bees would have been very helpful. All the kings and queens, writers, statesmen, presidents of U.S.A. and hundreds of other famous people were there—life-sized, dressed beautifully and looking as healthy as could be in wax.

Many of the above have beautiful tombs in Westminster Abbey, which I visited on my first trip to London. It was certainly a far cry from the tomb to the life-like figures in Madame Tussaud's. Westminster was beautiful with the Beauty of Age, History and Story. But then, so were, the Admiralty, No. 10 Downing Street (which is anything but beautiful from an eye-view), Buckingham Palace, St. James' Palace and all the other wonderful sights which I have seen on week-end trips to the great city of London. I should like to tell you about each of these but have not time or room. I might tell you that I was told that there are as many rooms in Buckingham Palace as there are days in the year. I don't know what they do on leap year. As to London, enough to say that it is huge, far larger than it is even possible to imagine, being over thirty miles long and I am not certain how wide, although it is more than 20 miles. In London though, to cover ground as quickly as possible, they have an 'underground railway' which is about 75' or 100' deep, I should judge, and is really a big tunnel, connected to the surface by stations which have tunnels, very nicely fixed up I assure you, going down to the trains. You go down to the trains by stairs. Mostly, I am thankful to say, are escolators which saves me much work. Some famous stations are squares in London—Trafalgar Square, Picadilly Circus, Oxford Circus, Marble Arch, etc. You might look these up to see what they are named after. By the way, London is full of towering statues, commemorating the lives of famous people: Nelson, Wellington, Alfred, Winchester, etc. This is also true of every town of any size.

For instance, Winchester has Alfred—I had my picture taken with him yesterday. Also there, in Winchester in the old castle is King Arthur's Round Table, hanging on the wall. It has been there for over 600 years.

I could go on talking for hours or pages but my envelope will not hold too much so I must soon close.

I have had several trips with the pleasure convoys to Portsmouth, and other interesting places. At Portsmouth we went through Nelson's flagship, the "Victory." I am sending you a souvenir of it later. There, too, I went aboard a submarine but must not say anything about it. Some day, when this is over, I shall come to the school and try to tell you about it.

Lastly, I suppose you would like to hear about the army, etc. Frankly, I can't tell you much about it. It is not romantic, but a job, and one that requires special and careful study. We are studying now. Some day, perhaps, we shall have to try an examination. Not all will pass. We do not think of it.

Now, I must close. Please write to me as I enjoy hearing from you. Once again good luck in your tests. Work hard and I hope none of you have to write and tell me that you failed.

So, for this time, I say "Au Revoir." Happy holidays for all.

Your old teacher,
CLIFFORD HOLMES.

BRITISH, FRENCH

The capitulation of the Belgian forces, arranged by King Leopold without consultation with his Allies, and, according to Premier Paul Reynaud, against the will of his responsible ministers, was regarded in some circles as the gravest news of the war.

Already a large number of the "parashooter" home guards had been armed and arrangements were rushed to train them as speedily as possible.

Volunteer Bodies Formed

In a broadcast to the nation Sir Edward Grigg, War Undersecretary, said that the volunteer bodies composed of former soldiers and expert rifle shots "can render splendid service by mounting guard and thus relieving trained soldiers and making sure that an enemy attack is held at bay while other troops come up."

As a precaution against Nazi bombs or parachute troops disrupting Britain's food supply the government divided the country into 800 self-contained areas—each with its own main food depot and reserves in secret locations.

If an invading force should succeed in cutting off one of these little areas its inhabitants would still be assured of food.

A crowd of refugees and other callers waited outside the Belgian Embassy but the Embassy door was closed. An official said "we cannot give out any information."

One Belgian war veteran wearing a medal and ribbons said tearfully "if the news is true I cannot understand it. Why have we stopped fighting?"

Situation Quite Grave

News of the Belgian capitulation came hard on the heels of blunt and frank word to the British people that the battle situation in Flanders had become one of gravity.

Germany, high sources said through the press, is pouring men and machines into the fighting with such speed that the plight of the British Expeditionary Force and other troops which the Nazis are attempting to encircle has become serious.

As the nation fortified itself at home it read accounts of the heroism of its infantrymen and aviators on the war front. Reports received here described a dogged resistance of the B.E.F. against heavy odds.

A unit of the Royal Engineers armed only with rifles was reported to have fought a successful action against 100 German armored cars and machine-gun-carrying motorcycles.

An Air Ministry communique said that the Royal Air Force, despite German numerical superiority in the air, continued to inflict greater losses than received.

28 Nazi Planes Shot Down

British fighter planes brought down or seriously damaged 28 German planes yesterday. British bombers attacked German-held airdromes at Flushing, Brussels and Antwerp.

New appointments revitalized the British high command. General Sir John G. Dill, new chief of the Imperial General Staff, chose as his right hand man Gen. R. H. Haining, an officer trained in open warfare and experienced in the use of tanks and mobile columns.

Major General B. C. T. Paget, commander of the 28th Division, who led British troops out of Norway without serious loss, was chief of staff of the home forces.

Cotton Imports Prohibited

In a move to conserve dollars needed to buy warplanes, the Board of Trade prohibited imports of cotton from the United States and other non-Allied countries effective May 30 except under special licence.

It was explained that since the start of the war raw cotton imports from the United States have been approximately 1,900,000 bales—or more than the total for any recent whole year.

The question of future imports will be discussed later in talks with United States authorities, it was said.

The Supply Ministry also restricted importing of machine tools from the United States to purchases made through the British Supply Boards in Canada and in the United States.

Second War Budget Talked of

Parliamentary circles said that Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, probably would suggest a second war budget this autumn when he goes before the House of Commons tomorrow for the second reading of the New Finance Bill.

He also was expected to indicate what action would be taken to obtain additional revenues through the sales tax. Members of parliament are looking for a sales tax of at least 15 per cent.

Neutral sources described the possibility of Italy entering the war as "touch and go" as Britain intensified precautions in the Mediterranean.

Curfews in Malta and Gibraltar

Curfews were ordered in Malta and Gibraltar, strategic bases on the Empire's life line. Egypt strengthened her defences by calling for National guard volunteers.

Anxiety was apparent in London's Italian colony of 17,000, but the British Press treated news of the Italian situation cautiously.

EMERGENCY STEPS

May Assume Greater Burden

And in addition the air training plan will be speeded up, Air Minister Power said, even if Canada has to assume a greater burden than originally planned when the agreement was drawn up by representatives of Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand and Australia.

Other new steps are the organization of reserve companies of veterans to be attached to militia units for training and the establishment of a special training course for senior officers of the C.A.S.F. and certain other veteran officers.

This new speed-up followed by only a few days the announcement that all units for a 3rd Canadian division and ancillary units required for a Canadian corps in the field would be recruited.

Ralston Asks for $700,000,000

Parliament heard of the latest proposed increases in the fighting strength while studying Finance Minister Ralston's measure for $700,000,000 in war appropriations for the ensuing fiscal year.

The measure received first and second reading and today the House will continue discussion on the bill provided Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions, can find time out from his pressing duties to be on hand. If so the bill as it relates to muntions and supply will be discussed. Otherwise the House will consider agricultural legislation.

According to an unofficial estimate the measures announced Monday and last week will mean the addition of 35,000 to 40,000 men to the armed forces distributed as follows: 3rd Division, upwards of 13,000; nine infantry battalions for 4th Division, 7,000; ancillary units required for formation of a Canadian Army Corps, 5,000; reinforcements for 1st and 2nd Divisions, 5,000; air force, 5,000; Veterans' Home Guard, 3,000.

Measures to Meet Situation

"These are emergency measures designed to meet the critical situation which has developed suddenly in Europe in the past fortnight," Prime Minister King said.

"In the light of events it is necessary to have regard to all possibilities and in so far as it is able the government is seeking to take account of every possibility that may arise."

Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative Leader, congratulated the government on taking action "at last."

Mr. King said it might not be possible to equip every man called for army service immediately but industry under the direction of the Department of Munitions and Supp'y was going full speed on war orders and equipment needed would be available soon.

ANDRE VERDIER HELD BY POLICE

Charged Under Defence of Canada Regulations and Remanded Until Friday

Provincial Police today seized all papers and documents found in the possession of Andre Verdier, president of the Verdier Aircraft Corporation. Verdier was arrested in his office at Deseronto late yesterday by Provincial Police and charged with violations of Section 29 of the Defence of Canada Regulations and was immediately lodged in the Belleville jail on remand.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C. today announced that all of the papers and documents found in Verdier's possession would be subject to a thorough search by the police, as the result of his alleged subversive activities. Verdier is charged with spreading reports and making statements intended or likely to cause disaffection to His Majesty or to interfere with the success of the Allied forces. It has been further alleged, that Verdier had made open statements of this nature in Deseronto, many of which were of a defamatory nature.

Investigation Ordered

A complete investigation looking into the activities of the Verdier Aircraft Company was ordered today by Crown Attorney Donnan, after it had been learned that the letterhead of the Company made reference to "ammunitions, armaments and aircraft". It was rumoured in Deseronto today, that Verdier had endeavoured to procure the use of an abandoned bank safe in that village for the storage of firearm barrels and ammunition. Provincial Constables Smith and Adair arrested Verdier and today the officers were ordered to make a thorough search of all Verdier's personal belongings and papers, purely as a precautionary move in the protection of Canada's interests during wartime.

Verdier was arraigned before Miss Mary Butler, local Justice of the Peace, last evening and remanded without bail until Thursday when he will appear in County Police Court here charged under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

No Equipment Found

When Provincial Police raided the Verdier Aircraft Corporation premises in Deseronto yesterday only a skeleton office furniture was found in the building. Two drafting tables, a chair and an office desk were the only pieces of furniture that might lead one to believe the premises were occupied. No indication of machinery was in evidence.

Shortly after Constables Smith and Adair arrived, a collecting agency representative put in an appearance seeking to recover some of the furniture, which he alleged was not paid for.

MODERATOR DECLARES WAR IS CHALLENGE TO YOUTH OF TODAY

Edmonton, May 28—(CP)—Peace and progress will come to the world "when the mutual way of life also becomes right-of-way," said Rt. Rev. John W. Woodside of Ottawa, moderator of the United Church of Canada, in addressing a Young Peoples' rally here last night. Terming the war "a challenge to youth," Dr. Woodside urged youth to regard "the present hour" as the one in which it has been called to discharge its solemn duties.

Text of Reynaud's Address To Members of Senate

Paris, May 28—(AP)—Following is the text of Premier Reynaud's speech today:—

I must announce to the French people a grave event. This event occurred last night. France can no longer count on help from the Belgian Army.

Since 4 a.m. Tuesday the French Army and the British Army have been fighting alone in the north against the enemy.

You know what the situation was. After the rupture of our front on May 14 the German Army filtered between our armies which found themselves broken into two groups, one to the north, the other to the south.

On the south it is the French divisions which are holding the new front following the Somme and Aisne and then rejoining intact the Maginot Line.

Group of Three Armies

In the north is a group of three armies: the Belgian Army, the British Expeditionary Force and several French divisions in which many of us have loved ones.

This group of three armies was under command of General Blanchard. It was being supplied via Dunkerque. The French and British Armies were defending this port to the south and west, the Belgian Army on the north.

It was this Belgian Army which has just brusquely capitulated unconditionally on the field of battle on orders of its King and without warning their French and British comrades in combat, opening the way to Dunkerque to the German divisions.

Eighteen days ago this same king, who up to that time had seemed to attach the same value to the word of Germany as to that of the Allies, sent us a call for help.

To this we replied, following the plan which had been established since last December by the Allied general staffs.

Capitulation Without Warning

But, in full battle, King Leopold 111 of Belgium—without warning General Blanchard, without consideration or a word for the French and British soldiers who had come to the help of his country in response to his anguished appeal—King Leopold 111 laid down his arms.

It is a fact without precedent in history.

The Belgian Government has told me that the decision of the King was taken against the unanimous sentiment of the responsible Ministers.

The Government added it had decided itself to put at the service of the cause all the forces of its country which are still available, and, particularly, it wishes to raise a new army and collaborate in the work of arming France.

France Thinking of Her Soldiers

It is about our soldiers that we are thinking.

They can say their honor is intact. They are making a magnificent effort along the whole front. Every day during the 18 days of the battle they have given thousands of examples of heroism.

Young French generals who have hardly had time to replace their elders have already covered themselves witht glory.Our leaders and our soldiers for ma block in which the country has entire confidence and which tomorrow will draw the admiration of the world.

We knew that sad days were coming. They have come.

France has been invaded a hundred times and never beaten. How much our courageous populations in the north must remember. It is from tests which we are awaiting that the new spirit of France will be forged which will be greater than ever.

Faith In Victory Is Intact.

Our faith in victory is intact.

The strength of every French soldier, of every Frenchman and of every Frenchwoman is increased ten times. Misfortune has always bolstered France. She has never been as united as today.

On a new line which has just been established by our great chieftain General Weygand in full accord with Marshal Petain, on the Somme and Aisne, we will hold, and because we will have held, we will win.

Army and Navy Veterans Call Mass Meeting of Citizens For Sunday in Victoria Park

Resolutions Passed at Meeting of Veterans Executive and Prominent Citizens Will Then be Discussed—Ex-Service Men Who Will Parade Through City Prior to Meeting, Will Demand Acceleration of Government War Effort

Complying with the requests of a large number of residents of the city, members of the executive of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201 augmented with a number of prominent city men unanimously decided at an emergency meeting last night to hold a monster mass meeting in Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon.

Every member and others present spoke at the meeting with the result that the following resolutions were drawn up and will be presented by prominent city speakers at the meeting on Sunday:-

Resolutions

"That the present Government of Canada cast aside all political schisms and devote all its time to its war effort."

"That political differences be forgotten, and the government stimulate recruiting, and supply aid, morally, financially and physically so as to assist in bringing the present struggle to a successful conclusion."

"That all enemy aliens, and subversive foreign elements in Canada be interned."

"That all wealth, resources and man-power of the country be conscripted."

"That adequate measures be taken to guard against possible Fifth Column activities, and that all militia units be brought to full strength so that they will be able to cope with any emergencies which may arise."

Sunday's Parade and Mass Meeting

Veterans of the district will parade on Sunday prior to the meeting, gathering at the Armouries at 2.30 p.m. Headed by the Belleville Municipal Band, the ex-service men will march through the city streets to Victoria Park. Sergeant-Major W. C. Jack was appointed marshal of the parade and will be in full charge of this phase of the meeting.

Addresses will be given from the bandstand in the park where the meeting will be in charge of ex-Alderman Laurie Lewis. The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne and other prominent men will address the gathering. Mayor Thompson and the City Council have been invited to attend. If weather conditions are not favorable the meeting will be held in the Hume Arena, if present negotiations are successful.

Urge All to Attend

Members of the executive of the veterans organization urge every loyal British subject to attend the meeting. "If you are British and wish to show your loyalty to King and Empire in this, the darkest hour in our history, then do not fail to attend" was the message given to the general public by President Fred Wiggins and his executive members.

While the consensus of opinion of those present was to present a protest against the alleged lethargy of the present government in not only its war efforts but its failure to the present to provide for any emergencies which may arise inside the Canadian borders, many angles of the situation were discussed.

Under present conditions, fifty men could take Belleville, one speaker charged. "But Fifth Column activities are not all that need to be taken care of," he said. "Our job is to take care of the Hun menace and eliminate it as quickly as possible, but we can't do it with every Armouries in the country resembling mausoleums."

Registration Urged

Registration and identification cards should be given to every person in Canada, regardless of position, race or creed, and presentation made upon demand by authorities was another suggestion that met with the approval of the meeting.

Fuller realization of the seriousness of conditions overseas and what they mean to the life of the British Empire, by the people of Canada, needs to be brought home, it was pointed out, and the veterans who fought in the last war are the logical men for this duty.

"We, in Canada, do not grasp the full import of the seriousness of things as they are at present, and unless some immediate action is taken, it may be too late," one veteran pointed out. "We have got to throw everything we have got into this struggle no matter who or what it affects, if we are to maintain the liberties our comrades fought and died for, and are now fighting and dying for in France. We have got to win this war."

"Politics do not enter into this question at all," another stated, "no matter what government is in power, it should throw political differences by the board and devote its full energies to its war effort. While this meeting will be held in some form of a protest, the deeper meaning of it is to bring home to the citizens of this city the need for action locally and to give an expression of loyalty to the Empire."

ORGANIZATIONS ORDERED CLOSED

Calgary, May 28—(CP) — Two organizations, the Ukrainian Labor Temple Association and the Russian Workers and Farmers Club were ordered to close their halls last week by Chief of Police David Ritchie, City Council learned last night. Mayor Andrew Davison said a letter from one of the organizations would be submitted to the Police Commission's next meeting.

Charter Night Held By Marmora Kinsmen

Marmora (Special) — Marmora Kinsmen's Club held an auspicious meeting on Monday evening the occasion being "Charter Night". The Royal Hotel dining room was the venue again for another fine supper followed by the meeting. President Ray Underwood welcomed Kinsmen from Kingston and Peterborough following the singing of the National Anthem. The President then called upon the gathering to join in the singing of the Kinsmen's song and community singing led by Ray Smith, William Townson next reported on the service work done in the district.

The President in a comprehensive manner touched upon the inception of the local club and its activities up to the present. He also suggested to the members that as a service organization by their influence they could do much to discourage idle chatter in these dark days. After referring to charter night he called upon District Governor Austin Petes of Kingston to carry on with the next business of the meeting. District Governor Peters referred to charter night as a milestone upon the assistance given by the Peterborough Club as the sponsor of the Marmora Club. He believed that the Marmora Club was the eightieth Kinsmen Club to be organized. Speaking generally he felt that the motto of the organization had been "The Community's Greatest Need." He congratulated the Marmora Club on its fine membership and accomplishments. The National President had asked him to extend the executive's greetings.

The speaker next referred to District No. 6 convention which is being held in North Bay early in June and expressed hope that the new club would be able to send delegates. Before presenting the charter to President Underwood the District Governor remarked that it was the second occasion for him to perform such an act. In February of this year he had gone to Noranda for the same purpose. He felt that the Marmora President was a tower of strength in bringing such a group of young men together to form the Marmora Club.

President Underwood made fitting response as he accepted the charter. President Vernon Selkirk of the Peterborough Club said he felt it a signal honor to have been of some assistance in the formation of the Marmora Club. As he visited Marmora last March he had been surprised to see th progress then made. He too felt that in the critical times the Kinsmen could be of assistance in contending with subversive ideas. He extended the best wishes of the Peterborough Club for the welfare of the Marmora organization.

Kinsmen Doug Slater of Kingston said it was an honor to belong to such an organization as the Kinsmen and he suggested that the Peterborough Club mark the anniversary of the Marmora Club on May 27th. each year by attending the Marmora meeting in large numbers.

Kinsmen Jim Wharrie of Peterborough and Alex Sallett of the same club regaled the gathering with a few stories the latter also remarking that the foundation of the Kinsmen Club is its service work.

Vic Knowles of the Marmora Club in response to a call from the chair testified to his pleasure in seeing his club chartered and said he felt it would be a standout club in the days to come. He too welcomed the good attendance of visitors. F. R. Wills also spoke for the Marmora Club in which he was pleased to note straight speaking and co-operation. For Registrar Vincent Lynch who was called away to another appointment he mentioned the evenings attendance of members as being 82.1 per cent with twelve visitors.

After a round of stories, Ray Smith again led in community singing and the meeting adjourned.

from the king' saction and had declared itself the only legal government of Belgium.

He told the House he expects to make a statement on the general situation when the result of the "intense struggle now going on" is known and measured.

But "this perhaps will not be until beginning of next week," he said.

Situation "Extremely Grave".

Reminding the House that the situation of British and French troops is "extremely grave", he declared "the feeling of brotherhood" of people who have fallen under or met German aggression will "play its part in better days."

Belgium's army had, he said, fought "very bravely" and "suffered and inflicted heavy losses."

"However," the prime minister continued," the Belgian command had agreed to the German proposal and the Belgian army ceased to resist the enemy at four o'clock this morning.

Allied Duty Still Remains.

"Nothing which may happen in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves."

To the accompaniment of cheers, the prime minister declared the news from the continent should not "destroy our confidence in our power to make out a way through disaster and grief to the ultimate defeat of our enemy."

Hastings Lees-Smith, Labor, and Sir Percy Harris, Liberal, praised what the latter called Mr. Churchill's "dignified" statement.

Mr. Lees-Smith declared that whatever the prime minister might say in the future "we have not yet touched the fringe of the resolution" of Britain.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Wind and rain! People often say in some parts of the world that they always get rain with an east wind, meaning that the east wind is the one which bears the moisture. This is very often the case, as when a damp east wind is blowing from an ocean up a land slope. But sometimes an east wind may be relatively dry and yet it may be raining. This is explained by a southerly moisture-bearing wind rising up and over the colder air of the east wind. Upon cooling, it sends down rain which falls through the east wind. This is called a "warm front" rain; but people may very reasonably say that it is the east wind bringing them rain.

Nazi Peace Terms Would be Horrible Says Dorothy Thompson

New York, May 29 — (AP)—Dorothy Thompson, public affairs writer and commentator, returned from Europe yesterday with the prediction that "something horrible for Great Britain" would underscore any peace terms a victorious Germany might offer.

"The Treaty of Versailles," she said after her arrival on the United States liner Washington, "will seem like a charming, humanitarian, slightly quixotic, victorian document compared to the treaty the Germans have in mind."

"I think we should go into this struggle. The world is going to be run on someone's terms and they might as well be ours. I don't believe that we should wait and see what Hitler does and then adjust our course to it."

"The Nazis will not rule the world in the end," she added.

3 U. S. WARSHIPS ON WAY TO LISBON

Vessels Will Join Atlantic Squadron 'for Protection of American Interests' Abroad

Washington, May 29 (AP).—Three United States warships were en route today to Lisbon, Portugal, where the Navy said they would join the Atlantic squadron "for the protection of American interests" abroad.

Naval Secretary Charles Edison explained that the detachment would not convoy any merchant vessels. His statement apparently was designed to forestall any conjecture that they might accompany the liners President Roosevelt or Washington when they bring back United States refugees from the war zone.

The President Roosevelt is on the way to Ireland to pick up a shipload of Americans from the British Isles.

The Washington was directed by the State Department last night to sail tomorrow to bring Americans from Bordeaux, France, and Lisbon, as well as from Genoa, Italy, her regular port of call. The vessel arrived in New York yesterday.

Three hundred Americans are waiting at Bordeaux and 70 are at Lisbon, the State Department said About 1,800 already are at Genoa and Naples.

The warships which left yesterday for Lisbon were the Vincennes, a 10,000-ton cruiser; the Truxtun and the Simpson, destroyers. Now based at Lisbon are the cruiser Trenton and the destroyers Herbert and Dickinson.

'Unthinkable' Says Maeterlinck Of King Leopold's Surrender

Lisbon, May 29—(CP-Havas)—"Unthinkable! My spirit and my heart refuse to believe this report," Belgium's man of letters, 78-year-old Count Maurice Maeterlinck said here last night when he was informed of King Leopold's surrender.

"There has been no treason like this in history," he said. "It is the German blood which suddenly had cropped up in the veins of the king, who is a Belgian only in name. Was this treason premeditated as the circumstances lead us to suppose?

"In that case what still remains unexplainable is its stupidity, its baseness. How could the Belgian army follow the abominable example of the one who was its leader? Through error?

"The name of Judas is still too good to describe his act. The Belgian government by its stand may save the honor and name of Belgium."

Protective Screen of Destruction Laid Around Army Making Withdrawal

ARMY STILL INTACT

Withdrawal Has Been Effected Several Miles Towards Coast — Majority of Equipment Not in Northern Pocket

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 29—(CP-Cable)—The British Expeditionary Force is still intact and has withdrawn some miles towards the coast, it was stated in military circles today.

Information has been received that Narvik, the Norwegian ore port, was captured last night by Allied forces and that Fagernes and Forsneset also are in Allied hands.

The capture of Narvik is important not only because it prevents Germany's use of this ore port but provides the Allies with a sea and air base on the Norwegian coast.

It is stated here that a majority of the equipment belonging to the B.E.F. is not in the northern pocket but safe behind the French lines south of the Somme.

The Royal Air Force sought to relieve pressure on Allied land forces whose left flank was exposed when King Leopold of the Belgians ordered his army to lay down its arms. Relentlessly it smashed at German communications and military objectives in the Reich itself.

In a broadcast to the nation last night Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, declared "it will be necessary to withdraw our army from the positions they now occupy but it will not be a defeated army that we shall withdraw."

How the withdrawal would be affected—whether by a break through the bottleneck of the German salient on a line running roughly between Arras and Peronne or, as in the Boulogne sector, by sea was not immediately apparent.

A break-through, effected with strength and reinforced to form a new line might have the effect of turning the tables on the Germans

ITALY'S FERVOR HEIGHTENS WITH BELGIAN COLLAPSE

Active Intervention in World Conflict Appears but a Question of Days

CIVILIANS READY

Rome, May 29 (AP).—Italy's war fervor heightened today with the Belgian collapse, on the western front an active Italian intervention in the conflict seemed to many to be but a question of days.

Civilians began today to take over some of the posts left vacant by men called to arms and the government prepared to make many other such replacements in case a civil mobilization is put into effect.

Young Fascists served as traffic police and women and girls were seen in Rome in uniforms and helmets riding motorcycles equipped for air raid precaution duties.

Government offices are prepared to substitute pension employees for men called to arms in event of civil mobilization. The pensioned men will be rehired with preferences being granted to fathers of large families, or with sons fighting.

A million and a half volunteers—women and minors enlisted through the Fascist party—are prepared to take over special jobs at a moment's notice. Many will be employed in the industries and agriculture to replace soldiers.

Party leaders estimated that a total of 10,000,000 non-combattants soon would be functioning in what they called a "second army".

University student members of the Fascist militia celebrated today the 16th anniversary of the establishment of their branch of the blackshirt fighting organization in special military ceremonies.

At Rome a battalion goose-stepped under Mussolini's balcony at the Piazza Venezia.

Tank Production In Great Britain To be Increased

London, May 29 (CP).—Herbert Morrison, Minister of Supply, announced today that he had appointed a board headed by Sir Alexander Roger to increase Britain's production of tanks.

Mr. Morrison said the board would be asked to "proceed with all expedition possible in dealing with this urgent and vital matter" and to advise him of any action required.

When a member asked Mr. Morrison if he had "noted the havoc on the western front" he replied:

"It is obvious that the experience gained during the recent hostilities must be taken fully into account."

Sir Alexander, chairman of British Insulated Cables, Ltd., and director of the Midland Bank, was director of the Motor Ambulance Department, British Red Cross, 1914-15; general director of Trench Warfare Supply Department, Ministry of Munitions, in 1915-17, and a member of the council, Ministry of Reconstruction, in 1917-18.

EIRE PUTS ARMY ON WAR FOOTING IN QUICK MOVE

Action Taken in Face of Grave Situation Facing Her Neighbor, Britain

DEFENCE COUNCIL

Dublin, May 29—(CP) — Eire called up army reserves today and moved swiftly to put her forces on a war footing in the face of the grave situation confronting her neighbor, Britain.

The procedure was strictly along normal lines.

At the same time, volunteers began applying for service at recruiting stations; but outwardly Dublin went on about its business pretty much as usual.

Clerks, shopkeepers, laborers and others in the reserve corps reported at the Collins barracks and other designated depots for instructions.

The newly formed National Defence Committee of representatives of the Government and Opposition parties in Parliament prepared to meet late today in its first session—a session out of which the first of several emergency measures were expected to be proclaimed.

Acceptance of Premier Eamon De Valera's call for unity by William T. Cosgrave, leader of the fine Gael Opposition Party and by the Labor Opposition resulted in creation of the council representing all factions.

Brought to Full Strength

De Valera announced that the army would be brought up to full strength immediately, along with the merging of governmental facilities, to the end that the liberty for which Ireland fought so long might not be taken away by any foreign nation.

The country, which has maintained neutrality since outbreak of war, heard De Valera declare last week-end that Ireland "really is in

HIGH GERMAN LOSSES

Fighting Violent at Lys River and Situation of Trapped Armies in Flanders 'Critical'

Paris, May 29 (AP).—On a great consolidated front along the Somme to Aisne Rivers, the main French army carried on continuous operations today against the Germans, while the position of the Allied forces of the north was described as "very critical".

These hard-pressed men in the Flanders pocket, fighting desperately, were declared to be inflicting heavy losses on the enemy.

The operations to the north which the French authorities cautiously have called "important", apparently are aimed for the moment at wiping out the last German pockets as part of a general push forward in an effort to relieve the northern forces.

Whether such an offensive has gone beyond this preliminary stage is not clear.

Three Villages Taken.

Three villages south of the Somme have been recaptured and French troops likewise have succeeded in eliminating all but a few bridgehead positions previously occupied by the enemy.

Most of Amiens is said now to be in French hands, and a German raid on French positions in the Ardennes sector near the town of Chateau Porcien was thrown back, said a communique, by heavy French fire. The Maginot Line area to the east remained quiet.

But, however important was this operation of the southern Allied wing, it was overshadowed by the great drama of the north.

Reliable Sources in London Report British Establish Definite Line

IN COMPLETE ORDER

London, May 29 (CP).—The British Expeditionary Force in Flanders was said by reliable sources today to be fighting "stiff rear guard action" to cover the withdrawal toward the coast.

The B.E.F. has succeeded in establishing a definite line and is putting up strong opposition, it was added.

It was "almost certain" that any equipment and material which may have to be abandoned will be destroyed to prevent its falling into Germany's hands, a spokesman said.

British troops are fighting in complete order with no chaos or confusion, it was added. Morale remains "quite unshaken".

Spurt in Aviation Manufacture Will Soon Give R. A. F. Superiority

London, May 29 (CP)—A spurt in aviation manufacture will soon give the Royal Air Force a numerical edge over the Nazi air arm The Times predicted today in a review of the situation created by King Leopold's capitulation.

The superiority of the Allied air forces, The Times declared, will be one of the vital factors in obtaining victory. The newspaper emphasized that Allied naval forces are still masters of the seas and are pitilessly hammering at Germany's economic position.

Referring in bitter terms to Belgium's refusal to enter a defensive alliance with the Allies before the war, The Times said:

"Nevertheless, when the assault was actually delivered, they (the Belgians) appealed at once to Great Britain and France for help and we could do no other than accord it instantly and endeavor to extemporize for Belgium a defence that might have been systematically planned."

Paris, May 29—(AP)—The legal fate of Leopold III as King of the Belgians will be decided Friday by the Belgian Parliament.

The Parliament, in emergency session in Paris, already has approved the action of Leopold's cabinet yesterday in "disowning" him as sovereign because of his surrender to Germany.

A dispatch from the Belgian frontier reported that Leopold had been returned to the Brussels palace by the German army.

For Friday's session the Parliament will meet in the Paris City Hall. There, besides taking up formal action on the king, new statutes for the government of the refugee peoples of invaded Belgium will be drawn up.

EXTORTION LETTER BRINGS JAIL TERM

'Love Notes' Slipped Under 'Hired Girl's' Door Intercepted by Mistress

Hanna, Alta., May 29 (CP). — Love notes slipped under the "hired girl's" door on a farm thirty miles north of here, by Antoine Bouque, 30, Newcastle, N.B., started a series of events which sent him to penitentiary for two and a half years for attempted extortion. Hanna is 130 miles northeast of Calgary.

The note-slipping got Bouque, a farm laborer, nowhere with the 19-year-old girl, for the farmer's wife intercepted them and gave them to her husband, who dismissed Bouque.

Last Saturday the farmer received a letter threatening that the writer would "tell everything" if $100 was not deposited at a designated point by Monday.

The farmer showed police the extortion note and the love notes. Bouque was arrested a few hours later.

Appearing before Magistrate A. G. R. Bond, Bouque was sentenced to hard labor when the magistrate was satisfied the handwriting of the notes was similar.

Magistrate Bond told Bouque he had done a "despicable thing — had broken the trust of and threatened those who gave him shelter."

ALL ALIENS, 16 YEARS AND OVER, ARE RESTRICTED

Must Possess Police Permit to be Out at Night Whether from Enemy Country or Not

HOUSEHOLDER'S DUTY

Aliens Must Not Own Bicycle, Motor Vehicle, Seagoing Craft or Aircraft

London, May 29—(CP)—Activity of all aliens over 16 years of age, regardless of whether they are from an "enemy country," are drastically restricted under a new order effective June 3.

The order provides that unless aliens have police permits they must stay at home from midnight to 6 a.m. in London and from 10.30 p.m. to 6 a.m. elsewhere in the United Kingdom.

They are forbidden to own or control a bicycle, motor vehicle, seagoing craft or aircraft.

Those without settled residences must report to police on the day the order becomes effective. If an alien spends a night in a private home the householder is required to notify police.

Sir Stafford Cripps On Visit to Moscow Given Special Status

London, May 29—(CP) — Sir Stafford Cripps is going to Moscow with the status of special ambassador and his position is fully representative and authoritative, the London Evening News said today.

The newspaper said assurances to that effect have been given to the Russian ambassador, Ivan Maisky, by the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Richard Butler.

Suggestions that Sir Stafford might become a permanent ambassador were not supported in official quarters, the News said. Sir Stafford is going to the Russian capital to conduct negotiations for a Soviet-British Trade Pact.

Mr. Butler informed the House of Commons that he hoped it would be possible to make a statement shortly on the Cripps mission.

The regular British ambassador to Russia, Sir William Seeds, returned to London Jan. 10 on what was described as a long-delayed furlough. No date has been set for his return.

BOYS ENJOY WATCHING CIRCUS ANIMALS GET THEIR DAILY GROOMING

If Junior is missing around supper time these days the chances are that he will be found at the market square, there taking in the sights and watching the animals which belong to the menagerie of the circus which is in town this week. This morning and last evening the lot in behind the arena was crowded with boys as they watched the menagerie attendants give the big elephants their daily grooming. Lying in the alleyway as his keeper gave him a thorough grooming, one of the troupe seemed to be enjoying himself this morning as he idly sucked water from a bucket with his long trunk and squirted it into his mouth which is the only manner in which the elephant can take his drink.

CARP SEEN IN RIVER NEAR LOWER BRIDGE

Working their way up into the Moira River from the bay, a large number of carp were seen disporting in the water near the lower bridge this morning. Leaping and jumping from the water the fish could be seen in all parts of the river at this point. Experienced fishermen state that seldom are carp seen in water running as fast as the Moira River is at the present time, as usually they keep to the shallow places and in marshes about the bay.

Knights of Columbus To Devote Proceeds of Bingo to Hospital Fund

Cognizant of the fine work being done for the residents of the city and district by the Belleville General Hospital, and in keeping with their usual willingness to contribute to a worthy cause, members of the Knights of Columbus here will devote the entire proceeds of a Bingo, being held in the Front Street rooms Thursday night, to the hospital Furnishing Fund.

This fund has been established for the purpose of equipping those rooms not already furnished, in the new wing of the hospital.

The new addition, that already is filling a long-felt want, has several rooms that are yet to be equipped and furnished, and the "Knights" realizing this, have signified their intention of lending their active support by donating the proceeds of tomorrow night's function. They are offering handsome prizes and extend a cordial welcome to all to attend, not only to enjoy a pleasant profitable evening but in so doing lend their assistance to a humanitarian cause.

Estimates For County Road Expenditures Reduced 17 Per Cent.

Estimates for construction and maintenance of the County Roads and Bridges system for the current year as forwarded following the January session, of County Council, to the Department of Highways, have been reduced approximately 17.5 percent, and the remainder approved according to an announcement on Wednesday from county council officials.

The original estimates called for an expenditure of $91,000, the same figure as forwarded for approval last year but official department communications stated that this amount has been reduced to $75,000, a decrease of $16,000. County officials, however, voiced the hope that a similar rearrangement as last year, when the department approved an additional $5,000 after reducing the original estimates by the sum of $15,000, might come into effect.

The reduction, it was pointd out, will necessarily curtail certain new construction work included in the original estimates. The greater part of the approved sum will be utilized for repair and maintenance work on the roads and bridges system.

Chamber of Commerce Concludes Good Will Tours With Visit to Stirling

Irvine Hefky, President of Local Chamber, Acts as Chairman for Occasion

SPLENDID PROGRAM

Stirling, Ont.—(Staff)—The last link in the chain of good fellowship, better understanding and co-operation that exists between the villages and the county seat of the County of Hastings, was forged in the beautiful Community Hall here last night, when the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, some thirty strong, were hosts to the Stirling Community Club at the final phase of the Good Will and Better Acquaintance Tour instituted last year.

The Chamber of Commerce last year enjoyed similar cavalcades to Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Bancroft and other villages of the county, but summer holidays prevented the appearance of the city organization at Stirling at that time.

The Stirling community "troops," some 45 in all, capitulated wholehearted to the peaceful invaders. The good hand of fellowship and friendship was stretched out and grasped with all the sincerity that marked former cavalcades, and which proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, that nothing but the finest co-operative spirit and blood brothership exists between the outlying communities and the county seat of Hastings.

Mirth and Music

There was mirth, music and that genial camaraderie that is always evident when good fellows get together. There was a repast served by the Stirling ladies that was par excellence. It was a blending of a cross section of the urban and village business men and agricultural residents of the county merged into a whole, that bespoke a tightening of the bonds that already holds the far-flung sections of this county in friendship, co-operation and mutual admiration.

But beneath the gay fellowship and mirth that characterized the function, was a grimmer undercurrent, the shadow of the crisis that now threatens the Empire, and which was brought home to the full to the Stirling organization yesterday when one of its most popular young men died on the field of honor, the first war casualty of the village, served only to draw the gathering closer. There was a strange silence, when the dark clouds that now threaten the Empire's very existence were mentioned. Men's faces wore expressions, not of impending defeat, but more, perhaps, of determination to see the thing through no matter what the cost.

Fine Musical Program

President I. G. Hefkey of the Chamber of Commerce was in the chair. Highlights of the function were the splendid selections offered during the dinner and also during addresses by the Chamber of Commerce Band under Lieut. Fred Jobson. The band gave freely of its ability and many laudatory comments were given following its fine performance. Other musical numbers included several selections by the Belleville Male Quartette, composed of Messrs. Harry Moorman, Alfred Evans, Harold Howard and James Bankier, while the latter was heard in a number of patriotic vocal solos, and also led the community singing. The ever-popular Leo B. Riggs performed at the piano in his usual masterful manner.

The Chairman

President Hefkey in his opening remarks told the gathering that the cavalcade was here for no other purpose than to promote good fellowship and better acquaintance.

Canada, he said, was the most wonderful country in the world, where people live together happily, far removed from hatred and suspicion.

He paid tribute to Stirling, "one of the model villages of Ontario, where people enjoy all the privilege of freedom and are paving the way to a better, broader citizenship."

Referring to excerpts of the King's Empire Day address, he said: "We must be confident. Right will eventually control the destiny of the British Empire."

("The Village of Stirling")

Mr. Lyle Hunter, Swift Canadian manager, in a brief toast to the village of Stirling spoke of the natural beauty of the village. It has a beautiful setting, he said, one that is an ideal location for a model village, and which one would go a long way to duplicate. He was impresesd with its fine buildings, residences and places of business. A real business and residential centre of the county, one could not desire more. Not much can be said about Stirling, he remarked. "It speaks for itself."

"We are justly proud of our village and all it represents," Reeve William West remarked, in his response to the toast. Churches were plentiful, he said, which bears out the true spirit of democracy in that man can worship wherever he likes. Schools in Stirling were second to none and are staffed with teachers of which the village is proud.

He regretted no industries had located in the town, but, he added "we have a hydro system that is hard to beat. The rates are low, and the system is now out of debt, thanks to the foresight of those splendid men responsible for its installation."

Reeve West extended a civic welcome to the guests and bade them return.

("The City of Belleville")

Revealing an unique sense of humor, Mr. Robert Patterson, vice-president of the Community Club, in his toast to the City of Belleville dealt mostly with the "sons of Stirling," who had made a name for themselves in business, professional and other walks of life in the city. Naming such men as Cliff Baragar, C. C. McGuire, W. Jeffrey, J. W. Haggerty, Dr. Guthridge, E. Sandercock, B. C. Donnan K.C., Thos. Soames, P. C. McGuire, J. O. Herity and Mrs. A. B. Payne, the speaker gave a humorous resume of their present activities.

"We love you, Belleville" he said. "We are separated only by sixteen miles, but we love your fine schools, hospital, churches and colleges. Great men are functioning there and you have great prospects for their successors in your youths. But the greatest thing of all we admire you for, is for your British loyalty" (Cheers).

Typical Dolan wit, broken by a sincere appeal to "keep your chin up, and set an example in these war days," characterized Charles Dolan, pinch-hitting for Mayor Glen E. Thompson, in his response to the toast. The speaker drew laughter with his humorous description of a lady serving him with a piece of pie, and several stories.

"We must not weaken," he said, "by going to pieces in these grave times. They can blast England and France, but we are not licked. We have our vast resources and they're not going to whip us."

"Keep your chins up, you leaders of men and business," he said. "Our time will come and we'll win."

The County of Hastings

Contribution to the country's war effort, besides men and money, can be as substantial from Hastings County, C. L. Jewell, manager, Canadian Bank of Commerce, Belleville, said in proposing the toast to the county.

The 78 million pounds of cheese sold to the British Ministry of foods at 14 cents the pound has a value to Canada of eleven millions of dollars, he pointed out. There will be no effect on bonuses paid, as long as Parliament votes money for this purpose. Bonuses paid to Hastings County farmers last year amounted to $55,000, or one-tenth of the total amount paid to the Dominion.

Referring to the tourist industry, Mr. Jewell told the gathering that foreign exchange from this source will be a valuable contribution to Canada's war effort. He urged all to do their best to promote this business.

"Do not overlook to pay the premium on U. S. funds," the speaker warned, "in fact a penalty has been provided for failure to do so."

He complimented officials on the county's excellent financial condition.

Ex-Warden Responds

Responding to this toast, Ex-Warden George Bailey reviewed the early history of the county, its origin and progress. Its man-power contribution to the last Great War was 4,000, he said. "We will do the same this time, and if we cannot give men we will give money."

He urged that all fully grasp the idea of contributing in whatever way possible to the country's war effort. "We must not forget that we are part of the Empire, and must stand behind her now as we did in the past."

The county, he said, was second to none regarding its financial condition. No debentures had been issued since 1916 and in the course of a year, Hastings will be entirely free of debt. "We should be proud of the men whose foresight has made this possible," he said.

He paid tribute to former wardens such as the late Harry Corby, Sir Mackenzie Bowell and J. R. Cook. Referring to Belleville, Mr. Bailey remarked it was a fine city that had a wonderful heritage. Prospects this year for tourist trade were excellent, he said, speaking in glowing terms of the efforts of Mr. J. O. Herity in this respect.

Closing, he said, "Hastings County has a great duty before her, and that is to help win the war. We must put our shoulders to the wheel and get behind the boys over there. It is our solemn duty."

The Stirling Community Club

Splendid tribute to the Stirling Club was paid by J. E. McVeigh, Belleville manager of the Kresge Store, in proposing the toast to that organization. Its efforts, he said, combine all the qualities of service clubs, chambers of commerce and other organizations. It is a means of self expression of foresight on the part of residents of this village and communities. They have gone out and established a bond between themselves and the rural districts. "It is such organizations as this, chambers of commerce and service clubs, that have created all the good things in the country."

Each member of the club the speaker said, has that fine feeling of fellowship and co-operation, that can result in nothing but progress collectively. It is this spirit, he pointed out, that will win the war. "I am sure when the government calls for co-operation, such organizations as these will be in the vanguard."

In his response President Ernest Sarles who was proud, he said to be a farmer from the back concessions, extended the club's welcome to the guests.

Belleville is the parent centre of all county community efforts he said, and Stirling has not been backward in accepting her guidance as represented in the Chamber of Commerce. In humorous vein, he recalled his boyhood visits, when he thought cities were designated as such because horses on street-cars wore bells and where the streets were a "sparrow's paradise."

"Today" he said, "your city is a modern one, with its beautiful homes, churches and schools, made possible through the enterprise and foresight of its citizens."

"The Chamber of Commerce"

The origin of the Community Club resulted from the efforts of J. O. Herity, Thomas Solmes, past president of the organization said, in proposing this toast, and it has been a wonderful factor in cementing friendship between Belleville and Stirling. The good done here has more than rewarded the efforts put into the club by its members.

Turning to the war, the speaker said, "it was rather a difficult job to keep one's chin up these days with the recurring bad news from Europe.

"Honor Village's First Casualty"

"This morning," Mr. Solmes said, in a tense silence, "this village was dumbfounded, when it learned of its first casualty on the battlefronts of Europe. Jimmy Mitchell a bright smiling young chap, a popular member of this club and the Dominion Bank here, was reported killed in action "somewhere in Europe." Jimmy was a flying officer in the Royal Air Force, and died doing his duty high in the clouds against the enemy. At this point, the speaker said, "I think it fitting to respect his memory with a one minute's silence."

Following this observance, Mr. Solmes continued: "These things bring home the fact, that we are facing a struggle the end of which we do not know, but which buoys us up with the determination to silence forever this monster who is sowing death and destruction over peaceful countries.

Referring again to the cavalcade, the speaker said, "the Chamber of Commerce has done a great deal in extending and spreading goodwill and friendship throughout the country. "Its object is to build up Belleville, but in so doing, it is assisting the villages. The county seat is progressing and the rural municipalities are benefiting by it."

In his response to the toast, B. C. Sisler, Dominion Bank manager, Belleville pointed out the importance of the tourist industry to Canada and her war efforts. U.S.A. tourists spent 250 millions of dollars in Canada last year and with European travel out of the question in 1940, this amount should be increased by another million at least. Advocating the stimulation of the industry this year, he said efforts should be redoubled to exploit the traffic. Exchange on U.S. currency should be paid at all times, while as business men, he urged his listeners to create a friendly atmosphere, be courteous, do not "gyp" the visitors, and obey all refrain from arguing about the war.

"But" he warned, "we must remember the 'Fifth Column' activities and what they resulted in, in other countries. We must be on the alert and see that none are active in our midst. The tourist industry will be a great source for these swine to infiltrate into our country. If you see or hear anything suspicious, report it to the authorities immediately," he said.

Mr. Howard Clarke in a brief address of appreciation thanked the artists, individually and collectively also the ladies of Stirling, for their fine efforts that contributed so much to the success of the visit. The National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne brought the function to a close.

Earl of Athlone Names His Staff

London, May 28—(CP-Cable)—The Earl of Athlone tonight appointed Sir Shuldham Redfern to be his secretary when he takes up his duties as Governor-General of Canada.

Other appointments included:

Colonel H. Willis-O'Connor, principal aide-de-camp.

Catain G. J. Little of the Coldstream Guards, comptroller of the household.

Commander E. Sherwood, R.C.N., Captain T. P. C. Goff, Scots Guards, Lieut. D. Lantier, R.C.N.V.R. and Lieut. Hon. E. Chatfield, R.N.V.R., aides-de-camp.

JAMES MITCHELL KILLED IN ACTION

Former Resident of Stirling Was a Member of R.A.F. Somewhere in France

The grimmer side of war was forcibly brought home to residents of Stirling on Tuesday when announcement was made through the press of the death of a former popular village resident, James (Jimmy) Mitchell, "killed in action" somewhere in France.

A flight-lieutenant in the Royal Air Force, the meagre details surrounding the death of Mitchell brought no ready information.

"Jimmy" as he was popularly known to his intimate friends, was formerly connected with the Stirling branch of the Dominion Bank. He was an active member of the Community Club and took a keen interest in all phases of community work and life.

He joined the air force some time ago and his prized "wings" soon sent him soaring in the Hun-ridden skies of the North Sea and France. The first casualty from the nearby community, "Jimmy" will be missed in many circles.

Police Blotter

Belleville police continued their drive against motorists, who violate city traffic regulations, yesterday. Speedsters, those who fail to observe city stop street signs and other infractions of the traffic laws all came under the concerted drive of the city police to clean up such unnecessary operations of motor vehicles within the city limits. At least a dozen summonses have been issued to such delinquent motorists during the past three days.

M. A. Robinson, Toronto, reported the theft of samples, which were taken from his automobile last night. The vehicle was left parked in a city parking lot. During his absence two pair of sox and a number of fabric samples were taken.

A bicycle, which had been parked on East Bridge Street by Pauline Schrieder, of this city, was damaged when struck by a motor car as the latter vehicle was parking. The damage incurred was amicably settled.

A motor car driven by P. M. Knowls, Montreal, collided with a bicycle, ridden by H. Mowat, Belleville, on Front Street this morning. Although Mowat was knocked to the pavement by the force of the impact, he was not seriously injured.

Mr. Knowls informed Sergeant Arthur Booth that his automobile overtook the cyclist sooner than he had judged. The matter of damage was settled between the two parties concerned.

Last night's heavy deluge of rain saw an increased number of transients seeking shelter at the police station when 18 were given dry sleeping quarters.

Democracy's Greatest Menace Is 'Defeatism' Says Minister

Sir Gerald Campbell Says Hitler's Greatest Weapon Has Been Fostering in Countries Marked for Invasion, This Sense of Defeat

NOT DISPIRITED

New York, May 29.— (CP)—Democracy's greatest menace today is not Hitlerism or Communism but "Defeatism", Sir Gerald Campbell, High Commissioner from the United Kingdom to Canada, said last night at a banquet in his honor given by the Canadian Club.

Sir Gerald said that one of Hitler's greatest weapons had been the fostering in countries marked for invasion of this sense of defeat. But Hitler had not been able to produce it in any part of the British Commonwealth.

The High Commissioner was presented by Victor Goggin, Club president, with the first Canadian Club award, a gold medal given for furtherance of good relations between the United States and Canada or any units of the British Empire and the United States.

A guest speaker as the Marquess of Lothian British Ambassador to the United States, who expressed the opinion that it was time the democracies began to honor soldierly qualities. By this he did not mean militarism but the spirit of the happy warrior who could consider a cause greater than himself, who realized that "the price of freedom is constant service and sacrifice". No one, he felt, had exemplified this spirit in finer terms than King George. Too often democracy had been defined as the right to do as one pleases.

"The news from Europe is very bad, but we are not dispirited", said Lord Lothian. He read a telegram he had just received from Lady Astor: "The spirit of sailors and soldiers back from France is exactly the same as it was in 1914. You can't beat it".

Democracy Only Talked

Sir Gerald Campbell remarked that in the last few years "while Democracy talked, totalitarianism armed, and you know where we've got."

For United States alarm at the trend of military affairs in Europe he had a parable. "You know that the Malay woman has her baby and goes about her work, while her husband gets sick and goes to bed".

Sir Gerald felt that the vulnerable spot in the Hitler armor will be found by the Royal Air Force. "The ratio of four German planes brought down to one R.A.F. flier lost is conservative", he said. "And you know that that can do to enemy morale". Furthermore, the Royal Navy was still almost intact, and the British foot soldier was a force to be reckoned with.

Canada had given her answer to the challenge of Hitlerism without being asked by any other unit of the British Commonwealth, Sir Gerlan reminded his audience. "We saw then that the equality of status in no way detracted from the common unity of purpose". Canada possibly "will be the arsenal of the Empire if factories in England are bombed, and all the time Canada is preparing manpower", he continued.

"They are fighting so that youth may live for its country, not die for its country", Sir Gerald said.

John W. Davis, former United States Ambassador to Great Britam said that Canada was beating its ploughshares into swords and its pruning hooks into spears and that in this there was "a lesson in valor for Americans".

Home-Made Bomb Planted Near Legion Hall in B. C.

Vernon, B.C., May 29 (CP)— A home-made bomb planted in an ashcan at the rear of the Canadian Legion Hall here exploded with a roar, shattering several windows in the structure last night as leaders of the Vernon and District Volunteer Home Defence unit were discussing their first day of recruiting.

The windows shattered were at the rear of the room in which the men were meeting. No one was injured.

Police started an immediate investigation. Officers said they believed the bomb was made of stumping powder packed in a kettle. The ashcan in which the bomb was planted was ripped to bits.

PRIME MINISTER CONFERS WITH THE OPPOSITION

Revealed Some of the Grave Matters Hitherto Known Only to Government

NO SECRET SESSION

Ottawa, May 29.—(CP)—Parliament went ahead with its war work today with leaders of Opposition groups sharing the knowledge of the Government on some points of the war program.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his war cabinet committee conferred yesterday with opposition chieftains both in the House of Commons and the Senate and revealed to them some of the grave matters hitherto known only to the government.

Decision of the Prime Minister to take his chief opponents into his confidence on the war situation [illegible] o meet the changing crisis called a temporary [illegible] in both houses for a secret session at which such vital information might be disclosed.

The war committee and Mr. King conferred with Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen Senate Conservative Leader, Senator J. A. Calder and C. C. Ballantyne. The committee met Hon. R. H. Hanson, Conservative leader in the House of Commons, Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale) and Hon. Earl Rowe (Con. Dufferin Simcoe).

Mr. King also met M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F.-Rosetown-Biggar), Acting Leader of that group, and John Blackmore, leader of the new Democracy group.

The meetings were the first of the kind in the many years Mr. King has held the post of Prime Minister.

The Conservative representatives at the conferences were all Privy Councillors and all competent to bring to the Government experience gained in previous cabinets.

Cabinet Members Attend

Members of the Cabinet War Committee attending the meetings, besides Mr. King, were Justice Minister Lapointe, Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader in the Senate, Finance Minister Ralston, Defence Minister Rogers and Air Minister Power.

Mr. King designated Mr. Lapointe as House Leader for the balance of the session in order to give himself more time for the pressing duties of his position. Resources Minister Crerar was named Deputy House Leader to act in the possible absence of Mr. Lapointe.

Main item before the Commons yesterday was Finance Minister Ralston's measure for war appropriations totalling $700,000,000 for the ensuing fiscal year. Discussion will continue today.

Study of war appropriations for several sittings past has provided a general forum for discussion of the government's war plans, and yesterday's sitting was no exception.

Great Britain has agreed to supply tank corps and equipment until problems of Canadian production could be worked out, Defence Minister Rogers said in a brief review of Canada's plans for such mechanized forces.

CAPITULATION OF BELGIAN ARMY ON THE KING'S ORDER

The capitulation of the army of the Belgians on the order of their King who was commander-in-chief of the forces of Belgium, probably sets a precedent in history. According to the Premier of Belgium the King's order had no authority without the consent of the Government or a minister.

The news shocked the democratic world to find the Belgian army capitulating without warning, as the French and Belgian premiers state.

The Allies, Britain and France, and also the peoples of the democracies which have been invaded by the German armies, felt the blow keenly. But for Britain and France, the development has not lessened the determination of the people to fight the war to victory over the unspeakable Hun; rather it has steeled their arms and hearts to carry on the struggle until the world is rid of the menace of the Nazis.

The 'Allies' position in northern France and in the western part of Belgium is extremely grave, but the firm determination of the democratic empires is to give the world continued proof of the justice of the cause to which Britain and France have dedicated themselves. That dedication, the peoples of France and Britain are determined, will not be complete until the Hun is swept away as a destructive agency. The Belgian Government realizes the tragedy of the situation and also the need that Belgium stay in the conflict until the end which is victory for democracy.

But the world will ponder over the action of the King of the Belgians in taking a step which would naturally place the Allies of Belgium at a disadvantage in relation to the common enemy.

There is opinion that the king and commander-in-chief has been bearing so great a burden especially since Hitler launched his lightning war on the Low Countries and that he felt so keenly for his army and country that he yielded at last under the strain in a fond hope that some good might come of it. But he has placed himself in the hands of the Germans as a prisoner.

But his tragic action has only served to intensify the problems facing not only the Belgians, but also the British and French in whom alone lies Belgium's hope. His blunder or misjudgment has not helped Belgium. The surrender of the King and his army is a heavy blow to Belgians, who are still in Belgium or are fugitives in sympathetic Allied lands. The Belgian Government which has heroically decided to carry on the war from its temporary seat in France has to repair as best it can the ill-effects of the capitulation. But the resolve of the Belgian Government is strong, a new army will be raised and resources will be placed into the war against the Germans. Even on the surrendering army and the King of the Belgians the tragic decision will continue to bear heavily.

Then there is the question of the British and French forces who were co-operating with his army to save Belgium and free Europe from the nightmare of Pan-Germanism. These had been called in to aid Belgium a little over two weeks ago and they were left yesterday to fight alone. His action has been called treason to the Allies by many newspapers in France and Britain.

However the capitulation has added to the problems of the Allies, it is clear that the action has not improved the situation as far as Belgium is concerned. The army will be held as prisoners of war and the King is assigned a castle by the German Government, which means that he is actually a prisoner too. But Belgium will go on fighting, Britain and France will keep undiminished their courage and conviction of victory.

The war has produced many surprises but yesterday's surrender of the Belgian army on the King's order caused greatest surprise. There was a feeling of intense disappointment that follows the realization of what had happened.

BELGIAN GOV'T. CONTINUES WAR AGAINST NAZIS

The Government of Belgium has repudiated and declared illegal the action of King Leopold III in the surrender of the army. Prime Minister Hubert Pierlot has declared that the Belgian army does not merit the fate which the capitulation has involved.

The Premier is outspoken. He declared that the King of the Belgians under the constitution which provides that all powers proceed from the nation, broke the bond which united him to his people, placed himself in the hands of the invader, and that he is not in a position to govern.

Hence the officers and officials are freed of the duty of obedience imposed on them by their oath of fidelity, he said. The constitutional powers of the king are exercised in the name of the people by the ministers in council and on their own responsibility.

M. Pierlot says this is the action the Government is going to take to carry on the struggle for liberty. A new army will be raised and all the forces and resources of the country and the people will be placed at the service of the Allied cause, "which has become our own since the German aggression."

The action of the Belgian Government now in France is heroic in the face of the extreme event which took place on Tuesday morning with the capitulation of the army. It has a great task in consequence of the capitulation which has lost Belgium her army of 300,000 men and her king commander-in-chief who is now in German-occupied territory and in the hands of the Germans, a virtual prisoner, it is presumed.

AROUND TOWER OF LONDON

Pictures published in the newspapers recently showed how even the moat about the Tower of London is being used for gardening, the moat having been filled in with soil.

Here vegetables are being grown as a war measure.

An interesting reference to the Tower appears in the Brandon Sun.

"From the twelfth century until the first quarter of the nineteenth, the Tower housed a number of living lions, symbolic of those in the Royal Arms of England.

"They were the chief wonder of London in the days when wild beasts were still a rarity in western Europe. So today when an Englishman refers to the principal sights of a place, he calls them "the lions" after the famous creatures that were for so long the principal sight of his own capital.

"The Tower lions were transferred to the London zoo by King William the Fourth in 1834. But another famous Tower institution has survived into our own time. This is the Corps of Yeoman Warders. Their quaint scarlet and gold uniform is essentially the same as that which they wore in the fifteenth century, when the corps was established to guard the person of King Henry the Seventh. They are now recruited from old soldiers and charged with the care of the Tower treasures. It is they who have converted the moat into a vegetable garden."

Suggestions for Parents Whose Child Stutters

A principal of a large school remarked one day "I don't wonder that Bill Blank stutters. His mother was at school today and left a list of all the things she wants "done" for Bill. She is very anxious and over-nervous about Bill's academic, physical and social life".

Now every mother is concerned about the welfare of her boy and girl; this is the most natural thing in the world. But a nervous, anxious, overcareful parent can so affect the nervous system of the child that he becomes as nervous or even more nervous than his mother. And one of the outstanding causes of stuttering is the home where mother or father or both are unduly nervous, emotional, or highstrung. The child is corrected, warned, or given so much attention that he is too nervous, too self conscious, to be able to express himself freely at school or at play, and often even at home.

The knowledge that stuttering is seldom due to any defect of mouth or throat, but simply to nervousness or self consciousnes makes the curing of stuttering less difficult.

In an article in Health, "Hope for Stutterers', Miss Ruth Lewis, a member of the staff of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, advocates the correction of stuttering by the following suggestions.

1.—Handle your child's emotional stresses wisely. Look for the cause of his emotional strain in your own life and conduct as well as his. Lack of harmony in the household may be having a definite reaction in the emotional development of your child.

2—Overstimulation of the child, especially in learning to talk, is dangerous for the child who shows any tendency to stutter, especially in the case of the only child.

3.—If the child naturally develops left-handedness, do not attempt to make him right-handed.

4.—When stuttering does occur, remember that overanxiety on the part of parents only lessens the stutterer's chance of control.

5.—Seek advice early. Do not complacently rest in the chance of the child growing out of stuttering—the danger of his growing into it is just as great.

I have spoken before of the successful treatment of stuttering by schools treating speech defects. The child learns to speak in front of others, uses the telephone to outside places, and takes part in plays with his fellow students.

Rats Enjoy a Sip of Alcohol

Evidence that rats prefer an alcohol-water mixture rather than pure water is announced in Science, official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The rodents' preference was limited to mild drinks, nothing more than seven per cent alcohol. Above that they returned to pure water.

The experiments were announced as proof of food value in alcohol. They were reported by Curt P. Richter and Kathryne H. Campbell of the Henry Phipps Psychiatric Institute, Johns Hopkins hospital.

Discovery of a remarkable ability of rats to select food for whatever ailed them was the basis of the claim that the alcoholic preference proves food value.

When adrenal glands were removed, the scientists said the rats somehow knew enough to eat extra amounts of salt which kept them alive; when death threatened from removal of parathyroid glands, they ate extra calcium.

The rats knew when to choose glucose, maltose, sucrose, galatose, sodium chloride, potassium chloride and dibasic sodium phosphate if these substances were made available in food. Given a choice between distilled water and water containing minute amounts of morphine, mercury, arsenic or other poisonous substances, the rats took water.

Seventeen rats had the alcohol tests. Thirteen of them preferred the alcoholic drinks, up to seven per cent, one preferred water and three didn't care which.

In other tests, rats which drank alcohol cut down their intake of other food by the percentage in which they drank alcohol.

But all rats seemed to object when high percentages of alcohol were offered. If they had not other choice they cut down their drinking.

The Lowly Leech

Of all the queer things I have come across about weather lore, the strangest must be the behavior of the leech. This slug-like and rather repulsive creature is extremely susceptible to weather and, though ordinarily lazy and inactive, it becomes exceedingly excited at the approach of a storm so much so that, relying on its help, an ingenious gentleman once invented what he called a Tempest Prognosticator.

This was exhibited at the Great Exhibition at the Crystal Palace in 1851 and in general appearance was something like a glorified cruet. But each bottle held water and in the water was a leech. When a storm was approaching the leeches would try to reach the surface of the water and in doing so would touch a spring which, in its turn, would ring a bell, and so give warning to the household.

A few months ago I collected some leeches from the river and kept them in my study. They certainly gave me notice of bad weather on one occasion, a day when the glass was high and the sky was fair, and I would have made a bet on fine weather for days to come. Not so my leeches, for they began to do jigs and reels about their tank. Sure enough, early next morning and all the following day it rained as if to flood the parish. — London Times.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

A Nation of Suckers

S. S. WASHINGTON, May 26

The way to deal with the "fifth column" in the United States is to know what its agents are doing and stop their doing it. This is not impossible, but it demands planned legislation and systematic action. Incidentally, the less publicity it receives and the less hysteria that accompanies it, the more successful it will be.

x x x

The proposal of Congress, for instance, that Communists and members of Nazi bunds should be barred from relief rolls is useless and will lead to unjust persecution. As long as the Communist party is a legal body in the United States, with its own press and its candidates for office, there is neither a legal nor a logical ground why its members should not receive relief. It is preposterous that the Communist party may offer a candidate for the presidency of the United States, while some indigent workman who may once have joined it is thrust out to starve.

The same holds true of the German-American Bund, which organizes and recruits members openly.

Who, one wonders, is to decide whether a person on relief is a Communist? Are the relief administrators to turn themselves into sleuths and spy into the political connections of all their clients?

x x x

Hitler and Stalin long ago began in undeclared war on the United States, and he have been blandly and idiotically assisting them to wage it. We have been policing and protecting their activities on the ground of affording democratic support of the right of free speech.

Actually, the Communist party, the German-American Bund and hundreds of other organizations and committees have no more claim to the right of free speech than the parachutists who invaded Holland could claim the right of free assembly.

The Swiss, who have the toughest, hardest, truest and most realistic democracy in Europe, in the only European democracy that has known from the beginning how to deal with the "fifth column". Long ago it declared the Communist party illegal, suppressed all its publications and deported all aliens who had been connected with it. When an incipient Nazi movement began to grow, Switzerland passed a law for the defense of democratic institutions, making it a crime to hold up to ridicule or contempt the institutions of democracy.

And, observing that the Nazis worked most effectively by spreading anti-Semitism, they made it a crime to conduct a systematic campaign against a rase, religion or nationality. With this simple law they drove the Nazis and their fellow travelers out of print. And with such a simple law, rigorously enforced, we could stop a large part of the Nazi activities tomorrow.

x x x

The Nazi "fifth column," which I have observed for years at home and have seen again this spring in Europe, follows a technique similar to the military tactics now pursued against opponents in Europe. The military tactic is to send numerous speedy, highly motorized columns, like the fingers of a hand, to blow up communications, capture radio stations and confuse armies, and then tighten the fingers into a crushing fist while the main body of troops follows. This is exactly the propaganda and organization technique.

The Nazi "fifth column" is not the German-American Bund. That is only one finger—the battalion that organizes Germans in America. It has another quite as important column, aimed almost wholly at winning the support of Anglo-Saxons, particularly the more ignorant and provincial. This offensive gathers together the Ku-Klux spirit wherever it can be found and devotes itself almost exclusively to spreading anti-Semitism in the most vicious way.

The Pelleys, Edmondsons, James Trues and innumerable others are, consciously or unconsciously, the shock troops of this wing of the "fifth column," and they are plentifully supplied with propaganda material directly from Germany. It does no good to arrest individuals from this group. The whole propaganda must be stopped by some covering law. You cannot incite against Jews in Switzerland, or conduct a campaign to deprive them of their legal rights as Swiss citizens, and that law shuts up a great part of the propaganda.

Another finger of the hand, reaching into the heart of our institutions, is made up of Irish who have been incited against Great Britain — not against the British government but against the British people. The anti-English and anti-Protestant campaigns find support in some circles of the Roman Catholic Church, and for the Nazis this is wonderful, because it in turn produces an anti-Catholic reaction.

The Nazis, time and again, have used the very people whom they have later coldly destroyed. They have used the Irish Republican Army, for instance, but, if they ever conquer Great Britain, Ireland and England will be another Poland. They already have a plan for crowding English Catholics into Ireland while they deport English Protestants to the dominions.

x x x

The followers of Stalin play Hitler's game abroad by conspiracy to sabotage armament, disrupt industries by strikes, halt transportation of essential war materials and spread pacifism.

Outside of Germany, Russia, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, France and Great Britain, the Nazis and Communists are our leading pacifists and spreaders of brotherly love. No organ in America is more anxious to keep us out of war then "The Free American and Deutscher Weckruf and Beobachter" — the Goebbels sheet published in New York — unless it be "The Daily Worker" or "The New Masses," with their winsome thesis that Finland attacked Soviet Russia and that every one who protests that atrocity is a warmonger.

When the story of this war is finally written we shall find out the role that Communazi sabotage played in industries, transportation and in the army itself in France and in Great Britain. That is, we shall unless the history of this war is written wholly by the Nazis. And even then we shall find out, because Hitler is nothing if not candid. He is engaged, I hear, on a sequel to "Mein Kampf," entitled "How I Did It." No doubt he will recount with humor how he gave the world a blueprint of his plans and nevertheless found it astonished, surprised, indignant and appalled at every step he took.

The democracies have been played for suckers by the most criminal mind since Nero and Caligula—and they are still being played.

There is another column in our great industries, and the line taken with them is that Nazism represents the logical quintessence of industrial—as opposed to financial—capitalism; like Stalinism, but more efficient; the system of the future, which will reward the strong who help impose the pattern.

There is an appeal to the fuehrers as well as to those who are to be led, and the former are promised the elimination of the roughnecks — the Pelleys, for example — once they have helped mobilize and deliver the masses of nitwits.

The "fifth column" will make itself most felt in time of crisis, and its first objective is to prevent our democratic Republic from taking any clear-cut action. On the contrary, it attempts to keep us running around in circles.

The Nazis renounce the Communists to the Dies committee, and the very sleuths following the Nazis fall into the hands of the Communists, while those following the Communists fall prey to the Nazis. From experience we should learn that this is all a blind.

A large part of the propaganda activities streams from the German Embassy and Consulates, and it might be well to check up on the size and activities of these bodies and limit both by law. The staff is constantly augmented. It would be interesting to know, for instance, the precise role being played by Dr. Westrick, who, when I left New York two months ago, was ensconced in an uptown hotel, in some camouflaged commercial connection with the German Embassy. Dr. Westrick was associated during the last war with Dr. Heinrich Albert, who was head of the German propaganda machine in the United States.

The activities of our Italian Brethren need some watching, too, and will need even more in a very short time.

x x x

The business of getting spies, saboteurs and directing agents belongs rightly to the Department of Justice, which could be greatly assisted by the Immigration and State Departments — particularly the latter — if our consular agents abroad were given more authority to investigate the people to whom they grant visas. As things are now they have not authority whatsoever.

The foreign agents who continue to stream into the United States on quota and visitor visas, particularly the latter, and sometimes as pretended refugees, are exactly those who have the least difficulty in producing bank balances as affidavits of support.

But to stop the large-scale propaganda from "fifth columns" we need legislation — legislation that forbids the existence of any political body which takes its directions from a foreign power. With such a law we can suppress the Communist party and all its publications without starting a Red-baiting campaign that is likely to end with every honest radical being afraid for his life. With such a law we can suppress the German-American Bund, instead merely of riding Mr. Kuhn to jail.

We should stop the inciting of race against race and religion against religion by legislation similar to the Swiss.

We should limit the number of members of foreign embassies, consulates and missions.

And we should bear clearly in mind, at all times, that we are less threatened by war in any sense in which we have previously known it than by an international criminal conspiracy that happens also to be armed.

And now comes along a suggested "Sixth Column" to combat the activities of the Fifth Column along similar lines. Which is alright with this column, for being born on the thirteenth of the month we never did have any luck with odd numbers — or nice girls either.

x x x

Then there is the story told by the local fisherman who states he had a package of salmon sandwiches removed from his boat by a giant muskie. Which wasn't so bad until he swears that a few minutes later the package was deposited in the craft with a note that read "Next time make 'em ham, whaddya think we are, cannibals?"

x x x

Hitler has given King Leopold a Belgian castle in which to live. The Mad Dog of Europe has no more use for a traitor than anyone else, irrespective of what he or whom he betrays. That castle will likely prove a concentration camp gone society, to the Belgian King, who unlike his illustrious father, has proved, that "he can't take it".

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Big French guns blaze continually at German positions along the Siegfried Line, perhaps heralding a coming French sally into Germany's most powerfully defended positions or perhaps just a threat to keep the Germans from withdrawing troops from that area.

The sweeping progress made by German armies in the north has been at the cost of heavy losses and immense expenditure of equipment and men. It is possible the French high command has a shrewd idea of just how close the Germans are approaching to the time when the northern offensive may falter.

It may be too that the French high command has similar ideas regarding the German sweep through Belgium. There again the Germans have suffered losses and expended large portions of their supplies. While French attack on the Siegfried Line, even after long and intense bombardment, would be a costly operation it would certainly call for large German forces to resist it effectively.

Thus the Germans can not afford to withdraw troops from the Siegfried Line to reinforce the forces fighting in northern France and Belgium.

3.—What is the airmail rate from the United States (mainland) to Hawaii?

4.—Give the precious jewel for the month of June?

5.—A number of years ago, when the transportation system in this country was rapidly expanding, it became necessary to settle upon a standard guage for railroads. At that time, two lines, on with a 4-foot 9-inch guage, the other with a 4-foot 8-inch gauge, sought to determine the matter, each to its own advantage. A President of the United States made a unique decision. Who was he, and at what did he set the standard gauge?

ANSWERS

1.—Malta and Cyprus. Digression A: Place Malta relative to Sicily.

2.—Movable type. Digression B: Who is credited with the invention of the linotype?

3.—Twenty cents per half ounce. Digression C: Give the airmail rate from the United States (mainland) to the Canal Zone.

4.—Pearl. Digression D: Of what quality is this a symbol?

5.—Lincoln. He split the difference, making the guage 4-feet 8 1-2 inches.

Answers to Digressions

A.—Directly south of Sicily.

B.— Ottmar Mergenthaler.

C.—Fifteen cents per half ounce.

D.—Purity.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25¢.

British Coast Prepares Against Possible Invasion

Southeast Port, England, May 29 —(CP)—Preparations to meet a possible invasion were rushed along this stretch of the British coast tonight and civilians awaited a government order to move farther inland.

Most residents of these small channel ports — Nazi bombers could reach some of them in five minutes from the Germans' positions on the continent — expect the government will send them to safer areas now that the Belgian army has surrendered.

Their children already are leaving.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Hold Him On Too Short a Chain

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have gone with a young man for almost seven months and have learned to care deeply for him. At times he seems very devoted, but then again he acts so indifferent.

We were invited to a party recently, where one of my girl friends happened to be and she told me that my boy friend had asked her for a date. I didn't have time to talk to him about this for he went on a trip the day after. That has been two weeks now and I haven't had even a postcard from him. He expects to return in a couple of weeks.

Several other boys have asked me to go out with them but I always refused and haven't gone with any other boy since I met my boy friend. What shall I do?

Rita

If you're not engaged to this young man, you're as free to make engagements as he is. You won't be able to keep him at all, my dear, if you try to hold him on too short a chain. I'm glad you didn't have an opportunity to ask him about the date with the other girl, as it would have made you seem too possessive.

If he hasn't written, be a good sport and pretend that it did not disturb you. And by all means, accept the other invitations.

Husband Resents Her Interference

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past eight years I have been married to a man of 37, who has always loved me devotedly. I am 29 years of age, considered a sensible woman and have been devoted to my husband in every sense of the word.

He is a great talker and lectures to me every chance he gets on matters of very little importance, and sometimes really foolish. He can say the most ridiculous things when friends are with us, and when I try to correct his misstatements, he strongly resents my interference and even gets angry. I've been very miserable at times because of his stubbornness. I've even thought of leaving him. I am utterly at my wits' end as to what I should do. Can you help me, please?

In Doubt

I'm afraid there isn't much to be done with a gentleman in love with the sound of his own voice. You must learn not to let this weakness of his re-act on your own sensibilities.

I suggest you do not correct him at all, as that only calls attention to his oratory. Many men and women are afflicted with this weakness, and I believe that—outof "in one ear and out the other." side of their families—it's a case

My dear, don't think of anything as drastic as a separation because of this common failure on the part of an otherwise good husband. Every crossroads store in the country is full of prophets, lawgivers and "Mr. Fixits."

Letters Unanswered

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About three months ago I met a young lady who lives in another city. She invited me to visit at their home and I enjoyed myself very much while there. All her family were wonderful to me.

After I left we corresponded and then all of a sudden she stopped. I wrote her six letters but have had no answer to any of them. She comes to the city occasionally, but never calls me on the phone, as she used to do. Would you advise me to call on her without an invitation, or just let the whole affair drop.

M. R.

Six unanswered letters is a pretty stiff dose for a young man to swallow, but there are well-authenticated cases where a persistent suitor has had more than twenty-seven letters turned down and won out in the end.

Better try to meet her "by chance." Going uninvited to call, you might get a decided rebuff, but if you meet the young lady "accidentally", you might ask her why she dropped you so suddenly. Perhaps her parents think she is too young to have a "steady."

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wants Correct Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in August and wish to have a small church wedding. The ceremony will be in the afternoon, say about two-thirty. The church in which the ceremony is to be performed has a large room, quite plain but very nice. I have planned to have a small recetpion in this room. I shall have some floral decorations, and in some nice roomy part of the room I would like to have a large table set up in buffet style. In the centre I would like to have the wedding cake, candelabra, on either end of the table, and tiny sandwiches, fancy small cookies, and white mints also on the table. Last, but not least, coffee and tea.

1. Is this arrangement quite all right, and should one of the family serve?

2. I have been told that I should also have another small table holding small tissue-wrapped boxes of wedding cake. Is this correct? Should all these boxes be ready before the reception, and will you explain to me why it is the custom for the bride to cut the first piece of her cake before all her guests. I cannot understand this at all. If I have to cut the cake before my guests, how can the boxes be all ready?

3. Would it be proper to use white paper napkins? If a cloth of the proper size cannot be obtained, could I use a white paper cloth? I expect also to have a few small tables and chairs around the room for the guests who would like to sit down.

4. I expect to have my sister for my maid of honor, and three bridesmaids. Mother thinks I should have four bridesmaids so that they can walk together, two by two. What do you think?

A Devoted Reader

1. You have planned a very pleasant and practical informal reception. Your table setting for buffet service is excellent.

I suggest that you ask several of your friends to assist in the serving. The members of your family will be busy greeting the guests, making them comfortable and happy, and making necessary introductions. You might flank the wedding cake with the candelabra and then, at each end have the coffee service and the tea service, and a friend to preside.

2. Although usually the cake that the bride cuts is referred to as the wedding cake, it is, in reality, the "birde's cake" that is, a white cake iced and decorated with white icing. This, I am sure, is the reason for your confusion. The wedding cake is dark fruit cake.

The bride always cuts the first piece of the "bride's cake" (the one you plan to have in the centre of the buffet table), and, in accordance with immemorial custom, she shares this first piece of cake with the groom.

Then, if you wish, you may have small monogrammed boxes of wedding cakes (the fruit cake) as souvenirs for the guests. (This is an expensive item for your budget, and it is not necessary). If you do have these boxes of wedding cake, they are arranged on a table near the door, so that each guest may take one as he or she leaves the reception.

3. Use a white linen table cloth and linen napkins, if you can possibly arrange this. Perhaps you could use two matching linen cloths, if one is not large enough. Perhaps you could call on the generosity of your relatives or friends to borrow enough linen napkins. People love to help out on such an important and romantic occasion!

4. I agree with your mother. It is much more effective to have an even number of bridesmaids so that they can walk two by two, in both the procession and in the recessional.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Pimples and Styes

Skin blemishes cause a lot of embarrassment in this world, particularly amongst children. Many a youngster has his happiness spoiled, temporarily at least, by a crop of pimples.

Pimples are objectionable chiefly because they are unsightly and itchy. However, a stye, which is just a pimple occurring at the edge of the eye lid, is apt to be painful as well as disfiguring because the whole eye becomes red, swollen and inflamed.

There is another facial blemish, the troublesome cold sore, about which there seems to be a general belief that they are caused by kissing. Well, kissing may cause lots of things, but the cold sore isn't one of them. This belief is about as sound as that of the saying pimples are just the meanness coming out of you, and the superstition that styes can be cleared up by touching them with a wedding ring or with a cat's tail. I've seen pimples on sweet-tempered persons as much as on the mean ones and sweet or mean, you'll have no help from a cat's tail or a wedding ring in curing your styes.

Cold sores are commonly caused by indigestion and fevers, and are also produced by local irritations such as nasal discharges accompanying colds in the head, by rubbing the skin, or by friction of a pipe. It's harmful to pick or scratch these. They should be treated and then left alone.

"Blackheads" and pimples are both due to inflammation about follicles. This doesn't mean that there must be a hair growing out of the follicle, for these are distributed all over the skin, including places where hairs do not develop. If the skin glands, which exude oily material, become clogged, blackheads appear. If these are invaded by germs producing pus a pimple is the result. The pimple will appear on the skin and grow larger and redder over a period of two or three days, with a yellow head appearing at the climax of its development.

When pimples follow one another in a regular outbreak, it is nearly always a sign on the part of nature that your system requires a mild laxative. Constipation and indigestion favor the occurrence of blackheads and pimples.

In a great many cases, touching a pimple when it first appears with a solution of iodine will stop it. But if you wait until the yellow head has developed, pus has gathered there. And to clear it up in a hurry, you must squeeze out this head or prick it with a sterilized needle.

If you adopt this measure with a pimple it is important that you take the precaution to see to it that everything around it is clean, for if some types of germs get into the pimple, a serious inflammation may follow. I have had a few cases of serious blood poisoning arising from the use of a dirty instrument in opening a pimple.

Many people brought on real eye trouble by trying to treat a stye at home. If you or your child get a stye and it does not go away quickly but hangs on and on you will be well advised to drop in and see your doctor. He can save you a lot of trouble and eye-soreness.

ROUND STEAK in Swiss Style HAS "OOMPH"

CUT STEAK into serving pieces: Add flour as you pound it. Then dust with flour and sear the steak—add one small onion—in a very hot, well-greased pan. To a pound of steak use either one-half cup of water or two cupfuls of canned tomatoes. Add salt and pepper and about a teaspoonful of H. P. Sauce. Pour over the steak: Cover the pan and cook slowly for two hours. You'll be delighted with the flavour of steak that is cooked in this Swiss style. And you'll conclude that a sauce which can make steak so flavoursome must be grand.

So try H. P. Sauce for adding appetizing flavour to soups, stews, gravies, meats, fish, fowl and other good things on your table.

WEDDINGS

DAUNCEY—CURRY

Wooler, (Special) — The United Church parsonage was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday afternoon, May the 25th., when Hazel, daughter of Mrs. Curry, and the late Henry Curry, became the bride of Clifford Dauncey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dauncey. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Delve.

The bride wore a navy suit, white and navy hat with white accessories. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Lela Arthur, wearing grey suit with fuchsia hat and accessories. Mr. G. Gordon was groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Dauncey left amid showers of confetti, on a motor trip to Kingston, and Ivy Lea Bridge; upon their return they will reside in Frankford, where the groom is an employee of Bata Shoe Company.

MAXWELL—GOODKEY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Goodkey was the scene of a lovely wedding, Friday afternoon, at 2.30, May 24, when their daughter, Tena Vereen, became the bride of Mr. Orvel Edward Maxwell, son of Mrs. Walter Maxwell and the late Mr. Maxwell of Moira.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens by Mr. N. L. Kion of Orillia.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of Heavenly blue brocaded net over taffeta with finger tip veil. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and maiden hair fern.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Alma Goodkey of Toronto, who was attired in a gown of floor length purple sheer and carried a bouquet of Queen Elizabeth roses.

The flower girl, Joyce Fiss, cousin of the bride, looked very dainty in a pink organdy dress carrying a basket of pansies.

Mr. Elvin Maxwell, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Max Reynolds, cousin of the groom.

The bride's mother received in a dress of navy sheer and the groom's mother in brown polka dot sheer.

After the ceremony about a hundred guests sat down to a bountiful dinner in the dining room decorated with pink and white streamers.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of Roger's silverware, the bridesmaid an amethyst necklace, to the groomsman a gold tie clip and collar holder.

Later the bride and groom left amid showers of confetti for a short motor trip south, the bride travelling in a navy coat with dusky rose accessories.

Upon their return the happy young couple will reside in West Huntingdon. Guests from Toronto, Arnprior and Stirling were present.

Present Knitting Shield At 2nd Belleville Co., Girl Guides, Closing

At the closing exercise of the Second Belleville Company, Girl Guides, in St. Andrew's Church Hall yesterday afternoon, during which 71 badges of merit were distributed to those successful in various phases of Guide endeavour, the feature of the afternoon's program was the presentation of the beautiful Legion shield for knitting to Helen Douglas.

This shield, emblematic of Helen's wonderful skill as knitter by which she ranked first in competition for the whole province is a beautiful example of the designer's art. Bearing the inscription of the donor and the emblem in color, of the Canadian Legion, set in a silver background, the shield contains the words, "To you from failing hands we throw, that torch, be yours to hold it high." Completing the design, the wood on which the silver shield is mounted is flanked with two silver torches. The shield was won for the first time last year by the First London Company. It is the gift of the Ontario command of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., who presented it to the Provincial Council of Ontario of the Canadian Girl Guides. It is a great honor for a Belleville company to win it, the second year of its competition.

Captain Mary Roberts, assisted by Lieutenant Dorothy Douglas was in charge of the interesting program which was attended by the Divisional Commissioner, Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, the district commissioner, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, the deputy commissioner, Mrs. H. W. Ackerman, members of the Girl Guide Council of the city and mothers of the Guides.

Badges Presented

The following badges were presented by Mrs. C. A. Cameron, who had been first lieutenant of the Company: Keep Fit—Jean Myers, Health—Helen Douglas, Rifle Shot—Joyce Watson, Wilma Colling; Child Nurse—Jean Myers, Cooks—Helen Douglas, Phyllis Barlow.

Miss Jean Dickens of Third Belleville Company presented to the winners the Needlewoman's Badge—Helen Douglas, Norma Correll, Joyce Watson, Eleanor Finkle, Phyllis Barlow. Laundress Badge—Mary Lyall, Jean Price, Eileen Cameron, Joan Watson, Joan Hamilton, Maida Woodley, Gymnast—Mary Lyall, Barbara Bews, Joyce Watson, Eileen Cameron, Norma Correll, Child Nurse—Jean Myers, Skater—Norma Correll.

Mrs. H. W. Ackerman presented second class badges to Jean Myers, Fay Campbell, and Phyllis Trusdale. The Company had a record with five Guides earning First Class badges during the year. The winners were Joyce Watson, Norma Correll, Helen Douglas Eleanor Finkle, and Phyllis Barlow, presentation of their wards being made by Mrs. Riggs. Four girls merited the All Round cords symbolic of passing their tests for first class and winning seven other badges as well. Mrs. Branscombe presented the cords to Joyce Watson, Norma Correll, Helen Douglas and Phyllis Barlow.

Given Patrol Emblems

The Captain announced that the winning senior patrol for the year was adjudged to be the Poppy Patrol of which Norma Correll is leader. The leader was presented with a purse, and the patrol with patrol emblems. The runners-up were the Blue Bells and their leader Jean Sharp was presented with a crest. The leading Junior patrol, the Forget-Me-Not, Helen Douglas, leader, won patrol emblems.

Joan Hamilton had the best notebook among the Seniors, and Phyllis Trusdale the best for the Juniors. First girl to get her second class badge, Fay Campbell, was also presented with a gift.

The Company had reason to be proud of the service star awards. Forty-nine girls earned these for 75 per cent attendance for the whole year, while two girls, Isabel and Jean Sharpe, won five year service stars holding their record for five successive years. The awards were presented by Phyllis Barlow.

Mrs. Riggs in presenting the Knitting Trophy to Helen Douglas congratulated the achievement of this Guide, which brought so much honor to her Company and to the city.

At the conclusion of the exercise the Captain expressed the appreciation of the company for the interest displayed by the mothers in their presence at the program.

Public Urged to be on Guard Against All Subversive Activities

Special Committee Asks That Suspicious Actions Which Might Lead to Sabotage be Reported to It or Police

SURVEY COMPLETED

Pursuing their activities to cope with any form or degree of "fifth column" activities and to assure the protection of property, the recently formed Belleville Anti-Sabotage and Anti-Subversive Activities Committee convened at the Court House Tuesday evening to make reports as to the progress of previous committees named. Lt.-Col. A. P. Allen was the unanimous choice of the body, which is composed of military and civilian authorities, to carry on the permanent duties as chairman of the committee, after Judge Cameron concluded his duties as temporary chairman.

The committee went on record urging the public to report any suspicious actions or meagre details that might lead to either sabotage or subversive activities in the district. Such information will be treated purely confidential, if the informant does not wish to be involved. Lt.-Col. Allen publicly announced the aims and efforts of the committee are to cooperate with the government in the matter of placing special guards at vital points where enemies might attempt sabotage, as well as to investigate all reports on subversive activities and to bring before the proper authorities reports of possible "fifth column" endeavors, which are already reported to have been active in the dominion.

39 Armed Guards Needed.

Lt.-Col. T. Y. Wills reported as to the necessary guards needed to protect local vital areas in case of an outbreak of sabotage. In his report Lt.-Col. Wills outlined the district and its needs along these lines, stating that at least thirty-nine such armed guards would be necessary. The matter of their duties and equipment desired was also discussed.

"We understand the Dominion government will place 3,000 permanent armed guards throughout Canada and it is the desire of this committee to co-operate with the government in this measure. However, all of our guards will be purely voluntary and used to supplement the government protection where deemed necessary," pointed out Judge Cameron. Lt.-Col. Allen suggested that all private enterprises and public utilities be contacted relative to the placing of guards at this time, if only as a safety measure. "It would be to their own advantage to have these corporations co-operate with us," added Lt.-Col. Allen. The matter of guards was left in abeyance until further details of the government plan may be received and later supplemented where necessary.

Inspector Frank Gardner of the Ontario Provincial Police, stated there were known cases of subversive activities already in the hands of the authorities. "However, no matter how meagre the information regarding "fifth column" activities such information should be immediately reported to either the police or this committee," stated Inspector Gardner as he stressed the importance of this to be publicized and brought before the public of Canada.

New Members.

New members added to the committee last night were: Mayor Thompson, Chief Kidd, Lt.-Col. Phillips and Fred Wiggins, president of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada. The latter member stated that the veterans in Belleville were already organized and ready to accept posts of such responsibility at a moment's notice. Chief Kidd suggested that volunteers in this work would doubtless be willing to accept drill periods in order to acquaint themselves with their duties.

Too much stress cannot be given to the fact that all Canadian citizens are urged to be on guard against any subversive activities and to report any suspicious actions, no matter how slight or meagre the information may seem.

The committee, which made a survey of the city and environs to ascertain what guards were needed to protect vital points and property was composed of Lt.-Cols. Gribble, Allen, Phillips and Wills, the latter tendering the report as to the committee's findings.

Britain Buys Large Supply of Sugar

London, May 29—(CP)—Robert Boothby, Under-secretary to the Ministry of Food, announced in the House of Commons today that the United Kingdom will buy the entire sugar export output of Australia, South Africa, the British West Indies, Mauritius and Fiji.

He said that Canada and New Zealand are partners with the United Kingdom in the purchase, involving 1,750,000 tons, of which the United Kingdom will receive 1,250,000 tons.

Anti-Parachute Posts Under Construction At British Port

Somewhere in the southeast of England, May 29—(CP) — Troops began today the construction of concrete machine-gun posts on the promenade of this port to strengthen its defences against parachute troops. Machine guns in sand-bagged emplacements already guard the beach.

Canada at War

Winnipeg, May 29—(CP)— Conscription of Canadian wealth and man-power is asked in a resolution passed at the convention here yesterday of the Manitoba Board of Retail Merchants' Association. The national morale and confidence in the effective prosecution of the war would be enhanced thereby, the resolution said.

Gaspe, Que., May 29—(CP) — Hunting game doesn't seem important in these days of total war so planned improvements on the Lac des Monts hunting and fishing club will wait over for the time being. Meeting recently at this far eastern Quebec town, club members decided to send the funds set aside for the improvements to the Finance Minister. Accordingly, a cheque for $300 has gone forward to Hon. J. L. Ralston.

Vernon, B. C., May 29—(CP) — Official word has been received here that Pilot Officer Lorne Chambers of the Royal Air Force is missing in France. He is the son of E. J. Chambers, President of the Associated Growers of British Columbia, who is at present in Ottawa, and Mrs. Chambers of Vernon. Pilot Officer Chambers joined the R.A.F. two years ago.

Saskatoon, May 29—(CP)— Immediate conscription of men and money is urged in a resolution adopted unanimously, by standing vote, at last night's meeting of the Canadian Corps Association here.

Calgary, May 29—(CP)— Seven thousand Calgarians, including 1,000 Great War veterans, at a mass meeting here last night endorsed the resolution approved at the Canadian Legion Dominion Convention in Montreal urging conscription of wealth, industry and manpower.

Quebec, May 29 —(CP)— The Quebec Government now is studying plans, advanced by Dominion authorities, whereby Quebec Province would look after some of 10,000 refugee children who would be brought to Canada from the United Kingdom, France and Belgium, it was learned last night.

Approval of the plans has been "practically decided upon," an authoritative source said, and some members of the Quebec cabinet intend personally to assume responsibility for one or more of the children. Similar action, it is understood here, also has been suggested to the other provinces.

Vancouver, May 29.—(CP)—Vancouver War Veterans paraded 3,000 strong through downtown Vancouver last night to a mass meeting, where resolutions demanding a speed-up in Canada's war effort received unanimous endorzement.

Thousands lined streets as men from 40 Vancouver Veterans Associations, who have associated themselves into a "flying column" for home defence, marched in one of the biggest demonstrations here since the start of the war.

Halifax, May 29—(CP)—A representative meeting of Halifax and nearby Dartmouth branches of the Canadian Legion last night took first steps in the formation of a "vigilance committee," and the recruiting of a unit of the Veterans home guard.

According to a resolution passed by the meeting the object of the committee is to fight "the evil influences of Nazism, Commuhism and Fascism, or any subversive element detrimental to the best interests of the State".

Kitchener, Ont., May 29.—(CP)—The executive of the Kitchener Advertising and Sales Club pledged its membership last night to contribute $1,000 to a fund to be raised here to purchase a war tank for the Dominion government. The club offered to sponsor the tank campaign, no financial objective was set since the cost of a tank is not known here.

Mayor Joseph Meinzinger, who sponsored an original proposal that all municipalities of 10,000 population or over should donate a tank, will ask Federal authorities for the loan of a tank to help publicize the campaign.

Calgary, May 29.—(CP)—Fear of possible rioting led to voluntary closing the Ukrainian Labor Temple Association and the Russian workers and Farmers Club in Calgary, it was disclosed yesterday. Chief of Police David Ritchie advised them to discontinue meetings in view of anonymous warnings and implied threats.

Vancouver, May 29.—(CP)—Howard B. Chase of Ottawa. president of the International Association of Locomotive engineers and member of the War Purchasing Board, yesterday accused Canadian employers of "falling down on their jobs" in connection with the country's war effort. Speaking to a Service Club Mr. Chase said:

"There is a tendency among our employing classes to lengthen hours of work for war production rather than to take on more labor. These people are falling down on their job. . . .

"It is the duty of every employer —particularly those in war production—to take on as many men as possible and train them. Canada needs every trained man we can possibly find, if we are to get the production we require".

WAR BRIEFS

London, May 29—(CP)—The German - controlled Netherlands radio heard in London today announced that Arthur Seyss-Inquart, former Austrian Nazi leader, assumed supreme authority over civil government in the conquered Netherlands at noon.

HOSPITAL SHIPS BOMBED, SUNK BY NAZI PLANES

Ships Crossing English Channel Lost With Serious Loss of Life Authorities Report

2 SHIPS LOST

London, May 29. (CP)—Military circles announced today that German planes bombed and sank two hospital ships crossing the English Channel, with serious loss of life, several days ago.

It had previously been reported last Monday that the German Air Force, in attacking shipping in the channel, had not exempted hospital ships, and that there had been serious loss of life.

NAZIS CLAIM ARMENTIERES

No Immediate Allied Confirmation is Available

(By the Canadian Press)

Armentieres, famed in ballad as the home of the unforgetable "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," was claimed by the Germans to have fallen today to their armies enveloping the Flanders "pocket."

(There was no immediate Allied confirmation).

While some veterans remember the city best because of that more or less mythical maiden, others recall it as the base of British operations which led to occupation of Lille on Oct. 17, 1918, after Lille had been in German hands for four years. Armentieres has a population of 19,000.

Armentieres was occupied by the Germans in their 1914 drive, but regained by the Allies in October. In their last drive, the Germans took Armentieres again in April, 1918 but could not hold it.

Meanwhile the ballad of Armentieres and the mythical mademoiselle had been sung countless times in a multi-verse song, "Hinkey-dinkey, Parley Voo."

The housewives mentioned in the list are small canvas kits containing needles, threads, wool and buttons.

U. S. Bombers Used By French Air Force Show Superiority

Paris, May 29—(AP)—A government spokesman said today that United States airplanes are now arriving in France "in considerable quantities" and are showing superiority in action.

The spokesman said bombers especially were proving their excellence. Often, he said, these have been able to dive within 30 yards of the ground before cutting loose with bombs and pulling out. They are faster than Germany's and easy to manoeuvre.

NAZI COMMUNIQUE

Berlin, May 29.—(AP)—The German High Command today claimed that the Belgian Channel Port of Ostend and northern French Industrial City of Lille had been captured.

(These claims were not confirmed in Paris or London).

The text of the German communique follows:

"The fate of the French armies in Artois is sealed. Their resistance in the region south of Lille collapsed.

"The English army which was hemmed together in the region of Dixmude, Armentieres, Bailleul and Bergues, West of Dunkerque, also is facing destruction through our concentrated attack.

(The British War Office announced that the British expeditionary force, still intact, is successfully withdrawing towards the sea).

"Bruges was passed in the swift advance through Northern Flanders, Ostend was taken and Dixmude reached. On the Yser and the Yser Canal, north of Ypres, the enemy was still offering desperate resistance.

"The Reich's war flag is flying over the memorial of German youth at Langemarck, the scene of their courageous fights in 1914.

"Lille has been reached in the attack from the East and West. The city has been taken. Advancing from the west, Armentieres was occupied. At Bailleul there is still fighting. East of Casel, a fortified French border position which was defended by the opponent with a reversed front, was broken through and the Belgian border reached.

At Wormhoudt, the fighting is still in progress.

Claims Not Confirmed

"On May 28, the air force raided retreating columns and all kinds of troop concentrations and tanks. In the course of armed reconnaissance off the Belgian and French coast and in the Channel three destroyers and two transports and two freighters were bombed and seriously damaged. One enemy submarine was sunk by a bomb in the Central North Sea. Destruction to an additional U-boat was probable.

(These claims were not confirmed in London.)

"Despite unfavorable weather, German speedboats succeeded off Nieuport in sinking by torpedo hit a big enemy destroyer on flight to England. On the south front, isolated attacks by enemy infantry and tanks were repulsed.

(The loss of a destroyer was not reported in London.)

"The losses of the enemy in the air amounted to 24 planes on May 28. Of these 16 were shot down in an air fight and eight by anti-aircraft. Three German airplanes are missing.

(Twenty-two German planes were destroyed or damaged by the R.A.F. yesterday. British losses, including operations in Norway, were 13 planes.)

"The number of enemy planes shot down by anti-aircraft in the period from May 15 to May 25 increased from the hitherto announced 100 to 265, according to exact information.

"The number of airplanes thus brought down by anti-aircraft since May 5, amount to 607. In addition the air defence during the same period destroyed 101 enemy armored cars.

"In Norway the enemy, supported by numerous warships, landed on the Ore railway yesterday and entered Narvik from the north. German fighting units raided enemy naval forces lying there. One large battleship sustained a serious hit amidships and ceased firing after being enveloped in smoke. Three cruisers and one destroyer, as well as one freighter, were heavily hit by bombs. Troops disembarked at Ankanes were attacked with many bombs.

(No confirmation was available in London for the German claim of having damaged British warships in Norwegian waters.)

Japan Will Take No Sides in War Says Spokesman

Tokyo, May 29—(CP-Havas)—"Japan will not take sides either with Germany or the Allies," the Foreign Office spokesman said today at the regular press conference.

"There is no change of Japanese policy toward the European war," he said, "as well as the new central Chinese government, notwithstanding rumors to the contrary."

Complete War Coverage For Daily Papers in Canada Says C.P. President

Toronto, May 29—(CP)—Complete war coverage was assured the 89 daily newspaper members of The Canadian Press by W. Rupert Davies, Kingston Whig-Standard, in his presidential address today to the annual meeting of the Co-operative News-Gathering Organization.

Mr. Davies said the CP had met the test of war with "vigor and efficiency." The London bureau, strengthened two and a half years ago, was further strengthened on the outbreak of war.

Arrangements were complete for coverage from the front and from Parliament, even if it should have to leave London.

The Canadian Press, which created a precedent by attaching a correspondent to the 1st Division, Canadian Active Service Force, when it sailed from Canada, would stay with the Canadian forces in action. No other unit in the Allied armies permitted a war correspondent to live and work with its headquarters staff.

The opinion of such men as Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Reynaud of France was that the war would be a long and hard one and "every ounce of Canada's effort will be needed."

Mr. Davies added: "The Canadian Press will do its best to keep Canadians informed and to help them to help Canada and the Empire."

He remarked on the full coverage given the German invasion of Poland, the rape of Finland by Russia and Germany's mechanized marches through Denmark and Norway and across The Netherlands and Belgium into France. The broad, accurate and responsible service of the Canadian Press was built up with the aid of its Allies—Reuters, Havas and the Associated Press. The burden of news coverage was made heavier by the Alberta and Dominion elections in March.

Meets Test Well

"As you are well aware, the importance of these events and the quick succession in which they came has been a great test for The Canadian Press, but it has been met with vigor and efficiency," Mr. Davies said. "In the last war, news was not organized as it is now; there was no radio with unsympathetic news from south of the border; no short-wave with insinuating propaganda direct from Germany."

Mr. Davies said the publishing business had been made difficult by stationary or lowered revenues and growing costs. About 40 daily newspapers had ceased publication in the United States in 1939. The Canadian Press had lost the membership of the Regina Star. He noted with regret the passing of an old-established weekly newspaper in the Barrie Advance.

A meeting of the Board of Directors Tuesday decided to seek Dominion legislation to establish property right in news and to speed up collection of election results.

The move to establish property right in news—as it exists in the United States—will be an effort for an amendment to the Copyright Act. An amendment will also be sought to the Dominion Elections Act whereby the government would pay—in the interest of the Candidates and the public—the cost of telegraphing or telephoning of individual poll figures to returning officers by their deputies.

Edwin S. Johnson, Manitoba-born newspaperman now at Aldershot, will be the first CP War Correspondent to see action in the second Great War. He will be relieved at three-month intervals by S. S. Robertson, another CP Staff Writer of many years' experience.

History of Rubber Given in Detail By Carl Cooper

The Rubber Industry was the subject of an address by Carl Cooper member of the Downtown Kiwanis Club, Toronto, and Sales Manager of Passenger Car tire sales of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company for the Dominion given before the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their luncheon on Tuesday at the Queens Hotel. There were a number of guests in attendance from various Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs in the district and they were welcomed by President Bill Anderson. The community singing was in charge of Jack McIntosh with Fred Lewis as Sergeant-at-Arms. Leo B. Riggs accompanied on the piano.

Dr. G. S. Cronk introduced a new member O. W. Duff, CNR Superintendent while Harold Seldon welcomed the new member to the club. A roll call was taken of the members to introduce the new members instead of having these members meet the older members individually. Frank Follwell announced that the softball team were to be entertained at a complimentary dnner at the "Y" on Wednesday nght and invited all to join in the fun. It is likely that the team will function again this year. The team having the best standing in the campaign to raise funds was Morely Wyman's gang and they were treated to a special dinner, which all thoroughly enjoyed.

Mr. Cooper in his address told of the founding of rubber and the efforts of Charles Goodyear, no relation to the present firm of that name giving his life to experiments and by accident finding that sulphur and heat would set rubber. "This was the greatest boon the rubber industry ever received," and the speaker. He told his audience that it took an acre of trees to make an ordinary sized tire. He stated that Brazil had the first rubber trees and placed very strict regulations but Sir Edwin Whitney smuggled some seeds out of the country, planted them in England and later the saplings were transplanted in Ceylon and today the largest rubber plantations in the world are situated in that zone. He stated that England controlled about 50 per cent of the rubber industry and Holland thirty per cent.

The speaker informed his audience that a great deal of cotton was used in the manufacture of tires and at present the higher grade tires are being constructed of rayon and rubber. He also stated that compounds were very essential. The speaker was introduced by Cliff Barager and appreciation expressed by Ross Stiver.

MOST FALL FAIRS WILL BE HELD

Annual Events Will be Less Ambitious and Fewer in Some Provinces

(By The Canadian Press)

Whether fairs and exhibitors throughout Canada should be cancelled because of the war appeared to be a matter of divided opinion. A survey indicated, however, that the annual fairs would be fewer in number and less ambitious in most provinces.

J. A. Carroll, Superintendent of Agricultural Societies in Ontario, came out strongly in favor of retaining fairs, particularly the agricultural exhibitions, on two grounds: To continue encouraging the farmer in better production methods, and to keep up the morale of the farming population.

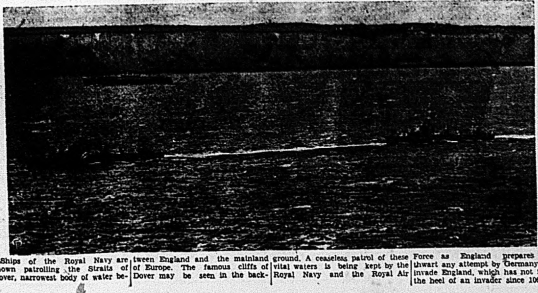
He said practically all exhibitions in Ontario will be held as usual except in cases where necessary buildings are being used by the military authorities. In Ottawa, for example the Central Canada Exhibition was cancelled because Lansdowne Park now is a military camp.

Although troops are quartered at present at Toronto's Exhibition Park, the Canadian National Exhibition is scheduled to be held as usual. Military authorities are reported to have concurred in this decision.

Authorities at Halifax have announced cancellation of the Nova Scotia Provincial Exhibition, while three of Quebec Province's agricultural fairs—those of Three Rivers, Ormstown and Lachute—have likewise been cancelled.

A factor in these cancellations was the action of the Dominion government, under war economy, in cutting out grants to fairs and exhibitions except for certain commitments already made.

THE ROYAL NAVY PATROLS THE STRAITS OF DOVER



Ships of the Royal Navy are shown patrolling the Straits of Dover, narrowest body of water between England and the mainland of Europe. The famous cliffs of Dover may be seen in the background. A ceaseless patrol of these vital waters is being kept by the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force as England prepares to thwart any attempt by Germany to invade England, which has not felt the heel of an invader since 1066.

Yanks Back in First Division By Winning Both Ends of Doubleheader From Senators

World Champions Win Six of Last Seven Games in Winning Drive

BOSTON STILL LEADS

Cincinnati Loses to Pirates and Drops to Second Place in National

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

Without fanfare or fireworks New York Yankees have arrived back in the first division of the American League and apparently have finally found the trail, that can lead to their coveted fifth consecutive world championship.

The Yankees humbled Washington Senators 12-4 and 3-1 in a doubleheader yesterday to attain six victories in their last seven games—in fact, nine victories in 12 games since that demoralizing eight-game losing streak.

Today New York is only 6 1-2 games out of first place and easily can be riding the crest before the Fourth of July if they can maintain a pact resembling their present efforts. They will play three games with the league-leading Boston Red Sox tomorrow and Friday and this series will determine whether the Yankees' advance is to be swift or slow.

In subduing the Senators the McCarthymen tallied 12 runs on 14 hits in the first game with Bill Dickey and Joe Gordon getting home runs. Rookie Marvin Breurer limited Washington to seven scattered hits in the second game.

Red Sox Tighten Hold

The Red Sox tightened their hold on first place by beating Philadelphia Athletics 4-1 in a night game after the second place Cleveland Indians had lost to Detroit 8-5.

Boston got six of its 14 hits in the last two frames to break a 1-1 deadlock that Dennis Galehouse and Johnny Babich had pitched at each other. Good relief pitching by Al Benton enabled the Tigers to trim the Indians after Cleveland jumped on Hal Newhouser for four runs in the third.

The Yankees' leap from sixth to fourth place was made posisble by Chicago White Sox dropping both ends of a doubleheader to St. Louis Browns 10-9 and 7-5. Both games were free-hitting affairs with the two teams rolling up 50 hits, including seven home runs, during the afternoon. George McQuinn got two of the homers.

In the National League, Cincinnati Reds dropped a 5-2 decision to Pittsburgh, their first loss to the Pirates this year, and slumped into second place. Chicago Cubs were shutout by St. Louis Cardinals 5-0 on the four-hit hurling of Max Lanier, while Brooklyn Dodgers cut down the Phillies 4-2.

MILLIONAIRE DRIVER

Joe Thorne, of Tuscon, Ariz., who inherited a railroad fortune, is shown tinkering with his $30,000 racing car which he will drive in the Memorial Day race at the Indianapolis speedway. He has twice finished in the money in previous 500-mile races held each year at the famous speedway.

CAR REPAIRED IN TIME FOR RACE

Expect 33 Drivers to Start in Speed Race at Indianapolis on Thursday

Indianapolis, May 29—(AP)—An Italian mechanic worked frantically today to get a French soldier's speedster in shape to have a full 33-car field for the annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway tomorrow.

The 33-car field was complete but one of them, an Italian Maserati driven by Rene Lebegue, a Frenchman, threw a piston arm through the crankshaft in a practice run yesterday. After first saying the car was "out of the race" Bernard Musnik, manager of the French team of Lebegue and Rene Dreyfus, said the car could be repaired.

Luigi Chinetti is the Italian mechanic who came to the United States with Lebegue and Dreyfus.

Billy Devore of St. John, Kans., driving the car in which Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis won the race in 1937, qualified.

The qualifying average speed this year was a fraction under 123 miles an hour.

Two former winners—Shaw, victor in 1937 and 1939, and Kelly Petillo of Los Angeles, winner in 1935—are in the starting field.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Max Lanier, Cardinals: Shut out Cubs on four hits.

Bill Dickey and Marvin Breuer, Yankees: Former batted in four runs with more and single in first game and latter held Senators to seven scattered hits in nightcap.

Al Benton, Tigers: His effective relief pitching enabled Detroit to take second straight decision over Indians.

Fred Fitzsimmons, Dodgers: Held Phillies to six hits in night game to get fourth victory without defeat.

ED. COLLINS JR. MAKING GOOD WITH BALTIMORE

Playing Centre Field and Saved Game With Spectacular Catch in Ninth

MANY HOMERS

Rochester and Jersey City Each Won by the Identical Score 7-5

(By the Associated Press)

In looking over the Major League prospects on the rosters of the International League baseball clubs this season, don't overlook Edward Trownbridge Collins, Jr., whose dad was some shakes as a ball player a few years back.

Eddie, who is playing centre field for Baltimore Orioles, was a .400 hitter at Yale. Instead of joining up with Boston Red Sox, where Eddie senior is general manager, he struck out for himself with the Athletics, where his father started. Last season Collins got into 32 games with the A's and hit only .238.

With the aid of two singles he garnered in last night's 7-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs; he is hitting .296. His principal contribution to last night's game, however, was a spectacular ninth - inning catch that started a double play.

The Birds couldn't gain an inch in the pennant race, for their principal rivals, Rochester and Jersey City, both turned in 7-5 victories. Rochester's league-leading Red Wings whipped Buffalo Bisons for the third straight time while the Jersey Giants conquered their favorite enemies, Newark Bears.

Home runs by Harry Davis, who had a perfect day at the plate with four hits, and by Augie Bergamo accounted for most of Rochester's scoring. Circuit blasts by Woody Jensen and Tom Neill in the ninth broke up the Jersey City-Newark battle.

Toronto and Montreal were idle.

IDAHO ATHLETE A BIT OVERSIZE

Six Foot, Eight Inch Student Has Good Reach at First Base

MOSCOW, Idaho, May 29 — (CP)—A one-word description of Otis "Rook" Hilton is "oversize."

The skyscraper University of Idaho athlete is six feet, eight inches tall.

They had to get him oversize basketball shoes—each one filling an ordinary shoe box—before he could turn out for the hoop sport. Naturally, he played centre.

And after playing last season with an ordinary size first baseman's mit, his baseball coach, Forrest Twogood, this year provided him with an oversize glove 12 inches long. That's two inches wider and four inches longer than the standard measurements.

So now he wears the largest first baseman's glove in collegiate baseball.

Campus tape-measures also believe Hilton has the greatest reach of any collegiate first baseman. He can easily stretch nine feet after the horsehide, and that's a great help to Idaho infielders flagging some flying foe heading down the first base line.

Twogood, who coaches both baseball and basketball, regards it as a lucky day when the Arkansas Alp came out of the mountains and enrolled at Moscow.

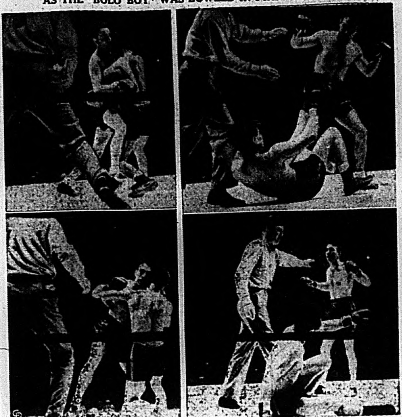
AS THE "BOLO BOY" WAS BOWLED IN FIRST ROUND



As Ceferino Garcia, the Filipino "bolo boy," came off the canvas after Challenger Ken Overlin dropped him with a right in the first of their 15 rounder at Madison Square Garden, he went into a clinch. The 30-year-old ex-sailor, however, promptly spun him out of it and Garcia, wobbly from the hard blow which felled him before, spilled to the ring floor. The ABOVE magic-eye sequence shows all this in detail with Garcia falling out of waltz time, dusting his tights on the canvas and Referee Donovan waving Overlin away as his opponent starts to rise. Overlin gave a brilliant boxing exhibition to annex Garcia's middleweight title by decision.

HERE'S COMFORT ON FISHING TRIP

Only 65 Kinds of Mosquitoes in Canada and It's Female That Bites

OTTAWA, May 29—(CP)— Beleaguered outdoorsmen may doubt this, but studies by Dominion Department of Agriculture entomologists show that of the 2,000 species of mosquitoes known to exist in various parts of the world, there are only 65 in Canada.

But hunters and fishermen will agree there are enough of these 65 species to take much of the joy out of life despite the fact that only female mosquitoes bite. The male, a vegetarian, sucks only plant juice.

Mosquitoes attack domestic and wild animals and birds as well as men and some types prefer animal blood to humans'. The pests may live for months under favorable conditions, the department reports.

Best method of mosquito control, according to the Agriculture Department, is elimination of breeding places, bodies of stagnant water, by drainage or filling, or applying an oil film to the water. The film prevents newly-hatched insects from leaving the water.

MIDGET SOFTBALL KI-Y SCHEDULE

With six teams entered, the schedule for the midget series of the Ki-Y League was released by Secretary J. E. Shortt today. Additional clubs are needed in the bantam and juvenile series before the schedules can be drafted however.

The teams entered in midget series are: Flying Hawks, Batbusters, Nickerbockers, St. Mikes, Wildcats and Big Shots.

The 1940 schedule of the midget softball series of the Ki-Y groups, with venue of games, reads:

May 27, Flying Hawks vs. Batbusters at Q.M.S.; May 29, Nickerbockers vs. Wildcats at Q.A.S.; May 31, St. Mikes vs. Big Shots at Q.V.S.; June 3, Wildcats vs. Batbusters at Q.M.S.; June 5, Flying Hawks vs. St. Mikes at Q.V.S.; June 7, Big Shots vs. Nickerbockers at Q.A.S.; June 10, Nickerbockers vs. St. Mikes at Q.V.S.; June 12, Batbusters vs. Big Shots at Q.M.S.; June 14, Flying Hawks vs. Wildcats, at Q.M.S.; June 17, Big Shots vs. Flying Hawks at Q.M.S.; June 19, Wildcats vs. St. Mikes at Q.V.S.; June 21, Nickerbockers vs. Batbusters at Q.A.S.; June 24, Wildcats vs. Big Shots at Q.M.S.; June 26, Flying Hawks vs. Nickerbockers at Q.A.S.; June 28, Batbusters vs. St. Mikes at Q.V.S.

Teams finishing first and second play-off.

CANADIAN BOXERS GAIN VICTORIES

Defeat New York Opponents in Three Out of Four Bouts at Montreal

Montreal, May 29—(CP)—Montreal boxers gained victories in three of four bouts with New York City opponents in an amateur exhibition show here last night. In a 5th bout Willie Mergler of Montreal defeated Jerry Blanchard of Cornwall, last year's Dominion flyweight champion.

Joe Gagnon, Dominion bantamweight titleholder last year, gained the decision over Demetrio Carabello in a 112-pound bout while Joe Dubrofsky of Montreal defeated James McLaister of New York in a 126-pound scrap.

Mike O'Sullivan, Montreal, gave a clever boxing exhibition to beat Angelo Schumachie of New York in the 160-pound class. Eddie Gallop brought the United States' fighters their only victory outpointing Romeo Ouimet, Montreal featherweight.

Blanchard fighting as a bantamweight this year, was beaten by the strong finish of the Montreal boy. The Cornwall scrapper held a slight edge in the early rounds but Mergler gained the decision with his clean cut display in the last two sessions.

Did You Know That — The "Kiwanis Kids," champions of the Belleville Service Club softball league of 1939, are being banqueted tonight when they will be honored for last year's accomplishments?....And at the same time efforts to reorganize the league will be made?....That Lindsay has but one girls' softball club, which is included in a league with two Peterboro teams?....That Ajax—the Seabiscuit of Australian race tracks —has been retired to the stud at the early age of five years? .... That "Red" Townsend's junior softballers are to be called the 'Uptowns' in the future?....The odds that Joe DiMaggio will not lead the American League in batting this year are quoted at 5 to 1; 8 to 1 against Jimmy Foxx and ten to one against Hank Greenberg... And that Joe Shortt says he wants another juvenile and another bantam team for his Ki-Y softball series?....There are six teams in the midget K-Y series, however.

Old Jupiter Pluvius was up to his old tricks last night when the opening of the Ladies' Softball League was not only dampened, but washed out. The rain held off until game time and then fell with unabated recklessness. Undaunted, however, the opening game will be played between the same two teams at the Collegiate campus tonight. Bedecked in natty and colorful uniforms the girls showed keen interest and were not disillusioned in their lot. Gala opening game ceremonies had been arranged, the Collegiate Band being on hand, along with Reg Moncrieff, chairman of the School Board and Acting Mayor Harry Rollins, who were to have officially opened the league. A goodly crowd braved the threatening rain, but all concerned had their aspirations dampened at the last moment. Plans for the conventional line-up around the plate, the playing of the National Anthem and the presentation of the Frontenac trophy were washed out with the downpour.

Although there is only girls' softball and basketball played locally, some Belleville lassies are interested in track and field, which brings us to a letter received recently from Miss Margaret Lord, director of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Ontario. The Lake Couchiching O.A.C. camp is to be opened to the W.A.A.F. from July 1st to 13th when leaders in hockey, swimming, softball and basketball will meet for tuition, to be followed by outstanding feminine athletes in track and field. Each zone in Ontario may recommend a business or industrial girl to be sent to the W.A.A.F. camp where badminton, archery, boating and dancing will also be on the program of tuition. Girls from 15 to 22 years of age are eligible. Right now Miss Lord and her associates are anxious to increase the period of training at the O.A.C. camp and by so doing widen the circle of Ontario girl athletes. Whether or not there are girls in Belleville desirous of attending this camp we cannot say, but further information can be obtained by writing Miss Lord at Hamilton, Ont.

Commodore Maurice Callaghan is facing as difficult a problem as other sports' promoters during these times of stress and anxiety. However, Skipper Callagham has called a meeting of all interested in sailing, punt, dinghy or otherwise, to be held in the Belleville Yacht Club Thursday evening. Several sailing craft have changed ownership since last summer, "Froggie" Green, of Wallbridge hockey prominence, having purchased a class "B" punt, which he hopes to race in the Yacht Club races. (The most important change is the proposal of including the sleek scows in the class "A" division, which would give the major class boats the After You 3rd., Joka, Alaska as well as the two locally-owned scows in common competition.

We are in receipt of 200 individual score cards, suitable for both baseball and softball. These cards are annually supplied us by the A. G. Spalding Company, thanks to A. K. District clubs are annually afforded this privilege through the generosity of the Spalding Company.

What's this we hear — alleged "fifth column" activities in the ranks of the major leagues? President Bob Quinn, of the Boston Bees says that other senior loop heads are causing dissatisfaction among the ranks of his players by spreading rumours of willingness to pay large sums for some of the Bees' players. In this day and age propaganda travels speedily and if other clubs offered big money for Bee players, without approaching the Boston front office, no doubt it would cause dissatisfaction among the ranks of the players. Quinn says the Cubs rumoured offers of $100,000 for shortstop Eddie Miller. The Cubs' front office deny this statement, but it all makes good "fifth column" fodder and if true would doubtless be classed as subversive propaganda.

SPORT SPICE—Well, well, those Yankees, who were thought to have been knocked down to stay, have bobbed up in the first division today, having won their last three starts. . . . They do say "as goes Dickey and Pearson, so go the Yankees," and we find Dickey back pounding the apple with old-time gusto. . . . Brooklyn won and Cincinnati lost yesterday, so the Dodgers are back leading the National League by a fraction of a point only. . . . The Royal Canadian Artillery hockey team, that played in the Kingston Van Horne Memorial series last fall, led the Canadian Active Service Force hockey league in dear old London, with nine wins and but three losses. . . . Bob Armishaw is pacing his team with 18 goals. . . . Sarnia, once the hotbed of football in Canada may have to revert to six-man rugby next fall; that is to say in the brackets below their senior O.R.F.U. entry. . . . ## Picton

Picton, May 29—Officers and members of Prince Edward Chapter, No. 31, G.R.C., Royal Arch Masons, visited Quinte Chapter at Belleville on Tuesday evening and conferred a degree. A large number of brethren of the local lodge enjoyed this fraternal visit.

Recruiting Resumed

When recruiting was resumed at the Picton armouries Tuesday afternoon, fifteen men were waiting to be examined and a steady stream of volunteers is expected.

On Monday evening, five members of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment arrived in Picton from England. They were some of those who went over last December but for various reasons were found unfit for further service there. The men were disappointed that they did not get a chance to go into action, and reported the men overseas well and undergoing extensive training.

One of the oldest businesses in town has been sold. Gordon Whattam has purchased the Gilbert Co. furniture and undertaking business. He is a Waupoos boy and has been living in Whitby for several years, being travelling salesman for eastern Ontario of the Stirling Casket Co. Ltd.

The local kindergarten, which was closed for several weeks due to an outbreak of scarlet fever opened on Monday, the dangers of more cases being considered past.

Canadian War Certificates and stamps are on sale at local banks and many other places and that they promise to be popular was indicated by early sales.

Calvin P. Scott celebrated his 86th birthday on Sunday at his home here. To mark the event, his daughters, the Misses Scott entertained at a dinner party. His son, G. N. Scott of Kitchener telephoned good wishes. Mr. Scott enjoys good health and is down town daily.

A total of $35 was realized from a rummage sale held Saturday by the Catholic Women's League. The heavy rain kept many away. The conveners were Mrs. John Goodwin, Mrs. Thomas Hefferman and Miss Margaret Ward.

Dr. W. Couch arrived from Detroit this week to spend the summer in town.

H. S. Colliver ex-M.P.P. is quite ill at his home here. He recovered sufficiently from a previous illness to be out for ten days but suffered a relapse. Mrs. Colliver is also ill.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Knox entertained friends from Trenton, Plainfield and Cherry Valley on Sunday.

Mrs. G. Johnson returned Monday after several weeks in Toronto with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Howell.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goodwin of Syracuse are visiting Mr. Wm. Hill.

$100,000 Fire Damage Caused In Vancouver

Vancouver, May 29 — (CP) — Fire which broke out in the boiler room of the Union Boat Works, Limited, Monday night destroyed the plant, another shipyard, two boat engine plants and damaged another shipyards with damage tentatively estimated at $100,000.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. Police said they were investigating a report made to a constable at the scene that a man and a woman had been seen coming from one of the destroyed plants just before the flames broke out.

A $20,000 seine boat nearing completion in one of the shipyards was burned.

Destroyed were:

Benson Shipyards Limited, Union Boat Works Limited, Sumner Brass Foundry Limited, Western Machinery Works Limited. These plants were not large.

BRUCE SUGGESTS RALSTON REPLACE PRIME MINISTER

Former Lieutenant - Governor of Ontario Says Minister of Finance "One Man in King Cabinet Fitted to Head War Government"

CALLED TO ORDER

Ottawa, May 29—(CP) — Close on the heels of a cry for a National Government, Conservatives suggested in the House of Commons yesterday for the second time in two days that Finance Minister Ralston replace Prime Minister Mackenzie King as wartime Prime Minister as the only man enjoying the full confidence of parliament and the people.

Dr. Herbert A. Bruce (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) offered the suggestion that Col. Ralston "is the one man in the King cabinet fitted to head a war government."

A similar appeal was made Monday by Percy Black (Con. Cumberland) who, like Col. Ralston and Defence Minister Rogers, is a native son of Amherst, N.S.

Dr. Bruce ran into difficulties with Deputy Speaker Vien who called him to order in the midst of his call for a change in government leadership, and for a moment an appeal from the committee chairman's ruling was threatened by J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata).

House in Committee

The House was in committee of the whole on Col. Ralston's $700,000,000 War Appropriations Bill, which was reported back to the House just before adjournment and stands for third reading. Mr. Vien said Dr. Bruce had strayed from the subject under discussion and was out of order.

Dr. Bruce said that before he would vote for the appropriation he would exercise his right to speak his feelings regarding those who would spend the money. Nevertheless, he said, in view of the Speaker's ruling, he would discontinue his speech.

Mr. Pouliot declared the House was voting money to be spent either by the present or another government and he would challenge the chairman's ruling. He claimed Dr. Bruce was in order and that he would reply to him.

Speaker Says No Ruling Made.

When Dr. Bruce refused to continue Conservative leader Hanson said it would be unfortunate if the ruling were allowed to stand and "with all respect for the chair I suggest the ruling be withdrawn."

Mr. Vien said he had made no ruling but had only called attention to the regulations governing procedure. He said he would not object if the House unanimously permitted Dr. Bruce to proceed. But Dr. Bruce refused and the debate was taken up by another member.

Coming to the question of leadership Dr. Bruce said Mr. King had many fine qualities suitable to administering a country at a time of peace. But those very qualities rendered him unfit to lead in time of war.

Mr. King had the "Asquithian" attitude of "wait-and-see". Dr. Bruce said. He let public opinion crystalize and then followed where it led.

"We need a man who will lead public opinion instead of following it," Dr. Bruce declared. "One who is able to make quick and decisive action regardless of party considerations.

Mr. Ralston, according to Dr. Bruce, "enjoys the respect and confidence of both sides of this House as well as that of the people of Canada generally."

"With his splendid war record," said Dr. Bruce, "his undoubted ability in finance and law, his well-known driving force and character, may I venture to suggest that he is the one man in the prime minister's cabinet qualified and equipped to lead a war government.

EIRE PUTS ARMY ON WAR FOOTING

the war zone" and should plan her defences accordingly.

The National Defence Council was formed last night of three government members, three from the Fine Gael and two from the Labor group in Parliament.

The members are: Government Party — Frank Aiken, Minister of Co-ordination and Defensive Measures; Oscar Traynor, Minister for Defence; and Gerald Boland, Minister for Justice. Fine Gael—James Dillon, Deputy Leader; General R. Mulcahy and Dr. T. F. O'Higgins; Labor representatives—W. Norton and W. Davin.

The council, expected to gather today for the first time, will meet as often as deemed necessary and will in effect be a Supreme War Commission although it will have no executive powers. It will have the power of recommendation, however, and will be responsible for major defence policy.

DISTRICT ROADS ARE INUNDATED BY HEAVY RAINS

Moira River Levels Show Further Increase of Six Inches After Last Night's Deluge

CROPS SUFFER

Danger hazards to fall and spring grain crops were considerably increased Tuesday night when another torrential downpour of rain swept over the district, inundating additional fields and sending creek waters to flood levels.

Sweeping out of the west shortly after seven o'clock, the storm broke in all its fury, sheets of rains that decreased visibility to a marked extent. At eleven o'clock the rain intensified, causing motorists to proceed at a cautious pace.

Moira River levels showed a further increase of six inches today, a total of two feet since last week. The river has over-flowed its banks along the Belleville-Foxboro highway with water being dangerously near to road levels in spots. Fields adjacent to the river banks are entirely submerged in this part of the district.

Pasture and grain fields in the higher places are beginning to feel the effects of the consistent rains. In some parts of the district, areas usually high and dry even in the early Spring, are under water. What was regarded as potential damage to seeding and new crops a few days ago, is now regarded as a certainty, unless warm weather sets in, it was stated by farmers today.

Alfalfa fields, however, are showing indications of one of the heaviest yields in years. Stalk-length at the present compares with that of harvest size, of a year ago, and a bumper crop is anticipated.

Continued rains have left the district around Tweed inundated and with the continued rising waters residents are beginning to remove goods from out of the threatened area, it was reported today. The waters of Stoco Lake are at their highest level in many years, higher than during the period of the past spring flood. Highways and county roads leading out of Tweed are inundated to a depth of nearly two feet at some points, while a large washout was reported on Highway No. 7 east of Actinolite yesterday, necessitating a detour.

At Community Park along the shores of Stoco Lake in Tweed, tables and benches were seen floating around in the flooded area, while the dance pavilion was completely surrounded by water early today, eye witnesses reported to the Ontario Intelligencer.

Harold Emerson, driver of the Tweed bus, arrived in Belleville this morning to report that the water near O'Brien's bridge has reached the highest point in many years, including spring flood periods of more recent years. "There is a large washout on Highway No. 37 between Tweed and Price's Camp. The recent four-day deluge has seen considerable rain fall in that area, while farmers are complaining that their lands are being flooded and their crops threatened," added Mr. Emmerson.

Flooded areas around Madoc and north of that district are also impeding the progress of motorized traffic.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, I really ought to write letters tonight, Willyum, but when I think of all the letters I owe I cant think of anything except how many would still be in the land of the unwritten even if I did sit down seriously for an hour or 2, O deer, if I ever catch up with my correspondence I'll think it's the happy ending of the world, she said.

For Peet sake why dont you take a day off with nothing to do but write letters, pop said. Letter writings should be a pleasure, so why turn it into a major operation by postponing it till you're tired and rushed for time? he said, and ma said, Willyum I never heard a better idea.

I'm just full of them, pop said, and ma said, I'll do it tomorrow while the iron is hot and the spirit is willing. I'll start the first thing in the morning and I'll make myself comfortable and I'll write an endless chain of letters, she said, and pop said, It'll be a red letter day, by gollies.

When you see me tomorrow evening I wont owe a single letter, ma said. In fact I'm in high hopes that several people who least suspect it will be owing letters to me. My, what a superior glow that will give me. Really, Willynum, the very thought makes me feel so virtuous that it has practically the same effect as if I'd already written the letters, and that's the main reason I intended to write them, I mean to clear my own conscience, and inasmuch as it feels so clear already I may as well let it go a while longer, because there are lots of things I can think of to do goodness, she said, and pop said, It's a great race.

What race? ma said, and pop said, The human race.

Meaning ma.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, May 30

DOUBTFUL, perplexing and conflicting conditions are read from the challenging chain of astral configurations. While there will be much surprising activity, with fresh contacts and strange developments not looked for, including the intervention of new persons in the affairs and with benefit, yet there is the menace of some peculiar if not sinister entanglements of a treacherous nature. Beware intrigues and subtlety and confer with elders if in doubt.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a year of rather peculiar or unusual experiences, with danger from deception, treachery and entanglements of a subtle and dangerous quality. New and fresh matters may intrigue but in anxious situations it is safe to rely on elders or old friends, although all strangers are not to be shunned. Changes hold some benefits.

A child born on this day is likely to have some talents out of the ordinary, with much originality and imagination. It may be impressionable, intuitive and possibly mystical.

WALL STREET

New York May 29. (AP)—Stocks, bonds and commodities advanced today as Wall Street took a deep breath and relaxed from two weeks' intense war-inspired activity.

Leading shares were up about two points toward the fourth hour, but volume was meagre.

Among the higher issues were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Lockheed, Eastman, American Can.; Du Pont, Allied Chemical and American Telephone.

Canadian Stocks were fairly steady. McIntyre advanced one point and Canadian Pacific and Dome Mines improved fractionally. Canada 4s, among bonds, were steady.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto May 29 (CP)—Moderate recovery was registered on Toronto Exchange this afternoon. Trading was slow, only 141,000 shares changed hands.

Steel, utility, senior oil, food and liquor stocks advanced moderately and the textiles were down narrowly. Industrials showed a little gain.

Golds posted gains up to 20 cents among medium-price issues and base metals, including Nickel, Noranda, Steep Rock, Waite-Amulet and Falconbridge ruled higher.

Western oils were quiet.

7 NEW SCHOOLS OF AIR TRAINING

Locations Announced Today Bring Total to 81 Units—30 Yet to be Located

Ottawa, May 29—(CP)—Locations of seven new schools for the training in Canada of pilots, air observers and air gunners under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, were announced today by Air Minister Power.

Three elementary flying training schools will be established at Regina, Penhold, Alta., and Edmonton and two service flying training schools at Dunnville, Ont., and Medicine Hat, Alta. St. Hubert Airport, Montreal, has been selected for an air observers' school and an air navigation school will be located at Rivers, Man.

Total number of units on which development is proceeding was brought to 81 with today's announcement. Locations of 30 more will be announced later to complete the total of 111 units for which provision has been made under the plan.

JAILED FOR ILLEGAL ENTRY

Rochester, N.Y., May 29 (AP).—Mary Florence arrie, 21, alias Sally Baker, of Windsor, Ont., pleaded guilty to a charge of unlawfully entering the United States after previously being deported, and was sentenced to a year and a day in a federal penitentiary.

Miss Garrie, government witness in a trial at Canandaigua last September involving an alleged Niagara Falls white slave ring, appeared before Judge Harold P. Burke yesterday.

Vivien Leigh (Scarlet O'Hara), co-starred with Charles Laughton in "Sidewalks of London," next at the Belle, with Charlie Ruggles in "Opened by Mistake."

Egg Prices Barely Remain Steady

Toronto, May 29 — Prices closed barely steady for eggs on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. No change was reported in butter.

After a steady opening, an uneasy undertone appeared on the egg market when buying became less aggressive. With current receipts ample to cover local requirements despite the heavy export movement, buyers were inclined to show less interest in offerings. Prices held to previous levels, however, with the exception of grade "C" in the graded section, which declined ½ cent per dozen.

The butter market remained steady, although spotty trading kept receipts from moving as well as in recent sessions. Fresh supplies were not heavy, No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids traded at 22¾ cents per pound.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, May 29 —(CP)— Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First-grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24c to 24½c; first-grade solids, jobbing price, 23½c to 24c.

Eggs — Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 23½c; A-medium, 21½c; A-pullets, 19c; B, 21c to 21½c; C, 18c to 18½c. (Government-inspected lots ½c higher) Receipts: 7,983 cases.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, May 29—(CP)— No price changes were shown by bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Liveweight: Brantford $7.75.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.50, Hull $10.60, Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

Chatham later reported prices unchanged there at $7.75 for liveweight and $10.60 for dressedweight.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, May 29—(CP)— All classes of livestock held steady in early dealings on Montreal livestock markets today, according to a report from the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Receipts: cattle 1, sheep 5, calves 200, hogs 70.

Calves $4.50 for common drinkers to $8 for top veals. Bulk sales $4.50-$5.75. Medium up to $6.50.

Hogs unchanged at $8.50 for bacons fed and watered. Selects drew $1 premium with regular cuts on off grades. Sows $4.25-$5. Hogs rail grade $11.30 hot weight.

Toronto, May 29 —(CP)— Cattle receipts were cleared at steady prices up to mid-session on the Toronto Livestock market today. Veal calves were weak. Spring lambs were firm. Hogs and sheep were steady. There was no cattle holdover.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were: Cattle 600, calves 440, hogs 900, sheep and lambs 150.

Prices in the cattle section were: Weighty steers $7.35-$8.50, butcher steers and heifers $6.50-$7.75 with some light steers up to $8, butcher cows $4.50-$6, bulls $5.25-$5.50, fed calves $7.75-$8.75.

Veal calves sold at a general top of $10 for choice with a few up to $10.50 and common lights selling downward to $5.50.

Hogs sold at $8.25 off-truck for bacons and $11 dressedweight.

Sheep sold at $2-$5.

Spring lambs sold at $13-$14.

THREE VILLAGES

Along the front from the Somme to the Aisne the French armies of the centre continued to consolidate their positions, and the situation there was described as "extremely favorable."

The high command announced that three villages south of the Somme had been recaptured from the Germans, indicating that the Nazis now hold only two bridgeheads on the French side of the river.

The Germans originally established bridgeheads on the south side of the Somme at five points when they drove across the stream to occupy Amiens. The principal portion of the city was said to be now in French hands.

Maginot Line Intact

A German raid on French positions in the Ardennes sector near the little town of Chateau Porcien was thrown back by heavy French fire, a communique said. The Maginot Line area to the east remained quiet.

Along the channel, it was said, Dunkerque itself "is not directly menaced."

Calais was also still in French hands at the latest reports last night, the sources added.

The Belgian Foreign Minister, Paul Henri Spaak, said in an interview he was "completely without information" on the present whereabout of King Leopold following the Belgian monarch's capitulation.

Wherever he is, Spaak declared "He no longer has any power."

Spaak said King Leopold lost his sovereignty and that if he should conclude a peace treaty with the Germans it would not be valid "because we consider that any act he can accomplish now will be invalid."

The French and British air forces violently attacked fuel reserves at the north German ports of Bremen and Hamburg as well as communication centres and armored columns behind the German lines, according to the War Ministry.

Fighting in the northern sector was described as "extremely violent" on the Lys River, which runs through the area in which the Allied forces have been almost encircled by the swift German troops and left alone by the surrender of King Leopold's Belgian army.

Along the Rhine the French opened a terrific artillery fire which shattered a railway line and an unidentified station, the spokesman said.

Repulsed Without Difficulty

German troops were said to have been repulsed "without difficulty" when they struck at the French forces along the Aisne in vicinity of Chateau Porcien.

The High Command communique said that the Germans were "thrown back" at this village, which lies on the river five miles west of Rethel, which for about a week has been the southern point of the German drive in this region.

The battle lines of the almost encircled Allied army of the north were reported to be changing almost hourly as superior German forces swept over ground abandoned by 15 Belgian divisions which capitulated yesterday on orders of their king.

French sources said, however, that more than 30 miles of Channel coast, stretching northward from Dunkerque, still remained in Allied hands and asserted that the pocketed troops were continuing to fight with "determination."

There were strong indications that the French armies massed along the Somme were swinging into action in an effort to relieve the pressure in the north.

The High Command kept its plans carefully guarded, but said that action along the Somme was "developing favorably", and military spokesmen acknowleged that the operations in this sector were "important" in scope.

There were unofficial reports that at least 30 divisions, numbering between 450,000 and 640,000 men, were ready for a sustained drive along the Aisne.

Still Possess Dunkerque

The French said they still were in possession of Dunkerque and Calais, but declared that the Germans were blasting away at both ports with long rnage artillery.

In Paris, meanwhile, the refugee Belgian Senate and Chamber last night approved the action of the Belgian cabinet in disowning King Leopold for his surrender and voting to continue the fight on the side of the Allies.

The French press bitterly assailed Leopold for ordering his armies to lay down their arms, thus leaving the Allied left flank in the north unprotected.

Editorials accused the Monarch of "treachery" and said that "Belgium has been betrayed by her own King."

Paris still entertained hopes that some of the Belgium soldiers had not obeyed their sovereign's command, but official estimates that 300,000 Belgians had abandoned the Menin-Zeebrugge salient remained unchanged.

The immediate costly result of the Belgian capitulation appeared to be the abrupt withdrawal westward of the north army from the Escaut (Scheldt) and Scarpe Rivers, leaving in German hands the rich Anzin Basin from which France gets much of her coal.

The southern line of the northern army, extending eastward from the coast near Dunkerque approximately 80 miles along the French-Belgian border to a point west of Valenciennes, was said to be under constant pressure from the Germans.

The Nazis were reported to be attacking savagely at several points on the front with mechanized units, heavily supoprted by the air arm.

BOMBERS PROTECT

and hemming them between the Channel coast and Allied forces to the south.

Such a move, successfully accomplished, might place the Germans in a worse predicament than that in which the Allies find themselves now—for they, unlike the Allies, are believed not to have support for a retreat by sea without a terrific hammering from Allied naval and air forces.

Situation Critical

Despite these possibilities experts acknowledged the situation for the troops within the German ring was precarious and critical.

The military correspondent of the News Chronicle declared: "It is time to face up to the facts, to await the worst. With the surrender of the Belgian army the British Expeditionary Force would seem to be cut off. Escape by sea is the slenderest of hopes. A break through to the south is a possibility equally remote. "Within the steel ring of the Reichswehr are as many men as we lost in the battle of the Somme and as much war material as we abandoned to the Germans in March, 1918.

"The magnitude and gravity of this disaster need no elaboration."

(In the first battle of the Somme, in the summer of 1916, Britain lost 500,000 officers and men, in the second in the Spring of 1918, 200,000.)

Declaring: "Our hearts are calm and our resolution firm," Mr. Duff Cooper assured the people that even if this battle were lost the Allies would achieve final victory.

Military commentators believed that in a withdrawal rather than a break-through a large amount of equipment was bound to fall into the enemies' hand because of the necessity of high speed in the primary consideration of saving as many lives as possible.

The Times called the B.E.F. position "precarious" and remarked that "there will, no doubt, be more bad news to face and much more hardship and danger for all to pass through before the tide begins to turn. But about the unalterable resolution of both peoples there is happily no doubt whatever."

Ask People to Pass Judgment

Both Prime Minister Churchill and Mr. Duff Cooper asked the people to suspend judgment on Leopold's order, surrendering the Belgian army unconditionally, but the man-in-the-street and the popular press denounced him as a traitor and some even accused him of laying a trap for the Allied forces.

Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes who, as special British liaison officer, was with Leopold until late Monday night, issued a statement requesting judgment be "suspended on a very gallant soldier until all the facts are known."

Bitterest denunciation of the man who commanded in the Belgian forces in battle for only 18 days came from the tabloid Mirror which cartooned him as a crowned serpent. The cartoon was captioned:

"Gentlemen, the King!" An editorial accompanying it described Leopold as a "skunk."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express commented: "The cost in British and French lives of this betrayal will be immense." The editorial, however, told its readers: "We must keep all our anger for our one enemy, Hitler."

It was said here that Leopold's surrender failed to affect the status of the Belgian Congo, a rich source of copper, rubber, cotton and other products.

It was said to remain Belgian, just as The Netherlands rich West Indies have remained Netherlands since the invasion of the homeland.

Wants Clarifying Statement

A clarifying statement by the British Government, however is being sought in the House of Commons by Sir Gifford Fox, Conservative.

He has presented a written question for answer by Prime Minister Churchill on how the Belgian Congo now is to be regarded and, moreover, what effect Leopold's action will have on Belgian refugees here.

Protection of the English Channel and "construction of ramparts behind it become the first duty of our rulers", the Evening Standard said, commenting: "If behind the ditch stands a fortress, the ditch will still secure our safety and Hitler will suffer the same disillusionment as Napoleon".

(This was a reference to an attempt by Napoleon's forces to reach England in flat bottomed boats in the early 1800's).

The Ministry of Information issued a long list of lessons for Britain in the German invasion of Holland. Its "sunning technique" succeeded although the defenders were fully warned, the statement said.

"The invasion must have been marvellously planned, for troops landed in circles surrounding each of three airdromes", it said. "The timing was perfect. At Waalhaven, which has been rendered unusable by the Dutch, parachutists landed in Dutch and even British uniforms.

"Although the military accomplishments may not seem to have been great at the time, it is clear from reports that the German action caused the greatest confusion, and the moral of its effect is clear.

"For example, the Dutch General Staff was so bewildered that it enquired of British authorities if British troops were being landed.

"When the Dutch wanted to ask for Belgian artillery to help recapture a vital bridge their message had to be relayed through London, so great was the dislocation.

"Moreover British aircraft were fired upon by Dutch anti-aircraft guns. This gives some indication of the havoc that can follow parachute action behind the lines".

Garden Bros. Circus Provides Fine Program of High-Class Performing Animal Acts

Horses, Dogs, Elephants and Bears Go Through Their Acts With Skill—Performances by Trapeze and Wire Walking Artists Along With the Clowns, Round-Out a Good Evening's Entertainment

PERFORMANCE TONIGHT

The circus is in town! What delight those words bring to the boys and girls who immediately have visions of performing elephants, act-dogs and dancing horses, of talented aerial stars and trapeze artists, and last but not least the fun making antics of a troupe of comically dressed clowns.

The Garden Brothers Circus now playing at the Hume Arena, and which will offer its final performance tonight, is all that the name "circus" implies, featuring over one hundred sensational acts that are all linked traditionally with the sawdust rings. Beginning promptly at eight-thirty, the many beautifully executed acts and performances make for two and a half hours of enjoyable entertainment with never a dull moment.

A colorful parade making a complete circuit of the arena with the entire acting personnel and complete cast of animals taking part starts the program away to be followed with a tumbling act by three supple clowns. In the big centre ring the dog act brings rounds of applause as the dogs went through their difficult acts jumping through rings simultaneously and waltzing to the music of the circus orchestra.

Tight rope walking done by a dainty little lass showed a high degree of excellence as she waltzed and skipped on the wire, while, in another ring, a juggling act was in progress. Four ponies went through various acts and drills to be climaxed by a dog, monkey and goat taking turns in riding the ponies.

Togo, the Japanese rope walker, did his well-known act of walking the inclined rope to the arena roof with the subsequent slide back to the floor to be followed by Hal Christie with his troupe of clever horses. One pony played the cymbals and another kept remarkably good time to the music as he tap danced on the wooden floor. The performing bears are there, riding kiddie kars, walking on stilts using roller skates and bicycles with all the artistry of man. One bruin showed exceptional ability as he balanced on his fore feet and walked up and down steps much to the amusement of the audience.

The high trapeze acts showed many new performances that caught the fancy of the crowd as the actors went through their various numbers while the "roll-up" act acomplished by one of the troupe proved exceptionally difficult.

The performing elephants could do almost anything that an animal might be trained to accomplish as was shown by the many varied figures they presented. Swaying to the music of the circus orchestra one of elephants gave a fair representation of the "Hula" dance as it shuffled around the ring. More tumbling acts followed with the circus performance closing with a presentation by Hal Christie and his troupe of eight horses. The ponies waltzed in pairs singly and in fours and, after being blindfolded spelled out accurately the owner's name with the letters on their harness.

As an added attraction after the main circus performance there is an "illusion" show staged by a master magician who causes a girl to appear from supposedly empty box. Rabbits appear and disappear at the will of the magician as do umbrellas and many other articles. Climaxing the performance is the supposed decapitation of a boy by the "guillotine" much to the mystery of the audience.

All the numbers on the circus performance are executed to the tempo of music played by the circus orchestra. The Pine Street public school band entertained the crowd with several numbers prior to the opening of the show.

Times Approves Appointment of Moffat to Ottawa

New York, May 29—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune and the Times commended today appointment of Jay Pierrepont Moffat, former Chief of the European Division of the State Department, as United States Minister to Canada in succession to James H. R. Cromwell, who resigned to run for Congress.

The Times said Mr. Moffat is "a gentleman who, unlike Mr. Cromwell, is not likely to resign after a few months to run for public office." It added: "We may look forward to conscientious work in the Canadian post by a good and able man whose mind will be on his job."

The Herald Tribune said President Roosevelt has made amends for the "blithe, irresponsible fashion" in which he had been "using the post of Minister to Canada as a means of paying political debts." The new appointment "shines forth the more for its contrast with those which preceded it," it said.

PRISCILLA LANE WEDS

Hollywood, May 29—(AP)— The mother of Priscilla Lane disclosed today that her screen actress daughter, youngest of the Lane sisters, married Orin W. Haglund, assistant film director, at Yuma, Ariz., Jan. 23, 1939, left him the following day and obtained a divorce last May 3.

"They're young and they made a mistake," Mrs. Cora B. Mullican, the mother, said through a studio representative. "They kept the marriage secret and had hoped to keep the divorce secret, too."

SWEDISH NEWS REPORTS SOLDIERS INTERNED.

Stockholm, May 29—(AP)—The Swedish News Agency said today 180 British officers and soldiers—cut off several weeks ago by the German advance north of Oslo—crossed into Sweden after fighting their way 75 miles to the frontier from the vicinity of Lillehammer, north of Oslo.

The soldiers, many suffering from exposure, were taken to hospitals and internment camps.

LENGTHY DOCKET AT BANCROFT

Ronald Maxwell Fined $100 and Costs for Obstructing Police Officer in His Duty

Police Court officials experienced considerable difficulty negotiating the inundated roads north of Madoc returning from the semi-monthly County Police Court held before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd last evening. At one point along the highway officials found the road flooded to a depth of over one foot, as the result of the recent heavy rains, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., reported today after a return from the northern part of the county last night.

A lengthy docket was presented before the court yesterday when the court officials arrived in Bancroft. Ronald Maxwell, Bancroft, was fined $100.00 and costs after being convicted of obstructing a police officer in the pursuit of his duties. Maxwell was charged that he resisted Provincial Constable Palmateer, while the officer was attempting to complete a search in the village.

Leslie Ray, Bancroft, was fined $25.00 and additional costs of $14.50 after being convicted of the illegal possession of liquor.

A charge of selling liquor was not proven against George Lowery, however, but the accused was convicted of having liquor in a place other than his residence with the result that a fine of $25.00 and costs of $13.25 were paid. "Constable Palmateer tells me this man had several bottles of whiskey cached at different spots throughout the village, which prompted him to believe the man was selling the stuff," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan.

Stanley Vallier, was given from three to five months in the Ontario Reformatory after being convicted of the theft of a knapsack and a kitbag, taken from a parked truck north of the village. His brother Roy Vallier was found guilty as an accomplice and his sentence was reserved for one month. The latter man was released on his own bail.

Two charges of serious offences in the home saw a man and woman sentenced to serve two months in the common jail. Other lesser cases concluded a lengthy court.

ALLIES NOW HOLD NARVIK

The garrison at one time was said to have numbered 3,000, but in recent days the German high command claimed to have reinforced it with mountain chaseurs and other troops dropped by parachute.

The strength of the Allied force—Norwegians, British and French—has not been stated.

The region around Narvik remained as the only Allied foothold in Norway following the withdrawal from Namsos and Andalsnes about the first of May.

The capture of Narvik gives the Allies a base on the Norwegian coast, above the Arctic circle, which compares in proximity to Norway's important German-held cities with the latter's nearness to the British Isles.

For example, Narvik is about 400 miles from Trondheim, which in turn is approximately the same distance from the nearest point in the British Isles.

London Daily Mirror Calls King Leopold A "Skunk"

London, May 29—(CP Cable) — Britain's morning newspapers generally subordinated criticism of King Leopold's surrender to discussion of the peril confronting the British Expeditionary Force in Belgium.

An exception was the tabloid Daily Mirror which lashed out at the "disowned" king of the Belgians without pulling its punches.

In an editorial entitled "King of the Fifth Column" the Mirror called the king a "skunk."

A cartoon in this newspaper showed a snake labelled King Leopold wearing the Belgian Crown topped with a swastika. The cartoon was captioned: "Gentlemen—the King!"

The Daily Mail cartoonist, Illingworth, had a cartoon without caption. It was placed under a reprint of the famous Punch cartoon of 1914 in which Albert king of the Belgians was shown rebuffing the Kaiser with the words "not my soul" in reply to the Kaiser's statement that Albert had lost everything.

Under this Illingworth drew Leopold and Hitler posed like the two in 1914 and showed Leopold handing his sword, smiling at the Fuehrer.

The Daily Express urged its readers to let the Belgians themselves pass judgment, adding that Britain must keep all its anger for Hitler.

The Times said this was not the moment for useless recrimination. The News Chronicle noted the Allies had gone to the assistance of Leopold who had always refused staff talks, and had to leave a strong strategic line they had been preparing.

"Lover Come Back"

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

"Sure, the net was cut," Katlean agreed, unconcernedly. "But nobody is blaming you, Miss Sondra. Captain Reynall knows—"

"Was Captain Reynall here when—when it happened?"

"No. The Forest Man care in last night, and he and the boss left together on the Baltic, several hours before Chris came sneaking up here in his seine skiff."

"Then we're too late—you've lost all your fish!"

"No. Miss Sondra. Last week, when most of the fish worked into a narrow arm farther up the lagoon, the boss had us stretch another net up there to hol dthem. He's a hard man to catch napping, the boss is. So about all Mr. Squarehead Sandvik got this morning was a cold bath and—" he shifted his Winchester suggestively—"a hot reception".

"You—Katlean!" Liane's low voice carried the whiplash of authority. "Was there shooting?"

Katlean gave her a smoky, amused glance from under drooped lids. "Sure, there was shooting. And one of my 30-30's smacked into something that sounded like Norwegian, to me!"

In a flash Liane was out of the boat and close beside the Indian, the needle point of the long marlinspike pressed against the big white C on his sweater. "Don't move, you Thlinget dog, or I'll spit you like a rabbit! The truth, now — where's Chris? What have you done to him?"

Katlean stood, suddenly pale and rigid, his gaze lifting slowly from the marlinspike to Liane's blazing eyes. "He's not hurt — not much, anyway. I saw him climb back aboard the Tanya. They — they're anchored just around the next point."

Slowly, Liane backed away and resumed her place in the boat, still suggestively fingering the marlinspike. Sondra started her engine, and addressed the immobile Katlean:

"Tell Captain Reynall, for me, there will be no more work like—" She nodded tokard the net. "—Like that, from the O'Moores. Tell him I shall see to that personally."

As the Spindrift slipped away from shore, Liane shouted at Katlean, "You'd betted pray your aim was bad, you Siwash! I'm going to find Chris, and if you've harmed him—" She drew a finger slowly across her throat.

x x x

The two girls found the Tanya anchored around the point, as Katlean had said. Chris, stripped to the waist and grinning sheepishly, stood by the rail to receive them. A stained bandage was twisted clumsily about his right shoulder and arm.

"Chris—darling!" The Spindrift rocked as Liane sprang up, both arms extended. "Get back into bed, you dumb imbecile! Wait till I—"

Her flying leap to the Tanya's deck sent the Spindrift sheering off, so that Sondra had to back and fill to get alongside again. By the time she got aboard, Liane had Chris stretched on the pilothouse bunk, the cook and a deck hand scurrying with hot water, the ship's first-aid kit open, and her own hands dipped in an antiseptic solution.

"Aw, it's only a scratch," Chris was protesting. "Just—"

"Shut up, and hold still!" snapped Liane. "You haven't sense enough to know whether you're hurt or not, you blundering ape!"

To Sondra's eyes, the flesh wound in the thick muscles of Chris's bared upper arm seemed considerably more than a scratch. But Liane was workin over it with almost professional dexterity, and seeming unconcern. "Mm-m-m," she commented. "Could have been worse, certainly. If that slug had—oh—oh!" Her voice, suddenly cracked and she bent her face against the firm white flesh of the big skipper's bared shoulder. "Oh, Chris," she blubbered, between laughter and tears. "You—darling—brainless—bull-headed baby! If I ever let you out of my sight again, I—I hope somebody shoots me!"

Chris, grinning foolishly, lifted one huge paw and awkwardly patted her dark head.

Sondra slipped out on deck. She was smiling; but there was a lump in her throat, and a hollow sense of loneliness in her heart.

x x x

Some time after breakfast, Chris came out and cast an appraising look over sea and sky. "Wind's dying down," he said.

He cleared his throat uneasily, and lowered his voice to an apologetic group at Sondra's side. "I—ummm — I'm sorry, Miss Sondra, about last night. You see—" He shuffled his feet and twitched his wounded shoulder. "Well, I knew the Cap'n was in a bad hole for fish. I guess I just went kinda crazy."

"Okay, Chris," Sondra replied evenly. "Only . . . we won't have any more of that kind of fishing, skipper. Dynamite will tell you the same, after he gets back—and I've had a talk with him. Understand?"

Chris nodded morosely. The wheel house clock chimed three bells, and he scowled at it through the open window. "Nine-thirty," he growled. "I'll bet he's in Juneau by now, trying to argue Thomas out of enough fish to keep that Starbuck contract filled."

But Captain O'Moore at that moment was finding himself concerned with a matter far more serious than any lack of fish.

Entering Taku Harbor on the Windflower, he had found the Pelley berthed opposite the Princess Julia at the cannery wharf, and was mildly surprised to see Mayes and one of his assistants standing with Captain McGrath on the Canadian liner's bridge. He was more surprised when, boarding the liner with Kemp's box under his arm, he found Captain McGrath and the two scientists waiting, grave-faced, at the head of the gangplank. But what followed swiftly thereafter left him nothing less than flabbergasted.

"Ahoy, Jerry!" he greeted his old friend. "Here's a small box I'd like ye to carry to Vancouver for me. The name and all is there."

Sadly Captain McGrath took the box and passed it to Doctor Mayes. Mayes, after one glance at its contents, spoke to his assistant. "Get a couple of can openers and we'll see what's inside these tins."

"Belay, there!" O'Moore protested. "Ye can't be openin' those tins, doctor. 'Tis a special birthday pack, no less."

"A very special pack, I suspect, Captain," Mayes replied grimly "Sorry to have been temporarily under false colors with you, sir. I'm Lieutenant Mayes, of U.S. Naval Intelligence, and these tins—ah!"

He snatched a can opener from his assistant, and began ripping open the flat oval tins. Several contained herring, and nothing else But out of four he fished envelopes of heavy oiled silk from under a thin layer of paraffin wax.

Mayes shot a quick look along the deserted deck. "We'd best get inside with these, before your passengers start coming back aboard, Captain McGrath." In the master's stateroom he spread the contents of the envelopes on a table, and surveyed them with a dour smile.

"War plans," he snapped. "The whole Sitka district in minute detail. Look! Supply and ammunition bases . . . airplane landing fields . . . concentration areas for submarines . . . all neatly plotted and numbered. And these—" He ruffled a dozen onionskin pages, thickly typed with odd-looking characters. "These will doubtless prove interesting when we get them translated from the KatoKani." He straightened and ran a triumphant eye around the table. "A very special pack—eh, Captain O'Moore?"

"Heavenly days — and meself smugglin' them out!" breathed the captain incredulously. "Doctor — Lieutenant — may the Saints bear witness, I had no idea at all what divil's eggs were hatchin' in those tins."

"I believe you, Captain. Fortunately, you're vouched for by—very high authority. However, I'll have to take you with me to Juneau and keep you under surveillance until I've exchanged some wires with the department." He smiled to take the sting from that, scooped up his papers, and bowed to Captain McGrath. "My thanks for your courtesy, sir. All this is strictly under the rose, of course."

"To be sure, lieutenant." The liner's captain turned with outstretched hand to the crestfallen O'Moore. "Dan, you omadhaun, I'm glad you are not going to jail, this trip," he cried, smiling for the first time since their meeting. "Man, dear, you always were the wild-hearted divil for searching out trouble!"

"Trouble!" snorted Captain O'Moore. "Just wait till I get me two hands on that butter-tongued Starbuck, and his squid-faced Jap. By the horn-billed jeeswax, I'll give 'em trouble!"

"My department has a small consignment of the same in store for those two,' Mayes commented dryly. "Let's get on into Juneau and prepare to dish it out, captain."

x x x

Chris ordered the Tanya's anchor up shortly after lunch and towed the Spindrift in as far as St. Lazaria. "You'll have fine weather for the little boat from here to Sitka, and I can go on about my fishing." he said.

"Chris, honey," Liane pleaded, "you really should run on into Sitka with that shoulder. I'm afraid—"

"Huh—run in for that?" Chris scoffed. "My job's to take in fish; and, by gar, I'm staying out till I get 'em."

"Then I'm staying right with you, angel pan!" Liane snuggled against his good arm.

"I'll push off, then," Sondra said, dropping into the Spindrift. "Good luck, children—and good fishing."

x x x

The run back to Sitka was uneventful. While still a half-hour from home, Sondra saw a plane wing in from Juneau way, and take off again immediately. No airplanes based on Sitka, and no mail plane would be dropping in at three o'clock o fa Sunday afternoon. "Someone either coming or going in a hurry," she thought. "Wonder if it could be Dynamite."

The waterfront wore its customary air of Sabbath desertion; the Blue Dragon, back again at Kemp's float, being the only power boat in port. But as she neared the Spindrift's mooring place, Jodin, strolling about on his day off, came running down to help her tie up the runabout.

"Polena's gone down to her granddaughter Bessie, at Jamestown Bay," he told Sondra. "Alexander took her, not half an hour ago. Someone brought a note saying Bessie is very sick."

"I'm sorry to hear that."

As Sondra entered the front door of Echo House, she felt the air of desertion that already had taken possession of the untenanted house. Eager for a hot bath, she raced up the stairs—and barely choked back a scream at what she saw when she reached the top. The sitting room door was open, and beside her grandfather's table stood Ikeda, the model of the Glory in his hands.

"Ikeda!" she exclaimed angrily, stepping into the room. "What are yuo doing here?"

Quite unperturbed, the Japanese turned and bowed. "Miss Sondra, so happy you come, prease. Captain O'Moore have just debark from Juneau City airplane. He sends me—"

"Grandfather back so soon? He's not hurt—or sick, Ikeda? Quick! Tell me where he is!"

Ikeda sucked in his breath through a reassuring smile. "Honorable captain not sick or hurting. He now conversing important business with Mistah Starbuck on board Brue Dragon. He sends me, prease, I bringing small ship to him most urgentry." The man lifted and lowered the model of the Glory. "At once."

AT THE McCARTHY

"TOO MANY HUSBANDS"

From the studio that's given you these greatest screen comedies ... "It Happened One Night", "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town", "The Awful Truth", "You Can't Take It With You", "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington", and "His Girl Friday", now comes Leap Year's Uproarious four star super laugh hit, "Too Many Husbands" starring Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas. "Too Many Husbands" is definitely a "must see" and in advance we urge you to plan now to attend its showing at the McCarthy Theatre where it will be presented next.

"The Big Guy"

Universal Studio's powerful and dramatic production "The Big Guy" starring Victor McLaglen, Jackie Cooper and Peggy Moran, is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre, the program also includes Latest Fox News Flashes from the war zones, an excellent musical revue and a snappy band subject.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gaucho Serenade"

The announcement of a new Gene Autry picture is occasion for real celebration among the Autry fans. The Capitol theatre has scheduled Autry's latest, "Gaucho Serenade," which far surpasses "South of the Border" as the next attraction, and local enthusiasts are due for a real entertainment thrill.

The story deals with Gene and Frog and their efforts to aid the cause of a little English boy who is being used as pawn by a gang of crooks who are trying to prevent his father from giving testimony which would result in their conviction for fraud.

"Ronnie," arriving at the dock, spies Gene and Frog and mistakes them for Martin and Blake, who were scheduled to meet him. Martin and Blake are in reality the gangsters who want to kidnap the child, posing as his friends. When they learn that he has gone with Gene and Smiley, they are hot on the trail, and the transcontinental chase provides background for many production highlights, including a Mexican amateur song contest in which Gene renders the popular number from which the picture takes its name, "Gaucho Serenade."

In addition to Autry and Smiley Burnette, who portrays "Frog," the cast includes a large number of film notables, June Storey, Mary Lee, Clifford Severn, Lester Mathews Joe Crehan, Smith Ballew, William Ruhl, Walter Miller, Hank Warden and others.

The added attraction is a thrilling drama "Talk of the Devil" starring Ricardo Cortez and Sally Eilers.

To conclude the bill there is a cartoon comedy and the 6th Chapter of "The Phantom Creeps."

"San Francisco"

Your last chance to see the most amazing thrill drama ever screened "San Francisco" starring Clarke Gable, Jeanette MacDonald and Spencer Tracy.

AT THE BELLE

"SIDEWALKS OF LONDON"

It's in the stars that "Sidewalks of London" is a hit!

Not that the Paramount picture which opens next at the Belle Theatre lacks a good story, first-rate direction or Grade A production. It's merely that when two names such as Charles Laughton and Viven Leigh get together on the screen, the moviegoer looks for acting thrills extraordinary. In "Sidewalks of London" he gets them!

Clemence Dane's dramatic, touching story of the "buskers", London's picturesque sidewalk entertainers, gives Laughton an ideal opportunity to show all his well-known talents, plus several never-before displayed on the screen. He clowns, scraps with fiery new leading lady, suffers the intense heartbreak of a rejected sweetheart, gets drunk, and even sings and dances for the first time in his career.

As Laughton's newest leading lady, Miss Leigh displays the exciting beauty and acts with the energy and originality that enabled her to win the greatest of all movie sweepstakes and play Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." Her Libby, the hellion of "Sidewalks of London" is a fascinating character, hot-tempered yet sentimental, selfish yet remorseful, scheming and loyal at intervals.

Miss Dane's plot charts the tempestuous romance between two "busking" is well on its way out. One of them a happy-go-lucky fellow played by Laughton, is content with his precarious profession and satisfied to sing, dance and entertain for pennies on London's streets. But his sweetheart, Miss Leigh, has different ideas. She's determined to become a great actress in the legitimate theatre and blast her way to the top through all opposition.

"Sidewalks of London" is this week's prescription for all Laughton and all Leigh fans. Which should take in just about the entire moviegoing public except those who go to the theatre only to see the newsreels.

"Opened by Mistake"

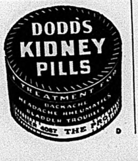
Charlie Ruggles returns as the laugh-packed swiller in the laugh jammed thriller "Opened by Mistake," announced as the co-feature attraction.

With him are Janice Logan, Robert Paige, and William Frawley, but best of all is the Ruggles of yesteryear — absolutely resurgent! Old Ruggles fans, who have been restlessly demanding that he be given roles like his former successes such as "Gentlemen of the Press" and "Exclusive" will be more than delighted to find Charlie back on a newspaper again.

It's a sure-fire tonic to get the laugh glands clanging again, and 'most every time your swimming eyes come up for air, you'll be looking at Janice Logan, the gal recently voted "The Best Undressed Woman of 1940."

"America's Youth of 1940", is the subject treated in the all new edition of The March of Time to be presented on the same program.



Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas, starring trio of the uproarious comedy "Too Many Husbands," which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

(By Axel De Holstein, Havas Staff Writer)

Paris, May 30 — (CP-Havas)— Balking the German drive to turn the Flanders pocket into a sieve, Allied troops slowly retreated northwestward today under the protection of their air forces toward Dunkerque, where British and French warships were helping keep the battered pot open as an embarkation point.

London dispatches indicated the withdrawal of troops through Dunkerque is in full swing. Several divisions were reliably reported to have reached a port in southeastern England.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Climate and life! Climate is certainly very important in its control of both plants and animals. Everyone has noticed the adaptation of plants to climate, as the cactus of the deserts and the forests to wet regions. There are also climatic adaptations of both animals and humans: the polar bear thrives in the Arctic, and reptiles in the tropics; and the birds of the open fly better than those of the forest. The Eskimo is as well adapted to his home as the Negro to his. Any decided change of climate calls for new adaptations. It is well known that whites do not thrive on the Guinea coast. It seems that humans can stand moderate changes in climate, and some changes work to their advantage, while in cases of severe changes, the type, if it survives, changes somewhat.

ITALY REPORTED BUSY PREPARING

If Italy Goes to War Alongside Germany, Some Believe First Blow Will be Struck in Mediterranean

Rome, May 30 (CP).—Fascist Italy worked feverishly today preparing for the moment toward which Premier Mussolini has been looking for nearly two decades—when the nation should go to war for her "aspirations".

Part of the Fascist preparations centred on perfecting what spokesmen refer to as the "third line of defence", consisting of an estimated 10,000,000 women and minors who would have noncombatant roles in wartime.

An announcement said 27,000 colunteers were being trained to take over various jobs left by men called to arms, 12,000 in special industrial jobs, 3,000 minors who will be employed on railways, and 12,000 women being trained for numerous other positions. Volunteers in Rome continued to offer their services for a parachute corps.

Observers believed the first Italian war blow on the side of Germany might be struck southward in the Mediterranean Sea rather than directly at France.

(Under the Allied-Turkish allaince, Turkey — guardian of the Dardanelles—is pledged to enter the war as an ally of Britain and France in the "event of an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean Sea.")

Italian Press Outbursts.

Latest Italian press outbursts against France and Britain have mentioned Nice, Corsica, Tunisia, Egypt, Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus and even the Dardanelles as among Italy's aspirations."

At the same time, the recent visit of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano to Italian-occupied Albania has caused uneasiness in Yugoslavia and Greece.

Posters picturing French possession of Tunisia as a pistol pointed at Italy appeared prominently in Rome overnight. The inflammatory posters, voicing Fascist demands for French territory, were another step in the "unofficial" campaign in favor of Italian intervention in the war.

NON-MILITARY NAZIS BELIEVE ALLIES ESCAPING TRAP

Berlin, May 30 (AP). — Neutral military circles here expressed the belief today that the Allies must have succeeded in getting quite a number of men out of the German trap in Flanders, since movements of transports off the English Channel coast have been reported under way for the last four days.

Process of Extraction of 'U-235' Speeded up 11,000 Times Reported

New York, May 30—(AP)—Discovery by a Swedish scientist of a process speeding up by 11,000 times the extraction of "U-235," the new miracle source of atomic energy, was announced today by the New York Times.

The speed-up process, the Times said, promised "to make it possible to utilize atomic energy as a new source of enormous power for all purposes, and may place in the hands of the nations at war, Germany as well as the Allies, the most powerful fuel ever to be discovered."

One pound of "U-235," an isotope or chemical twin of ordinary uranium, is said by scientists to have the power output of 5,000,000 pounds of coal or 3,000,000 pounds of gasoline.

The difficulty in maging it commercially available has been that under present laboratory techniques it would take 11,995,074 years for one extracting unit to produce a pound of "U-235."

The Times said, however, that Professor Wilhelm Krasny-Ergen, of the Wenner-Graens Institute in Stockholm, has reported in an article to the British Scientific Weekly "Nature" that he has found a way to speed the extraction rate 11,000 times.

"If Professor Krasny-Ergen's claim proves right, and his standing as a scientist is high," the Times said, "his method promises to open the way to the extraction of the U-235 at the rate of one pound every four days, or even in less time."

BRITISH PUBLIC WARNED AGAINST NAZI PROPAGANDA

Press Asks People to Ignore German Efforts to Split Allies by Capitalizing on Flanders Disaster

MUST FACE FACTS

There Were Disasters in Last War as Well Says Military Critic and to "Win the War We Must Lose This Battle"

London, May 30 (CP).—The British Expeditionary Force and its French companions fought today toward Dunkerque in a tremendous rearguard battle with the Nazi military machine.

Initial success in the withdrawal was indicated by a statement in authoritative circles that some divisions had reached the safety of a southeast port in England.

Meanwhile the "grim struggle goes on", these claims added.

The southeast coast of England took on a "front line" appearance, with streams of women and children leaving in fear of German bombers, carrying portable possessions with them.

The government is expected to order all civilians to leave the southeast coast if Germany consolidates her air bases on the French coast.

Successful Action.

Success of the rearguard fight in Flanders was seen in the fact that French as well as British soldiers were brought to safety, despite the German claim that Dunkerque Harbor, from which Allied navies are removing the troops, had been rendered untenable by air attacks.

The stream of soldiers, wounded and refugees landing after hazardous voyages across the channel merged with the flow of evacuees from the southeast coast to create a huge mass movement toward the west.

Military circles said the expeditionary force still holds its main base depots in Flanders but said, "We, of course, have lost a great deal of material."

Wounded Tommies continued to arrive in England as the battle of Flanders raged on. They told stories of ruthless German attacks on refugees and fiercely declared their eagerness to go back and renew the fight as soon as they recover from their wounds.

At home the Press warned the people to beware of a German propaganda drive designed to split the Allies by capitalizing on the Flanders disaster.

Asserting incredible mistakes were committed by both countries, the Express commented: "The people of Britain lingered long in slothfulness while France was fully mobilized for war."

The military commentator of the News Chronicle urged the people to view the Flanders battle in its correct perspective and face it as the great disasters of the last war were faced. He contended that General

12 British Defiants Knock Down 37 Huns

London, May 30—(CP)—A single squadron of 12 British Defiant fighter planes shot down 37 German planes yesterday, the Air Ministry announced today.

On morning patrol the squadron shot down 17 fighters and a dive bomber and in the afternoon 19 and possibly 21 German bombers the Ministry said.

One British gunner, believing that his plane was vitally hit, took to his parachute over Belgium, but with that exception every man and machine returned safely.

High Priests May Call Moslems To 'Holy War' If Egypt Attacked

Bedouin Tribesmen of Western Desert Volunteer to Defend Egypt

PRIESTS EXHORT MEN

Alexandria, Egypt, May 30 (AP).— Wandering Bedouin tribesmen from the western desert bordering Libya flocked to Egyptian military outposts today to volunteer for defence of their country.

The youthful nomads, who previously had refused to join the Egyptian army, now believe that Italy soon may make a hostile move. Many recruits are sons of Bedouin chieftains who fled Italian rule in Libya.

Moslem High Priests throughout the nation exhorted the men to be ready to give their lives defending the country, and declared their religion might require such a sacrifice.

There was a possibility that the High Priests might call all Moslems to a "holy war" if Egypt is attacked.

NORSE EXPECT ALLIED DRIVE

Stockholm Story Says Allies May Clear Out Huns Along Narvik Railway

Stockholm, May 30 (CP-Havas).— Norwegian sources here today predicted an immediate Allied drive to clear out German detachments along the iron ore railway between Narvik and the Swedish border and a possible German parachute attempt to recapture Narvik, which fell to the Allies yesterday.

Any German effort to retake Narvik seems doomed, however, in view of the tight grip the Allied land and naval forces now have on the northern Norwegian port, these quarters said.

Arrival of the first detachment of German soldiers along the Narvik-Kiruna railway was expected momentarily at the Swedish border, where they face internment or, if they decide to make a stand, probable annihilation.

Norwegian officials said the port of Narvik will be of considerable practical importance to the Allies for two main reasons:

1. The iron ore railway can be repaired without too much difficulty and be of use in linking Sweden and the Allies.

2. Narvik can be used for new Allied operations southward, hitherto impossible because of bad weather conditions. The Allies took possession of the remains of the town of Narvik yesterday morning.

LORD CAMBRIDGE KILLED IN ACTION

Captain in Coldstream Guards, Second Son of Queen Mary's Oldest Brother

London, May 30 — (CP) — Lord Frederick Cambridge, a first cousin of King George VI, has been killed in action, it was learned in London today.

Lord Frederick, a captain in the Coldstream Guards, was the second son of Queen Mary's oldest brother, the last Marquess of Cambridge.

He was reported last Sunday as missing in action.

People of U. K. Ask If and When German Fury Would Strike Britain

Correspondent Refers to Nazi Activities in Zeeland and Norway

SOME EXPECT THRUST

By SAM ROBERTSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 30 (CP). — The people of the United Kingdom, who once wondered if the fury of German arms would strike at the British Isles, long cossidered impregnable to invasion, today speculated when the blow would fall.

As evidence accumulated that Hitler might push a thrust at the heart of the Empire, many families which had voluntarily evacuated to east coast homes seek a haven further inland.

The possibility that the Nazi high command is planning operations against the United Kingdom is discussed in a Paris dispatch to the London Telegraph. Reporting that such belief is held in the French capital, the correspondent said German military preparations in Zeeland and Norway cannot be explained by local operations.

"Numerous troops lately stationed in southern Germany and parts of Austria have been withdrawn, "the correspondent wrote. "If the northern offensive had failed, the German command would have tried to seize Switzerland. Now it is determined to stake all its resources in northern France against the British."

Evacuees are being moved from danger zones westward across England. They are mostly women and children. Children wearing labels destining them for evacuation centres can be seen at railway stations dotting the coast. Many seafront homes in Kent, which had four air raid alarms in the past week, are empty and boarded up.

52 ENEMY PLANES DOWNED BY R.A.F., 17 ARE DAMAGED

Reconnaissance Plane Bombs German Supply Ship at Bergen and Sets it Afire

HANGARS DESTROYED

Raid Made on Bases on The Netherlands Coast and Nazi Seaplanes Wrecked

London, May 30 —(CP)— The Air Ministry announced today the Royal Air Force shot down 52 enemy planes yesterday.

The announcement said 17 other enemy planes were damaged.

The Air Ministry said a reconnaissance plane bombed a German supply ship at Bergen, Norway, and set it afire.

Naval aircraft were said to have shot down an enemy bomber over the North Sea and to have disabled another; to have destroyed hangars at a seaplane base on The Netherlands coast, and to have wrecked a number of German seaplanes.

The text of the announcement:—

"Royal Air Force fighters yesterday (Wednesday) encountered many large formations of enemy aircraft engaged in bombing operations on the French and Belgian coasts.

"In spite of the presence of strong enemy fighter escorts, our aircraft pressed home their attack at every opportunity. No less than 52 enemy aircraft were shot down during the day, including 25 bombers.

"Seventeen others were seriously damaged. Ten of our fighters are missing but one of the pilots, although wounded, has since returned safely.

"Naval aircraft carried out an attack on an enemy seaplane base on the Dutch coast. Hangars were destroyed and a number of seaplanes seen to be wrecked. Other naval aircraft shot down an enemy bomber over the North Sea and disabled another.

"One of our reconnaissance aircraft bombed an enemy supply ship at Bergen in Norway and set it on fire

"Our heavy bombers were again active during the night in support of Allied forces."

Allied Struggle in Flanders 'Epic of Bravery and Endurance'

New York, May 30—(CP)—The Allied struggle in the battle of Flanders has become "an epic of bravery and endurance," the New York Times said editorially today.

"Those who survive will bring stories of individual and regimental heroism that may live as long as bravery is honored among men," the paper added. "Those who never return will have left a memory that will inspire the Allied people for generations to come."

The New York Herald Tribune said the time has arrived for "preparing our policy and facing all its possible implications" in regard to the American possessions of Hitler's victims.

Pointing out that an Allied defeat would give Hitler potential air and navy bases all around the Caribbean, at Bermuda and on Newfoundland, the paper's editorial said:

"Clearly the United States cannot allow any of these points to be developed into either military or political-ideological spearheads for an attack on the country."

Eight of Fascist Organization in Canada Now Held

Arcand and National Treasurer of Party, Dr. Noel Decarie, Arrested Deep in Laurentian Mountains

TAKEN TO MONTREAL

All Held Will be Arraigned for Infractions of the Defence of Canada Regulations — All Arrested in Swift Raids by R.C.M.P.

Montreal, May 30—(CP)— Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced today the arrest of Adrien Arcand, National Fuehrer of the National Unity party, and Dr. Noel Decarie, national treasurer, for alleged infractions of the Defence of Canada Regulations.

Their detention brought to eight the number of officials of the Fascist organizatoin arrested since midnight.

Superintendent H. R. Gagnon of the R.C.M.P. said Arcand and Decarie were taken into custody at Nominingue, Que., deep in the Laurentian Mountains north of here. They were brought to Montreal by motor car shortly before noon.

A few hours earlier Hughes Clement, described as Provincial Adjutant of the Legionnaires, walked into R.C.M.P. headquarters here and submitted to arrest.

The other five men in custody were arrested in swift raids shortly after midnight.

Arraign in Court

It was expected the eight men would be arraigned in court later today on charges under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

The men arrested in the midnight raids were—Maurice Scott, leader of the party's uniformed guard; Henri Arcand, the party's national director of transport; Marius Gatien, national director of propaganda; Paul Giguere, national adjutant of party legionnaires; and G. R. Barck, party organizer at nearby Ville St. Laurent.

Dr. Noel DeCarie, National Treasurer of the Party, and Hughes Clement, Provincial Adjutant of the Legionnaires, believed to be with Adrien Arcand at his summer home in the mountains, also are named under the blanket warrant.

Specific accusations under which the warrants were served were those under Sections 39 and 39-A of the Defence of Canada Act. These make it an offence for any person or persons to spread reports or make statements destined to, or likely to, cause disaffection to His Majesty or to interfere in any way with the success of His Majesty's forces or to prejudice their security or training or to prejudice the safety of the State or the prosecution of the war.

Arrests Follow Raids

The second part of the accusations concerns the printing and publishing of similar statements.

The arrests followed more than 20 raids last week on homes and offices of alleged leaders and members of the Fascists organization.

Since the arrests, in which quantities of evidence— lists of names, party emblems, a card upon which were written the names and Shanghai addresses of two known Nazi agents in China, literature and other material — were seized, R.C.M.P. headquarters here have received innumerable calls and letters from persons announcing their disassociation from the organization.

Many anonymous letters listed Montreal residents as Fifth Columnists. Police eventually appealed to the public for co-operation asking them to sign their letters and to refrain from clogging up division telephone lines with calls.

The arrests here followed two in Toronto yesterday. Joseph C. Farr, National Unity Party organizer and John M. Lorimer, said by police to be a party member, were taken into custody, charged under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

MUST KEEP ON FIGHTING

Paris, May 30 (AP)—Paul Van Zeeland, former Premier of Belgium said in an interview here today:

"All the living forces of the nation who have escaped the enemy must be assembled and reinvigorated and put to the common cause which Belgium and her Allies are defending."

73,000 ALIENS IN BRITAIN

London, May 30.— (CP)— Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary, told the House of Commons today that "the number of persons of German and Austrian nationality in this country is approximately 31,000 males and 42,000 females of whom about 3,600 and 3,200, respectively, are interned".

GASOLINE DRENCHES HIGHWAY AS TRUCK CAREENS INTO DITCH

Nine hundred gallons of gasoline drenched No. 30 highway, eight miles south of Campbellford when a large oil truck sprawled upside down in the ditch after a front spring broke. Driver S. Lewis lost control of the heavy vehicle on his way to Campbellford from Cobourg with a full load. As the spring gave way the driver was unable to control the eight-ton truck, which careened into the ditch, snapping off a two-foot elm as though it were matchwood.

Although considerable damage was done to the truck Lewis crawled out uninjured after shutting off the motor in time to prevent a fire that would have left only a charred mass of wreckage.

ANGLER IS HAULED FROM MOIRA RIVER

Becoming so engrossed in his angling efforts that he failed to notice the uncertain footing along the east bank of the Moira River, near the county bridge, yesterday, a local fisherman fell down an eight-foot embankment into the swirling waters of the Moira. Two companions managed to haul the unfortunate angler to safety with only a ducking resulting. When approached by a local newspaper reporter, who was passing, the man refused to divulge his name. "You're not putting my name in the paper," remarked the water-soaked angler, who seemed none the worse for his experiences. The man was fishing off the steep craggy bank of the river when he slipped on a spot of moss and fell into the river. "How's the fishing?" the man was asked. "Just about as good as the swimming," replied the angler-swimmer.

FIRE FIGHTERS GET NEW UNIFORMS

Members of the Belleville Fire Department are sporting their new uniforms this week and with the approach of summer weather have discarded their winter headgear and are now wearing the natty white caps which are worn by the fire fighting personnel throughout the summer.

LITTLE MAN UNABLE TO RESCUE LARGE MAN UNTIL HELP ARRIVES

That old sports adage "A good little man cannot whip a good big man" was upheld in Wellington yesterday when a 200-pound fisherman who accidently fell out of his boat into West Lake nearly brought disaster to a 130 "pounder" who attempted to rescue him.

When the "big fellow" an unidentified visiting fisherman suddenly tumbled out of his boat, James Findlay, who tips the scales at 130 went to his rescue. Jim tugged and strained at the submerged man, but nearly lost his own balance and his boat in ineffectual attempts to haul him in.

Both men yelled for help, and it was not until Ralph Moore and Carl Bryant dashed to the scene, that the severely chilled but otherwise unharmed man was hauled from the water.

SIXTEEN PRIZEWINNERS IN ESSAY CONTEST TO RECEIVE AWARDS

On Friday evening, at 8.15 p.m. an interesting ceremony will take place in the auditorium of the Trenton High School when J. R. Pickering, Inspector of Schools for South Hastings, will officiate at the presentation of prizes to the 16 winners in the essay contest on "The Royal Navy" recently sponsored in all Trenton schools by the Trenton Branch No. 110 of the Canadian Legion. Each prize winner will receive a valuable book of British authorship. Mr. E. L. Fraser will officiate as chairman.

Mr. H. J. Clarke, retired school inspector of Belleville, has completed the selection of the special prize winners and a brief but interesting program is assured. A framed photo of the ships of the British navy will be on display for viewing by all attending citizens. Bellecille citizens are extended a cordial invitation by officers of the Legion and by the principals of the Trenton schools.

TRENTON VETERANS ASKED TO REGISTER FOR HOME GUARD DUTY

Trenton, May 30— Through the efforts of the Secretary of the Trenton branch of the Canadian Legion a special registration of all war veterans in Trenton and district for home guard duty is now under way. No veteran who may be now gainfully employed is encouraged to leave his job, but all veterans now employed, who have cars are invited to register and make his car available to convey guards to and from their place of duty.

All such registrations are to be of a voluntary nature, however.

Fine Collie Dog Found With Acid-Burned Feet

Nothing less than fiends in human form got in their nefarious work yesterday when a handsome collie female dog was found lying in a ditch near the Canadian National Railway coal chutes, its feet apparently having been seared with acid. The suffering animal, which was whimpering with pain when County Constable Thomas Thorne arrived on the scene, was given a merciful despatch in the lethal chamber.

According to a family named Hill who reside in the vicinity of the place where the dog was found, it had been thrown from a car and left to die. The Hills, following the finding of the dog, immediately notified police authorities.

The pads on all four feet of the animal were badly burned with what is believed to be a powerful acid. The flesh was seared and the dog was unable to walk. It was without a collar or tag, and is thought to have been the property of a resident of the surrounding rural districts.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

The Knickerbockers jumped up into a tie for first place honors in the Midget Ki-Y Softball series when they scored an easy 15-6 triumph over the Wildcats at the Queen Alexandra school grounds last evening.

The Knickerbockers scored in every inning but the fifth, tallying six in the first, two in the second, one in the fourth and added two in the sixth to win handily in the abbreviated seven-inning contest. The Wildcats scored once in the first, were shut out in the second and third, scored four in the fourth, one in the fifth and twice in the sixth. Jerry Bonisteel officiated.

The lineups: Knickerbockers — Wardhaugh, Barrett, Lyall, Goyer, Adams, Derushie, Rollins, Taylor and Burton. Wildcats — Moore, Doyle, Gurb, Taylor, Hinton, Semark, Brodie, Buck.

IRA WHITTON,
(Stirling).

Stirling, (Special)—Attended by many friends and relatives and also members of the local Great War Veterans' Association, the funeral of the late Ira Whitton took place on May 25th in Wellman's United Church and was conducted by Rev. James E. Beckel.

Deceased who was in his sixty-fifth year, passed away in Belleville General Hospital. He was born in Northumberland County, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Whitton. Spending his early days in Hastings County he left this district to spend about three years in the northwest. Until 1908 he resided in the east with his wife and daughter, when he returned to Western Canada to live until 1922 with the exception of three and a half years' active service with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in the last Great War. He and his family also lived in California, U.S.A. for a period of three years. His wife, the former Ida Armstrong, of Harold, predeceased him some four years ago.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. James Conlon of Santa Barbara, California, his mother, Mrs. Robt. Fletcher, Stirling, (formerly Mrs. James Whitton); three brothers, Hector Whitton, Hoard's Station, George R. Whitton, Detroit, Mich., W. J. Whitton, Markdale; three sisters, Mrs. G. D. Tice, Wellington, Mrs. C. B. Morse, Regina, Sask. and Mrs. Thos. McCaughan, Stirling.

The pallbearers included Fred Houchin, Fred Hulin, Chas. Faires, Harry Fanning, John Rainie, W. J. Snarr. Interment was made in the Wellman's Burial Grounds.

E. WATSON SHERRIFF
(Windsor)

E. Watson Sherriff died at the residence of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Eleanor Butler Sherriff, Windsor, Ontario, on Tuesday, May 28th., at the age of seventy years. Service will be held at Hicks Funeral Home, Picton, Friday afternoon, after which interment will be made.

LATE WHITFIELD CURRY

The funeral of Whitfield Curry, late residence, 49 Station Street, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, on Wednesday afternoon, May 29th. The service in the chapel was conducted by the Rev. E. N. O. Kulbeck, pastor of Evangel Temple, assisted by the Rev. L. S. Wight. At the close of the service the cortege proceeded to the United Church at Moira where service was conducted by the Rev. E. N. O. Kulbeck. Interment was made in the cemetery at Moira. The bearers were Messrs. A. English, F. Vanderwater, Chas. Ketcheson, John Morton, F. Emerson and J. Hazzard.

JACOB L. HEATH
(Madoc)

Madoc, May 30th., —(Special)— Jacob Lincoln Heath of Toronto, well-known in this district, and father of Mrs. C. W. Foster of this village, passed away after an illness of two days' duration at his summer residence at Arden, Ont., on May 28th.

The late Mr. Heath was born seventy-six years ago at Delhi, Ont. For over thirty years he was engaged as a commercial traveller; of late he lived retired. In religion he was a member of Humbercrest United Church, Toronto, being a member of the Church Board, and was highly esteemed by many friends. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order.

Surviving hi mare his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Dora Rice; five daughters, Mrs. C. W. Foster, Madoc; Mrs. W. J. McCallum, Kingston; Mrs. Edna Barnett, Toronto; Mrs. M. R. Brown, Haliburton, and Mrs. J. E. McPhee, Toronto; one sister, Mrs. Mary Whiteside.

The funeral will take place at Arden, Ont., on Thursday afternoon, with service conducted in the Arden United Church by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Spence, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Poulter of Trinity United Church, Madoc.

Scripture Verses

A Belleville reader has forwarded the following Scripture verses for publication, suggesting their value in these days:—

"Men ought always to pray and not to faint"—St. Luke 18. 1.

"The effectual prayer of a righteous man availeth much." — James 5, 16.

"If ye shall ask anything in My Name, I will do it."—St. John 14.-14.

County Court

Four residents of Flinton were arrested by Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed, earlier this week on various charges of breaking, entering and theft.

Charles Champagne and John Mills were apprehended by Chief Hayes and Provincial Constable Dymond charged with the theft of automobile tires, which are alleged to have been found on the motor car driven by the pair. Charles Mills, a brother of John Mills, was arrested on a charge of breaking and entering in Lennox County, while Archie Lamb is being held on a charge of fraud. All of the accused men were lodged in the Belleville jail pending trial at Tweed, except Charles Mills, who was taken to Napanee jail on remand. The quartette appeared before a Tweed justice of the Peace.

Mrs. Mary Ruttan, who was apprehended on a charge of arson by Chief Hayes last Spring, appeared in County Police Court today and her case was remanded until June 13th next. Mrs. Ruttan is charged with unlawfully setting fire to the premises of Joseph Forbier on July 12th., 1939. Since her apprehension Mrs. Ruttan has been a patient at the Ontario hospital under examination.

FORBID BLASTING OPERATIONS ON ZWICK'S ISLAND

The use of explosives for blasting operations, or for any other purpose on Zwick's; Island is absolutely forbidden from this date unless special permission is granted, City Hall officials announced on Thursday.

The announcement followed reports that slight damage through concussion following blasting on the island, has been caused to the City Filtration Plant.

The order also applies to any place designated as being inside the city limits officials said.

NUMBER UNEMPLOYED SHOWS BIG REDUCTION

With registration of the district's employable, unemployed reduced nearly fifty percent in the last month, and with the exception of a few carpenters and painters, skilled labor in practically all its phases, is not available in this section of Ontario, Employment Office officials stated today.

Registrations now on file number 460 as against 808 registered on April 27th.

Only a few building tradesmen remain in the registrations of skilled labor with the majority of the remainder composed of laborers and day workers.

Machinists, mechanics plasterers and several other branches of skilled labor have all been absorbed by industries, officials said. Trained domestics have been at a premium for some time while the supply of inexperienced girls applying for work is said to be fairly large.

WHAT'S IT WORTH? (ABOUT $300 MORE!)

ANY WAY you look at it—it will pay you to own a new Nash. It alone has the 99 H.P. Manifold-Sealed engine that took a "first" in the 1940 Gilmore-Yosemite Run with 28.51 miles per gallon. It alone has that smooth new Arrow-Flight Ride, Sand-Mortex Soundproofing. No other sedan near its price has provision for a big Convertible Bed...or has a 7-bearing crankshaft, the extra weight, the double frame, that mean so much in comfort.

To get all this in another car, you'd have to pay about $300 more. But it's "standard" with Nash—and extra value when you trade. Take a look—take a ride in a 1940 Nash today!

22 NAZI MACHINES SHOT DOWN

London, May 29 (CP).—The Air Ministry announced tonight that the Royal Air Force attacked the Germans "continuously yesterday, last night and today," shooting down at least 22 enemy aircraft, while losing no machines itself.

Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas in a scene from the year's funniest picture, "Two Many Husbands," which is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

BRITISH PUBLIC

Maxime Weygand, commander of the Allied forces, "to win the war must lose this battle." and cut losses while the Allies mass planes and tanks for a tremendous counterstroke.

Pay More Attention to Spain, Russia.

Facing the possible entry of Italy into the war, British diplomacy gave increasing attention to Spain and Russia.

While Sir Samuel Hoare hastened to Madrid, where he has been assigned the task of improving relations with Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Government, the British Government was reported to have decided to give Sir Stafford Cripps, who is en route to Moscow on a trade mission, full Ambassadorial rank.

Sir Stafford was sent to Moscow to explore the possibilities of a trade pact. While he was on his way, the Moscow radio announced yesterday that the Soviet Government was unwilling to receive him as a trade envoy, and then it was reported Sir Stafford would be made Ambassador.

It was explained that the Moscow announcement probably was drafted before the latest communication from the British Government had been received.

As the threat of Germany's attempt to invade England became more menacing as a result of the Nazi sweep to the Channel—just 20-odd miles from the British southeast coast — British "front line" families began moving their children from the coast to safer areas inland.

In Dover, preparations were said to be under way to withdraw 3,000 school children under government supervision. Some families, deciding not to wait for official withdrawal Sunday, already were leaving.

Should Turn to Attack

In its editorial columns the News Chronicle exhorted the Allied forces to "follow Foch's example" in the first battle of the Marne and turn to the attack.

Citing reports from its war correspondent with the British Expeditionary forces that their material was inadequate, the newspaper voiced the opinion that an inquiry at some later time was in order but that "now the whole of our energy must be concentrated on resistance."

The Daily Herald's diplomatic correspondent said it was impossible to estimate at the moment what proportion of the British forces in Flanders would escape by sea.

"They have done a fine job", he wrote, "and so have the French divisions which were surrounded near Lille and are still putting up stubborn resistance against crushing odds.

"The doggedness of the Flanders forces and the heroism of the airmen are giving the main French armies to the south time to consolidate a new line to stop the German advance. If that new line is held, the war is won. This grim retreat across the Belgian plain may indeed prove that the decisive battle of the war is a German victory which will bring about the final German defeat".

No Interviews With Wounded.

British military circles said the number of B.E.F. wounded arriving at British ports from across the shell-swept channel probably was increased, but declined further comment.

Censors stamped "stop" on all interviews with the wounded.

Of earlier reports that two hospital ships had been bombed and sunk in the French harbor of Dieppe, military sources could not say whether any wounded were aboard.

Dieppe, southwest of the German-held corridor to the channel, has been used chiefly by the British as a hospital base.

Latest direct news of the army in Flanders came last night with publication of an exchange of telegrams between King George and General Viscount Gort, their commander. Viscount Gort said: "The army is doing all in its power to live up to its proud tradition." He was replying to a Royal message which said: "The hearts of every one of us are all with you and your magnificent troops in this hour of peril."

THE JUSTICE OF OUR CAUSE

"Nothing which can happen in this battle can in any way relieve us of our duty to defend the world cause to which we have bound ourselves nor can it destroy our confidence in our power to make our way—as on former occasions in our history—through disaster and grief to ultimate defeat of our enemy."

Bearing the new burden of the setback due to the capitulation of the army of the Belgians on the order of their King, Prime Minister Churchill thus summed up the quiet resolve and determination of the British people that, theirs being a just cause, they would fight on through "disaster and grief" to victory.

With grave developments having followed the German passage of the Meuse, and the sense of disappointment in the collapse of the Belgian monarch's resistance, Mr. Churchill realized that the people of his nation filled the role of crusaders for the right.

With his words can be associated the words spoken by the Archbishop of Canterbury only two days before at the national day of prayer service in Westminster Abbey, "The centuries rebuke the fears and calm the anxieties of this hour."

The Archbishop used lines from William Wordsworth's sonnet:

"It is not to be thought of that the Flood
Of British freedom, which, to the open sea
Of the world's praise, from dark antiquity
Hath flowed, 'with pomp of waters, unwithstood',
. . . Should perish."

The Ottawa Journal commenting on this, says, "It is indeed not to be thought of that there can be any outcome to this struggle other than the victory of right over wrong. . .. .. It is the hope of the world or that great part of the world where men are still free to choose their ways."

Again Mr. Churchill may be quoted, "We must remember that the sense of brotherhood between the many peoples who have fallen into the power of the aggressor and those who still confront him will play its part in better days than those through which we are passing."

HITLER RECKLESS IN SUPREME GAMBLE

Much interest has centred in these days since the Hitler invasion of the Low Countries and Northern France in the fast, low-flying bombers and tanks used in the German invasion as battering rams when trying to crash through a line.

Now it is reported on the authority of a government spokesman in Paris that new planes which have been made in the United States are arriving in France and show marked superiority. It is declared this superiority is shown particularly in bombers which can dive within thirty feet of the ground before cutting loose with their bombs and pulling out and that they are faster than the Nazi bombers and less difficult to manoeuvre.

Another opinion from Paris is that of the 5000 tanks the Germans are supposed to have possessed they have only 3000 left, the other two thousand having been lost, and that at least 2000 or half of the first line aviation planes believed held by the Nazis at the opening of hostilities have been lost.

With these interesting figures goes the fact of tremendous use of oil and gasoline in invasion of the Low Countries. Estimates here vary greatly because there is nothing definite as a guide but the wastage must be enormous.

An editorial in the New York Times refers to the fury of the present war, unmatched in all history with Hitler throwing his men and materials into the battle for the West.

Then follows an opinion on the huge losses of the Germans. "One wonders how long the Germans can stand this reckless pace, how long Hitler's war machine can continue to burn gasoline at between 750,000 and 1,500,000 gallons a day. Yet all these prodigal expenditures he will regard as justified if he can succeed in annihilating the Allied armies. His consumption of human lives and war materials is less significant at this moment than the savage desperation of his drive toward victory. He is staking everything on this supreme throw. His watchword now is "all or nothing."

That gives some notion of the staggering losses of war materials including oil and gasoline and of planes and tanks. It is this which gives the British and French people the grim determination to battle him to the bitter end, knowing that Hitler is staking all on this supreme gamble.

German prisoners taken by the Allies are reported worn out by the exertions and efforts of the drive through Belgium and Northern France.

Britishers are taking no chance with this gambler, they are prepared against invasion. Mr. Churchill promised the people sacrifice, sweat and blood, and declared that the British will come through disaster and grief to the ultimate defeat of Germany.

Firearms in Alien Hands

The need for such a step is not so urgent here, of course, but Canada might do well to follow the example of the British Government which has ordered that all foreigners in the United Kingdom turn over to the police any firearms they may possess.

We cannot dismiss the possibility that "Fifth Column" elements will try to make trouble in this country, as they have in other countries, and it is wise to take certain precautions.

Revolvers and pistols now must be registered, and their sale and lawful use are controlled. The same restrictions do not apply, however, to other firearms, rifles and shotguns.

We are at war, and we cannot afford to overlook any measures which might add to our security, or reduce the striking power of subversive elements. Beyond question most aliens in Canada are friendly, would not harm this country if they could, but there are bound to be some secret Nazis, and Nazi sympathizers, not yet in the internment camps. A general order for the surrender of firearms would ity, we should think, as a step necessary for the disarming of the few who might be dangerous. —Ottawa Journal.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

Nervousnes and Allergy are Often Found Together

A school teacher consulted his physician about his heart. He had "tight" pains in his chest under the breast bone and seemed to get out of breath easily. He was afraid to take exercise, ate small meals, and tried to guard his heart in every possible way.

By a simple exercise test, the physician found that the patient could jog 50 steps (stationary run) which sent his heart rate up from 84 to 120 to the minute, and it was back to normal again within two minutes—showing the heart could do its work without trouble.

By means of the stethoscope and percussion (tapping with fingers on the chest), the physician found that the heart was of normal size and in normal osition. He then questioned the patient as to his eating habits, whether any food upset him or caused hives to appear on the skin. This questioning brought out the fact that the patient had had fever regularly toward the end of August, that he had hives occasionally but could eat most foods without having any nausea or vomiting spells. He admitted further that he sometimes had pain over to right upper side of abdomen and belched up a great deal of gas.

The physician then had him keep a food diary and found that three of the best or most nutritious foods were causing his symptoms on the right side. These foods were wheat, eggs, and milk. He was sensitive or allergic to these three foods which caused abdominal symptoms, just as ragweed pollen caused his hay fever symptoms each year.

What about the pain under breast bone which gave him symptoms which he believed were due to angina pectoris or even to coronary occlusion—partial blocking of the blood vessel carrying blood to the heart?

His physician pointed out that this was due to a ball of gas, or air, which he had swallowed at meal time or other times, because of his nervousness and anxiety about his health and practically everything else.

By cutting down on the foods to which he was allergic, and being less disturbed in mind about his health, his symptoms disappeared. Gas pressure due to swallowing of air or the eating of foods to which you are allergic can cause symptoms which may resemble heart or gall bladder disease.

A visit to your physician may bring relief from these symptoms.

Shore Dinner Seas on Ready in East

(By Tempie Manning)

Maybe Rhode Island isn't a large estate, so far as dimensions go, but it is a big place when added up in figures of beauty, variety of scenic contrasts, interest, and varied holiday spots. Old Providence, aristocratic Newport, gay, scintillating Watch Hill, interesting Block Island, the Old South Country with its rolling hills, lakes and streams, and everywhere its proud Colonial tradition and history. Not to mention the clambakes, the johnny cakes, the clam chowder that alone would entitle Rhode Island to a place in the vacation sun!

It's a nice boat ride from Providence to Block Island, one of the finest summer resorts we know. Hills, valleys, rocky shores and sandy beaches, farms and gardens, stonewalls and windmills, golf, yachting and superb deep sea fishing, all make up this enchanting spot. Another favorite is Narragansett Pier, not a pier at all, but a delightful resort. There are magnificent shore estates, yacht clubs, polo grounds, but more interesting are Point Judith Light and the quaint fishing village of Galilee. Racing at Narragansett Park is a delightful experience even for those who just like to watch the bang-tails and aren't interested in the pari-mutuel or the photography finish! Rhode Island does things in style!

Famous Resorts

Watch Hill, Weekapaug, Misquamicut, Quonochontaug, and Charleston are some of the shore colonies around the Westerly district not far out of Providence. It is a blend of open ocean, little salt ponds, miles of safe beaches, friendly dunes and beach plum bush that is indigenous to the New England coast. Watch Hill, set on a high promontory with magnificent views of rocky shores and miles of beaches, is a resort of palatial estates, and grand yacht and golf clubs.

Big little Rhode Island prides itself on Newport, one of the world's most famous summer resorts. Newport is on an island, with narrow old streets leading up from the waterfront past centuries-old houses that were the summer rendezvous of the aristocracy of the Old South. These folks came up to Newport in packet ships to enjoy the delightful climate and the social amenities of this grand resort. It was only after the Civil War, that leaders of New York society took up summer residence and made Newport the queen bee of all the watering resorts. Ocean Drive and Cliff Walk show off their palatial mansions, Newport Beach and the oh, so exclusive Bailey's Beach.

Ideal Spot for Golf Enthusiasts

Miniature Swiss Village

Then there's the Naval College. The sight in the harbor when the kingpins of the yachting world anchor their craft and take part in races, is a sight that would be the making of any summer vacation. For the yachts, riding at anchor or sailing proudly along is one luxury that is interesting to look at. Newport with its miniature Swiss village, its Flemish courtyard, its formal Italian gardens, its authentic Colonial architecture is a world of its own.

Bristol is a fascinating seaport town full of interest and momentoes of Colonial history. And after seeing the yachts, it is thrilling to visit the shipyard where America's cup defenders have been built. Charlestown is another fascinating spot, scene of many Indian conflicts, with a royal Indian burial ground. On Watchaug Pond there are 29 acres dedicated to a bird sanctuary, with miles of interesting trails. Over the salt ponds, on a narrow strip of sand along the ocean front are some beautiful beaches, with swell surf bathing in the Atlantic.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

An Open Letter to Benito Mussolini

DUCE: Before you take your nation into this war, think well and long concerning the United States of America.

We are an odd people, Duce. Our democracy may seem to you sprawling and uncompact, composed of all the peoples of Europe, divided in its opinions, quarreling among ourselves as often over trivial as over important matters

But that is only one America. The other is the America that flies together in an emergency; that, being slow to anger, is terrible in wrath; that, detesting imposed discipline, can impose it upon itself; that, being individual, can be, briefly or for long, united in gregarious self-discipline.

We are a nation of sportsmen. On Saturday afternoons 40 or 50 million Americans go to ball games. We love a fair game. We are a peace-loving nation, Duce, but we have fought plenty of wars.

x x x

Although we detest aggression—particularly the aggression of the strong against the weak—we depise the vulture who strikes down the wounded, who waits until his prey is locked in a life and death struggle and then falls upon him from behind.

We are an idealistic nation, Duce. In us is still a crusading and evangelistic spirit. Not dead in us, Duce, is a sense of historic mission, a chivalric impulse, a sympathy for the underdog — a sympathy which our strength allows us to indulge.

For we are very strong, Duce. We are stronger than you know; stronger, even, than we know. From Italy, Germany looks mighty to you. You see her great industries, her imposing furnaces, mills, factories, storehouses, turning out and hoarding for these many years airplanes, and tanks, and explosives, and great guns.

Those do not impress us, Duce. The potential industrial power, the backbone of modern warfare, is notin Germany. It is in the United States. That potential of power is five times that of all Europe combined. We have at this moment the capacity to produce 8,000,000 automobiles, in factories running only on day shifts; our tractor production runs into millions; and motorized equipment and tanks are only automobiles and trucks with tin hats on. We can produce more steel than all of Europe combined; we are a land built of skyscrapers and steel construction; our workers know how to handle steel, and their numbers are legion.

x x x

We have no desire to turn the instruments of peace into death-dealing instruments, but if we choose to do so, then beware! If fifty thousand planes a year are not enough we can double the number. We could swarm the seas with torpedo and mosquito boats. Our resources will not run out. They are within our borders. They are in our own hands.

Do not be deceived, Duce, by what is termed "public opinion." Ours is a genuine public opinion, and moves with and responds to events. Did you observe that defense vote in the Senate, Duce? Can you recall another time when the Senate of the United States has passed a unanimous vote—78 to 0?

x x x

Duce, you have spoken of Roman pride. It is no mean or empty word. Yours are a great people, skillful, lucid, intelligent and brave. Brave, Duce, in a cause in which they believe. The world has said of them that they desert alliances, and that, no doubt, has rankled in your mind. The world also has said that they wait to choose the winning side.

Proudest is the nation that chooses what is right, in harmony with its own instincts. Your people Duce, do not want this war. Let a stranger who has been briefly in your country tell you what you yourself must know. They do not believe in this war. They believe in neither side, though their spontaneous sympathy goes out to France. But not to Germany, Duce, no more than to England.

Their instinct tells them that Italy will not win this war for Italy, if she goes into it. But she may lose it for Europe—for the Europe which Italy cradled and of which she is an indissoluble part.

x x x

Your people have good instincts, Duce. A fortnight ago, in Italy, when for a moment it seemed as though a detente had occurred and Italy would stand aloof, your people were wreathed in smiles and expressed their joy even to the casual travelling stranger. A leader is great in so far as he expresses and incorporates the instincts of his people. When he runs athwart them his star is lost.

You said some days ago, "Italy cannot stand permanently aloof from the vicissitudes of Europe."

Duce, the vicissitudes of Europe are the vicissitudes of the world. Do you think that the United States of America can stand aloof from the vicissitudes of the world? This continent, lying between two oceans; these forty-eight entities looking westward, looking eastward, vast and free? Do you think that the United States will live in this world on the terms of any power of combination of powers?

We, too, Duce, shall help write those terms, or we shall oppose those terms.

And when we oppose them it will not be we who will be exhausted by wars or short of materials. Not we. And we shall have no sympathy for the vulture, for the profiteer on the misfortunes of others.

Contempt, Duce, is more poisonous than anger. It amites casually and surely. And nations recognize it and feel it themselves. Even in moments of power they know self-contempt. There is such a thing as national remorse. No one lives great in history who creates in his people a feeling of remorse instead of pride. You have read history, Duce, and you know that this is true.

Duce, your industrialists do not want this war. Your peasants do not want this war. The women of Italy do not want this war. Only a part of your youth wants it, now, before it has begun, when you can sway them with your magnetism. But if this war becomes worldwide and is long, there will be consequences for your youth and for your nation which you, too, in the watches of the night, must have thought about and turned, troubled, on your pillow.

Remember that when you make your decision you will also be helping to make ours.

Duce!

King Haakon

Many centuries ago, when most of Europe was still in its Dark Ages, there was a Haakon the Good in Norway, and later a Haakon the Great. Today, in some unnamed village capital in the far north of Norway, another Haakon rallies his people and defies a foreign invader. By exhortation and by personal example this modest, democratic monarch is giving Norway her first royal hero of modern times.

He was not born to the kingship; he was just a second son, and a Danish prince at that, when Norway separated from Sweden and decided that it wanted a king. Without precedents or experience to guide him, he had to create a democratic monarchy out of nothing. He managed to do it in a country which has been Socialist in politics and radical in thought for most of the thirty-five years of his reign.

But the past six weeks have been his testing time, a "time of trial" which he and his people could not have imagined in their wildest nightmares. The King's courage has been the courage of his people. German propaganda has done nothing meaner in this war than to brand the whole Norwegian people as craven and disloyal to their country. As explorers who conquered the polar wastes, as seamen who braved the storms of every ocean, the Norwegians have shown enough collective bravery to hold their heads high. They were simple, guileless, utterly unprepared for the blow that fell upon them last month; but history will not let the treachery of a few individuals blacken the good name of the Norwegian people. If any nation deserves to be branded with treachery forever, it is not Norway but the nation which struck in the dead of night at a weak and unsuspecting neighbor, which hid armed men in the holds of merchant ships and which then invented revolting excuses for brigandage and murder.

Most Norwegians now live under the hobnailed boot of the conqueror, their liberties gone, their property confiscated, their leading citizens subject to arbitrary arrest and execution from day to day. But King Haakon still insists that he will not leave his Arctic capital as long as one inch of his country remains Norwegian. At this rate his memory may yet outlast and outshine those of his Viking namesakes of long ago.—N. Y. Times.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The Norwegian port of Narvik has been taken by the Allies after a stubborn fight. This victory comes in the midst of a desperate struggle of the British and French armies surrounded by the Germans in Northern France and Belgium and can have little influence on the outcome of the huge battles in progress.

It has some importance, however, from the long range point of view because it blocks off German supplies of iron ore over the regular northern route from the Swedish iron mines and it gives the British an air and naval base in the north.

German efforts to hold Narvik may appear out of all proportion to the value of the port in view of their drive to win the war quickly in the south but they may have been influenced by psychological factors. The loss of Narvik is the first defeat German forces have suffered on land since they invaded Poland and started the war last September.

It may have been a desire to keep this record of victory untarnished which led them to throw men into the struggle for Narvik. Yesterday it was revealed that seven German troopships were sunk by British naval units while attempting to land reinforcements for the beleaguered Narvik garrison and throughout the struggle attempts, some of them successful, to land troops and supplies by parachute, have occurred.

In these attempts and in air raids on the Allied forces around Narvik the Germans have lost a large number of aircraft.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. Albert Reddick wishes to announce the engagement of his youngest daughter, Thelma Winifred to John Charles Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Johnston, Montreal, Que. The marriage to take place quietly in Moncton, N.B., early in June.

The many friends of Mrs. Wilford Burshaw, Station Street, will be sorry to hear she is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Friends from Springbrook of Pte. Stanley Ray of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment presented him with a Bulova wrist watch last Sunday morning.

Flying Officer and Mrs. H. G. E. Rhoades who have been the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. J. P. Flaherty Ottawa, have left on a motor trip through the Laurentians.

Friends in the city of Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Brien will be interested to learn that their daughter, Miss Betty O'Brien, a student at St. Patrick's High School, Fort William and a contestant in a recent oratorical contest addressed the members of Port Arthur, Fort William Kiwanis Club, describing the early days in Fort William. Miss O'Brien is the grand-daughter of Mrs. Henry Foltz, formerly of Belleville.

At the home of Mrs. R. D. Adams, Albert Street, yesterday members of Belleville Chapter, No. 55, O.E.S., entertained at an afternoon tea that attracted a large number of visitors. A gracious welcome was extended to the guests by Mrs. Ethel Adams, P.W.M., Mrs. Maud Elliott, W.M., and Mrs. Elizabeth McEwan, P.W.M. Mrs. Hazel Baragar and Mrs. Mary J. Lewis, P.W.M., were hostesses in the living room, which was bright with Spring flowers, and invited the guests to the tea room. The arrangement of the tea table was especially lovely, with its lace cloth, centrepiece of mauve and white irises and lilies of the valley in a crystal bowl, tall green tapers in crystal holders, and handsome silver appointments. Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, P.D.D.G.M., Mrs. Essie Naylor, P.D.D.G.M., Mrs. Elizabeth Reid, P.W.M., and Mrs. Margaret Green poured tea. Tea was served by Mrs. Susan Pigden, Mrs. Ada Thompson, Mrs. Ila Clapp, Mrs. L. Wilkin, Mrs. Margaret Oliphant, Mrs. Marguerite Bush, Mrs. Ada McDonald, Miss Bernice Blue and Miss Mae Tulk. Mrs. Susan Chesher, P.W.M., and Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon were in charge of replenishing the tea table and those assisting in the tea room were Mrs. Florence Varley, Mrs. Rhoda Hallam, Mrs. Rhoda Sager, Mrs. Pauline Wesley and Mrs. Thurza Green. Mrs. Thelma Liddle, P.W.M. and Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, P.W.M., acted as treasurers for the tea. The home cooking table, a very successful feature of the tea, was in charge of Mrs. Myrtle Vivian, Mrs. Olga McDonald, Mrs. Elsie Harrison, Mrs. Jessie Wessels and Mrs. Elizabeth Holst. Mrs. Mae Black sold tickets on a cake of which the lucky winner was Mrs. Myrtle Vivian.

SUN SHINES ON COUPLE AT LOVELY EATON HALL

In the presence of only immediate relatives and very close friends of the families, Florence Mary Eaton and Frank Flavelle McEachren were married Tuesday in Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, which was built by the bride's father, the late Sir John Craig Eaton, in memory of his father, the late Timothy Eaton. The reception was held at lovely Eaton Hall at King, Ont., where the bridal couple are pictured ABOVE as they walked from the reception to the beautiful gardens.

Homegrown Coiffures

By HELEN FOLLETT

Ask any man what he first notices about a woman and he'll tell you it is her hair. Certainly the coiffure is of great importance. Glance at a pile of jack straws and you'll know that it belongs to an untidy girl. If she can't keep her brain spinach looking pretty, she isn't worth much. Self-respect should inspire her to make the most of her ambrosial tresses.

We've seen a lot of those upswept sculptured effects and we have decided that they're only for the luckies who don't have to sail forth of a morning to bring home the bacon. They're elegant and all that. But they are a bother and a heavy expense. The girl who has to cut down on the beauty budget can create a practical hairdress herself. We're not looking down the editorial nose on professional attentions; far from it. But we've seen some pretty nifty effects worked out at home.

Have a good trim. Shampoo with a bland soap that has been melted. When making rolls or ringlets, divide off portions evenly. Use a setting lotion, let the metal curlers stay on for hours—over night, if you can endure them without having nightmares.

Use a narrow brush of stiff bristles when you make your rolls, brushing the strands around your fingers. If your hair is dry and crisp, use a little brilliantine on the brush.

Get all the sunshine you can even if you have to bear with freckles. Old Sol will help you to chug up energy. The cat and the noble house dog seek the sunshine.

MURIEL ANGELUS . . . arranges coiffure to fit her type of beauty.

Birds sing in their cages when the day is bright and golden. Plants bud and blossom. What's good for plants, animals and birds is good for us.

Sun baths have been known to cure cases of acne. They dry up the horrid little yellow pustules. Blackheads often disappear in the summer season, come back in the grey old winter time.

Hair thrives on sunlight. But one must be careful not to get one's thatch sunburned. Changes the color.

WEDDINGS

HOUSE—ARMSTRONG

Last night the marriage was solemnized at Canterbury Chapel, Trenton by Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, of Miss Gertrude Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong, and Mr. William House, Jr., son of Mr. William House. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Milligan. The bride and groom left on a honeymoon to western points.

POETRY

MEMORIES

A vase of bright, old-fashioned flowers,
Adorns the homely shelf and plain,
A breath of fragrance fills the room—
In dreams I am a child again.

And honeysuckles, pink and white,
I see among the orchard trees,
Where clover red and daisies white
Nod gaily in the summer breeze.

Again we pick the berries ripe
That cluster in the dewy grass,
Or tread with feet, all bare and brown,
O'er fields where wanton breezes pass.

Oh! Just a breath of flowers sweet,
Wafts memories downward through the years,
And you and I with bare, brown feet
Re-tread youth's paths with hopes and fears.

—Helen B. Anderson.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

The Quins' Health Today

I'm a great believer in the adage, "An ounce of prevention beats a pound of cure," and I think all physicians are. They'd rather keep you well.

To keep you well, that is, to prevent sickness, it is necessary for you and your children to have regular medical checkups. There is no time of life when this is more necessary and important than in childhood.

The preventive measures we have been able to take at the Nursery are one big reason why the Dionne Quintuplets are entering their seventh year, "in the pink" to use a popular vernacular description of physical condition.

This has been confirmed by a series of examinations made in the last few weeks by the dean of the largest dental college in Canada; one of the foremost pediatricians in the Dominion, and one of our outstanding eye specialists.

It used to be that we called these men to the Nursery fairly often to get the benefit of their opinions and observations. But the need for having these examinations of the Quins frequently has disappeared and now they are more of a routine annual checkup. I like for the checkup to take place about this time of year, before the tourists begin to come north in large numbers. If before the rush begins we find any reason why the children shouldn't be shown, we can warn tourists and save them from the disappointment of coming up here and not seeing the Quintuplets.

First of these specialists to visit the Nursery and examine the children was Dr. Alan Brown, professor of pediatrics—or paedriatics as the collegians spell it, at the University of Toronto. Dr. Brown is also chief of staff at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children. He is the man we have called in every time there has been a crisis in the lives of the Quins. Next to myself, no other medical man has seen them so often. His judgment we rely on implicitly.

I had him examine Marie first, for we have always looked on her as the "weak sister." I felt that if he passed her without criticism, we didn't need to worry much about the rest. I was right.

His observations were certainly terse, but they were music to my ears: "Weight, fifty-two pounds; general condition good, slightly overweight; heart normal; teeth, good, two lower incisors coming in. Throat, normal. Glands, normal. Lungs, clear. Feet, normal. Abdomen, negative."

Dr. Brown gave naturally the same report on each of the five. The only notable difference was that all of them haven't two incisors growing in. Yvonne, who lost her teeth last, has only one tooth growing through. The other we expect in a few days.

That last statement: "Abdomen, negative," simply means that when he palpated the abdomen, it was with negative results. In other words, there were no indications of any abdominal disorder.

Space does not permit including in today's column the interesting reports of the other two specialists, on the condition of the children's eyes and teeth. They will appear tomorrow.

Send Note of Thanks for Every Wedding Gift

Wedding gifts are important gifts, planned and chosen with special thoughtfulness by relatives and friends to make the bride and groom happy. They represent the givers' devotion and generosity, a considerable amount of time and effort, and perhaps a strain on the budget.

Such special kindness and generosity deserve special words of appreciation and thanks. The thoughtful and courteous bride-to-be writes a prompt, gracious and enthusiastic note to every gift donor; she does not take wedding gifts for granted, and is not casual in her point of view toward such thoughtfulness. Her notes of thanks honor the thought and care that have been put into what the giver hopes will be "just the right gift."

Write your thank-you notes promptly—the day the gifts are received, if you possibly can. You've just opened the gifts, your appreciation is fresh, and it will be easier for you to write enthusiastic notes. There's a special glow about a thank-you note written immediately after a gift has been received.!

Use your very best letter-paper or note-paper, or supply yourself with white, double-sheeted note-paper of as fine quality as you can afford. Make your notes look as fine as they should look.

Your thank-you notes needn't be long—three or four sentences will probably say what you should say. Imagine that you are chatting with the giver. Let your "tone of voice" get into your words!

Show that you appreciate the thought behind the gift. Mention the gift specifically—don't vaguely refer to it as "your gift", as if you couldn't remember just what it was.

Although the wedding gifts are sent to the bride-to-be and belong to her, and although it is the bride-elect who writes and signs these notes of thanks, she writes as though the gifts belong equally to the groom, and includes his thanks too.

The crowning glory of your note may happily be in your telling the giver how you and your groom plan to use the gift in your new home. This certainly will please the giver.

Painting a Prettier Face

By HELEN FOLLETT

When applying commercial blushes, try out the rule of three; you'll like it. Instead of carrying a blush built like a round red apple, flaunt a triangular effect. Very fetching; it lends life and brilliance to the eyes, does away with that tense look if you've had a tough and rushing day.

Start close under the eye, almost at the outer end, draw a straight line out to the temple. From each end of this line bring one down, the two meeting, forming a triangle. Don't go down far; rouge should be placed high. Blend carefully. If you use a dry product, powder first and afterwards. The far end of the cross line can be upped a bit. A touch of color on the eyelid won't do a bit of harm.

Don't neglect to tint the chin and the ear lobes. Mama Nature, the great artist, does that when she flushes a lady's cheeks. Ears should be powdered lightly. If they've had a rousing soapy scrubbing, they will shine; and polished ears aren't any prettier than a beaming nose.

Be frugal with rouge. It is easier to add than to subtract. After applying with the pad, tap lightly with the finger-tips to smooth and distribute the rosy glowsy. Natural effects are the aim now. The painted lady, like the glamour girl, has gone away. The world's tired of 'em.

Usually, if a woman is dowdy, it is because she is overdressed. Doesn't know about fitness. Goes shopping in clothes that are appropriate for a garden party.

The tailored suit is the best investment a woman can make. It is suitable for all occasions except formal affairs. She can trot around all day in it, finish up at a cocktail party and look swell-elegant. It offers all manner of variations because of the cute blouses she can wear with it. Our dear old friend Navy Blue is blooming again and what's more pratical? Hats of almost any color look well with it.

BONITA GRANVILLE . . . strives for natural effects in her make-up.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Exaggerated Family Loyalties Strains Marital Bonds

Does love—plenty of it—suffice to ensure a happy marriage? Most people would say yes.

But let me tell you about Jack and Jill, who have been married six months, who are young intelligent, good-looking, without serious money worries and deeply in love with each other. Yet their marriage is; I think, in a good deal of danger.

If it's Jill's fault, it's not because she scorches the steak, for she's a very expert little cook; nor is it because she's extravagant, for she's a miracle of a budgeteer. No, it's something beneath the surface.

"What I can't reconcile myself to," she told me, in appealing for my advice, "is not having the Jack that I married, every bit of him. I don't want just a share in my husband, like a Mormon wife.

"First of all, there's his college roommate, Tom. Tom is always in a mess. Simple-minded old Jack feels responsible for him, and at any moment Jack drops his own concerns, leaving me completely in the lurch, if Tom has gotten in trouble through speeding, or if he is in debt and needs a fifty-dollar loan or—oh, well, any of a hundred things. He loves me a lot more than he does Tom, I know that. But I'm the one that suffers whenever Tom sends out an SOS.

"Then there's the great-aunt who lives alone and has always used him for an errand boy. Didn't I have to give up a lovely week-end because she got in a jam with her furnace? And Jack is fond of her—he likes to mend the furnace.

"It isn't just because he's an easy mark. Jack has too much good sense for that. But loyalty is a disease with him. And his wife? She takes what's left over.

"I haven't said anything about his own family. That, one more or less expects. Every girl who marries braces herself to meet the dreaded relation with her mother-in-law. Well, mine isn't so bad. But they are a big family, and we dine there not only on Sundays but on Thursdays, too, no matter what grand invitations we have to sacrifice. Missing even one of those family dinners would hurt their feelings terribly, Jack says.

"Sometimes I wonder what would happen if there were some big disaster, like a fire or a tornado. Jack would have to save fifty people before he'd get around to me. Just from that stupid old loyalty. Yet I'm still his best beloved. The heavenly things he tells me are all true. He's the most darling lover, when he has time. Do I love him? I would give my head for him. Only, I want him to feel he's all mine, just as I'm his. Just the two of us in our own personal Paradise is what our life together ought to be. It isn't."

Is Jill selfish? Does she ask too much? Perhaps. But she cannot be wholly blamed for the misery she suffers. If she needs a course in diplomacy, as I think every bride does, then Jack decidedly needs some training in seeing the woman's point of view.

I'm sure she's a kind girl herself and that she couldn't possibly object to her husband's being kind and considerate to other people. But she needs, because her own love is so great—and, if you like, so possessive—to have it unmistakably clear that whatever happens, she comes first.

That is certainly her due. Wake up, Jack, before the strain you're imposing on your bride becomes too serious!

WAR BRIEFS

London, May 29 (CP).—Germany gained little economically by capitulation of the Belgian army, an authoritative source said today, declaring Belgium had practically no oil stocks left and her iron and steel industries had been wrecked.

St. John's, Nfld., May 29 (CP).—Lieut.-Col. W. Rendell, Director of Recruiting in Newfoundland, today opened enlistment for a second regiment of heavy artillery together with its necessary reinforcements. Complement of the first regiment, Royal Heavy Artillery, already has been filled and most of the regiment has gone overseas. Newfoundland has already recruited more than the naval strength asked of her.

then of course it was wrapped in "CELLOPHANE"

I AM so glad to hear you do the same as I do, Celia, for to tell the truth I buy nearly all my cakes and cookies now. I find it more satisfactory than worrying about them myself. For one thing they're delicious—just as good, if not better, than I can make. And another thing—it's this "Cellophane" wrapping they put on food now-a-days. I always feel so confident when I see cakes, rolls or biscuits in "Cellophane"—I know they're kept fresh. And here's a tip—save the "Cellophane" used on the baked goods. It's moisture-proof, you know, and you'll find it simply invaluable for wrapping odds and ends in the refrigerator."

Child is Bad Because Another's So Good

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

One child of the family may be so bad because a brother or sister (usually younger) is so good.

Hardly a day goes by that I don't receive a letter about a troublesome child who has a brother or sister who is described as a model child. After all the naughtiness, ill-behavior and delinquencies of the problem child have been enumerated, there follows a typical account of a model brother or sister. So often do I observe this pattern that the moment I read, "Now I have another child," or "His brother (or sister) two years younger . . .," I need not read any further. I can be practically certain the second child is one whose virtues will be named, who is reported good in every respect the other was reported bad. Moreover, I can pretty safely guess that the first is so bad chiefly because the second is so good.

Also Causes Failure

Yes, many a child in the family is disobedient, stubborn or rebellious because a brother or sister is so obedient, docile and co-operative. Many a child also fails or lags at school because a brother or sister passes with flying colors and wins high grades. Of course, the ills and lacks in some may not be caused entirely by the virtues and excellencies in the other. Yet, no one who carefully studies such relationships can doubt that they are partially caused thereby.

What may be done? You certainly don't want to dispose of the better-adjusted child or have him grow less acceptable. Your problem is to help him keep growing in his good ways and the other child to become more like him.

The worst possible thing you can do is to tell the problem child that he should be like his model brother or sister. But the chances are you already have committed this serious offense. Even if you have not made the comparison, you probably have dramatized it in your demeanor, voice or breathing. If, improbably, you have done neither, your relatives and friends have.

Must Help Him

You will reduce the jealousy in the problem child, and consequently cause his conduct and personality to improve, as you succeed in helping this problem child feel more loved and worthy in the family group and enjoy more achievements in all his efforts and relationships. To this end you will find more ways to punish him less and rebuke him less; you will try to keep him more often from failures of any sort and turn him more frequently in direction of successes.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. When I take my two-year-old daughter along with me to the grocers, she will beg and cry till I buy something for her. How may I correct this fault?

A. Announce to her before you go with her next time that hereafter you are not going to buy anything for her while at the grocer's. Then keep your word, no matter how she acts. As soon as she discovers that your word is reliable, the problem will end.

Q. My boy 12 years old, bites his finger-nails to the quick. Please advise.

A. Work first on yourself and the family for more serenity. Have the doctor look your boy over and try to help you build him up physically. Hold him rigidly to an early, regular bed-time hour. Limit his movies to one a month and radio to a few quiet, non-exciting programs. Encourage him to play out-of-doors but not for long periods at a stretch. Say nothing about his nail-biting. As he and the family grow more serene, he will gnaw less at his nails. As his nails grow out a little, have them manicured.

Background Coat

By VERA WINSTON

THE BACKGROUND coat, like the background frock, is an important feature of the comprehensive wardrobe. A well-cut coat serves as the background for a jeweled flower or amusing lapel gadget, for a gay chiffon scarf or furs. Here's one smart model, in a crinkly weave woollen of bright navy blue. Collarless, it closes over a chiffon scarf with four leather clips. The shaped yoke is outlined by a narrow fold terminating at the vertical seams on either side of the waist. The patch pockets are also outlined by a fold. The skirt has an inverted flared pleat centre back.

WOMEN
Here's amazing way to Relieve 'Regular' Pains

Mrs. J. C. Lemon writes: "I was undernourished, had cramps, headaches and backache, associated with my monthly periods. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for a while, gained strength, and was greatly relieved of these pains."

Fashions in Sentiment

BY ALICE ALDEN

TOSSING sentiment aside, the best argument in favor of giving mother flowers on Mother's Day is that women adore flowers. They flock to flowers shows nurse window boxes. They choose window drapes and slip covers in gay floral patterns. They have at least one posy-bedecked hat in their collection. They stick to gardenia perfume year after year. The flowers you send might very well complement a chic suit and hat rather than glorify a room. Fresh freesias are tailored —the florist's term—for the fragrant corsage in today's picture and the cluster to match on the hat. Lilies-of-the-valley tied with velvet bows is another suggestion, daffodils in a scroll arrangement still another.

Sturdy But Cute

By ALICE ALDEN

SOME OF us are glad we don't have quintuplets to dress, especially in the summer when mud pies and ice cream cones are daily orders. Mother will save herself many a headache if she buys plenty of changes for her offspring and makes certain the materials may be sent to the laundry. Today's striped denim overalls in pink or blue couldn't be sturdier and it's promised they won't shink more than one per cent. The same is true of the pique playsuit and matching sunbonnet, sprinkled all over with flowers. The 'alls come in sizes two to six and the beach outfit from three to six, neither costing much money.

POETRY

THE RETURN OF THE BIRDS

The robin is back with his song of cheer—
Liquid notes falling far and clear:
Visions of summer follow his flight,
Gone is the gloom of the winter night;
And his merry call leads the heart to stray
To the far-away Springs of yesterday.

The flicker returns to the hollow tree,
We are glad of his pleasant company;
In the orchard old the blue bird nests—
Emblem is he of happiness;
While the chipping sparrow, true as of yore,
Picks dainty seeds at the kitchen door.

The red-wing calls from the marshy shore—
O-ke-lee! O-ke-lee! We hear once more,
While over the fields floats the weird acclaim—
The killdeer voicing his well-known name;
While the sparrow of song on the apple tree
Sings a sweet strain of ecstasy.

Let us welcome with joy the feathered throng,
And join with them in their May-day song:
Let us learn the lessons—to sing and soar,
To blend joy with work e'en more and more;
They have taught us the lesson of gladsome giving,
May they teach us, too, the joy of living.

Saving Child—and Mother—by Control

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

Often I feel sorry for both the uncontrolled young child and his mother. Neither can be happy. Almost surely the mother is worn and weary. Many a mother, indeed, goes to an untimely grave because she was unable, by using the so-called modern methods, to control her little child.

In this event, who spoiled the child? Who killed the mother?

Those who, presuming to be experts, told her not to restrain her child when she might have done so with profit to her and him? Those who made her believe she should use no physical punishment whatsoever to restrain him?

Below is a sample of what may happen when the doctrine of no-spanking in the early years is accepted by a conscientious mother. It is a good sample, moreover, of how much worse modes of punishment than spanking will be resorted to in desperation by the parent who supposes she must never spank.

Dear Dr. Myers—We have a little girl of three and one-half. She has a brother of one year.

Incident at Table.

While having our dinner this evening the phone rang. Leaving her at the table, I answered it. I did not stay more than a few minutes, but by the time I got back she had emptied a bottle of French dressing into her plate, also the baby's Junket, which she got off the sink, and was feeding the French dressing to the baby. Everyone tells me not to spank her so I don't. I put her in her room with no lights. It is off the kitchen so it wasn't pitch dark. While she was supposed to be punished she emptied the dresser drawers and was trying to put on her brother's suit. After being put to bed she got up, went into the bathroom and undressed herself, and then climbed up on the crib and emptied the medicine cabinet. The door being shut, closing off these rooms from the living room, we did not hear her right away.

I have put her in the closet, spanked her, twitched her ears and taken toys away from her, but nothing helps. We have bought her all sorts of things to amuse her, but she doesn't seem ever to be taken up with anything for very long. We can't move where she will have any playmates until July, and I think I will lose my mind by then.

Tried Her Best

Who can condemn this mother? She has tried her best. In desperation she has even resorted to spanking and, of course, to no avail since it was not a part of a carefully-planned and consistently-operated program.

In writing this mother I advised her to select a few specific things she would train this child never to do, then to give the child instant pain (several smacks on her bare fat thighs) every time she did the forbidden thing; as soon as the child would stay where put, to assign her to sit for 20 minutes in a chair in the mother's presence, this in lieu of spanking; and to intercept the child in respect to other things until the meaning of NO had been well established. Moreover, she was urged to read to this child, answer all her questions, show appreciation of her creations, however crude, and be more liberal with affections; to attract, hire or borrow some playmates for her child; and to get herself away from the children occasionally, letting the father assume more responsibility for their care.

Fashion Flashes

LOOK BEAUTIFUL at home in a negligee of delicate pink taffeta besprigged with flowers. Delft blue velvet outlines the square neckline and sleeves and forms a series of down-the-front bows.

RUSTLING at luncheons or teas is a silk taffeta dress in tiny white and navy checks. The basque bodice is pointed, the skirt full. Square neckline and sleeves are bound in solid blue taffeta.

AT HOME in town or country is a frock of porcelain pink crepe with gathered pockets on the skirt, and a high-closed bodice buttoned in brown.

ALWAYS IN DEMAND is the black dinner dress. New models include silk jersey with narrow V decolletage nearly to the waist in front and back. It's trimmed with bands of gold and blue turquoise stones.

A COAT for a boat or for knock-about wear is a hooded polo style in white or pale beige alpaca lined with red or flag blue. It has capacious pockets at the hipline.

DESIGNED for a day in town is a redingote costume of navy blue silk chiffon with enormous white coin dots. White stitching outlines the high revers of the jacket and its short sleeves.

The Stars Say

AN INTERESTING and eventful day, with contacts which may prove of prime significance, is read from the predominant lunar aspects. New associations of an unusual nature may call for some rather drastic activities, with either social, fraternal or group affiliation assuming prominence. Elders, superiors and those of high standing figure in plans of ambitious character, probably bearing on the social humane or religious position and advancement, but act not impulsively.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which their fortunes and personal prestige may progress or be affected by new contacts and changed interests. This may be in relation to group advancement, either humane, social or possible spiritual. There may be basic radical or revolutionary programs involved, without any sinister objectives. But refrain from impetuosity and haste.

A child born should have fine intellect with advanced ideals and ambitions and probably will be devoted to the progress and enlightenment of its fellows. It may have peculiar force and versatility in this direction.

TAKE THE "LEAD" FEELING OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get More Oxygen in Your Blood and Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. ## Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw — Since the organization of the Rawdon Township Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society they have made a splendid contribution to the war work being done by this organization throughout Canada. They have already sent the following articles to headquarters: 281 pairs socks, 23 scarves, 33 wristlets, 41 suits pajamas, 24 T bandages, 20 abdominal bandages, 10 sweaters, 18 pneumonia jackets, 9 bed jackets, 12 hospital gowns, 38 hot water bottle covers, 26 ice bag covers, 1 refugee quilt and 3 pairs bloomers.

The branch is very grateful for the following donations: Stirling Welfare Club $10.00, Cosy Hearth Club of Springbrook W. I. $20.00, Rawdon Township Council $12.00, Ward 2 (Mt. Pleasant) $20.00, and also gratefully acknowledge the following articles received from the Springbrook Branch of the Women's Institute: 61 pairs socks, 4 sweaters, 7 scarves, 5 pair wristlets, 10 suits pyjamas, 12 hot water bottle covers, 1 refugee quilt and 3 pair children's bloomers.

Owing to the recent urgent call from headquarters for more supplies all organizations are asked to assist the Rawdon Branch in every way possible and as quickly as possible. If they are not yet organized for war work they are urged to organise now and get in touch immediately with the Red Cross officers for full information.

There are also many women who are not at present linked up with any organization doing this work. They may get information and also raw material from Mrs. Geo. E. Thompson, President of Rawdon Red Cross, Springbrook or Mrs. W. J. Barlow, Secretary, Bonarlaw.

The canvass in November brought in $374.00 but this amount, together with the above cash donations, has been used for purchasing wool, flannelette, etc., except a small balance on hand. Therefore further cash donations would be very welcome. It is hoped that every resident of this Township will feel this great responsibility and will do their share.

At an executive meeting of Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Township Religious Educational Council held at Springbrook United Church on Wednesday of last week it was decided to stress Leadership Training as much as possible in the various sunday schools of the Association.

The meeting was presided over by President Carl Clancy and there was a fairly good attendance. Reports were received from the various department superintendents and the financial report was given by Mr. Fred Elgie, secretary-treasurer. These reports indicated splendid work is being done in many departments.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. G. Swayne is visiting her mother, Mrs. Hope, at Newburg for a few days. Several days ago Mrs. Hope had the misfortune to fall and break her hip and her condition is quite serious.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. R. Price of Port Hope were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baker on Victoria Day.

A special prayer service was held by Rev. Canon Swayne at the evening service in St. Mark's Church on Sunday last as requested by His Majesty. Special hymns were sung and Canon Swayne delivered an impressive sermon. There was a large attendance.

Mr. Ted Dowdell returned home to Perth on Tuesday after spending the week-end with his aunt, Mrs. John McLaren.

GEORGE S. WHITE, MADOC, SPEAKS IN PARLIAMENT

Conservative Member for Hastings-Peterboro Gives Information on Own Riding

CRITICIZES WAR EFFORT

Mr. Geo. S. White, Madoc Conservative member for Hastings-Peterboro, delivered his maiden address in the debate on the Speech from the Throne on Thursday last. Mr. White is well known in this city and is a son-in-law of E. R. McBride of this city. The address follows:

Mr. Speaker, as a new member in the House of Commons I realize fully my position in rising to take part in the debate. I agree most heartily with the observations just made by the hon. member for Souris (Mr. Ross). It seems strange that as soon as he mentioned the words "political expediency," there was immediate applause from the government benches.

It is not necessary to dwell on the seriousness of the hour, and I say to private members of the government benches that now is the time for them to show their loyalty.

An hon. MEMBER: How?

Mr. WHITE: We of the opposition have duties to perform, too. We have the duty to our constituents who sent us here to reflect in the House of Commons their opinions and desires. It is not my intention in any way to rehash or go over the issues involved in the election for, after all, the past is gone. Whatever the mistakes have been, and whatever bad judgment has been shown, are of little importance at this time. The present and the future are our vital concern.

Need All Resources

But even today can we, the members of the House of Commons, truly satisfy ourselves that, even at this important hour, the present government is making every possible war effort. Speaking for myself—and I say this with deep regret—I have absolutely no confidence that the government is capable of arousing even within its own ranks, let alone throughout the nation, the action and the speed necessary to cope with the daily increasing threat to our very existence. This hour calls for inspiring leadership, for complete harmony and unity, for the thrusting aside of petty and insignificant matters and of forgetting all past differences so that we, the elected members, may in the brief time remaining at our disposal mobilize with lightning speed all our resources for the defence of Canada.

The press of yesterday and today which mentions names such as Arras, Vimy, the Somme and Abbeville, must recall stirring memories to the minds of many hon. members who were the veterans of another war, men who formed part of that glorious Canadian corps which served from 1914 to 1918, men who took part in writing a glorious page in history. These men will recall other dark days in March and April of 1918, and they will remember with pride the message that came from Sir Arthur Currie when he said: "We have our backs to the wall and we must fight it out". Everyone knows how the Canadian corps of that day met that challenge and how they fought it out. Once more we have our backs to the wall, and I am confident that once more we will meet the challenge and fight it out.

I represent the counties of Hastings and Peterborough. Today we have in England with the first division the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, one of the finest regiments that ever left these shores. It is simply disgraceful that so little is being done in the way of recruiting in these counties which made such a wonderful contribution from 1914 to 1918 in men, munitions and supplies. I wonder if the members of this house realize that in Ontario east of Toronto there is only one rifle infantry regiment, and that in all that area there is only one place where a man may enlist in such a regiment. That point is at Picton, a most inconvenient place. That is in the riding of my hon. friend (Mr. Tustin), but I said "most inconvenient", not "most insignificant."

No Recruiting Claim

At present time recruiting at this point may be carried on for a week, and then the office is closed down. It may interest hon. members to know that there has been no recruiting at this point, the only recruiting depot east of Toronto, since May 11, and the depot is still closed. Any man who wants to enlist in a rifle regiment must, if he resides east of Toronto, travel or hitch-hike hundreds of miles to Picton, and then when he arrives there he may find there is no recruiting and be told to come back the following week. In many instances the man's name is taken and he is told he will be advised when recruiting will begin again. Is it the policy of this government at the present time to have only one place where a man may enlist in an area covering hundreds of square miles east of the city of Toronto?

In my riding there are hundreds of young Canadians who have been trying for months to join the Royal Air Force, and the best they have been able to accomplish is to have their names taken and be told that they will be advised at a later date. There is no action which the government has taken which has so discouraged the young men of Canada more than this action in regard to recruiting. In the small village of Madoc in which I reside there is an armoury in which from three to 500 men could be trained. That armoury has been locked up since October 1, 1939. In that armoury there is not a single rifle, a single round of ammunition, a single machine gun or any equipment or war supplies of any kind. All the equipment consists of is two dozen chairs and a few tables. Why? Because the equipment which had been there for years and which had been brought home in 1918 was used to equip the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment. That regiment took this antique equipment back to England.

Norwood Armoury Closed

In the village of Norwood in my riding, there is another armoury in which 500 men could be trained. That armoury has also been locked up since the beginning of the war and contains no rifles or equipment of any kind. In Peterborough and Belleville are located two of the finest armouries in Ontario, but they have not been used in any way. I ask the government, why are they not taking advantage of these buildings? Why does this condition exist? It certainly is not because of a lack of recruits, because recruits can be had at any time.

It is not because of a lack of capable officers. In the small village of only 1,000 people in which I reside there are ten qualified officers, five of whom have had overseas training. All these officers have been connected for years with the non-permanent militia and are well qualified to drill troops, instruct and lecture in signalling practice, bayonet fighting and gas warfare, as well as machine-gun practice, military tactics and military organization. In addition we have many non-commissioned officers who are fully trained and capable of performing all military duties. These officers and non-commissioned officers are most willing and anxious to give their services.

The manner in which this government has conducted recruiting has convinced me more than anything else that the public have no confidence whatever in the present war effort. From the press we learn that various veterans' organizations have offered their services to the government, but these services have not been accepted. Much has been said already in this house about "fifth column" activities. I was interested in the statement made a few days ago by the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) to the effect that all "fifth column" activities were being checked carefully and handled by the mounted police.

Personal Observations

I should like to bring to the attention of this house a most serious condition which exists in the county of Hastings. In that county there are about fifty-five miles of a power line which runs from the Gatineau to Leaside, about thirty-five miles of which run through a most sparsely settled section of the county. Yet there is not one guard of any kind to protect this line. There are no soldiers within a radius of 100 miles. The provincial hydro commission has a maintenance man who patrols a beat of thirty-nine miles. Can hon. members grasp that? One man patrolling a beat of thirty-nine miles! That is all the protection there is for this vital power line.

It would be the simplest matter in the world for one man to wreck the whole system. I am told that if this line were wrecked, at least two-thirds of Toronto and a large portion of eastern and western Ontario would be without power or light. Within the last month a foreigner was charged in the police court at Marmora with removing brace arms from these hydro towers. When addressing the court at the conclusion of the evidence, the crown attorney said to the magistrate that this was a direct case of sabotage. And yet no action has been taken by anyone to protect or guard this highly vulnerable power line. I might explain to members of the house that the method of sabotaging these towers is to remove certain braces and cross-arms, or to saw partly through girders and then leave the rest to nature, so that at the first storm or strong wind the towers will be completely wrecked. Throughout these two counties there are many mines of great importance in war time and many important industrial works, and yet there is not a single guard of any kind.

Makes Suggestions

The huge sum of money which is being asked for by this resolution should be spent within the Dominion of Canada. So far as the amount itself is concerned it is of little importance because what does it matter what amount we spend today if we are in danger of losing our freedom and all the privileges we have enjoyed under the British crown, if we are in danger of being reduced to actual slavery? In these circumstances the amount matters little.

Like my hon. friend the member for Vancouver South (Mr. Green), I am going to make a few suggestions to the government:

1. That all militia units throughout Canada be recruited to full strength at once, and if clothing is not available, that arm bands be used.
2. That with all speed all war equipment be manufactured and used to equip fully all overseas troops; then huge stores of same be set up in Canada.
3. That a home defence corps be organized and trained.
4. That the cadet units of high schools and collegiates be used in any possible manner, such as for instruction and organization purposes.
5. That provision be made by counties or districts for the protection and guarding against sabotage of all vital industries, public utilities and military objectives within such county or district.
6. That all armouries now locked up or partly used be utilized to the full degree.
7. That the services of all war veterans be used for training and guard duties.
8. Registration of all man-power and other resources.
9. Immediate internment of all alien and enemy sympathisers. That a local tribunal be set up in each county or district under the local county judge to deal with internment, so that this can be carried out with speed and efficiency.
10. That the government consider what steps can be taken to control the broadcasting of enemy propaganda from American stations.
11. That the government consider the passing of measures to provide the death penalty for espionage, sabotage or "fifth column" activities.

And lastly, that in the grave situation today the government consider invoking the provisions of the Militia Act, which provides for the calling-up of all able-bodied men for home defence.

Eight provinces of the Dominion and 20 cities and towns are represented by the officers of No. 112 (city of Winnipeg) Army Co-operation Squadron, ABOVE, which will proceed overseas on active service to function as a reserve for No. 110 squadron, which has been completing its training in England during the last three months.

MEIGHEN CARRIES ATTACK ON KING INTO THE SENATE

Charges and Suggestions Received No Support From Senate, Raoul Dandurand

Ottawa, May 30—(CP) — The Conservative Party's call for a change in Government leadership, first heard this week in the House of Commons, has been carried to the Senate where Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, put forward the plea before the Upper Chamber adjourned to next Tuesday night.

It received no sympathy whatever from the government leader, Raoul Dandurand. Every member of the Cabinet realizes that Prime Minister Mackenzie King has greater capabilities than himself and they look to him for leadership, he declared.

"They would never for a moment think of beheading the present Cabinet unless all went out with him", the Government leader told the Senate yesterday.

Meighen Critical

Senator Meighen held Government reorganization was bound to come and he urged it be reorganized now with one of Mr. King's colleagues taking his place.

In the House of Commons Tuesday night, H. A. Bruce, (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) urged that Finance Minister Ralston replace Mr. King as Government Leader and on Monday night a similar suggestion was given the House by Percy Black (Con. Cumberland). Joseph Harris (Con. Toronto Danforth) repeated the suggestion again yesterday.

Senator Dandurand said that Mr. Meighen evidently thought one of Mr. King's colleagues would be an ideal Prime Minister.

"Not ideal but much better", Mr. Meighen retorted.

Cabinet Looks to King

"He rests his confidence", Senator Dandurand proceeded, "on a colleague of mine who is a member of the King Government. He does not see that this colleague and all the other members of the present cabinet have been selected by the Prime Minister to whom they look for inspiration, whom they have known since 1922 and longer and who stands as their leader.

"It is strange indeed that the Tory party has decided to attack the Prime Minister and yet admits that many of his colleagues stand high in public esteem. I want to tell my right honorable friends that all these colleagues have been daily sitting with the Prime Minister.

"They recognize him as standing higher than they do in political acumen, in common sense and in clear judgment and they would never for a moment think of beheading the present cabinet unless all went out with him.

Last Square of Waterloo

"So if the old Tory guard which is congregated in this Chamber and which perhaps represents the last square of Waterloo—if they think that by their recriminations, and their cries they can frighten the Liberal party and members of the present cabinet and shake their confidence in the Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King they are vastly mistaken and will be disappointed".

The Liberal Senator's declaration came near the end of one of the most hectic sittings the Senate has had in many a day. It reached its greatest heat when a Senator shouted to Mr. Dandurand to "sit down".

"Who told me to sit down?" shouted the Liberal leader.

"I did", came back across the Chamber from the Conservative Benches and the interrupter added blasphemous words which were stricken from the records.

... you'll get the quick energy you really need!

The harder pressed you are, the more you need a morning meal that does these three vital things. First, the very sight of it should make your mouth water. So that next you'll really get from it the quick energy you need. And last, it must go on releasing energy for hours!

These three things Kellogg's Corn Flakes do best. Proven first in flavour, they're crammed full with easily assimilated carbohydrate energy! Convenient too—only 30 seconds to serve and no pots or pans to clean.

Get several packages tomorrow—or, if you eat your breakfast out, ask for the wax-wrapped individual package! Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

FIVE TO ONE VOTE records family choice. In a recent Dominion-wide survey, housewives were asked "What ready-to-eat cereal is favourite in your family?" As compared with any other corn flake mentioned, the vote was Kellogg's five to one! Taste experts check with housewives. After a blindfold taste-test of all four brands of corn flakes Mr. W. B. Cross, Tea Taster for Mellocup Tea, writes: "I found it easy to decide which rated first with me . . . the sample which later proved to be Kellogg's!"

SAVE MONEY! Ask for Kellogg's Corn Flakes in the new family-size package! Remember, Canada's favourite cereal costs only a few pennies for the whole family's breakfast or supper.

Tyendinaga Farmer Pleads Guilty to Starving Livestock

"These animals were starved, two of them were too weak to rise when we gave them food", stated W. H. Reeves, president of the Hastings County Humane Society while testifying in County Police Court held here today before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., as Frederick J. Dryden, 71-year-old Tyendinaga Township farmer, appeared charged with unlawfully failing to feed and provide for eight head of cattle. Dryden pleaded guilty to the charge through his counsel, E. O. Butler, and sentence was reserved until Monday.

Mr. Reeves was called to testify by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. after the plea of guilt was accepted from the accused. "When Provincial Constable Adair and I arrived to investigate this matter, we fed the starving animals and they actually "wolfed" the food given them.

John Cottrell, who had been engaged as a hire man by Mr. Dryden testified that his employer did not have sufficient feed on hand to adequately feed his stock.

"Were they fed at all?" asked Mr. Butler Jr.

"Yes, but they were undernourished", replied Cottrell.

"I'll think this matter over. It is a case for a fine and I'll give my decision on Monday," concluded His Worship.

Case Dismissed

When the name of Robert Sharpe was called, Crown Attorney Donnan revealed the fact that the accused man was now in England with the 112th Squadron of the R.C.A.F. Sharpe was charged with careless driving, but the case was dismissed without the introduction of evidence today.

Convicted of Reckless Driving

W. J. Taylor paid $10.00 and costs after being convicted of reckless driving, while Joseph Elliott, Trenton, was assessed $20.00 and costs and had his driving privileges cancelled for six months after pleading guilty to a similar charge.

"In this case seven persons sustained injuries when the car driven by Elliott collided with a tree west of Belleville on Sunday, May 12th. The vehicle skidded a distance of 165 feet, revealed Traffic Officer Sam Ervine, who preferred the charges.

An L.C.A. case concluded the court.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 30 (CP)—The cattle trade was slow at steady prices up to mid-session on the Toronto Livestock Market today. Hogs and veal calves were steady. No sales of sheep or lambs were reported. There was no cattle holdover.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 100, calves 20, hogs 250.

Prices in the cattle section were: Weighty steers $7.50-$8.50; butcher steers $7-$7.85 and a few cows $5-$6.

The few veal calves offered sold at $6-$10.

Hogs sold at $8.25 off trucks for bacon and $11 dressedweight.

Egyptian Gov't Tightens Defence

Cairo, May 30—(CP-Havas)—The Egyptian Government, after two meetings today, announced a series of measures designed to tighten the nation's defence against invasion and subversive activities.

Under the new regulations suspected unemployed persons and individuals with police records will be sent from large cities to various bases and points on the Red Sea coast. In hamlets as well as principal cities "civil guard" committees were set up.

Areas considered likely landing places for enemy planes or parachutists are guarded. It was stipulated that the territorial and regular armies should work in unison with police.

In addition, the cabinet voted to divert 1,000,000 pounds (Egyptian) from the budget for civil defence and to levy a one-per-cent tax on incomes.

Meanwhile, 24,000 public school teachers and more than 5,000 Boy Scouts sought membership in a proposed auxiliary police corps.

Heavy British tanks sped through Cairo's streets in practice manoeuvres today. Similar units are stationed in strategic positions in Alexandria, Port Said and Suez, authorities revealed. If Italy enters the war at Germany's side, Egypt may be one of the first targets of attack.

FRAU DOLLFUSS COMES TO CANADA

Widow of Murdered Austrian Chancellor is Bringing Her Children With Her

London, May 30 (CP).—Frau Dollfuss, widow of the murdered Austrian chancellor, Engelbert Dollfuss, has arranged to sail for Canada with her two young children, it was learned here.

The advance of Hitler's forces caused the woman's decision to quit England, in which she has lived quietly in a small rural cottage for two years.

She has not decided where she will settle in the Dominion to raise her children, Eva, 12, and Rudi, 9.

Frau Dollfuss and the children fled Austria following the assassination of the chancellor and since have lived in several countries.

Produce Prices Remain Unchanged

Toronto, May 30.—On the Toronto open produce market yesterday butter and eggs held steady.

The butter market held up in the face of some increase in fresh receipts and hand-to-mouth buying. Dealers stated that supplies were not burdensome, having cleared fairly steadily prior to yesterday's session. The first grade Ontario product sold at 22 3-4c per pound.

Supplies continued to arrive in ample volume to satisfy local demand on the egg market. Previous prices were generally quoted. Government inspected shipments were given premiums of from 1-2 cent to 1-cent per dozen.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, May 30.—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First-grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24c-24 1-2c; first-grade solids, jobbing price, 23 1-2c to 24c.

Eggs — Grades shipments in used free cases, selling price: "A" large, 23 1-2c; "A" medium, 21 1-2c; "A" pullets, 19c; "B" 21c- 21 1-2c; "C" 18 1-2c. (Government inspected lots, 1-2 cent higher.) Receipts, 4,100 cases.

WAR BRIEFS

HOSPITAL ZONE IN FOREST

London, May 30 (CP). — Germany has transformed a vast region in the Black Forest into a hospital zone for the thousands of soldiers wounded on the northern front, according to reports received here today from private sources. All hotels, schools and barracks in the region have been requisitioned and travelling hospitals have been dispatched to the area by the hundreds, the dispatch said.

WARNED TO BE READY

Berne, May 30 (CP-Havas).—The Swiss Army High Command warned the population today to await official orders before evacuating their homes and fleeing to other parts of the country. An official communique gave reassurance that all preparations had been made to evacuate thickly populated centres if and when the need should arise. The high command will make whatever decisions best suit the needs of the army and the national community, the communique said.

STUDENT PRIESTS LEAVE

Rome, May 30 (AP).—The entire student body of the North American College, consisting of 106 student priests, will leave Rome tomorrow morning and return to the United States aboard the liners Manhattan and President Harrison. Bishop Ralph Hayes, rector of the college, on May 17 cabled to the home bishops of the students advising them of the consular warning to Americans to leave Italy.

CLOSE MALTA SCHOOLS

Valetta, Malta, May 30 (CP-Reuters).—The government of this island, British Mediterranean naval base, today announced closing of all schools, effective tomorrow, "as a simple measure of prudence".

OFFER TO SHELTER CHILDREN

Canberra, May 30 (CP-Reuters.) —The Australian Interior Ministry today announced a government offer to Great Britain to shelter British children from one month to twelve years of age for the duration of the war. British war orphans sent to the Dominion under this arrangement may remain permanently if they desire, it was announced.

Mass Meeting at Victoria Park Will be Non-Political Officials Say

What has been brought home to the executives of the Ar[illegible] and Navy Veterans of Canada [illegible]re as an apparent misunderstanding with regard to the mass meeting being held in Victoria Park on Sunday afternoon, was cleared up today when official announcement was made that the meeting will in no wise be of a political nature, nor will criticism of the government at any time be brought into the addresses.

The meeting is being held, an official told the Ontario Intelligencer today, with the sole purpose of accelerating the Government's war effort in view of the seriousness of the present crisis.

"We do not, in any manner, wish to criticize the government. The purpose of the meeting is to stimulate it, and attempt to bring home the gravity of the unpreparedness for home defence, and to provide measures for any emergency which may arise within the borders of our country".

A number of residents have intimated that the meeting will be one of a purely political nature, the official stated. "This is absolutely untrue, as the officers and members of this club, as well as all fair-minded British subjects realize that the present is no time for party or political squabbling. The veterans recognize the government and will support it to the last cent, but acceleration of its efforts and adequate preparations for the defence of our homes and country, is needed".

SENIOR OFFICERS

Major P. M. Millette, Kingston.

Assistant Adjutant and Quartermaster General, Lt.-Col. E. G. Weeks, M.C., M.M., Ottawa.

Deputy Assistant Adjutant General, Major W. N. Bostock, Ottawa.

Deputy Assistant Quartermaster General, Major H. A. P. Francis, E.D., Vancouver.

Deputy Assistant Director of Ordnance Services, Major J. A. W. Bennett, Halifax.

Senior Ordnance Mechanical Engineer, Lt.-Col. H. G. Thompson, D.F.C., Toronto.

Assistant Director of Medical Services, Lt.-Col. C. P. Fenwick, M.C., Toronto.

Deputy Assistant Director of Medical Services, Major T. M. Brown, Ottawa.

Deputy Assistant Provost Marshal, Capt. R. C. Risley, Halifax.

Camp Commandant, Capt. A. P. Ardagh, Barrie.

In making the announcement, Mr. Rogers said in view of the large number of highly qualified officers available for the posts an effort had been made to give representation to all parts of the Dominion.

As in the selection of the senior officers for the 1st Division, both permanent force and the non-permanent active militia have been drawn upon and a majority of the officers chosen saw extensive service in the last war. A number of them, including General Odlum rose from the ranks.

The divisional officer commanding was appointed more than a month ago and accompanied Mr. Rogers to England to study and observe methods of training and organization being followed in the 1st Division and the British army.

General Odlum returned to Ottawa from Vancouver by air today and is proceeding at once with the organization and assembly of his staff.

Winter Training

The division, itself, mobilized at the outbreak of war, spent the winter training by units at local headquarters and the units are now moving into summer camps for more advanced training prior to their departure overseas. Recently Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the division's movement overseas would be expedited.

Col. Topp who will command the 4th Infantry Brigade, has been commandant of the troops in the Ottawa area since the outbreak of war. Col. Leclerc, who will command the 5th Infantry Brigade, has been in command of a training centre at Montreal.

Lt.-Col. Burns G.S.O. 1, is in England where he went last fall as G.S.O. 1 at Canadian military headquarters in London.

Col. D. R. Sargent, who will command the Sixth Infantry Brigade, has had almost twenty-five years commissioned service in the non-permanent active militia and is 45 years of age. He served in France and Belgium with the Fifth Battalion from December, 1917, to June, 1918 and as an instructor with the Canadian Corps Reinforcement Camp in England from June, 1918, to June, 1919. He commanded the Canadian Scottish Regiment from 1934 to 1938. Up to the present, he was Officer Commanding the First Battalion, Canadian Scottish (Details) C.A.S.F.

Lieut.-Col. McQueen, who heads the Division Army Service Corps is 43 and a Chemical Engineer. He went to England with the Forestry and Construction Draft as Lieutenant, in August, 1917, and served in France and Belgium with the British Army from September, 1918, to March 1919.

HOSPITAL SHIP SAFE AFTER NAZI ATTACK

London, May 30.—(CP)—A hospital ship arrived today at a South Coast port, carrying British expeditionary force wounded. The portholes had been smashed by machine-gun bullets and the funnels were riddled.

German planes attacked the vessel in a French port yesterday while it was taking on wounded men.

SAYS JAPS MAY SEIZE EAST INDIES

Moscow, May 30—(AP)—Pravda, Communist Party newspaper, today published a story claiming that Japan is taking a series of measures aimed at new conquests besides the continuing war in China. The story said Japan is considering seizure of The Netherlands East Indies and the Philippine Islands and "something still more tempting."

AIR COMMODORE L. S. BREADNER CHIEF OF STAFF

Former Commander at Trenton Air Station Placed in Charge of Canada's Expanding Air Force

CROIL MOVES UP

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)—The first major shift among ranking defence service officers since the start of the second Great War places Air Commodore Lloyd S. Breadner in command of Canada's expanding air force.

The new Minister of National Defence for Air, Hon. C. G. Power, announced last night that Air Commodore Breadner would replace Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croil as Chief of the Air Staff and that Croil would go to the newly created post of Inspector General of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

One well informed source said it was a "natural assumption" that Breadner would be elevated to the rank of Air Vice-Marshal.

Creation of the position of Inspector-General arises from the constantly increasing responsibilities falling on the senior officers of the air force as a result of the development of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Air Vice-Marshal Croil has been the key man in the plan since its inception last Autumn and his experience and knowledge of all details will prove specially valuable in his new position.

Member of Air Council

Until the new appointment Air Commodore Breadner was member of the Air Council for Air Staff and so he also has been in intimate contact with all details of the evolution of the plan as well as with the development of Canada's fighting air services to meet the demands of war.

The two officers affected by the shift are the same age, 46, and both started flying in the first Great War.

Air Vice-Marshal Croil served with distinction in the Royal Air Force on the Salonika front and in Egypt and was awarded the Air Force Cross and Croix De Guerre. Air Commodore Breadner served with the Royal Naval Air Service and won the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Air Vice-Marshal Croil was born in Milwaukee, Wis., and educated in Scotland. Air Commodore Breadner is a native of Carleton Place, Ont. Both officers have been with the R.C.A.F. since its inception soon after the first Great War and both have steadily risen in rank.

Police Blotter

300 pounds of scrap metal, Claude Hurdle, Toronto and James Mair, Frankford, were arrested by P. C. Taylor last night and today remanded in custody on charges of vagrancy. The rear of an old rattle-trap sedan was loaded down with scrap metal, which the men stated they had found abandoned along side of the road near Frankford last night. They are being held pending further investigations.

A third man who gave his name as James VanCamp, Brockville, and who was with the above pair, was allowed his liberty today after it was established he was merely hitch-hiking a ride with Hurdle.

Kenneth Edgecombe, 223 Bleecker Ave, reported the theft of a motor rug to the police today. The rug was stolen from Mr. Edgecombe's garage.

Considerable property damage resulted from a rear end motor accident near the intersection of West Bridge and Coleman Streets., last evening, when a motor car driven by Clayton Bright of Castleton, collided with the rear of another car driven by Clayton Chambers of this city. Both vehicles were proceeding in the same westerly direction when Mr. Chambers stopped in order to permit eastbound traffic to pass before making a left hand turn. Considerable undercarriage damage resulted to Mr. Bright's car, which had to be towed to a garage for repairs.

A local retail fish dealer paid $10.00 and costs into a local court this week after being convicted of the purchase and sale of game fish to wit black bass, according to information related by Game Warden Herb McCabe today.

ANDRE VERDIER REMANDED WEEK

Bail Set at $3,000 and Statement Made to Court by Crown Attorney

ADDITIONAL CHARGES

When Andre Verdier, President of the Verdier Aircraft Corporation of Deseronto, appeared in County Police Court before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today charged with at diverse times spreading reports and making statements which might cause disaffection to His Majesty the King, contrary to section 39 of the Defence of Canada Regulations, the accused man sought bail through his counsel, Charles A. Payne K.C., without entering a plea.

"Yes, perhaps bail of $3,000.00 cash might be acceptable, but I might advise the accused that immediately he is released on bail ehre, he will be re-arrested on charges of fraud, that have been preferred in Kingston," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C.

"My investigations have not as yet been completed in this case and I am asking for a week's remand in the matter," added Mr. Donnan in addressing the Bench. Later bail was set at the suggested $3,000.00, but Verdier left the court in the company of Provincial Constables Smith and Adair and his counsel, who remarked that the bail asked was "extremely high."

When Verdier was arraigned Mr. Payne pointed out that no particulars had been stated in the specific charges preferred.

"I'll give Mr. Payne all the particulars I have on file," assured Crown Attorney Donnan.

When Mr. Payne sought to have the amount of bail reduced, Magistrate Butler pointed out that the charg of violations of the Defence Regulations of Canada, especially section 39, were exceedingly serious. Verdier was non-committal, but after hearing of the subsequent charges being preferred in Kingston no further comment on the matter of bail was heard after Verdier left the court room in company with his counsel and the police to be lodged in the county jail.

BRITISH STIFFEN DEFENCE RULES

Power Given to Suppress Anti-War Newspapers — Radio Sets in Automobiles Banned

London, May 30—(CP) — The Government issued new defence regulations today giving the Home Secretary power to "suppress any newspaper which systematically publishes matter which in his opinion is calculated to foment opposition to the prosecution of the war."

The regulation, which also gives the home secretary power to deal with printing presses used to print offending newspapers, is expected to lead to suppression of "Action," organ of Sir Oswald Mosley's British Fascist group, and the Communist newspaper, "Daily Worker."

Sir Oswald was detained last week in the Government's drive against fifth columnists.

Radio Sets on Autos Prohibited

The new rules prohibit the use of radio sets in automobiles and provide for confiscation of signalling apparatus. Authorities also are empowered to confiscate land for war use.

Another regulation designed to curb would be fifth columnists forbids any unauthorized person making official uniforms, British or foreign, or any offical badge or emblem.

The regulation empowering the suppression of anti-war newspapers is expected also to mean the end of a number of privately circulated news letters or broadsheets with Pacifist, Fascist or Communist viewpoints.

Organizations Weeded Out.

Organizations suspected of masking Nazi activities under other names are being weeded out. Clubrooms are being raided, 8,800 German and Austrian men and women have been interned—although many of them professed to be "refugees" from the Hitler regime—and restrictions have been tightened to prevent aliens from owning automobiles, boats, bicycles or airplanes.

Arrests have increased daily, with charges ranging from studying maps to taking gas company blueprints.

Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary, said more arrests are to come. He hinted that authorities had information of masquerading pro-Nazi organizations and said the offices of the Anti-Vivisection Society had been raided because of information that British Fascists were operating from there.

He made no reply to a question by Lady Astor:

"Is it wise to lock up a man but leave his wife free?"

(Last week Sir Oswald Mosley, head of the British Union of Fascists, was interned. Lady Mosley remained at liberty.)

Girls' Softball Revived As 'Big-Z' Nine Win Opening Game by 10-7

Winners Score Six Runs in Initial Frame but "5 and 10" Lassies Rally

LUSTY HITTING

Helen Garrow Paces Hitters With Two Homers and a Double

With all the thrills that could be packed into a ball game, girls' softball returned to popular favour with the opening of the Ladies' Mercantile Softball League when the "Big-Z" nine downed the "5 & 10's" by a score of 10 to 7 in an abbreviated seven inning contest, called on account of darkness at the Collegiate campus last evening. Double plays, home runs galore, lusty hitting, good pitching interspersed with brilliant fielding marked the rivival of girls' softball, which was welcomed back in Belleville by some 300 well-satsified patrons last evening. The second game of the league schedule will be played at the armouries lawn this evening.

Winners Score Early

"Chuck" Barnett's victorious "Big-Z" nine took a commanding lead as they opened auspiciously with six big runs in the initial frame and added a trio more of counters in the second stanza. "Doc" Doherty's "five and ten" squad settled away in the latter stages and held the ultimate winners well in hand until the eighth, when the winners batted around and had scored numerous runs before the game was terminated on account of falling darkness. In the middle sessions, however, the Doherty-led nine played sterling softball and rallied to score two in the third, fifth and sixth as the result of some lusty hitting. The losers out-hit the ultimate victors 13 to 12, but the "Big-Z" nine made their hits count into runs by bunching their blows, many of which were of the extra base nature.

Hits Two Homers

Helen Garrow, at shortstop for the winners, paced her team mates with two circuit blows and a double in four tries. 'Glad' Emerson counted three safeties, including a triple, while Miss Rogers and Miss Bennett hit for the circuit to help the winners' cause. Gwen Burley hit for the circuit for the "big nickel" store, while her team mates, Hodges, Ewenson and McClelland starred around the losers' infield as this trio accounted for nine putouts and four assists.

Betty Adams, the winning pitcher struck out ten and walked two, while Grace Stewart on the "big-five" mound whiffed six and passed but one. The "K-nines" clash with the Corbin Lock lassies in tonight's game at the armouries.

WINGS EASILY DEFEAT ROYALS

Rochester's Success Due to Their Ability to Play Winning Ball in Own Park

(By the Associated Press)

One of the big reasons for the success of the Rochester Red Wings so far this season has been their ability to play winning ball in their own park.

The Wings have appeared in 15 home games to date, almost half of their total games played, and won all but two. As a result they are leading the International League today by two full games, with 23 victories against 10 defeats.

Yesterday the pacesetters picked up half a game over the second place Jersey City Giants, who were idle, by knocking over Montreal Royals 6-3 in the opener of a three-game series at Rochester.

Herschel Lyons started on the mound for the victors but ran into trouble in the sixth inning and was replaced by John Berly, with none out. Berly blanked the Royals for the next four frames with two safeties.

In the only other game scheduled Syracuse Chiefs defeated Baltimore Orioles 2-0 to move a notch closer to sixth place. Jack Tising did the hurling for Syracuse and allowed only four base knocks, to give the Chiefs their first victory over the Birds all season.

FOREIGN SPEED ACES TO COMPETE IN INDIANAPOLIS CLASSIC

Three foreign speed aces get together in gasoline alley at the Indianapolis speedway in Indiana constituting the first "foreign invasion" of the Indianapolis speed classic since 1933. Paul Riganti, LEFT, Argentine champion, greets the two French drivers relieved from military duty in Europe to drive in the 500-mile race today, at the Indianapolis speedway. The Frenchmen, Rene Dreyfus, LEFT, and Rene Lebegue, made their first inspection of the famous Hoosier track. All three drivers will drive foreign race cars. In a trial run yesterday Lebegue's foreign-made car was damaged and disabled when a broken piston arm pierced the crankcase. It is questionable whether or not Lebegue will be able to repair the damage in time for today's big race.

Bucky Walters Scores Eighth Straight Victory of Season by 4-0 Shutout Over the Pirates

Cincinnati Hurler Even Better Than Last Year When Judged Most Valuable Player in National Loop

YANKS WIN ON HOMERS

Keller and Dickey Each Smack One to Provide Winning Margin for Donald

By Judson Bailey
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Sports "experts" eventually get used to having their bad guesses thrown back in their faces, but the fellows who predicted Bucky Walters wouldn't do so well this year must have had an uncomfortable conscience about every fourth day lately.

The star of Cincinnati Reds mounds corps has just marked up his eight victory without defeat, 4-0 over Pittsburgh Pirates, and is so far out in front of his pace of last year that there is no comparison.

Enroute to his total of 27 victories and 11 losses and the honor of being the National League's most valuable player the sinkerball specialist had a record of six won and four lost on Memorial Day 1939.

Second Shutout

His conqests on the Pirates yesterday was his second shutout of the Spring. Besides stifling the Pittsburgh attack on scattered singles, he contributed two hits to the Reds' own total.

This triumph raised the Reds again into a virtual tie with Brooklyn for the National League lead. The Dodgers, whose small percentage margin stems from the fact they have played fewer games, were idle yesterday along with New York Giants.

Atley Donald made his first start of 1940 and held Washington Senators to four hits in giving New York tory, 2-1. Charley Keller and Bill Dickey hit homers in the first two innings to give him a margin.

Bill Butland made his first appearance for Boston Red Sox and was able to win an 8-3 decision over Philadelphia Athletics although giving up 12 hits. The Red Sox got only nine, but they included a double by Joe Cronin with the bases loaded and a home run by Jim Tabor.

Feller Wins Seventh

Bespectacled Bill Dietrich made his first start for Chicago White Sox and salvaged fifth place with a 4-3 triumph over St. Louis Browns. Elden Auker more than matched Dietrich until the eighth when the Sox bunched three runs.

Bob Feller achieved his seventh success with an effective if lustreless eight-hit 7-4 job against Detroit Tigers. The tribe clustered six runs in the first two frames against young Tom Seats.

In the National League St. Louis Cardinals stepped up to fifth place with an 8-2 victory over Chicago Cubs. Lon Warneke supported his own 10-hit pitching with a three-run homer. Dick Errickson of Boston Bees held Philadelphia Phillies crowded four of their six hits into to five hits and won 3-1. The Bees a three-run seventh inning.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Bucky Walters, Reds: Shut out Pirates in four hits for eighth consecutive victory of season.

Atley Donald, Yankees: Pitched 2-1 decision over Senators on four hits.

Lon Warneke and Mickey Owen, Cardinals: Besides their efforts as a battery, Warneke hit three run homer and Owen drove in four tallies with two doubles to beat Cubs.

Bob Feller, Indians: Coasted to seventh victory, holding Tigers to eight safeties.

YOUNG TRENTON PITCHER HALTS LEAGUE LEADERS

Vic Burtt Thrills Teammates and Fans With Sterling Mound Performance

WINS 13-6

Trenton, May 30 — (Special)—Vic Burtt and Lady Luck teamed together here last night to give Canadian Doughnuts a 13-6 win over Miller Bros., who dropped their first game of the season in the nine innings of thrilling ball. A crowd of over two hundred watched the Do-Nut crew out in head early in the first stages of the match then all but blow up in the final rounds, when the Glen Miller sluggers turned on the pressure and drove pitcher Ray Foxx to the showers. Burtt entered the picture at this point and saved the day for the "Fried Cake" outfit. With the bases loaded and but one man out Burtt fanned two heavy hitters in a row to retire the opposing side. Burtt continued to fling smart ball for the duration of the contest and deprived the Glen Miller boys of any more runs. In the meantime the Doughnut swatters ganged up on pitcher Istead and touched his delivery for three runs. The fixture ended in twilight. The win placed the Doughnuts close behind the league leading R.C.A.F. squad, the only nine in the loop that hasn't lost a game this term. Wooler downed the Doughnuts two weeks ago, placing a bleamish on their stainless record to that date. Last night's line-ups: Canadian Doughnuts: Moran, LaMorre, C. Ellis, V. Burtt, J. Heaney, Acker, S. Ellis, Bowden, Foxx, B. Burtt. Miller Bros.: Niddery Drake, Lohnes, Long, Anderson, Gates, Litt, Emerson, Istead.

Umpires—V. Carswell and B. White.

Vic Burtt Season's Surprise

Vic Burtt, youngest athletic son of ex-Councillor Ross Burtt surprised the yokels a few nights ago when he stepped on the mound during an exhibition game and hurled nearly perfect ball. His exhibition all but took the "Doughnuts" by storm and if he didn't reach the bottom of their sporting hearts that night he did last night when he came to the rescue and pulled the game out of the fire for them. Burtt grasped the situation cooly and hurled like a veteran, while the supporters in the stands held their breath in those tense moments. When the crisis passed "right" fans and "wrong" fans combined to give the lad a big hand. Burtt usually played the outfield until a few nights ago. His latest performances, especially the one last night, has already added a lot of color to local set-up.

SERVICE CLUBS' SOFTBALL LEAGUE HOLDS BANQUET

Champion Kiwanis Team Honored and Plans to Reorganize Are Made at 'Y'

Honouring their champions of 1939, the local Service Club "No-kick" softball league held a banquet at the Y.M.C.A. last evening when the champion Kiwanis team were the guests of the remaining clubs in the circuit. The league in 1939 was composed of Kiwanis, Kinsmen and Y's Men's service clubs along with the Barbers and Butchers. The latter two teams have withdrawn from the league this year, however.

During the banquet, "Kin Jerry" Hurley presented the league trophy to Kiwanian Frank Follwell, captain of the league champions in 1939. During the evening a delightful program was heard featuring Art Snare with his piano-accordion, Ed Shortt in a monologue and Leo Riggs at the piano. Harry Brown of the Stewart-Warner Corporation showed two reels of moving pictures, taken of the Canadian Active Service Forces in England and Canada through the efforts of the Y.M.C.A. war service league. In parts of the films Belleville boys were seen at work and soldiers' play.

At the conclusion of the banquet efforts to revive the league were attempted, with the three service clubs signifying their willingness to operate teams again this year. Chairman Harold Vaughan, Jerry Hurley and Frank Follwell were named as a committee to seek a fourth entry into the league.

Montreal Welter Wins Decision Over Tony Ferrara

New York, May 30.—(CP)—Six years of hard campaigning as a professional have shown profit to Montreal's Maxie Berger and last night the junior welterweight champion proved it by out-smarting a barrel-chested 147-pounder, Tony Ferrara of Mount Vernon, N.Y.

Maxie stretched his undefeated streak to 19 straight fights by whipping Tony for the second time in three months.

In a supporting six-rounder, Doug Marsh, another Montreal welter, showed superior boxing skill to outpoint Sean Hynes, a strong, young Irishman who couldn't solve Marsh's style. Both weighed 148 pounds.

Ferrara entered the ring 5 1-2 pounds heavier than Berger who weighed 141 but the Italian-American couldn't make his weight count against Berger's stiff counter-punching.

Thousands Swarm To Speedway to Watch Big Race

Indianapolis, May 30.—(AP) — America's largest thrill-seeking crowd undaunted by a forecast of possible showers, swarmed to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today to watch 33 intrepid drivers vie for the cash and glory which go to the winner of the 28th International 500-mile race.

Thirty-three low-slung, shark-nosed speedsters, were ready for the starting bomb to send them roaring around the two-and-a-half-mile brick and asphalt track before a crowd expected to range from 125,000 to 140,000.

Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis pilot who won the 1937 and 1939 races, was an outstanding favorite but Rex Mays of Glendale, Calif., was rated his most dangerous rival. Shaw's mount is the same eight-cylinder Italian car he drove to victory at 115.035 miles an hour a year ago.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Until Tex Carleton pitched his no run, no hit game for the Dodgers recently, no Brooklyn pitcher had entered baseball's immortal ranks of a "no-hitter" since Dazzy Vance turned the trick for the old Robins in 1925?.......And that 15 years is a long spell to be without a no run, no hit effort, even with the Dodgers?......That "Bullet Joe" Bush, former major league hurling star, is now employed by the U. S. Rubber Corporation?...... During the first month of 1940 major baseball league activities there were 120,000 less paid customers than over the same four weeks in 1939? ......That the City Men's Softball loop has experienced more postponements already this season than they experienced in the matter of postponements during the previous two seasons?...... That Rogers Hornsby, one of the greatest batters of all time, is now with the faculty of Ray Doan's travelling baseball school?........And that the neighbourhood league opens tonight with three games?

After numerous futile attempts to create interest in the reorganizing of the Bay of Quinte League, the whole structure collapsed on Monday. There had been hopes of including Picton and Belleville in a loop along with either Napanee or an amalgamated team from Colborne and Brighton. The latter two failed to function, which forced the older members to toss in the sponge and call baseball quits once and for all. It is doubtful if further efforts will be made to organize baseball in this district. Those who still entertained mild hopes of sponsoring baseball in Belleville feel that there is little use forwarding the question, especially under the stress of the present times, when the public is more vitally interested in the prosecution of the war. In all probability the matter of baseball sponsorship in Belleville will now be abandoned until after the war, at which time the entire baseball structure will have to be built from the minors up. Incidentally Harry Morgan, former Belleville outfielder now residing at Coniston, Ont., was touring this district over the week end seeing a catcher to take back north with him. Good catchers are like hens' teeth in this district today, actually there's a premium on them, as we see it.

Baseball is still very much alive in Hastings County, however, where the North Hastings League is seeking to expand its territory. Secretary A. M. Burns of Bancroft, reports that the league champion Coe Hill club, Bancroft and Bannockburn are back in the fold, while efforts to round out a four-teamed circuit seem quite probable. Eldorado or Ormsby seem logical points for the fourth club. Residents in that district really take their baseball seriously. Last fall when Belleville was playing off with Coe Hill one of the motor cars transporting the locals to the scene of diamond hostilities ran into motor difficulties near Ormsby. When a nearby garage operator was approached regarding repairs for the car he replied —"Hell, leave the darned thing there. I'm going to the baseball game." And he meant just that, because the locals were forced to double up in their cars and wait until after the game before the garage mechanic would so much as lift a finger towards repairing the damaged vehicle. That is the spirit that forwards any phase of sport.

It was surprising the ability and knowledge shown by the girls in the opening of the Ladies Softball loop last night. For instance Helen Garrow, shortstop with the "Big-Z" nine swings as potent a bat as ever crossed a plate in the old days of girls' softball here. Helen clouted two homers and two doubles, one of which did not count in the official box score as the game reverted back, when called in the eighth. Miss Garrow will doubtless prove as popular at the Armouries as did "Tiny" Warham, when she was knocking balls against the Post Office ten years ago or more. The "big-nickel" team has a smooth working infield, while Betty Adams and Grace Stewart, the two opposing hurlers last night, showed good pitching form, as can be seen in the official box score. Most everything that could be injected in a game was seen, home runs, double plays and some exceedingly good all around playing, as it must be taken into consideration that girls' softball has been dormant in Belleville for nearly a decade. Incidentally the "5 and 10" infield handled 14 chances with only one error last night, but tonight two new teams ply their diamond trade at the Armouries Lawn when another girls' game is scheduled.

Even if baseball is a "dead pigeon" around Belleville, there's plenty of softball being organized. Besides the Men's Senior League and the girls' loop, there's the Neighbourhood loop, the Ki-Y groups and last night the Service Clubs met to re-organize their "no-kick" league, which was won by the Kiwanis Club last year. Incidentally the league champion Kiwanians were tendered a banquet last night with the other service clubs as hosts. During the evening a "gold trophy" was presented to Kiwanian Frank Follwell, which upon closer examination proved to be nothing short of a wooden mug, covered with bronze paint. Incidentally the "no-kick" loop is seeking a fourth entry, along with the Kiwanis, Kinsmen and Y'smen.

About a quarter of a million Yankees, seeking thrills and spills crowded into the Indianapolis speedway track before noon today as 33 car drivers roared the engines of their cars below in the pits prior to the 28th annual 500-mile Indianapolis speedway race over the 2 1-2 mile brick-covered track. The prize money is $10,000.00, with one quarter of this going to the winner. Wilbur Shaw, who won last year, can enter the racing hall of fame by making it his third Indianapolis triumph today. Only two other drivers ever won the event on three occasions, so naturally Shaw will get plenty of opposition in his effort.

Sport Spice — Home runs by Dickey and Keller gave the Yankees their fifth straight win yesterday.."Rapid Bob" Feller chalked up his seventh season's victory and Bucky Walters hurled his eighth win of the season on the same day .... Walters had two hits to prove the whole show as the Reds beat the Pirates 4-0....Charlie Box, well known Toronto football player, joined the C.A.S.F. as a Y.M.C.A. staff official recently....The minor and major league hockey moguls met in New York yesterday to discuss inter-league activities....Even Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, president of the Pacific Coast League, was on hand.

COMMONS DEBATE 'FIFTH COLUMN' ACTIVITIES

Parliamentary Committee Being Set Up to Make Further Recommendations to Curb Activities

COMPLAINTS PROBED

Ottawa, May 29—(CP) — Fifth column activities in Canada remain uppermost in the minds of private members of parliament despite Justice Minister Lapointe's recent statement on counter measures already adopted and his announcement that a parliamentary committee would be set up to make further recommendations.

Pleas for swift movement against sabotage and subversive elements marked inquiries made by private members to the government benches yesterday and brought further observations from the Justice Minister.

During the recent election campaign, said Mr. Lapointe, the Defence of Canada Regulations to preserve the safety of the state against subversive elements had been roundly criticized as too severe in relation to individual rights. Now the complaint was that the measures were not severe enough.

Upon assurance that active steps to remedy fifth column dangers would be taken, the House of Commons moved swiftly to invest the government with legislative authority to spend $700,000,000 in the next year for war purposes, and passed administrative measures respecting the army, navy and air force.

Measure Adopted Quickly

The War Appropriations Measure was adopted quickly by the Senate, and just before parliament rose at six o'clock, the bill was accorded royal assent along with a bill granting authority for spending approximately $50,000,000 for special purposes in advance of the voting of the general estimates.

While the Senate discussed shell contracts in this and in the First Great War and heard a call from Conservative Leader Meighen that the government should be headed by someone other than Prime Minister King, the Commons debated fifth column activity from many angles.

Being Investigated

"For instance," he said, "yesterday a question was asked about the employees of the Bata Shoe Company (Czech shoe factory at Frankford, Ont.) and I immediately obtained the information. There are 156 men there, all Czechs, refugees who came here after their country had been invaded and crushed by Germany.

"These men are all registered. They all report except nine of them who have certificates of exemption. These exemptions are not given by me, but by the commissioner of the R.C.M.P. (S. T. Wood), who is also Registrar General of alien enemies.

"These people have not given any trouble which the police know of, except for the fact that one complaint, which was made against some of them, is being investigated by the R.C.M.P."

DEFENCE MINISTER ADDRESSES LEGION

Canadian Gov't. Determined to Lend Every Effort in Prosecution of War, States Mr. Rogers

Montreal, May 30—(CP) — The Canadian Government is determined to bend every effort toward strengthening the prosecution of the war, Defence Minister Rogers told members of the Canadian Legion here last night.

In a banquet address at the Legion's eighth Dominion convention, the Defence Minister declared:

"This government in your name is determined to bring a still greater effort of this country to the side of the Allied powers in this war."

Hardly a man or woman in Canada is "not consumed with a burning desire to work, to help and to add to the strength that this nation must mobilize—and will mobilize—to meet the danger facing the Allies at present."

Mr. Rogers described the emergency of the present situation in Europe as "just as urgent and just as fateful as any that has ever occurred in our history."

Reviewed Steps

He reviewed steps taken by the government to push the war effort.

"An Air Ministry has been created so that progress in the training of airmen will be speeded up to the greatest possible degree.

"The Department of Munitions and Supply had the co-operation of industry and labor in the greatest effort to speed up production that has ever been made.

"The Department of National Defence, in addition to announcing the organization of a Canadian corps in the field and the mobilization of a third division, has said that the infantry units of a fourth division will be called up."

Mr. Rogers told of immediate organization of the veterans home guards and of the government's intention to supplement the guards with veterans not attached to non-permament militia units.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg, May 30.—Thomasburg Public School held its Empire Day program in the school Thursday afternoon. The room was suitably decorated and the pupils wore badges of red, white and blue. # REMOVAL OF TROOPS

The fighting gathered momentum during the day. Furiously launched Nazi drives succeeded in making some infiltrations but failed in their primary purpose—to cut the Allied army in two by capturing the "mountain line" running from Cassel to Ypres, a French military spokesman said.

Simultaneous German attacks designed to choke off the line of Allied retreat midway between Lille and Dunkerque were launched from the southeast and northwest.

Stopped in North Sector

The spokesman here said the Germans were stopped in the northern sector, along the Yser River. The Nazis won a foothold on Mount Cassel, it was stated, but were turned back when they attempted to drive a deeper wedge into the Allied lines.

Most of the Allied units protecting the flanks of the retreat are British troops. Under their protection, the remainder of the Allied forces deep in the Flanders pocket were methodically withdrawing under the plan being carried out by General Rene Prioux.

Fighting vigorous rearguard and flank actions as they moved, the British and French forces received effective aid from their low-flying aircraft.

Described as Huge Funnel

The gradual compression of the fronts is compensating for loss of half the Allied effectives by the surrender of King Leopold. British troops now heroically stemming the German tide along the Yser River and canal are doing, it was emphasized here, what King Leopold refused to undertake.

The Flanders battleground is described here as a huge funnel, with its axis roughly traced by the line between Lille and Dunkerque. The latter port, although under terrific punishment, was still solidly in Allied hands following defeat of a direct push attempted yesterday by German motorized units from the southwest.

The sides of the funnel are solidly lined by Allied troops, most of them British, forming a double and widening lane through which others were methodically withdrawing northwestward to the coast.

The northeastward line was drawn roughly between Nieuport and Ypres, the southwestward between Gravelines and Cassel.

Excellent Positions

In reality the "mountain line" between Cassel and Ypres consists of a series of low-lying hills which stand out sharply against the surrounding Flanders plain. They afford excellent positions and their capture by the Germans would tightly bottle up the Allied divisions still in the southern reaches of the Flanders pocket.

Realizing this, the Nazis attempted a northeastward push from St. Omer toward Cassel. Motorized units meanwhile attempted a secondary diversion movement directly against Dunkerque but succeeded only in gaining a foothold on Mount Cassel, western most of the Flemish hills.

What few infiltrations the Germans succeded in making were accomplished to the southeast of the "mountain line."

Gains were not appreciable, however, and the main French force under General Prioux was steadily making its way to the coast.

No Surrender By Any Troops

The military spokesman emphasized there has been no surrender by any troops. Fighting day and night without respite, they were helped from the air by waves of Allied planes. Royal Air Force squadrons operating from bases in England were said to be playing an important role.

Allied planes and anti-aircraft batteries have taken terrific toll, it was, said forcing the German air command to adopt a more prudent strategy. The enemy seems hesitane for the first time, the military spokesman said. to continue his practice of mass operations, cost what they may.

Strong Allied Fleet.

The Allies' unbroken grip on Dunkerque was reinforced from the sea by a strong Allied fleet concentrated in the channel to pound enemy units with their big guns and help in the work of troop evacuation.

Farther southwest, French and British troops were reported holding out in Calais after days of unbroken fighting.

In the Dunkerque region, Allied naval units were reported to have begun successfully the removal of troops, while at the same time moving in large supplies for forces still in the battle zone.

Dunkerque was under constant artillery and aerial fire as the Allied forces retreated.

The only German advance in the north, a commentator reported, perhaps was the capture of Mount Cassel, nearly 600 feet high and two miles from the city of Cassel, where he said the French forces were bitterly contesting the entire fury of the German drive toward channel.

Cassel is less than twenty miles south of Dunkirk.

Units of All Tonnage.

Naval units described as "of all tonnages" were participating in removal of the wounded and bringing in supplies.

British troops, the spokesman said, were fighting along the eastern flank in the general direction of Bruges to Dunkirk and strongly resisting German attacks in the Yser Canal regions.

The French are defending the region between St. Omer and Cassel.

Positions on both flanks were holding last night, the spokesman said, but he added no new information had been received this morning.

The Germans, the commentator estimated, had thrown into the converging offensive approximately 40 divisions (440,000 to 600,000 men), including the greater part of ten divisions of mechanized and armored units.

Lands Deliberately Flooded.

Fighting through an area crisscrossed by canals and streams many deliberately flooded by the Allies, the Germans were said to be encountering terrific land resistance, in addition to destructive bombardments from the air.

The spokesman reported the Germans had lost approximately 2,000 planes with their crews since the Nazi invasion of the Low Countries began May 10.

The now-stabilized French front along the Somme and Aisne Rivers east to the Maginot Line was reported quiet.

The French, confirming British announcement of the capture of the Norwegian port of Narvik, from the Germans, described this as a "finished operation'.

300,000 in Withdrawal

An estimated 300,000 French and British were backing toward the sea to escape the German trap.

Dunkerque was under constant artillery and aerial fire by Nazis hoping to wipe out the remanants of the withdrawing forces.

The Allies were abandoning to the Germans a strip of territory approximately 200 miles long and of an average width of 50 miles, its southern boundry lying along the Somme and Aisne Rivers from the channel to a point near the Luxembourg frontier. It includes a rich industrial section and channel ports.

They held a triangular area around Dunkirk in which the entrapped armies were withdrawing. The southern side of the triangle ran inland from a point near Calais to the Lille area, and its eastern side extended roughly northward to a point just south of Ostend. The first great war landmarks of Ypres and Armentieres were on this line.

The French reported that a rear guard action was being fought in Lille, important industrial capital of this region, and it appeared that a small Allied force was trapped southeast of the city.

The high command today reported "violent fighting" during the night along the Yser River in Flanders and in the region of Cassel, on the southern line of the Nazi trap about halfway between Lille and Dunkirk.

Nothing New on Somme

"On the Somme and the remainder of the front, no new developments," said the Communique, indicating that both sides for the moment were concentrating on the Flanders' trap.

Published descriptions of the irregular northern front indicated that German troops in the eastern sector passed the Belgian city of Furnes in their westward push while in the west other Nazi detachments were reported to have taken Cassel and Mount Kemmel, scene of a bitter 1918 battle, as well.

German troops were believed nearing Ypres, Belgium, scene of long and hard fighting in the first Great War, and fighting was reported continuing in the Lille-Roubaix-Tourcoing triangle in which some Allies were engulfed in a smaller trap.

Charged with covering the exposed flanks of the northern retreat was 61-year-old commander of the Port of Dunkirk, was in charge at that point of the land sea and air operations. Under his command, the French navy, said the Communique, "is employing a very great number of ships and is engaged in supplying the fortified camp of Dunkirk and the troops based on it."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was starting to do the bridge problem and I was laying on my back on the floor and pop was smoking to himself in his private chair, saying, Benny, isn't it about time you were starting to do your homework?

Well jimminy, pop, I dont see how I'm going to do it, I cant find my books, I said, and pop said, Yee gods he cant find his books, he's looking up at the ceeling and complaining he cant find his books. Why dont you go down the celler and look in the furnace? he said.

Being sourcastic and meening there's no use expecting to find things without looking in probable places, and I said, It's no use, I mean I know where I put them and they're gone. I put them in the draw of the hallrack and now they're not there. Holey smokes they must of been stolen. Imagine steeling anybody's school books, I said.

Some backward but ambitious berglar, no doubt, pop said, and ma said, The way that big draw in the hall rack always looks after Benny's gentle administrations, I doubt if the best berglar in the world could find his own grandmother in it.

Well I had every single thing out and back 3 times, so I know I cant be mistaken, because I know I put it there as plain as day, I said.

Wich just then the telephone rang and ma answered it and who was it but Glasses Magee's mother saying Glasess had found my books on their front steps and she thought I might be worrying about them.

Proving I must of got mixed up with yestidday about putting my books in the hall rack, and I went and got them, not feeling exter lucky.

PAIR ARRESTED GO TO MONTREAL

Organizer for National Unity Party and Alleged Party Worker Taken in Toronto

Toronto, May 30—(CP) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police today announced Joseph C. Parr, organiser for the National Unity Party, and John M. Lorimer, an alleged party worker, would be taken at once to Montreal for trial on charges under the Defence of Canada Regulations. They claim the party is a pro-Nazi organization.

The pair were arrested here on Montreal warrants during raids on two rooming-houses and an office building. Police claim to have seized a number of National Unity Party uniforms, including several blue shirts, badges, emblems and wedge caps, anti-semitic literature "printed in Germany," and copies of correspondence between National Unity officers and Berlin, dated before the war and asking for more anti-semitic and other propaganda material.

NAZI COMMUNIQUE

Berlin, May 30.—(AP)—Text of the German High Command Communique today:

"The bitter battle of Flanders and Artois is nearing the end with the destruction of the English and French armies fighting there. The English expeditionary force since yesterday is also in complete dissolution. Leaving enormous war material behind, the English are fleeing seaward.

(The B.E.F. remains intact in the military sense. It is fighting stiff rearguard actions as it withdraws, and while the Germans have fallen heirs to considerable supplies left on the field, all supply depots of the B.E.F. are in British hands.)

"Swimming and in small boats, the enemy is attempting to reach English ships lying in the roads outside the harbor, upon which our air force bore down with destructive effects, as already announced.

"Over 60 ships were hit, of which three warships and 16 transports were sunk. Ten warships and 21 merchant ships of all sizes were seriously damaged by fire.

"Our anti-aircraft and artillery also sank one enemy patrol boat and damaged five others, as well as five speedboats.

(These claims have not been confirmed in London or Paris.)

"Pursuit and destroyer plane groups shot down 68 enemy planes.

(Total Royal Air Force losses yesterday were ten machines).

"South of the line of the Poperinghe-Cassel our troops attacking from the west, east and south joined thereby encircling and cutting off numerous strong enemy groups.

"On the southern front, an enemy tank attack on the lower Somme (River) was repulsed.

"South and southwest of Amiens, troops concentrations in the forests were bombarded.

"Enemy losses yesterday totalled 89 airplanes, of which 68 were shot down in air fights, 17 by anti-aircraft fire and the rest destroyed on the ground. Fifteen German planes are missing.

(The R.A.F. alone shot down 52 German planes.)

"The fight around Narvik (Norwegian Arctic iron ore port, which the Allies yesterday captured) is continuing unabatingly. Our troops occupied mountain positions outside the city and they are being reinforced. Fighting planes raided one enemy airport.

"Several planes were destroyed on the ground.

"Our mountain chasers pushing northward from Trondheim took Fauske, east of Bodoe.

"One of our submarines reported sinking seven enemy steamers with a tonnage of 38,480".

(This claim was not confirmed in London).

An earlier High Command Communique said:

"On the afternoon and evening of May 29 strong groups of two flying corps attacked British warships and transport vessels in the harbors and sea regions around Ostend and Dunkirk which were to remove the remainder of the defeated British expeditionary force to their homeland.

R.A.F. Pilot Wings 3 Nazi Planes And Dive Bomber, Bails Out, Picked Up by Paddle Steamer

London, May 30—(CP)—A fighter pilot of a Royal Air Force squadron reported on his day's work yesterday—"shot down three Nazi fighters and a dive bomber, jumped by parachute from my crippled Hurricane, swam until picked up by a paddle steamer, and was landed at Margate."

The Air Ministry made public his report:

"I was in a formation of nine aircraft patrolling Dunkerque. Toward the end of our patrol we sighted about nine Messerschmitt 109 fighters. A dog fight ensued.

"A Messerschmitt 109 started climbing away from me. I opened fire at 100 yards and the second burst set him on fire. I then turned right and attacked another Messerschmitt 109, firing one burst from astern. His port wing folded up.

"A Junkers 88 flew across my path and after an attack his starboard engine emitted black smoke and he half-rolled into the sea.

"I was then hit underneath by a cannon shell. As I did a complete turn to the right I saw a Messerschmitt 110 flying past. I did a beam attack on him. His starboard engine smoked and he turned on his back and fell into the sea.

"I then turned to the right and saw a large number of enemy aircraft, so I turned sharply to the left and saw at least 80 enemy aircraft proceeding in the direction of Dover. A number of them immediately turned on me so I headed for home, twisting and turning to avoid attack.

"Whichever way I turned I ran into fire. My Hurricane was hit a number of times. Two shells smashed the instrument panel and three more struck underneath. The engine stopped and flames appeared over the wing roots.

"I was at 400 feet and tried to get out but could not so I pulled the stick back from a crouching position in the seat.

"As the Hurricane stalled I got over the portside and took a header. I was being fired at so I delayed pulling the ripcord as long as possible. I left the fighter at 800 feet. My parachute worked perfectly. My lifejacket held me up well with one deep breath in it.

"I was picked up by a paddle steamer and landed at Margate."

Letters From the Troops

Trenton, May 30—(Special)— In a letter to a Trenton resident Allan Vanderwater a native son of Trenton, now a Pilot Officer with the Royal Air Force in the battle zone, tells of a day's work in the flying service and gives his reader information about the Allied Air Fleet in comparison with Hitler's force. Young Vanderwater entered the R.A.F. a year ago this coming June leaving Canada earlier in the year with a number of other determined Canadian youth bound and bent to serve the British Commonwealth as an aviator in His Majesty's Service. It was only two months ago that young Vanderwater was granted his commission and now he is piloting big bombers on general reconnaissance duty off the coast of embattled France. Throughout young Vanderwater's letter one can note the confidence he has placed in British equipment and personnel and the writer believes that these factors will win the war for the Allies. Young Vanderwater's father and two sisters reside on Spring Street at Trenton. His letter reads in part:

Dear:—

Right now the fog is so thick you can't see across the airdrome. We have a lot of civilians out here every Sunday doing Air Raid Precaution work but the aircraft can't fly today so guess they will have to practice a few ground gas attacks.

The rations haven't really affected us yet. They don't seem to worry anyone else except the people who drive cars, some of them are only allowed six gallons a month at 50 cents per gallon. A driver has to have a government-issued coupon to get gasoline.

I saw one German aircraft that was forced down. It is at the airdrome here. If you ever saw a blackout, you'd be provoked. You have to carry a flashlight wherever you go. The English are very cautious. They would sooner take care of blackouts than take a chance of having bombs dropped on their land.

The British feel confident of victory—aren't the Canadians over here? Our flying equipment is about the same as the Canadian and Yankee—as modern and efficient as possible

Hitler's air force isn't as good as the Allies' because our men are better trained, we have lots of factories to build more planes, lots of material to build planes with and an abundance of gasoline which Germany hasn't.

There is a prison camp near here. We went out and had a look at some of the German prisoners that were taken off boats but we could not learn anything from them as we did not have an interpreter with us. We expect to see some action in about two weeks, that is if the war keeps growing, for we get our postings in 8 or 10 days, so it won't be long until the Wild 15 Course will be giving the G's some strong medicine.

I'll give you an idea of one day's work at A.T.S. We are awakened at 7.30. Rush down for breakfast and get over to the lecture block by eight for signal practice. At 8.30 we are supposed to be at flights ready to fly. This morning I took off with my co-pilot at 9.15 and went over to the bombing target to get in some practice. We each drop four bombs then come back to the field. This practice usually takes one hour and we return to the airdrome at 10.15 a.m. At 11.30 a.m. there is another flight in the manner of aerial combat. Two aircraft "shoot" each other up with camera guns and the gunner takes some pictures of the proceedings. At 12.30 p.m. we have dinner and afterwards we have a bit of a rest until two o'clock when we take to the air again for a period of two hours. We return to the airdrome where we have tea before taking off again this time for practice. Work all done we have the remainder of the day to ourselves."

In closing young Vanderwater says: Guess I'd better sign off for a while. Now that you've started writing please keep up the good work because you don't know how much I appreciate all the letters I get from Trenton.

Your Friend,
Allan.

The writer Post Scripts: Received posting today. Am on general reconnaissance.

Mauri Rose Leads At Half-Way Mark In Speed Race

Indianapolis, May 30 (AP)—Mauri Rose, Columbus, O., led the pack after 250 miles of the 500-mile motor speedway race here today. Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis, was in second place, close behind.

WAR BRIEFS

Berlin, May 30 — (AP)—Germany protested today through the Swedish legation in Paris against alleged treatment of the German embassy staff in Brussels while en route home via France and Switzerland, declaring it was contrary to all international usage. The protest alleged it took 206 members of Germany's mission in the Belgian capital 13 days to reach Germany because the French broke a promise to the Belgians to let the Germans pass through France unmolested.

Hong Kong, May 30—(CP-Cable) Major-General A. E. Grasett, Toronto-born commander of the British forces in China, told the Legislative Council here today that all the colony's resources would be utilized for the protection of Hong Kong in the event it were attacked.

General Grasett said no men will be permitted to leave for Europe to join the armed forces and that the age limit for the combatant group of volunteers will be raised from 41 to 46.

3 American Cemeteries in Nazi Hands

Paris, May 30—(AP)— Three American cemeteries are in German hands and a fourth is under fire, Rev. Frederick Beekman said today at Memorial Day services held in the American Cathedral Church. Names of the cemeteries were not mentioned.

Hitler Will Have No Invitation

London, May 30—(CP)— Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, told a foreign press association luncheon today that Adolf Hitler preferred "other methods of getting his way", other methods ence table and added:

"We can assure him now that the seat at the conference table which so long has awaited him awaits him no longer and he will never receive an invitation."

Mr. Duff Cooper said freedom is in danger, but not, I believe, in hopeless danger, for I have complete confidence still as to the result of this conflict."

Hitler may defeat the Allies repeatedly, but he can not win the final victory, said Mr. Duff Cooper.

"These are forces upon which Hitler may deliver one defeat, two defeats, defeat after defeat, but which I believe he can not overcome."

He said some Belgian troops had ignored the command of their king to lay down their arms in Flanders.

"There were some who did not hear it—whose ears were deaf to it as Nelson's eye once was blind to a command—and who still are fighting side by side with the Allies."

EMERGENCY POWERS BILL FOR N.Z.

Wellington, May 30—(CP-Reuters)—An "all in" war effort for New Zealand was outlined as Parliament opened today with the introduction of an Emergency Powers Bill and Prime Minister Peter Fraser renewed his efforts to obtain the co-operation of the Opposition in the proposed war council.

The Emergency Regulations Amendment Bill provides that all persons should place themselves, their property and services at the disposal of the Governor General.

FIRST BLACK OUT FOR JERUSALEM

Jerusalem, May 30—(CP) — The first black-out in the history of the ancient city of Jerusalem was ordered today for next Monday. Authorities are not taking any risks regarding the inviolability of the Holy City in the matter of air raids.

WOMEN AVIATORS ADMITTED

Paris, May 30 — (AP) — One hundred French women aviators will be admitted into the air army for flying in non-battle regions, the Official Journal announced today. They must be between the ages of 21 and 40 and must have had at least 300 hours of solo flying.

R.A.C. INCORPORATED IN DEFENSE

London, May 30—(CP) — The country-wide organization of the Royal Automobile Club, including hundreds of telephone boxes, road patrols, branch offices and tabulated routes covering every road in the island, has been incorporated into Britain's defense system.

ROBT. MONTGOMERY TO DRIVE AMBULANCE

Paris, May 30—(AP) — Robert Montgomery, American motion picture actor, arrived today in Paris from London to become an ambulance driver with the American field service.

He said he joined the volunteer group because "it affords a chance for a practical application of President Roosevelt's good neighbor policy."

Escape from Norway

London, May 30 (CP)— Five British soldiers and 12 Norwegian refugees have reached a Scottish port after escaping from German occupied sections of Norway. Their boat was wrecked on rocks off the Scottish coast.

Nazis Halted Short of Goals Along Somme and Aisne Rivers Reached by Kaiser's Troops

When and Whefe Will Next Activity be Along French Front? Is Question Asked

(By Guy Rhoades, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The battle of Flanders is drawing to a close but still flows on with such tragedy and fury that it tends to detract from the layman's mind the question which must be occupying general staffs on both sides of the titanic struggle—what next, and where?

As British and French transports, protected by warships and aircraft, shuttled wounded out of the shell-torn Dunkirk region on the English channel and the Allies in the German pocket fought perhaps the world's greatest rearguard action, some staws were raised by the wind.

Germany's Old Trick

Germany accused the Allies of seeking to make Switzerland and Portugal accept Allied guarantees of security and it appeared to be the old trick. It and another incident obscured Germany's immediate future intention which until now was assumed to be an almost immediate attempt to invade Britain.

During the battle of Flanders the French troops who were not caught in the German pocket that tightened when the Belgians laid down their arms last Tuesday have established a line running across northern France from Abbeville on the channel, eastward along the Somme and right to the Maginot Line.

Along the Somme and Aisne Rivers the Nazis are halted for the most part a considerable distance short of the goals the Kaiser's troops reached in the early days of the First Great War. If it holds against all attack an Allied victory may appear out of the Belgian collapse and the Flanders defeat.

The second incident that makes Hitler's immediate intention obscure was a savage attack on France heard over a German radio station picked up in New York. It accused France of repeatedly refusing Germany's "proffered hand of friendship" and said the Reich's "patience is at an end.'

It is not so many days ago that the German radio was telling the world the Germans had no quarrel with France but wanted only to smash Britain.

Will Hitler Strike Towards Paris?

That broadcast and the ugly-looking hint about Switzerland made some wonder if Hitler may hold his hand against the British Isles while he seeks to smash toward Paris and whether, faced by the new French line along the Somme and the Maginot Line beyond that, he may not decide it would be better to attempt to flank the Maginot Line through Switzerland than to attack frontally. He made a similar decision just three weeks ago and Belgium and Holland were the sufferers.

RED CROSS ISSUES APPEAL

Geneva, May 30 —(AP)— The International Red Cross and the league of Red Cross societies issued a joint worldwide appeal today for immediate help for more than 5,000,000 war refugees swarming into France "in desperate condition."

The appeal was directed to 22 national Red Cross organizations in Europe, Asia and Latin America.

R.A.F. Pilot Narrowly Escapes From Firing Party in Belgium

London, May 30.—(CP)—The Air Ministry today issued an account of how a Royal Air Force pilot, captured by the Germans, was threatened with death but escaped and returned to the Allied armies.

The Ministry announcement said: "A fighter pilot, who landed his damaged plane in German-held territory, was arrested and taken to a small courtyard crowded with Belgian civilians. At hourly intervals groups of civilians were ordered out, summarily questioned and shot.

"A German officer in charge of the firing squad told the pilot, 'it will be your turn next. The pilot protested that he was an officer in uniform who had come down behind the German lines as a result of aerial combat.

"The officer shrugged and replied, you are a spy or a franctireur like all these others'.

"Waiting until a new group of civilians, going to face the firing squad, afforded the cover of momentary confusion, he did a flying leap straight through a small closed window and, with only a slight cut on the cheek, landed on all fours outside, dashed through the garden and got clear away. Not one shot was fired by the surprised Germans.

"He slept on top of a haystack and the next day mingled with refugees and was given a lift in a Dutch car. On the afternoon of the second day he got over the border and reached Lille".

GENERAL ODLUM GOES TO OTTAWA

Receives Urgent Call but Will Not State Nature of Assignment

Vancouver, May 30 (CP)).—Major General Victor W. Odlum, Commander of the Second Division of the Canadian Active Service Force, Wednesday boarded a plane for Ottawa after receiving an urgent call to return to the capital.

"I received the call and I must go, that's all I know at the moment'," said General Odlum. "But evidently something is urgent."

He had planned staying with his family here until next week.

His wife and two of his three soldier sons, Major Roger Odlum and Captain Nelson Odlum, were among those bidding him farewell at the airport.

SON OF ARMS MAGNATE HAS BEEN WOUNDED

Paris, May 30 (CP Havas)—Captain Jean Schneider, eldest son of Charles Eugene Schneider, head of the Schneider-Creusot iron and steel combine, has been seriously wounded in an air battle over northern France.

Captain Schneider shot down several enemy planes before his own plane was hit and set on fire, it was announced today. He took to his parachute and came down within French lines. Hope was expressed he will recover.

AT THE BELLE

"Sidewalks of London"

The latest in motion picture teams is made up of two of the day's leading celebrities, Charles Laughton and Vivien Leigh, currently co-starred in "Sidewalks of London," Paramount's comedy drama about life in the stage door world of a great metropolis.

Laughton comes to the local screen with moviegoers still enthusiastic about his work in "Jamaica Inn" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Miss Leigh, his new leading lady, needs no introduction to film audiences. Enough said, she's the Scarlett O'Hara of "Gone With the Wind!" Both stars are now cast in modern roles as "buskers," or London sidewalk entertainers.

Others in the cast of "Sidewalks of London," which is now at the Belle theatre are Rex Harrison, Tyrone Guthrie and Larry Adler.

"Opened by Mistake" Funny

Charlie Ruggles is back again! Up to his ears in trouble, and up to his nose in a highball glass!

It happens at the Belle theatre where "Opened by Mistake" is having its local showing and patrons who fondly remembered his intoxicatingly intoxicated portrayals in "Gentlemen of the Press," "Exclusive" and others, were gaspingly delighted to see their old favorite back in his favorite role.

This time he tried to keep his head clear through a comic-melodrama that would have mellowed many a better man. As Buzz Nelson, sports writer, he tries to help his reporter friend Robert Paige wit good advice and timely suggestions. The advice is bad the suggestions balmy.

They manage to trick a thousand dollars from their boss William Frawley for a make-believe trip to Yucatan, and the following week the horses they bet on manage to trip them away from the thousand dollars. Then Paige has to appear on an incoming steamer, and Ruggles gets him a second-hand trunk to make the return more plausible.

As soon as he buys the trunk, Janice Logan offers him double the purchase price. But Buzz can't cope with two ideas at once. He refuses and scurries to the arriving ship.

The phoney arrival flops beautifully, Paige and Ruggles are both fired, and then the fun begins. For when the trunk is delivered to their room, it contains one complete and very dead body.

Miss Logan arrives again, still offering top prices, and suspicion plus counter-suspicion runs rampant. Miss Logan and Jimmie go away together threatening one another with police action, until they hear a police radio order all cars to look for them. Then they stay together, threats forgotten.

Police surround Ruggles for a possible clue, and for his further confusion. Too many mixed drinks, and missing persons have him nervously nodding agreement to everything.

A thrill packed laugh riot follows from there, and in the end, completely confused, even Charlie gets romantic!

The picture is first-rate entertainment, and you'll be chuckling at Charlie's antics long after the curtain falls.

America's Youth of 1940 is the subject treated in the all new edition of the March of Time to be presented on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"GAUCHO SERENADE"

"Gaucho Serenade," newest of Republic's stream-lined Gene Autry Westerns, is now playing at the Capitol Theatre, and demonstrates once again the tremendous hold Autry has on his public.

Confirmed Autry fans, as well as neophytes, will enjoy the current offering with unbridled enthusiasm. Autry is splendid in his characterization of the dashing cowboy who intervenes when a youngster is threatened by gangsters. The latter planned to kidnap the child, and in this way force his father into silence at a graft hearing where he is scheduled to give testimony which will involve them.

Smiley Burnette, comic as always, scores heavily with his rendition of "The Wooing of Kitty McFuty."

June Storey, the lovely blonde leading lady, again demonstrates her capabilities as "Joyce," the eastern society girl who is fleeing an unwelcome marriage.

Mary Lee, a talented youngster, plays Joyce's kid sister and wins applause with her special number, "Give Out With a Song."

Among the other players are Smith Ballew, himself a western star of some note, Lester Matthews, Clifford Severn, William Ruhl, Walter Miller, Hank Warden, Frank Meredith, Harry Strang, Joe Crehan, Wade Boteler and George Lloyd.

Frank McDonald directed under Associate Producer William Berke.

On the same program the added feature brings Ricardo Cortez and Sally Eilers in "Talk of the Devil," a picture full of suspense and thrills.

The 6th chapter of the thrilling serial, "The Phantom Creeps," and a cartoon completes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Too Many Husbands"

The greatest comedy trio, Jean Arthur, Fred McMurray and Melvyn Douglas, in the year's funniest picture "Too Many Husbands" is now the current delightful hit playing at the McCarthy theatre.

In addition to the outstanding performances of the three stars, valuable characterizations are provided by Dorothy Peterson, as a love starved secretary whose imagination places her in Jean's position, much to Jean's dismay; Melville Cooper, as an imperturbable butler definitely perturbed by the sudden discovery that he has two masters; and Harry Davenport (the grand old man of the screen) as Jean's sympathetic "helpful" father who doesn't care which of the two men she chooses—she loves them both—just so long as she chooses one and gets rid of the other the law catches up to her.

"Two Many Husbands" belongs as comedy and as entertainment, with such other triumphant films as "It Happened One Night," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "The Awful Truth," "You Can't take it With You" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" which therefore puts it on your "Must See" memo pad.

Ottawa Home Raided, A. Brosseau Arrested

Ottawa, May 30 — (CP)— Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers seized numerous pamphlets of the National Unity Party in a raid early today on a suburban Eastview home and arrested Alex Brosseau, 38. He was taken to police station here charged under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

The officers were unable to say whether any of the literature had been distributed here and believed they had seized a whole shipment of pamphlets just arrived from party headquarters in Montreal.

Later Brosseau was arraigned in Magistrate's Court and pleaded not guilty. Application for bail was refused and the case remanded to next Monday.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Sondra stared into the blank, brown face with a puzzled frown. "But why in the world should he send for the model—" A sudden thought checked further speech. The unusual request could mean but one thing—Dynamite, abetted by Kemp, was plotting some new line of action against the Reynalls. A surge of indignation against the pair made her forget to ask Ikeda how he had gained entry to the locked house when no one was at home to admit him.

"Honorable captain suggest hasty return with small ship, prease." Obsequiously, Ikeda began to edge toward the door.

"Very well. Bring it," snapped Sondra. "I'll go along with you."

"Oh, no, prease. No." The man's face was as impassive as ever, but in his narrow black eyes moved a flicker of uneasiness. "I think more better you not going, Miss Sondra."

"What do you mean?" suspiciously demanded Sondra.

"No meaning, prease." Ikeda's smile was apologetic, yet has manner was hesitant. "Only honorable captain—he not liking."

Sondra retorted with some asperity, "Well, that's just too bad for the honorable captain, because I'm going to go right down there with you and throw a monkey wrench into whatever deviltry he's hatching." She turned to the door, calling back over her shoulder, "Come along, Ikeda; and be careful how you handle that model of the Glory."

For a long moment the Japanese stood as if uncertain, his frowning gaze fixed on the girl's retreating back. Then with a shrug of resignation he answered, "Yess, Miss Sondra. I carrying most preciousry—like go'den egg."

Sondra reached Kemp's float and, with Ikeda close behind her, hastened to where the Blue Dragon was tied. Shafts of sunlight, raying down between gray cirrus clouds, seemed somehow to intensify the Sunday loneliness of the waterfront. Kemp's plant was silent and deserted, and the only person anywhere visible was a young fellow who lounged sleepily in the doorway of the Glory's radio room.

She stepped aboard the Dragon. "This way, prease." Ikeda swung open the door to the owner's stateroom—Kemp's stateroom—and stepped back, bowing her in.

A step inside she halted, surprised to find the room unoccupied. Turning to question Ikeda, she saw him closing the door upon her from the outside. A key rattled. She heard a metallic click.

"Ikeda!" She clutched the door-handle and twisted it.

The door was locked.

"Ikeda!" She could not stifle the tiny quaver in her voice. "Open this door—instantly!"

A roar from the Dragon's starting engine was the only response. She darted to one of the two open portholes, but before she reached it someone outside slammed shut the metal deadlights, plunging the room into semidarkness.

She stood immobile, feeling as if caught in the incredibility of a horrid dream. She could hear feet running up and down the deck outside, feel the quickening vibrations of the floor under her feet. Panic seized her, and she began beating at the deadlights which she knew could be opened only from outside.

Of one thing she felt certain—her grandfather was not on board the Dragon. But Kemp . . .?

"Kemp!" she called tremulously. "Kemp! Where are you?"

There was no answer. In the silence she could hear the rhythm of the engine . . . the quick slap of wavelets against the hull . . . the measured tolling of a bell . . . growing louder, then fading away.

Suddenly she caught her breath, and her eyes grew wide with startled comprehension and dismay. That was the bell-buoy on Benolkin Reef! The Dragon had cut, full speed, across the bay, and now was heading straight out to open sea.

More frightened than she had ever been in her life before, Sondra stood biting her lips to hold back the screams which she knew could reach no sympathetic ear. The swiftness, the mystery of her incredible abduction only made it the more terrifying. She had a hopeless feeling of being cut off from all aid; completely surrounded by hostile alien forces. But sheer pride of race at last lent her a measure of courage, and she lay down on the berth to try to reason away the cold dread that had fastened upon her.

Her head was aching from the stuffy atmosphere of the closed room when someone swung back the deadlight from the porthole nearest the door. Fresh salt air rushed in, and with it the mellow light of the sinking sun.

Anxiously she pressed her face into the small circle of the open port, but as far as she could see the deck outside was deserted. The Dragon, rolling smoothly, was speeding over seas that curled into emerald translucence against the long rays of the sun. Abeam, but far to starboard, was the cloud of hovering seabirds that marked St. Lazaria. And beyond that, the blue, cameo slopes of Mount Edgecombe. The position of these familiar landmarks told Sondra that the Dragon was heading out toward the vast, lonely Gulf of Alaska.

She had just turned away from the port when someone paused outside and impatiently rattled the handle of her door. Footsteps of a second person came briskly along the deck and stopped also. "Your pardon, Lieutenant. I should have told you earlier that I've appropriated your stateroom to the use of a guest who came aboard while you were busy in the engine room."

Sondra gasped with astonishment. The voice, unmistagably Ikeda's, was no longer accented and obsequious. His perfect English was rendered with a clipped, military ring. Sondra's astonishment deepened when the man addressed as "Lieutenant" answered, in Kemp's familiar accents, "A guest! What are you playing at, Ikeda?"

"I am playing no longer, Lieutenant. I'm fighting now to save our necks—yours and mine." Arrogant authority, and something of sardonic amusement were in those tones. "While in the act of securing the Aleutian charts at O'Moore's, I had the extreme misfortune to be interrupted by one who, despite my objections, insisted on accompanying me back to the Blue Dragon. Perforce, the lady has become my guest."

Kemp groaned and said in a lowered voice: "Polena, of course. But, Commander, at a time like this we can't afford—"

"He couldn't afford to leave a body behind to be discovered and raise a hue and cry," the Japanese cut in, seemingly indifferent to the fact that Sondra might hear. "Besides, Miss O'Moore is much too young and beautiful to—"

"My Lord! Not Sondra? You haven't got Sondra O'Moore locked in here?"

"You are surprised, Lieutenant. You are not—ah—rebellious also, I trust?" A purring softness charged the words with deadly meaning.

After a barely perceptible pause Kemp's reply came in an almost unrecognizable snarl, "If I'm rebellious it's only because I'm interested in saving those necks you mention—particularly my own. Kidnapping that girl seems to me a sure means of raising a hue and cry."

"Not at all. The servants of her household were all gone—I had seen to that. If anyone saw her boarding the Dragon, he would take it for granted she was going for a run with you, as she has so often done. And may I emphasize this point, Lieutenant: I did not kidnap the lady. She boarded my boat against my protests."

"But eventually—"

"Eventually, O'Moore and that bevy of U.S. agents aboard the Pelley will descend on Sitka to arrest us. They'll find us gone, and no clue as to our destination. But, should it so happen that we are pursued and overtaken, I am not insensible to the fact that Captain O'Moore's lovely granddaughter may prove a valuable hostage to hold in our hands.

For a moment Sondra was so stunned by what she had overheard that she failed to comprehend all it meant. The one incredible thing she grasped was that Ikeda, here, was in supreme command, and she was at his mercy. What did he mean to do with her? Where was he taking her?

x x x

A quarter of an hour later she heard the murmur of voices as Kemp and Ikeda re-entered the stateroom next to hers. Quickly, she stretched out on the berth and pressed an ear to the thin partition.

Ikeda's crisp tones came through distinctly. "Brandy and glasses, Lieutenant. . . . Thanks. . . . Now, let's try to solve the puzzle of O'Moore's ship model. Exquisite piece of work, isn't it?"

"First, let's talk about O'Moore's granddaughter," Kemp insisted. "What do you intend doing with her?"

Ikeda laughed. "Can it be that the mock court you've been paying the young lady has evolved into a genuine heart interest?"

"My chief interest is in getting out of this mess without starting something we can't stop. Espionage is one thing—every nation engages in it under cover. Points are won and lost—under cover. But open abduction of a U.S. national, whether intentional or not, is a different matter. It's dangerous, and—"

"Doubly dangerous, you would say, when the abductee is the young and beautiful granddaughter of an influential citizen," Ikeda cut in smoothly. "Ah, I know the American psychology, Lieutenant. While your people take no interest in the really important affairs of state, some relatively unimportant matter, such as this, can quickly arouse the entire nation to fighting pitch—if publicized. But, my friend, this affair will not be publicized."

"But, man! You'll have to release the girl, sometime."

"Per—haps. But have no fear, Lieutenant. When Miss O'Moore goes out of my hands, she will not talk."

"Ikeda! If you mean murder—"

"My dear Lieutenant! Nothing is farther from my meaning. During my short sojourn in Sitka I have watched your spirited countrywoman with growing admiration. My nocturnal visits to Echo House have afforded me many delightfully informal glimpses of the young lady. My searches there for the charts have given me a comprehensive picture of her background. Her ancestors, particularly. Their splendid physiques, their courage, their initiative. Qualities a man wants in his sons. In brief, though Miss O'Moore came aboard my boat despite my protests, I have none but the most honorable intentions toward her. In this matter I am again the opportunist; for I expect, Lieutenant, to make your charming countrywoman Madame Ikeda."

"You—you—" There was a choked sound; then, "Ikeda, are you utterly mad?"

"By no means. Consider: Before noon tomorrow we shall board the warship of my country that awaits us off Middleton Island. We shall proceed to Yokohama, Miss O'Moore receiving the most courteous and honorable attention. With all honor, but strict secrecy, she will be transported through Rokohama to my home on the Tokyo Road. No news of her passing will ever leak out to disturb your honorable government, Lieutenant."

London, May 31—(CP)—Reliable sources estimated today that a total of about 90,000 British, French and Belgian troops had been landed in England from the Flanders battleground.

About two-thirds of these are Britons. The total figure, 90,000, is approximately one-half the original strength of the British Expeditionary Force of 175,000 in Flanders. Hence about one-third, or 58,000 of the original British force is estimated by these sources to be safely home.

There are no figures here on total British or Allied casualties.

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Wind speed! Wind is as variable in speed over the earth as is the amount of rainfall. In the United States its average speed varies from as low as 7 miles an hour to 27 at Mt. Washington, N.H. Really to appreciate the wind conditions at any place, one should have information giving the average speed and prevailing direction for each month and for the year, the highest speed for each month and the direction from which these usually blow. The average speed is, of course, the average for as long as there is a record. The highest speed is usually measured for a five-minute period and is very accurate. The instantaneous speeds of gusts are more difficult to measure, but are close enough for practical purposes.

ITALY MAY STRIKE WITHOUT WARNING SAY OBSERVERS

Few Expect Any Declaration of War — No Indication of Where Attack Might be Made

CABINET MEETS TUES.

Rome, May 31 (AP).—Most observers confronted with reports from Berlan that Adolf Hitler was planning an announcement which might deal with Italy's role in the war predicted today that Italy would lash out without warning when she decided to strike for her "aspirations".

Few expected any sort of declaration of war, although the general expectancy that Italy soon would enter the conflict centred attention on a cabinet meeting called next Tuesday by Premier Mussolini to discuss "important matters".

Newspaper posters screamed the theme that British and French resistance is doomed and that therefore it is useless to think Italy might desert Germany for the Allies in the eleventh hour.

The principal question appeared to be whether Italy would strike directly at France, at French and British Mediterranean possessions, or launch an independent Balkan drive menacing Greece and Turkey and thus ultimately the French and the British.

Citizens of Britain and France pressed for exit visas.

Americans whose duties kept them in Italy hastily wrote letters home which they believed might be the last to go by boat before this nation is cut off by sea from the United States.

Word that the United States liner Washington would not come to Italy but would embark Americans at Bordeaux, France, brought general belief that the U.S. liners Manhattan and President Harrison would be the last boats to the United States before war breaks here.

Refugees, Clogging Roads in Allied Lines, Hindered Troop Movements

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, JR.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Berne, Switzerland, May 31 — (AP)—Clogging of vital Allied roads with millions of refugees and the efficiency of Germany's military machine in keeping its own supply routes unobstructed defeated the Allies in the battle of Flanders, eye-witnesses returning from the war zone declared today.

One said the morale-shattering presence of masses of refugees in areas where the Belgian army was being "cut to bits" by the Nazi aerial and land assault accounted in part for surrender of King Leopold 111.

Seven eye-witnesses, who came here through Germany after being caught in the midst of fighting in four different zones of western and southern Belgium and northern and western France, agreed on contrasting these pictures:—

1. Chaos of the streams of refugees and non-combatants, flowing with all their movable possessions into roads essential to Allied communications.

2. Orderliness in the rush of German supplies over highways leading to the front.

The eye-witnesses, who declined to be named, included four diplomats, two business and "just a tourist." Four were more or less pro-Ally, the others equally pro-German.

One gave this description of the scene along the Calais-Abbeville coast road in northern France last Wednesday:—

"We swarmed along the coast road with tens of thousands of other refugees heading south. Swearing and sweating French troops in motorized units tried to go through northward, but the refugees were panic-stricken and there was little the troops could do.

"I saw one group of refugees

HEAVY NEW TAXES TO FINANCE WAR ARE EXPECTED

Officials of Bank of Canada Exchange Control Board and Finance Department Study Problem

BUDGET COMING SOON

Ottawa, May 31 (CP).—Officials of the Bank of Canada, the Foreign Exchange Control Board and the Finance Department have been struggling daily with the problems of financing Canada's war program and, within ten days or two weeks, when the budget is presented in parliament, their decisions will be made known.

When Finance Minister Ralston brings down the budget he probably will announce some heavy new taxes to pay for the war, but in months to come will be altered to meet emergencies.

Cost of Mechanised Warfare.

Canada's problems in meeting the costs of war are more onerous than those of 1914-18, largely because of highly-expensive mechanized warfare and the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, of which the Dominion bears the major burden.

In 1917, at the height of the first great war, the March budget showed war costs had mounted $533,000,000 a year, and Canada had been in the

Germans Unable to Prevent Embarkation of British and French Troops from Channel Coast—Foe Can Do No More Than Inflict 'Minor Injuries' on Ships Involved

London, May 31 —(CP)— British military circles said today that evacuation of "large numbers" of British and French troops from northern France "still goes on."

A military commentator said Allied troops now hold a line "a certain distance from the coast."

Commenting on a German claim that the British army fled to the coast in disorder, the commentator said:—

"The hard fact remains that no military operation is so difficult as embarkation at the end of a retreat."

He added, "There could not have been very much 'fleeing in disorder.'"

Citing the German contention that air power had taken the place of sea power, he admitted Nazi air superiority in numbers but said the Germans were unable to prevent the embarkation of troops and were unable to inflict more than "minor injuries" on the ships involved.

(Havas Staff Writer)

Narvik, Norway, May 31 (CP-Havas). — Allied troops occupying this newly-captured northern port prepared today to move against the remnants of the defeated German garrison, now barricated for the most part in a tunnel near Straumsnes on the Swedish iron ore railway.

While the Allied forces of some 15,000 men were estimated to outnumber the Nazis five to one, the cleanup job was expected to be far from easy. The Austrian and Bavarian soldiers had time in the last seven weeks to build formidable secondary defence works, and the landing of substantial German parachute reinforcements was anticipated.

Narvik itself fell to the Allies after 36 hours of violent house-to-house fighting. The town was a crumbled wreckage of debris, with scarcely a building left standing after the repeated shellings and bombings to which it had been submitted since the April 9 German invasion.

The final battle began Tuesday at 5 a.m. when Allied air squadrans and artillery aboard British warships opened a barrage to cover a frontal assault led by Norwegian troops, supported by British and Polish contingents, many of them brought up in small fishing boats from Bjervik and Oeyved.

Wednesday morning more Allied reinforcements were landed from Ankenes.

3,000 Civilians Still in Town

Some 3,000 civilians were still in the town Tuesday, sleeping in cellars under their ruined homes, when the final assault began.

Will Hitler Try to Divide Allies With Peace Offers?

Some Observers Think He May Threaten Italy's Entry but Allied Solidarity is Certain

'UNBREAKABLE BOND'

London, May 31—(CP)—Informed London observers said today that they were looking for an early attempt by Adolf Hitler to divide England and France with separate offers of peace.

These quarters said they expected Hitler to flourish a threat of Italian entry into the war on Germany's side to induce acceptance of such offers.

Studying the possibilities of the Fuehrer's next Blitzkrieg move, these observers said they were not discounting his penchant for doing the completely unexpected.

Hitler's strategy of taking one foe at a time while others are helpless to render effective aid supported the theory of some persons that the Fuehrer would attempt to smash France before concentrating on an invasion of Britain.

Parts of Belgian Air Force Are Reorganized in R. A. F.

New York, May 31—(AP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation in a news report picked up here, said today parts of the Belgian air force which refused to surrender have been re-organized in the Royal Air Force.

Heavy losses inflicted by the Allies upon the German air force probably have enabled Britain and France to achieve equality with the Germans in trained flying personnel, the BBC said in another broadcast heard here today.

It said a figure of 5,000 Germans lost "is thought to be a low estimate." This was based on the estimated destruction of 2,000 German planes, most of them bombers, since the invasion of Belgium and The Netherlands.

"These losses in men in the air are thought to be three or four times as great as those of Britain and France," it added, "and while the Germans have still a great number of planes, the Allies have probably already equality in respect to personuel."

Vast Stretches Behind Seacoast North and South of Dunkirk Flooded by Opening Locks

Paris, May 31 (AP). — Advance units of General Prioux's army described officially as "important", today reached the safe haven of Dunkirk after battering their way through the German line during the night.

French and British warships pushed the evacuation of the weary, war torn units which had been fighting off furious Nazi onslaughts.

At the same time, the vessels landed new food and war supplies for French divisions still fighting at the southern end of the corridor to the sea.

The Prioux units, a military spokesman said, reached Dunkirk with war equipment which they succeeded in saving from the Germans.

The situation for the French troops still insist the Nazi pocket, with German infiltrations threatening them, remained "grave but not desperate", the spokesman said.

With the "line of Mounts" salient, which the Germans established yesterday, fractured, the French apparently held an advantage for maintaining the breach.

SILVER MAY BE IN DEMAND

Butte, Mont, May 31.—(AP)—Silver will be in greater demand during the war and may become the metallic base for international currency after the conflict is over, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada told reports today.

"There isn't sufficient gold in the world to place the leading commercial countries on a gold base. Silver may provide the needed base or at least a percentage of it," he said.

British Escort Brings German to London Station Where Officers and Police Are in Waiting

London, May 31—(CP)—A steel-helmeted German officer in field boots arrived at Victoria Station last night under British escort. It was obvious that the prisoner had been expected. Several officers and military police were waiting at the station.

The German officer was rushed to a military transport office.

N. Z. VOTES POWER TO CONSCRIPT MEN, MATERIALS

Action Taken Follows Along Lines of British Emergency Measures

NO RUSH ACTION

By J. C. Little
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Wellington, May 31.—(CP Cable)—The New Zealand parliament today passed through all legislative stages the Government's Emergency Powers Act providing for compulsory military service and giving the state authority to conscript all the Dominion's resources.

The measure, announced yesterday in the speech from the throne read by Viscount Galway, the Governor General, at the opening of parliament, is along lines similar to those of the British Emergency Powers Act.

The introduction of conscription in the Dominion, both for overseas service and for home defence, arises

PRICE IN CICERI AD CORRECTED

New potatoes were listed in Ciceri's advertisement in last night's issue as "3 lbs. 10c." This was incorrect and should have read "6 lbs 10c."

FINE HERD SIRE IS PURCHASED

A fine herd sire comes to Prince Edward County as a result of the purchase at the National Holstein Sale held in Brampton this week, of "Emperor Bonheur Nig" by Amos Hudgen and Brian Dodds, Cherry Valley breeders. The animal was consigned by E. J. Brown, Orono, and its dam came from the famous Mount Victoria Heights farms, Quebec. The animal was born in 1939.

The top price bull of the sale was "Mount Vic Ragapple Marksman", which sold for $1,325.00 although born only last January. It was purchased by Kerval and Craig of Alliston.

A large number of Hastings and Prince Edward County breeders attended the sale.

DUCK BREAKS GLASS IN LIGHTHOUSE TOWER

Attracted by the powerful lights of the beam in the lighthouse on False Duck Island, a sheldrake duck crashed through a quarter inch plate glass window in the tower of the building.

The bird suffered an injured wing, but despite the force with which it struck the glass after being cared for over a period of a few days was able to fly again. Many small birds crash against the glass in the tower of the lighthouse, but the duck was the first to cause any damage to the windows.

5 AND 10 PESO NOTES CIRCULATED

According to reports from the western and central part of the province, Mexican currency in five and ten peso denominations is making its appearance there and a number of business men victimized.

Toronto race tracks, it is reported, prove a strong lure for the pseudo-money passers, and from these spots the currency finds its way to different parts of the province. Merchants in this district are warned to be on the alert for this currency as it value is practically nil.

56 PRISONERS CONFINED IN JAIL

Fifty-six inmates, the highest figure for this time of the year, over a lengthy period of time, were registered at the Hastings County jail yesterday, according to officials. Jails throughout the province are showing a decided increase in the number of inmates, over figures of several years, it was stated.

EXCESSIVE MOISTURE ROTS VEGETABLE SEEDS

Early planting of cucumbers, melons and other more or less delicate seeds, will be a total loss, due to the recent heavy rains, a Bay front gardener said today. Consistent moisture and flooded garden plots has resulted in the rotting of the seeds, and preparation of the ground and planting will have to be done all over again. This will retard the time of production at least a week, he said.

CHURCH GROUPS TO GIVE ONE-ACT PLAYS IN DRAMATIC CONTEST

The Holloway Street United Church Dramatic Club and the Odessa Young People's Society will each give a one-act play in Deseronto this week in a competitive dramatic contest sponsored by the Young People's Union of Belleville Presbytery.

GORDON McCABE APPOINTED TURNKEY AT NAPANEE JAIL

Gordon McCabe, turnkey at the Lennox County jail for the past five years, has been appointed as acting jailer in the absence of W. H. Roe, who left this week to undertake military duties at Petawawa camp.

Mr. McCabe's duties will be undertaken by Leslie Richardson, a former employee of the Gibbard Furniture Shops for the past 23 years.

RECENT RAINS BENEFIT CITY FLOWER GARDENS

Aftermath of the recent rains, the city is blossoming forth in a riot of floral and other colors. Tulips and other blooming flowers against background of blue, white and purple lilacs which are now bursting forth in all the glory of their scented bloom, are gradually transforming the garden spots, lawns and boulevards of the city into places of colorful beauty.

CITIZENS ARE URGED TO BURN CATERPILLAR NESTS IMMEDIATELY

In an attempt to eliminate, or at least, alleviate to the greatest extent, the spread of the tent caterpillar which is now infesting trees and bushes in the city, City officials today urged residents to combat the menace by burning the pests before they reach maturity.

An oily rag, attached to a long stick, is the surest method of elimination, City Engineer Charles Mott said. A pail or a large tin can attached to the stick below the oily rag will catch the caterpillars as they drop off the trees, and thus prevent the spread.

City workmen are already employed at this work, and officials ask the co-operation of all residents on whose property the infested trees and shrubbery grow.

Prompt action, however, is urged as the caterpillars should be destroyed before they reach their growth and get in their deadly work.

B.C.I. Girl Cadet Corps In Dress Rehearsal For Their Inspection

Neat and trim in their uniforms of blue forage caps, white blouses, blue ties and stockings and "saddle" shoes, two hundred and fifty of the newly-formed girl cadet corps of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, swung smartly past a reviewing stand on the campus today in a dress rehearsal for their inspection to be held on June 4th.

Under the critical eyes of instructors and officers of the Boy Cadet Corps, the young girls of the corps, the first to be formed in seven years, paraded to the marching tempos of the B.C.I. band in company, battalion, column of route and other march-past formations.

Considering the length of the period of training, the girls have shown a remarkable aptitude for this form of training, an instructor said. "There are few rough spots to be ironed out yet and some of the fine points of drill and review formations to be asborbed, but we expect that by the time inspection day rolls around they will be one of the best corps of its kind in the district".

Three Cars Involved In Accident, No One Sustained Injuries

Careening from the rear of a motor car in front, an automobile driven by a woman motorist of Trenton, collided headon with an east-bound automobile near the western entrance to the city early last evening.

She was following another motor car driven westerly by J. Wiederhold of Toronto, when the latter was forced to slow down owing to congested traffic. Her car struck the rear of the Wiederhold vehicle and careened to the left where it collided with the front of an east bound car driven by driver from Detroit. "The remarkable feature of the whole accident was the fact there was little property damage and no injuries sustained by any of the occupants," stated Traffic Officer Sam Ervine following investigation. The matter of damages was amicably settled among the parties concerned.

POLICE COURT

Robert Paust, who gave Carleton Place as his home address and who has been held for investigation by local police for the past two weeks on a nominal charge of vagrancy, was today dismissed from custody after he had pleaded guilty.

"It is said this man was molesting young girls who are of such a tender age it would not be practical to bring them into court," revealed Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan K.C., as he suggested Paust be released and suggested he leave the city, although nothing of a serious nature was proven against him.

William Harrison, 68-year-old Sidney farm hand, pleaded guilty to a charge of common drunkenness and was sentenced to serve 14 days in default of payment of the conventional fine. "Can't you give me a break? This is the first time I've been here in three years," Harrison pleaded in a futile effort to have his case dismissed. He was apprehended by Provincial Police.

When the name of Gerald Hall was called to answer a charge of assault the accused failed to answer to his name. "The complainant in this case had failed to appear also," revealed Chief Kidd and the entire matter was laid over until Monday.

An R.C.A.F. airman was given seven days in the common jail after being convicted on a charge of violations of the L.C.A.

Yesterday a local retail fish peddler was fined $10.00 and costs after being convicted of the purchase and sale of game fish, to wit black bass. Game Warden Herb McCabe today withheld the name of the accused person "just in protection of other dealers," explained the Game Warden.

HEAVY NEW TAXES

fight more than 8½ years. Col. Ralston has estimated war costs for the current fiscal year at $700,000,000 and the dominion has only been on a war basis since September.

In one of the many studies which supplement the report of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations is a review of the government's financial policy from 1914-18 which gives an authoritative insight into the background of measures adopted than.

Loans and Taxation.

Emphasis then was on war loans as opposed to taxation, while this year it is probable that taxation will play an even more important role than war loans under the government's "pay-as-you-go" plan which will be followed as closely as possible.

Resort to increased taxation was not really made until the public indicated its desire for heavier taxation in 1917. The business profits war tax had been imposed in 1916 but it covered only large firms and absorbed one quarter of all profits in excess of seven per cent.

In 1917 the Income War Tax Act was imposed and the Business Profits Tax increased.

The first Victory Loan was launched in November, 1917, and $546,000,000 was subscribed. This was followed by the second Victory Loan in 1918 and the third in 1919.

The Business Profits Tax War increased again in 1918 but was removed in 1921. Also in 1918 the income tax was boosted and was jumped again in 1919, with the surtax added in 1920. In the same year the one per cent sales tax was introduced as the last of the immediate post-war taxation measures.

Ships of all Kinds Used

(By Fred Backhouse, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A Southeast Coast Port in England, May 31—(CP-Cable)—Every hour, in craft of all shapes and sizes, tens of thousands of men of the British Expeditionary Force with their French comrades are being landed safely at ports on the south coast of England in one of the quickest movements in British military history.

It was estimated that the landings of British, French and Belgian troops from Flanders were equal to one-half the original strength of the B.E.F.

Heroic Fishermen

Grimy and exhausted Tommies said that when they arrived at the coast, fishermen — many of them old salts of 70—volunteered to a man to take their tiny unarmed boats across the channel.

One lifeboat, a veteran rescue ship of this war, was promptly put to sea with men over 60 aboard. As more blood-stained and tattered troops landed, private motorboat owners hurried to "help out." Officially nothing was done about them. Unofficially they went.

7 Ships Dock in Hour

At one period of the day seven ships docked at a south coast port in less than two hours. The men clambered into trains and were whipped away to bases in various parts of England within half an hour of landing.

stand like sheep—dazed and bewildered—and halt a whole column of tanks at least 10 minutes before they literally were led off the road.

"German planes bombed and machine-gunned these roads, for their swift moving, organized columns of troops."

Germans Maintained Order

A diplomat who travelled through German-occupied regions from Amiens to Luxembourg asserted that "after the chaos we left (in France), the order on the German side seemed incredible. Supplies not only were moving up—they were rushing up at breakneck speed over unobstructed highways.

"Ambulances rolled toward Amiens, empty trucks and full ambulances headed back. The middle lane, by strict order which was followed to the letter, was left open for motorcycle couriers."

One who left the Belgian northern war zone the day King Leopold capitulated declared that "nobody who was there could wonder why."

"The Belgian army was cut to bits," this witness said. "Whole regiments simply vanished under German fire the day before the surrender.

"Even that was not enough to bring surrender, but the troops' morale was shattered by the presence of masses of refugees literally on the army's skirts.

"German bombers striking at Belgian supply lines struck refugees too—Belgian refugees.

"Many Belgian soldiers seemed start mad—torn between the desire to continue the fight and the inability to avoid bringing German fire on refugees who shared their camps."

Another witness who travelled the road between Arras and Cambrai in northeastern France Wednesday said:

"Refugees and soldiers lay side by side along the road in death.

"Our column of refugees (they then were in German-occupied territory captured the night before) flowed up to a place where we saw a well-dressed businessman standing in front of his car in a ditch, looking under the raised hood. I ran out to see if I could help him. Like others on the ground around him, he was stiff in death."

Must Rise Earlier To Beat Paper Thief

It is generally conceded that Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn is not only qualified, but capable of protecting and dispensing legal papers, but when it comes to the guarding of his daily newspaper, Hastings County's genial Sheriff is apparently at a loss as to the adequate provision of that authoritative measure.

Today Sheriff O'Flynn had to summons the entire Belleville police force to endeavor locating his morning paper, which has been stolen from his premises several times recently.

In solution police authorities suggested that the Sheriff become an earlier riser, in his own interests.

OBITUARY

LATE MISS M. SEXSMITH
(Empey Hill)

Empey Hill (Special)—Miss Maggie Sexsmith, passed peacefully away at her late home on Friday morning, May 24th, following a lengthy illness. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. King George Sexsmith and had lived all her life on the farm where she was born. She was well and favorably known by her neighbors and friends. ## Stoco Lake Level At Flood Stage

Tweed —(Special)— The waters of Stoco Lake have been rising steadily since Wednesday, May 22, and reached their highest level on Tuesday, May 28, at a point within a few inches of the record height of three years ago. During this interval of less than a week the water rose between four and five feet flooding half the park area at Tweed. The unprecedented flood stage at this time of year is due to the torrential rains of the past week, especially heavy in the area north of Tweed. At Plevna precipitation between Wednesday and Sunday was in excess of five and one-half inches, according to Tweed Forestry Branch, completely flooding much of the area and marooning a number of the inhabitants. The removal of stop-logs in a number of dams to relieve the situation, loosed a flood of water upon the southern part of the county and was in part responsible for the situation in Tweed.

All Export Cheese Must be White

A sweeping trend toward the exclusive manufacture of white cheese by district cheese factories was noticed at the Belleville Cheese Board last evening when out of a total of 2,346 cheese offered for sale, only 245 were of the colored variety. Ordinarily at this time of year the cheese offered for sale at the Belleville board would average approximately fifty per cent. white and fifty per cent. colored but the recent order of the British Food Ministry for 78,400,000 pounds of white cheese has prompted the definite switch to the manufacture of the uncolored variety.

During the course of Thursday evening's board meeting, Mr. Fred Mallory, Secretary of the Belleville Cheese Board, read a telegram received by the Belleville board from the Dairy Products Board in Montreal stating that beginning as from the 31st of May all cheese to be acceptable for export to the British markets must be white and unwaxed.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

More About Quin Health Today

As told yesterday, the physical condition of the Dionne Quintuplets as they enter their seventh year, today, is quite normal— in other words, they are healthy. This was established when they were examined by the first of three specialists to see them in recent days.

Second specialist to examine them was their dentist. He found there isn't a single cavity in any of their teeth.

The man who looks after their teeth is Dr. Arnold D. Mason, dean of the faculty of the University of Toronto. He was accompanied to the Nursery by an assistant, Dr. Corrigan, and the two were so impressed by the behaviour of the children that they not only spoke to me about it personally but they even mentioned it in their official report. What impressed them most was that the children were glad to see them and didn't mind in the least having their teeth examined. Apparently, it is something of a treat to a dentist for a child to be glad to see him. The official report says: "The children remembered us from our former visits, and were very happy and took an interest in the various procedures."

We know the Quins certainly did take an interest in the proceedings, for they have been giving each other's mouths the "once over" ever since.

Dean Mason's reports says further: "I found their mouths in a very healthy condition and there was no evidence of dental caries in any of the teeth." Caries, of course are cavities. Decay has never gotten a foothold in their mouths.

Since he had last examined them, the Quins have begun losing baby teeth. The report says: "All the children have lost the two lower centrals. These teeth had been shed normally as the roots had been absorbed by the development of the centrals of the second dentition. From the small portion of the crowns of the second teeth which are visible, the teeth appeared to be of good quality."

It will be interesting to remember that of all the Quintuplets, the most likley one to have work for her dentist to do is Cecile. Dean Mason tested their saliva and of five the only one whose mouth showed a tendency to the acid side was Cecile. However, I see no reason for worry. Cecile is the dainty one. She is the Quin who looks after her appearance more than any. She is the one who can be depended on to brush her teeth regularly without being prompted.

This acid condition of Cecile's mouth, the fact that all five are slightly overweight, and a minor defect in one of Marie's eyes were the only criticisms of the Quins' health the specialists had.

As is well known, Marie has had a slight strabismus in her right eye. This the examination showed, is responding to treatment. Otherwise the sight of all the Quins is good.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Gauche Serenade"

The Gaucho Serenade, latest of Republic's Gene Autry westerns which opened at the Capitol Theatre to a capacity audience, lives up to the high standard Republic has established for these Autry pictures and, in fact, establishes a new high.

Each Autry picture seems better than the last and this reviewer is amazed at the plot ingenuity and production skill of each succeeding film in the series.

Smiley Burnette displays his comedy talents to excellent advantage in "Gaucho Serenade," and June Storey was never prettier or more capable than in her present role of Joyce, the rich girl who rebels against marrying a man she does not love.

Clifford Severn, an appealing moppet, acquits himself well as "Ronnie," the little English boy who would become a pawn for the misdeeds of a gang of crooks were it not for the vigilance of Gene and Smiley.

Smith Ballew, long a favorite, is excellently cast as "Buck," the cowboy sweetheart of the eastern society girl, who eventually gives up the range to become a movie cowboy.

The supporting players, all of them splendid in their roles, include Lester Matthews, Joe Crehan, Wade Boteler, George Lloyd, William Ruhl, Hank Warden, Frank Meredith and Harry Strang.

Frank McDonald directed under Associate Producer William Berke. Betty Burbridge and Bradford Ropes are responsible for an exceptionally good screenplay.

"House of the Seven Gables"

"The House of the Seven Gables," one of the great novels of the American author, Nathaniel Hawthorne is now in film form.

Universal's screen dramatization, first ever made of this literary classic, will come to the Capitol Theatre next week.

In the leading roles will be seen George Sanders, Margaret Lindsay, Vincent Price, Nan Grey and Dick Foran.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Too Many Husbands"

"Too Many Husbands," starring Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas, which is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre can be credited as being a comedy production that will rank high among the "top ten" of the season.

Miss Arthur, in brilliant contrast to the dramatic finesse she displayed in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and "Only Angels Have Wings,' employs to the full her triumphant gift for light comedy. As the lonely wife suddenly "blessed" with two devoted husbands, Miss Arthur delightedly and delightfully expresses her appreciation of the flattering circumstance, as well as her perplexed and fearful recognition that its outcome might well mean a prison sentence for her. Except for its many comic implications, the latter note is not too greatly stressed. "Too Many Husbands" is, after all, a comedy and Miss Arthur is one of the deftest comediennes on the screen today.

Players are Superb

As her husbands, both Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas extract the fullest measure of mirth from their super-charged roles. MacMurray is cast as Jean's first husband, whose errant wanderlust has kept him from her, although they love each other deeply. When he is reported drowned at sea, Jean finds comfort and love with Fred's business partner and best friend, Douglas, who is as staid and conservative as MacMurray had been wild and irrepressible. They are married and then Jean discovers that business affairs are keeping her new husband from her.

MacMurray suddenly returns— one husband too many!

The unique comedy situations— Jean's inability to explain her changed marital status to her own husband, the determined effort made by the two husbands to decide who shall retire gracefully from the scene, the intensive courtship which both men pay to their previously lonely wife, Fred's efforts to emulate Melvyn and Melvyn's efforts to emulate Fred— make of "Too Many Husbands" a picture in a thousand; the startling denouement, in which a judge renders his decision and Jean interprets that decision to suit her own desires, makes of "Too Many Husbands" a picture in a million.

Credit must be given to the minor players, to Harry Davenport, for his sympathetic, chuckle-filled performance as Jean's father, to Melville Cooper, as the befuddled butler who suddenly discovers he has two masters, to Dorothy Peterson, as the love-starved secretary whose imagination carried her on Jean's two honeymoons.

"Too Many Husbands" is definitely a "must!"

AT THE BELLE

"Irene"

Nearly two years continuously on Broadway, half a dozen roadshow companies touring the nation, songs that quickly climbed to the popularity peaks and stayed there for years—that's the record of America's most successful musical comedy, "Irene," next at the Belle Theatre.

And now "Irene" comes to the speaking screen for the first time in RKO Radio's glittering film version, with amazing technicolor sequences, a wealth of production novelties and a star-spangled cast of favorites in the leading roles.

Its songs, too, are revived in the film: Alice Blue Gown, Irene, Castle of Dreams, with some amazing variations and foreign renditions of Alice Blue Gown added to the original numbers. They even sing the tunes in Chinese, to the accompaniment of whining and plunking Chinese instruments.

But the basis of the film is still the "Irene" story—the story of the little Irish girl who sails under the false colors from a salesgirl's job to the heights of society and into a romantic shipwreck. Anna Neagle, the sparkling British actress, has the title-role and Ray Milland shares starring honors with her. Roland Young, Alan Marshal, May Robson, Billie Burke, Arthur Treacher, Marsha Hunt, Isabel Jewell and Doris Nolan have prominent parts.

In the screen version, Scenarist Alice Duer Miller stuck closely to the original book by James Montgomery, while Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarthy, who composed the music and lyrics of the show, wrote a new number especially for the film. Herbert Wilcox produced and directed the film.

Exceptional Shorts

An exceptional array of short treats has been assembled for exhibition on the same program including the popular Belle Newsreel, Mickey House in a funny cartoon, "Tugboat Mickey," and "Letter from Aldershot," the second of the Canada Carries On series, revealing the thrilling pictorial record of Canadian troops in England—their reception and experiences in the old land. On the week-end matinee a new and thrilling chapter of "S.O.S. Coastguard" serial will be exhibited.

Vivien Leigh Scores

Vivien Leigh, the star of "Gone with the Wind," combines talents with Charles Laughton, the star of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," now at the Belle, in "Sidewalks of London." Charles Ruggles, Janice Logan and Robert Paige are featured in the romantic laugh-studded mystery film "Opened by Mistake" to be presented with an all new edition of the March of Time.

Police Blotter

From the verandah at 327 Bleecker Ave., sneak thieves stole a bicycle, the property of Frank Morton, some time last night. A description of the 'bike' was today given the police by its owner.

Belleville police issued a warrant for the arrest of a man who gave his name as H. G. Porter, alias Wm. Pane, who is wanted in this city on a charge of obtaining money by fraud, namely the passing of worthless cheques. The man is at present held in Gananoque on charges of fraud and the charges issued locally may be disposed of in that town. Porter is accused of passing two worthless cheques in local business houses.

Not a single transient sought shelter at the police station last night, the cell block being left available for the roamings of a lone inebriate, who was apprehended wandering in Sidney Township by Provincial Constable D. Adair yesterday.

Local police revealed today a marked falling off of traffic violations in Belleville, which can be attributed to the rigid enforcement of the traffic ordinance in Belleville by local authorities during the past week, Chief Kidd announced.

EPIC STORY OF HEROISM AND FORTITUDE

"The hearts of every one of us at home are with you and your magnificent troops in this hour of peril," reads a message from the King to the British Commander-in-Chief of the B.E.F., as it fought rear-guard actions towards the channel coast of France.

The soldiers of the King in the B.E.F. have written an immortal story which time can never dim. Out of the maelstrom of fire and battle, raging in the area held by the French and British after the Belgian collapse these heroes have come, having performed one of the greatest feats in military history. As the story is told now and as it will be repeated when fully revealed, the British world and the rest of the globe which is democratic will ring with the praise of the men who upheld British and French honor to the highest degree. Those who come out have a story to tell and they will be honored by the nations. Those, who died, fell in the noblest cause for which soldiers ever took up arms against a foe, who is condemned by the world for launching war out of desire to conquer and to exercise force and violence. Those who have fallen have left imperishable memories of heroism and valor. To them, to the wounded and to those who came through, the world owes a debt, because to a great degree through their heroism, the foundations of democracy are still intact and sound.

They are King's men, those soldiers of Britain, and they are true sons of liberty, those Frenchmen, who have formed that gallant army which has performed one of the greatest feats of history. With the air forces of the two nations and the Royal Navy and the French fleet will be shared the glory of the withdrawal from the "trap" or "pocket" which developed through events of the past two weeks or more since the Germans began their invasion of the Low Countries.

The fine fighting spirit of these Allied soldiers in the face of heavy odds and the brilliant strategy of the command again are exemplified to show the quality of the defenders of liberty and democracy.

Long centuries ago three hundred Greeks held the pass at Thermopylae and died but saved the western world against the invading Persian armies.

Now the deeds of the men who fought on the north front in France and Belgium have earned imperishable fame. "Never shall their glory fade," may be well said of the epic performance of the British and French.

As His Majesty said in his note to the British Commander, Viscount Gort, the hearts of all at home have been with these defenders of Britain and France "in this hour of peril."

'FOR THE SAKE OF FREEDOM'

"For Freedom's sake buy these," is a heading in the Ottawa Journal urging the people to buy war savings certificates or stamps. That in one of the finest slogans, "For Freedom's Sake."

That is what the war means to the Allies and the world. Britain and France acted when Poland was seized by the invader. They assumed the load of the world's cause against the most powerful anti-social, anti-democratic tyranny the world has ever known. The Nazis have been compared to the ruthless conquerors and tyrants of old but they play for bigger stakes. Their new plan is to seize by violence and crush every semblance of liberty to the bottom-level of individual and national degradation across the world.

But Freedom says "No." She opposes the aggressor and she has the prayers of the greater part of the world in her great fight to the victory.

As British and French armies fight the battle of freedom, Canadians are asked to buy the soundest of securities, those issued by the Canadian Government. The war savings certificates are now offered at a good remuneration. They mature at the end of seven and a half years. The certificates are in modest denominations to suit the savings of the great numbers of the people. Four dollars buys a certificate worth five dollars after that time. There are larger denominations and there are also 25 cent stamps to be collected until $4 is collected which buys a $5 certificate.

With the money loaned to the Canadian Fovernment at a good rate of interest, Canada will be able to send to the front "for freedom's sake," men, munitions, and equipment to aid the fight against the tyranny of Hitler and his Nazi Germans.

"For Freedom's sake" is the appeal to all Canadians.

The people will gladly answer that appeal as a duty.

"For Freedom's Sake!"

BENEFITS OF GARDENING

More people are working gardens this year than ordinarily.

This is good news as products of the earth are one of the chief factors of national wealth.

Gardening is one of the healthiest of exercises, working with the earth. In the nature of things it should bring those who garden to a deep sense of reality as they see growing under their guidance or as a result of their effort the vegetables and fruits that will provide for the summer and autumn and against the coming winter. Those who garden will have bumper meals of vegetables, which are so necessary for health in summer and especially in the wintertime.

The gardener is always devoted to his garden. In working with nature man learns valuable lessons which become part of his life.

In war days the garden is a source of new wealth. Every garden which is utilized, every vacated lot broken up and cultivated, means so much more production and a greater surplus for export. It lightens the load which householders bear and helps to carry the nation's and the Empire's war effort.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Treatment of Mental Patients With Metrazol

When the family or friends of an inmate of a mental institution read of the wonderful success of insulin and metrazol in curing mental ailments by means of shock, they want to know whether insulin or metrazol treatment should be given in this particular case. Then, when they find that the patient has to practically undergo a "fit" or convulsion, and is very sick after the convulsion, they wonder whether or not they should allow or suggest that the shock treatment be given. When they learn further that best results are obtained by this shock method in recent or early cases, particularly during the first six months they became still further confused.

It is here that they should be guided by their physician and by the physicians of the mental hospital, who have at hand the results obtained by this new method. The figures show complete cure in some, great improvement in others, slight improvement in a few, and failures in a few.

Dr. J. A. Cummins, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, gives the results of metrazol treatment of 77 cases at the Ontario Hospital, Hamilton, Ontario.

In addition to the metrazol treatment, these patients were given the routine treatment of the hospital as to occupation (some combined physical and mental work), recreation, and re-education in which the reason for their mental or behaviour symptoms was explained to them.

What were the results obtained in these 77 cases? The results obtained were classified as (a) completely cured, (b) improved—able to go home and to work but not a complete return to their full efficiency mentally, (c) slightly improved—more easily managed, able to do simple work, and able to look after the needs of their body, and (d) no improvement in their symptoms or in their management.

Of the 77 patients, 57 in all have benefited, and 20 were classified as not benefited but 7 of these "are making a greatly improved hospital adjustment, and are much happier for having received the treatment". There were no deaths caused by the treatment.

That earlier this shock treatment is given, the better are the patient's chances of being benefited was proven by the fact that "all" cases where symptoms had been present for less than six months were benefited and 50 per cent of them made a complete recovery.

In lighter vein, we rather like this, from Dave Boone, in The New York Sun:

The news that Gen. Weygand has had to bench fifteen generals was certainly disturbing. I didn't know it was possible to find that many generals in the present confusion. But I don't think generals are so important. If fifteen top sergeants had been found incompetent there would have been reason for alarm. They're the tough boys in any army. You can't make me believe that Hitler ain't going to run up against some tough snags before he goes much further. Nobody can put everything into a fight the way he does and not get punch drunk before long. History never saw anybody take on all comers that way and not wind up with cauliflower ears, a queer look and a tendency to mumble.

Highlands Suffer From War

Imagine your home town shut off from its staple trade—and you realize the situation of the Scottish Highlands, which, by War Office edict, will be deprived of their bread and butter—the tourist traffic.

It might have been a bumper season, too, for the Highlands have scenery, sport and safety to offer to the holiday-maker deprived of his trip abroad.

The Highlander was not altogether surprised. He understood the reasons for the ban, and memembered it had happened in the last war.

Every mile of these glens — Glen Urquhart, Glen Moriston, Glen Shiel, Glen Garry, Glen Affric — has a romantic story to unfold.

I had a last look round the Forbidden Land last week. So come with me and see a grand country — Britain's most beautiful playground —and shake hands with a people who know how to meet misfortune.

I left Inverness — which is not to be restricted — at dawn and travelled towards the glens that shoot off from the new northern highway and cut deeply through the mountains.

The shepherds are preparing for the lambing, and the crofters are turning over the brown earth. Here is a charm that soothes like a magic spell.

The sun tried sincerely to brighten Glen Moriston as I passed through it, but the attempt was in vain.

It was in caves in Glen Moriston that Prince Charlie, in tattered clothes and brogues so worn that they could scarcely stay on his feet, was befriended by eight outlaws and thieves. They guarded him against the redcoats and saw him to safety, though there was a £23,000 reward for them if they had betrayed the fugitive.

One of the arts that is practised to perfection in this land is the art of growing old. Men of ninety do not think of retiring; they potter about their work every day.

I met Duncan MacDonald, the blacksmith, who is seventy-seven and as strong as a bullock.

He is the last of six blacksmiths in his district, all having closed down since the motor car ousted the horse. Often he has worked sixteen hours a day, making shoes in the early morning, travelling fifteen miles to shoe horses and ponies, returning late at night. And if the work comes, he is ready to do so again at any time.

Then there is Evan MacDonald, who is eighty-two. Evan is at his work on an estate every day, and when he is not working he composes Gaelic poetry, so he is nicknamed "The Bard."

Round some of the trim little cottages in the glens you can see white palings with green tops. Most of these were made and erected by Evan, for he is the handiest man in the district.

On my way to Glen Affric I saw a lone hind grazing in a small field behind a cottage. When I went to make inquiries the doors of the house were locked, but a shepherd told me the story of the hind.

During a severe storm in 1926 the woman in the cottage heard a knocking at the door, and, thinking some one had been stranded, she went out to inquire. She found the hind there exhausted. She befriended it and it will not leave now.

In the rutting season it joins the herd and roams the hills for a few months, but it always returns and stays at the cottage, as tame as a pet dog.

At the village of Tomich the main worry was that twenty-year-old Johnny had gone to the war.

Johnny was a mechanical genius, for, although he had never been an apprentice mechanic, he had somehow contrived to learn all there was to know about the repairing of motorcycles and cars.

They would all have to go to Inverness now for repair.

It would be difficult to imagine a greater contract between the road to Beauly and Strathpeffer and that through the glens, yet they are separated by only a few miles.

The countryside along the Strathpeffer road is as smooth and rich as that in Perthshire.

One of the places that will feel the restriction most is Strathpeffer, neatest and cleanest little village in the Highlands.

Here is a district that depends entirely on visitors. It has 130 buildings and 100 telephones, almost every building being an hotel or boarding house.

"During the last war, when this district became a restricted area, our tourist trade disappeared, and the same will happen this time," said one of the residents.

"We know, because this is the time of the year orders and inquiries are made, and there are none this year. We are a small community—there are only 700 of us—but we are already making sacrifices.

"One-fifth of the male population has joined up. All except two of our shinty (hockey) team are gone, only two members of the cricket team are left, and a special meeting of the Golf club is being held soon to consider closing down."

On the way to Dornoch, along the coast, I met a number of stalkers, who were worried about the effect of the ban on the shooting season.

Some of them were caring for the deer during the winter, feeding them with locust beans and Indian corn at the roadside.

"This is to keep them at home," one of the stalkers told me. He pointed to a lodge out on the moor.

"That moor cost £3,500 for the two months' season," he said. "There is another near that costs £2,500."

I know a shooting estate that costs £12,000 a year to run, or, as the owner says, the interest on a quarter of a million pounds.

"If there's a bad season, the poor folk will feel it most, for there are villages that depend on the shooting season."

At Helmsdale a fisherman talked of Highland funerals. He had been to one near Struy and had enjoyed it. When the service was finished at the house, whisky, biscuits and cheese were handed to the mourners.

When the service at the cemetery ended the same ration was handed out.

Our conversation somehow turned to bees. Many crofters now had hives in the Highlands, he said. Even the poorest had twenty hives.

There was a yield on the year of forty to fifty pounds of honey from each hive, and as 2s. 3d. per pound is obtained, the additional income helps the crofter to pay his way.

Before leaving him I learned of three fishing villages in Ross — Balintore, Shandwick and Hilton—that holds a proud record of service.

When the first registration took place there were only two youths in the villages left to register. All the others had already joined up, scarcely a man of military age being left in the district.

The road over the Ord of Caithness is one of the most dangerous in winter in the country.

On one side lie miles of bleak moorland and mountains; on the other, almost direct from the side of the road, is a sheer drop of hundreds of feet into the sea.

Wick is "dry." If you dine at an hotel you can have whisky or beer, or if you are a member of one of the three clubs in the town you can drink as much as you wish.

But if you are only a respectable working man who cannot afford to dine in an hotel, or who does not wish the social atmosphere of a club, preferring a quiet drink in a pub, then you have to walk or travel by bus or train to Lybater, thirteen miles away, or Thurso, twenty-one miles away.

On the way to John o' Groat's I was accompanied by a man who was mainly concerned with the transformation that had taken place in the mode of travelling to church on the Sabbath. During the past twenty-five years the old sturdy sincerity and independence of the Highlander has been undermined, he assured me.

In those days people would not travel by car or bicycle to church. They walked in all kinds of weather. Even the old folks hobbled along, refusing to go by car. Now, even some of the ministers of the Free Presbyterian church go to service in a car.

He knew a prominent man in a village near Inverness who used to walk the five miles to and from church every Sunday.

Then he started riding a bicycle, but left it concealed in a wood a short distance from the church, returning on it without any one seeing him.

After ten years of this deception he rode the bicycle to church, allowing any one who looked to see him.

Now he goes in a motor car. — F. A. Gremley in Hamilton Spectator.

Maybe You'll Smile

At a certain convalescent hospital for naval officers there was a particularly pretty nurse. One after another of the officers invited her out to dinner—only to be told by the matron, a very strict individual, that the rules of the hospital would not allow this. One day, however, a new patient who had made the usual invitation, and had received the same answer, said to the matron: "How very unfortunate, as I happen to be her brother."

"How very unfortunate, indeed", replied the matron, "as I happen to be her mother!"

A King of Ghosts

Hitler need not bother to set up any post-war kingdom for Leopold, ex-King of the belgians. He will find his realm ready-made for him.

He will have as his people a great assemblage of ghosts. They will be the ghosts of his great and noble father, and of thousands and thousands of Belgian soldiers, of Belgian women and children, slaughtered by the German hordes of two ravening wars. Not that he will deserve or receive their homage, but this great kingdom of spirits will never leave him as he sits alone in the castle which he is to receive at the blood-stained hands of the Fuehrer. They will always be there, bowing mockingly before him, torturing his every waking hour and haunting him in his troubled sleep.

The world may safely leave him in their hands. — Windsor Star.

St. Augustine—at Its Loveliest Now

(By Temple Manning)

For charm that is age-old, for interest and enchantment, there are few places that equal St. Augustine. It is the oldest city in the United States, and although it has modern and really magnificent hotels and all the amenities of smart living, it revels in the past as it sprawls in the Florida sun. And no one who loves St. Augustine would have it different. It is particularly lovely at this time of year.

St. Augustine is the spot where Ponce de Leon landed on Easter Sunday, in 1513, calling the new country Florida. Today it is a delightful procedure to turn back the pages of history and visit the Fountain of Youth. The approach is through a magnificent avenue of heavily foliaged palms. The Indian Village site and the quaint burial grounds are surrounded by twenty acres of parks, trees and flowers. On St. Francis Street, at the end of the Sea Wall, is the oldest house in the United States.

Historic Buildings

There are two museums and a Seminole Indian exhibit, but the old residence itself is worth looking at for itself alone. It is quite a pretentious place, sturdily built and very comfortable by any standards. It is opposite the old Franciscan Monastery, a beautiful building, now the State Armory. Near the oldest house is the beautiful Don Toledo house, another building gem that grows more entrancing with time. These three buildings by the Matanzas River are well worth a visit, especially by those folks who claim that they have to go abroad to see beautiful old buildings!

In St. Augustine is Fort Marion, oldest fortification in the country, commenced in 1672 and completed twenty years before the greatest of all dates, 1770. It is a sturdy, old battlement, and looks pretty formidable still, although today it is nothing more bellicose than a national monument. The other side of Fort Marion Circle are the city gates, part of the old city wall built in 1620. America's only walled city has the authentic medieval look that one associates with the old walled cities of Europe, but far exceeding them in beauty, except for that gem of all walled cities, Carcasonne!

Spanish Treasures

Like all good Spanish cities, St. Augustine has its ancient tree-shaded plaza. Radiating from the plaza by the bay are fascinating Spanish houses and buildings. There's Villa Zorayda, an art museum and a reproduction of the Alhambra of Granada in Spain. It is a gem of a place set in a fantastically beautiful garden. The old Spanish Treasury is all that one expects such a building to be. It is appointed with authentic furnishings and there is a grand collection of old Spanish coins in the strong room of the treasury. Fronting the plaza is the old cathedral. Another interesting place is La Leche Shrine, the site of the first Mass celebrated on September 8, 1565, where St. Augustine was founded.

Over the bridge of lions is Anastasia Island with the lighthouse and park, the ostrich and alligator farms and, beyond, the fantastic marineland.

At Lighthouse Beach is a grand fishing pier and a really lovely picnic park, eloquent witness that there's planty of fun and open-air gaiety in this superb old city.

What's the Answer

BY THE ACE CAMERAMAN

(Distributed by the King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

1.—Literally, the whole world is the concern of Dr. Samuel Whittemore Boggs, employed by Uncle Sam in Washington. War and topographical changes keep him busy. What, then, is Dr. Boggs constantly making and remaking?

2.—Since 1890, the centre of population in the United States has remained in what State?

3.—What do astronomers call the dust which they believe helps form a vast cloud-like mass filling much of the so-called vacant space of the Milky Way?

4.—Zita is sometimes alluded to as the Iron Woman of Europe. Of what late Emperor was she the wife, and who is her son—some day to wear (she hopes) a crown?

5.—Try to name (1) the first synthetic plastic and (2) the first known composite metal, used for tableware in Queen Elizabeth's time.

6.—Distinguish between Donatello and Donizetti as to the arts they excelled in.

ANSWERS

1.—Maps. Dr. Boggs is the geographer of the State Department. Digression A Primarily what may be the difference between a map and a chart with respect to the globe?

2.—Indiana. Digression B: What State is almost in the geographical centre of continental United States?

3.—Cosmic dust.

4.—Zita was the wife of the late Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary; her son is Archduke Otto, recently a visitor to the United States.

Picton Red Cross Sends 11,634 Articles to Headquarters

Picton — The Prince Edward County Branch of the Canadian Red Cross has just made a report for the first eight months and shows that the women of the county are doing wonderful work. A total of 11,634 articles have been sent to headquarters from the county. As well, a large quantity of goods have been sent direct to members of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas and to Canadian military hospitals.

The ladies have knitted 6096 pairs of socks, 300 wristlets, 48 scarves and 199 sweaters. As well they have been very busy sewing and 5868 hospital supplies have been handed in. For the refugees, 80 quilts, many articles of clothing have also been completed.

Despite the busy season the work continues in full swing. All the people of the county have shared in the Red Cross work since instead of a general canvass for funds, the county council granted $12,300, of which $9,000 has been sent to headquarters. There have been many fine individual cash gifts as well, including $500 from P. H. Wills of Northport.

Prize Bull Purchased

Amos Hudgin and Brian Dodds, Picton-Cherry Valley road purchased a fine herd sire at the National Holstein sale at Brampton this week. The purchase price was $200 for Emperor Bonneur Nig, born in October 1939. The seller was E. J. Brown of Orono and the bull's dam was from the Mount Victoria Farms at Hudson Heights, Quebec, and has many good lines of breeding.

The Rebekah lodge of Napanee visited Picton this week and conferred a degree on two candidates.

Tomato plants are being drawn from factory to farms but are not being set out as the ground is too wet after the recent rains.

Mrs. John Wallace of Wellington, has taken one of the Dunkley apartments and will reside in town in future.

64 Houses Built For Bata Employees Under Housing Act

Government Loaned $28,800 and Sun Life Co. $86,400, the Average Loan Being $1,800

Ottawa, May 31 —(CP)— The Dominion Government and the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada jointly loaned $115,200 under the National Housing Act to the Bata Shoe Company for construction of 64 homes for employees at Frankford, Ont., Finance Minister Ralston informed a questioner in Parliament yesterday.

The Minister told Joseph Harris (Con. Toronto-Danforth) that the loans were made in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1940, and that the government's share was $28,800 and the insurance company's share $86,400. Average loan was $1,800.

Mr. Harris was also informed that the Bata Company paid duty and sales tax on machinery imported.

Allies Receive 195 U. S. Planes in April

Washington, May 31 —(CP)— Facing the threat of invasion, Great Britain has turned hurriedly to the United States for machine guns, rifles and small arms ammunition.

British purchasing agents, it was reported authoritatively today, have canvassed the stores of dealers in surplus munitions for weapons which experts believed of use only to the Home Guard units which have been organized since the German army neared the English Channel.

At the same time, actual orders and negotiations suggested that both Great Britain and France were undertaking to build up in this country a second line source of supply for light weapons.

Aircraft, however, continued the prime Allied concern, but the export figures for April did not assume impressive proportions. France received only 168 planes and 230 engines; the United Kingdom, 23 planes and 12 engines, and Canada, four planes. Large scale deliveries of the thousands of planes now on order are not scheduled until late 1940 and 1941.

WILL HITLER TRY PEACE OFFERS?

These were the possibilities envisaged:

1. A separate peace offer to France with a great smashing assault by land and air against Paris.
2. A threat of an Italian flank attack.
3. An ultimatum to Britain to lay down arms on Hitler's terms or face "total war."

Evidence of a determination to forestall any effort of Hitler to separate the Allies or to make peace on his terms was seen in the reiteration that the Allies, fighting as a unit, would make no separate peace on any terms.

The statement by Alfred Duff Cooper, Minister of Information, only yesterday that Hitler will be "denied a seat at any future conference table" was seen as a further sign of Allied solidarity.

Master of Europe's western coast line from Boulogne in France to Bodo in Norway—with the exception of battered Dunkirk—Hitler might attempt to consolidate his lines along the Somme and Aisne Rivers in France and then strike at Britain, as he so often has threatened.

The Maginot Line

But most observers believed he first would seek to roll up the flanks of the Maginot Line, possibly with Italian aid, in order to free all his forces for the assault on Britain.

Editorial writers emphasized anew today the "unbreakable bond" of the Allies and attacked as a "damnable lie" the assertion by Nazi propagandists that some discord divides the purpose of Britain and France.

The Evening News said:

"The lesson of Flanders is clear, to make good our deficiencies, to give the army weapons to meet the enemy on equal terms.

"We have only just entered the tunnel of our difficulties," the News concluded.

'Attack on Britain Not Yet Practicable' Says Times

Because an attack against Great Britain "is not yet practicable" Hitler's next aim will be the French army and Paris, the Daily Express predicted. The newspaper is the leading one in a chain owned by Lord Beaverbrook, new Minister of aircraft production.

Attacks against northern France, the Express continued, may be simultaneous with invasion of Switzerland, especially if Italy interferes

"Just now the Germans are on the crest of the wave of aggression," the Express added. "The time approaches when the impetus will slacken and finally wane. We go on growing stronger with the resources of the world behind us. We must get ready to hit back hard."

In the London press generally praise for the forces covering the evacuation of British detachments in Flanders was mingled with concern as to whether Britain would be Hitler's next target.

Allies Must Strike Next

The Times said that the Allies must resist first and strike next. And "remember that if Hitler does not get an easy victory against France and Great Britain he will be inevitably defeated." The newspaper predicted that a Nazi attempt to invade England would fail because of the British fleet, even if Nazi U-boats should be used on a large scale.

"The comparative quiescence of U-boats during the last two months suggests that the enemy may have been accumulating and training a large force of them for a concerted effort," the Times observed.

"And we may be sure," it added, "that besides attempts at sea passage every new advice and stratagem—the fifth column, airborne troops landed by parachutes, boat or direct on the ground—together with some yet not disclosed, will be enlisted in the coming desperate effort at a quick decision over the arch-enemy Britain."

Allied Navy Chief Obstacle to Hitler

The Times expressed the belief that the greatest obstacle to Hitler's ambition to master the world would be the Allied navy and especially the Home Fleet. It pointed out that aircraft cannot sweep a navy from the seas and that the British Navy succeeded always in accomplishing its tasks in Norway, Holland and Belgium.

"So long as sea power is maintained," it said, "Great Britain and France must prevail in the end."

Victor Gordon-Lennox, writing in the Daily Telegraph and Morning Post, said that the Allies must counterattack with new mechanised forces.

Equal Courage and Devotion

The News Chronicle said:—

"In the fire of Flanders Frenchmen and Britons are fighting and suffering with equal courage and devotion—though there are actually more French than British in the northern army and the French are in a more difficult position than our own men.

"Whatever the outcome of the battle, a new bond between the countries shall have been created through joint sacrifice. Meanwhile, every man who is picked up on the beaches of Belgium and France strengthens the home defences against the anticipated German attack on this country and the reinforcements which it is still hoped to send to hold the new line that General Weygand is building along the Somme."

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edwards, Brighton, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Elsie Marie, to Harry Edward Green, Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Green, 26 Gordon Street, Belleville. The marriage will take place the latter part of June.

Mr. Raymond Rowe of the Thos. C. Thompson Funeral Home, who has been attending a course on Embalming at the Canadian School of Embalming Banting Institute, Toronto, returned to Toronto, this week to write his final examinations for embalmer's license.

Dr. Robert Empson has returned home after attending the Dental Convention in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bauer and daughter, Mary Lou, of Rochester, are visiting Mrs. Bauer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gauthier, 106 East Moira.

Mrs. Earle Elliott entertained at a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower held on Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. J. W. Harwood, (nee Dorothy West). Tulips, lilacs and lilies of the valley decorated the pretty rooms. Mrs. Harwood received many lovely gifts and at the conclusion of the evening, dainty refreshments were served.

Little Miss Lorraine Fralick entertained at a jolly party on Wednesday to mark the occasion of her eighth birthday. An exciting time was spent in games and a display of fireworks. Supper was served, refreshments including a beautiful birthday cake.

Mrs. (Capt.) A. Hunter who has recently returned to the city after spending six months in Sidney, B.C., (near Victoria), with her daughter, Mrs. Perley and the Rev. Milton Perley, has crossed the continent eighteen times to visit her daughter. Her first trans-Canada trip was in 1908 when she continued west across the Pacific to Japan to be present at the wedding of her daughter and Mr. Perley. At that time it took three weeks to make the cruise from Vancouver to Japan a striking contrast to the speed of modern liners.

McCUTCHEON—COOK

Empey Hill, (Special)—At the United Church parsonage, Selby, a quiet wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, May 22nd., when Miss Hildred Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cook was united in marriage to Leone D. McCutcheon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorland McCutcheon by Rev. W. R. Merrick.

The bride looked lovely attired in dove rose crepe with a shoulder bouquet of American Beauty roses and white accessories. They were unattended.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents to the immediate members of the families. Later Mr. and Mrs. McCutcheon left amid showers of confetti, on a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm, south of Selby.

Friends Honor Tweed Bride-to-Be

Tweed, (Special)—A number of friends of Miss Gladys Gordon, gathered on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) M. G. Dales to honour her prior to her marriage which will take place on Saturday afternoon. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Dales, who was assisted by Mrs. C. R. Porritt and Mrs. S. H. Connor. During the evening Mrs. Edwin Foster and Miss Lois Richardson provided several musical selections, and number of familiar and popular airs were sung. Miss Gordon was given a pantry-shower. The popular young bride-to-be, who was quite taken by surprise, thanked her friends for their kindness. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the affair.

SURPRISING and unexpected change and travel may mark this day, judging by the lunar transits. The journeys may be to nearby places rather than distant and the change may not be of major consequence, unless it be in connection with engagements, courtship, marriage and even elopements, since the element of the spectacular figures. Contracts, letters and writings are vital in promoting good will and pleasure, and intrigues are to be prudently managed.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of change and travel with short journeys having the element of romance or intrigue rather than more sordid aspects. Contracts, writings and correspondence figure importantly and greatly to the advantage. These, too, concern romance or affection, which are stressed in the year's adventures. Be vigilant as to curious intrigues or snares, since there are auguries of the sensational or unconventional.

A child born on this day may be versatile, adaptable, have unusual talents perhaps in an intellectual, scientific or unique expression. It may be adventurous and romantic, possibly carried into intrigue and unconventionality by its pronounced affections or emotional responses.

Specimen Thank-You Notes For Wedding Presents

What you write in your notes of thanks for wedding presents is so personal an expression of yourself and your sincere appreciation, that it is ridiculous for anyone to attempt to present "real" letters of thanks that you should write.

But so many of brides-to-be have written to ask me to suggest some forms for these notes, that perhaps the following will be helpful in suggesting a foundation on which you may build your own letters.

Naturally, you will have all kinds of notes to write, from the intimately informal ones that bubble over with enthusiasm, to the more formal ones written to a relative or friend of the groom whom you have never met.

To a close friend you might let your enthusiasm say:

Dearest Sally,

How like you to think of the masterpiece gift for us and our dream-house!

The silver candelabra are the handsomest we've ever seen. Tom and I had a grand time visualizing how beautiful they will be on our table and what a lovely, welcoming light they will shed. There are no words strong enough to tell you how completely happy you have made us by your goodness. We want you to be the first one to see these beauties on our table!

Dearest love and deepest thanks from us both.

Devotedly,
Mary

To an older woman, perhaps a friend of the bride's or groom's mother, a more formal note is written:

Dear Mrs. Forbes,

Your kind and generous thought of us touched us deeply, and Tom andI thank you a thousand times.

The silver bowl is a great beauty, and I can think of so many delightful ways of using it that I am impatient to begin!

When you and Mr. Forbes come to see us—which we hope will be very soon after we are settled—you will see how beautifully your gift graces our home.

We will surely see you on the tenth, won't we?

Very Sincerely,
Mary Day

x x x

To a relative or friend of the groom whom the bride has not met, this suggestion may be helpful:

Dear Mrs. Allen,

If you could have seen Tom and me when we opened your beautiful gift you would have realized how appreciative we are of your inspired understanding of what would most delight us.

We had dreamed of having a mirror over our mantel-piece, but never thought that our dreams would so perfectly come true as you and Mr. Allen have made them come true.

I am looking forward with special pleasure to knowing you and Mr. Allen. We hope that you are surely coming to our wedding on the tenth.

Very Sincerely,
Mary Da

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Loves Him. He Loves His Hobbies

Your favorite hobby may bore the girl friend to tears.

If you have a hobby, whether it's collecting postage stamps, first editions, old samplers, or studying the love life of toad frogs (actually the U. S. Goverment once included this in a survey), please don't feel that the girl friend should share this pleasantly stimulating interest with you.

When one of the reporters at a press conference asked Mrs. Roosevelt if she intended to bid on a rare and tremendously expensive stamp that happened to be on the market, the First Lady answered smiling. "One collector in a family is enough." Wise Mrs. Roosevelt! She's tremendously interested in her husband's stamp-collecting hobby, but she doesn't feel obliged to start up a rival accumulation of stamps.

Along came this letter this morning, which sets forth the innermost reactions of a girl toward her fiance's hobbies:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Is there something wrong with me, or something wrong with my fiance?

"I am the secretary of a railroad president, and my work with the boss taxes every atom of gray matter I have. The fiance is a fiend on such pleasures as crossword puzzles, mathematical conundrums and algebraic diversions. Also, he collects statistics on Government reports dating back to the Revolutionary War. It's all too much like work—extra work—for me to join in with this statistical and mathematical whoopee with any degree of enthusiasm.

"When I go out to dinner with the boy friend, with eyes a-glow, I hope he's going to respond with a dash of lovelight in his own and say that I look charming, the new spring hat is becoming or something like that. But no sooner are we anchored at a table, he says, 'I've got a new one.' And then he takes out one of his mathematical puzzles.

"As far as I can remember, they begin like this: 'Think of a number, any number, now double it, now substract something—' At this point my brain becomes befogged, and I sit there smiling like a prize idiot. I say anything, anything at all that comes into my head. It's too much like the work I've just left behind me. The boy friend is just 'nuts' on anything that has to do with figures.

"I often wonder if his mother marked him, doping out her market list, and trying to keep up with the cost of carrots, hamburgers, cauliflower and such, and yet stay inside the family budget .

"Or perhaps his father was some mute inglorious Einstein. All I know is that I'm darn sick of this kind of entertainment, and the engagement has come to the breaking point with me.

"Crossword-Mathematical Girl"

Of course, it's maddening not to have the boy friend notice the new spring hat, but if he's "nuts" on mathematics, what's to be expected? Whether you break your engagement or not—and I'll admit there are some grounds for considering the separation seriously, you've got to make up your mind how much you're going to miss the boy friend plus his hobbies, when he's once definitely out of the picture. So many girls have written to me, after they'd broken their engagements, "I never knew how much I loved him 'til now."

IVANHOE W.I.

The annual meeting of the Ivanhoe Branch of the Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday afternoon May 14th, with a large attendance. The president Mrs. T. E. Fleming presided and the meeting opened with community singing followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Business was discussed and correspondence read. Delegates appointed to attend the District Annual at St. Ola were: Mrs. T. E. Fleming, Mrs. N. Shaw, Mrs. C. Tanner, Mrs. J. Benson and Mrs. T. Emmerson. Alternates: Mrs. Will French, Mrs. C. Sills, Miss G. Pitman. Reports from each of the conveners of standing committees were given.

The president reviewed the year's work and thanked the members for their faithful support and co-operation during the past year. Mrs. N. Shaw, district director, took charge of the election of officers for 1940-41. Mrs. T. E. Fleming was unanimously elected president for a third term. The other officers were as follows:

West Hastings Women's Institute Holds Annual District Convention

West Hastings Women's Institute held a most successful annual meeting on Thursday, May 23rd. at Bay of Quinte Church.

Mrs. C. Ketcheson, President, occupied the chair and opened the convention with the singing of "O Canada" the Institute ode.

Secretary Treasurer Mrs. P. Bronson, of Stirling, read the minutes of the previous annual meeting, same was approved on a motion made by Mrs. B. Hogle, seconded by Mrs. C. Holmes, the Treasurer also gave the district branches financial statements.

Branches receipts 1161.27; branches expense 1014.39; branches bank balance 146.88; dis. receipts 124.54; dis. expense 89.79; money on hand 34.75.

Rev. W. E. Mercer pastor of the Community church, welcomed the guests, during his address he sympathetically urged the women to pray for peace. It's only a mother that can really pray. She has understanding, she has sacrificed and by so doing reveals her real angelic beauty. The world today urgently needs this kind of person. It was women who stayed beside Jesus on the cross of Calvary. All others failed. The W.I. is doing wonderful work in warfare, bringing comfort to the boys overseas.

Mrs. F. Heasman President of Pine Grove replied to this splendid address.

Miss E. Collins, Toronto, and Miss Jean Scott, Toronto and Mr. H. L. Fair, Stirling, were called to a seat on the platform.

Highlights of year's work was given by the branch Secretary, Unionville, Mrs. F. Moon; Stirling, Mrs. P. Bronson; Wallbridge, Mrs. J. White; River Valley, Mrs. N. Rosebush; Chatterton, Mrs. A. Carson; Pine Grove, Mrs. C. Neale. The President reported of her visits to the branches. She found them all doing splendid work, in closing she thanked all the members for their co-operation. In these stressing times when war clouds are hanging close by each must do her part to economize for "thrift begins in the home."

Conveners of standing reports: Education, Mrs. G. Frederick, Halloway — pre-school education. Train a child to do right and you will not have to correct him, teach him obedience, reverence, Remember God gave you the child, do your best and train him, for he is very precious and full of possibilities—correct morals—every child should be taught for no greater honour can your child have than to be selected from a crowd as a gentleman or a lady.

Health and child Welfare, Mrs. Geo. Luery, Stirling, explaining the value of milk in the diet. Sleep, food, fresh air, sunlight, clothing, all very essential to having good health.

Mr. H. L. Fair, Agriculture Representative, Stirling, outlined the contest on farm and home improvements. Preserve our forests, keep Ontario as beautiful as its name. Free trees can be obtained for planting.

This closed the morning session. All partook of a substantial farm style dinner.

Afternoon Session

At 1.15 afternoon session opened with Mrs. Ketcheson presiding.

The President drew attention to the splendid and varied exhibits that had been brought as requested for display.

Continuing the standing com. reports:

Legislation, Mrs. F. Wilson, Belleville; Home economics, Mrs. L. Rodgers, Stirling; Community activities and relief, Mrs. R. Bush, River Valley. A great deal of kindness has been shown throughout the district on the work of relief and Red Cross work.

Historical research, Mrs. J. White, Wallbridge grandmothers take the chief lead on this program.

Peace, education and international relationship, Mrs. C. Chard, River Valley; Canadianization, Miss A. Horten, Chatterton. What you buy makes Canada, if you buy what Canada makes. Agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. J. Chisholm, Wallbridge; agriculture to become a still greater necessity. In the way of money, invested in Canadian industries Canada stands first with 70 percent, U.S.A. 20 percent, British 10 percent.

The dis. delegate Mrs. B. Hogle, Bay of Quinte, gave as usual a very interesting account of the Belleville area convention last year.

Miss Jean Scott, Home economics coach for Hastings county, was next introduced. Miss Scott has now nearly to completion 13 girls' clubs. She announced the achievement date as July 5th in Stirling Community hall.

Miss E. Collins presided over the election of officers with Mrs. C. Holmes chairman for the nominating committee bringing in a slate of officers for the new term. She voiced appreciation particularly to the district President Mrs. C. Ketcheson and district Secretary Treasurer Mrs. P. Bronson for the splendid work they had turned in during the past year. The slate of officers was unanimously accepted.

New Officers

President, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Trenton; 1st Vice President, Mrs. P Utman, River Valley; 2nd. Vice President, Mrs. B. Bleecker, Halloway; Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. P. Bronson, Stirling; Federal Representative, Mrs. C. Holmes, Belleville; District delegate Mrs. F. Heasman Chatterton; Conveners of standing committees, Legislation, Mrs F. Wilson, Belleville; Education, Mrs. G. Frederick, Halloway; Health and Child Welfare, Mrs. G. Luery, Stirling; Home Economics, Mrs. P. Campbell, Chatterton; Community Activities and Relief, Mrs. Ross Bush, River Valley; Historical Research, Mrs. B. Bush, Uniondale; Peace and International Relationship, Mrs. C. Chard, River Valley; Canadianization, Miss G. Nicholson, Stirling; Agriculture and Canadian Industries, Mrs. J. Chisholm, Wallbridge.

An invitation was received from North Hastings W.I. to attend their convention June 12, St. Ola. Miss E. Collins, Toronto explained the co-operative program chiefly stressing on housing and nutrition. This is the time above all others that the woman in the home should economize, in cooking yet not forgetting to feed her family the best foods possible for the health of their bodies. She took for reference, God and the part He could play in these particularly troublesome times with "I like vegetables because God tucked away unnoticed vitamins that were good for my body." Why did He put the wool on a sheep's back, but to make clothing to cover our bodies.

And there was one other like "Unto the Son of God" drawing the attention to the woman or mother in the home, as a mother rocks the cradle, so she rules the world.

In closing this most remarkable talk, she asked all to pray for peace, ask for wisdom, for we too as a nation must have sinned as well as our enemies—O God if any man lack of wisdom let him ask of God, for He will give all men liberty and freedom.

It was decided to have the local leader training school in Stirling the second week in November with the subject of "Meat Cookery" as the project.

Mrs. B. Finkle invited the members of the district to be "At Home" with the Chatterton branch for their 40th annual convention. This was graciously accepted on behalf of the members by Mrs. C. Ketcheson.

Mrs. P. Utman expressed appreciation to the Bay of Quinte branch and all who took part in making this one of the most outstanding conventions in the district's history.

All joined in singing the National Anthem with Mrs. R. Short, Stirling as pianist for the day and Mrs. W. Yateman as the registration com.

'SKY CHIEF' GAS TO BE SOLD HERE

McColl-Frontenac Oil Company Makes Arrangements to Manufacture and Distribute Famous Product of Texas Company

RED INDIAN DEALERS

Montreal, May 31 — Announcement was made here today by J. M. Pritchard, Vice-President of McColl-Frontenac Oil Company, Limited, that arrangements have been completed to manufacture and distribute "Sky Chief" gasoline in Canada. "Sky Chief", top product of The Texas Company, has been sold in the United States for eighteen months and has acquired an international reputation as a smooth, powerful and knockless motor fuel. The existing affiliation of McColl-Frontenac and The Texas Company makes it possible to bring this new-type gasoline to Canadian motorists. It is now being refined in McColl-Frontenac's Montreal and Toronto refineries according to the formula developed by The Texas Company and will go on sale about June First at all Red Indian dealers' service stations throughout Canada.

Withdrawal Hailed As Most Glorious Operation in History

London, May 31 (CP)—Commentators and editorial writers in the London press today hailed the British Expeditionary Force's withdrawal from Dunkirk as one of the most glorious operations in military history. The Chronicle's military writer said the troops converted a great defeat into a great achievement.

This writer said: "No military expert would have dared prophesy a few days ago that so many men would be saved after so many of their lines of communication had been cut."

The Express said: "No country has the right to ask for such heroism as our fighting men have freely given. The B.E.F. carried out the greatest rearguard action ever fought in history."

The paper's cartoon showed a
The paper's cartoon showed a warden, reading a paper with headlines "tens of thousands safely home already" and commenting: "And we thought we were pretty tough."

The Times printed a letter from Sir Archibald Hurd, naval authority, saying that seapower had held off every tyrant in the past and it was yet to be proved that airpower can affect the final issue of this war.

The Times' editorial said the real struggle is for domination of the sea and the magnitude of the enemy's effort shows he is under no illusions that allied seapower is the chief obstacle to his ambition of world domination.

"Sea power, with its citadel defended by the navy itself, by superb squadrons of the Royal Air Force, by a network of well-designed, well-manned ground defences and—not the least important — supported by firm civilian determination, will not be shaken and so long as it is maintained, Britain and France must prevail in the end," said The Times.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and I was reading the book I got for my berthday called A Boy's Life of Benjamin Franklin, and I said, What's a many sided man, pop?

It's a jack of many trades who has more than one string to his bow and more than one iron in the fire, pop said, and I said, Well that's what Benjamin Franklin was.

And all the more credit to him, because it's much more important to be a many sided man in the age we're living in than it was in Franklin's age, pop said. In Franklin's day if a man knew how to bend horseshoes, as his father and his grandfather did before him, it was sufficient to ensure him a comfortable and useful life and a secure old age in his own home surrounded by his iron mussels and his grandchildren. But in these fast moving times the man who knows horseshoe bending and nothing elts out of a job because of the invention of a machine that can bend more horseshoes in a minute than he can in a day, pop said, and I said, Well why cant he learn to work the machine?

He can, a child can work it, but somebody elts invents the motor car, wich puts the horse out of business, wich puts the horseshoe out of business, wich puts the machine out of business, wich leaves the man sadly regretting that he never took up side lines such as glass blowing and hair cutting and public accounting, pop said, and I said, Then G, pop, I think I'll start thinking about being a many sided man.

Good, you'll never start doing until you start thinking, pop said, and I said, There's a avvertizement in the Boys All Around Magazine giving you your choice of different things to sell for your choice of different prizes, and I was going to send for a dozen cakes of Angel Food Soap, but now besides that I think I'll send for a dozen bottles of Paradise Perfume and a dozen combination kitchen tools for many sided variety, shall I, pop?

The answer being no.

Red Ruffing and Carl Hubbell Scintillate on Hurling Heap In Memorial Day Contests

Hubbell Turns in a One-Hitter to Beat Dodgers While Ruffing Throws Two-Hitter at Boston

YANKS SPLIT EVEN

Bridges and Rowe Win for Tigers to Boost Club in Percentage Column

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

Two of baseball's great heroes fittingly memorialized Memorial Day for nearly a quarter million fans massed in the Major League Parks by producing pitching performances such as are reserved only for special occasions.

Foremost on yesterday's program was a one-hit game pitched by Carl Hubbell, the New York Giants' apparently tireless veteran, before a crowd of 34,548 fans in Brooklyn's Ebbets Field.

The southpaw came within one single of a perfect game. In the third inning, Johnny Hudson of the Dodgers singled. A double play immediately eliminated him and no other Dodger reached first. Thus Hubbell faced only 27 batters in winning 7-0, and pushing the Dodgers out of the National League lead.

The other outstanding offering was a two-hitter by Red Ruffing of New York Yankees in shutting out Boston Red Sox 4-0 before the third largest crowd in baseball's history, 82,437 at Yankee stadium. For seven innings the big redhead had a no hitter. In the eighth Joe Cronin singled and the spell was shattered.

These were just the high spots of a powerful program of 14 games, that drew 237,828 fans. A double-header at Pittsburgh was rained out.

Red Sox Wins Nightcap

Ruffing's triumph ran the Yankees' winning streak to six games, but the Red Sox won the nightcap 11-4 and preserved a game margin at the top of the American League. Manager Cronin led a 14-hit attack with a three-run homer and Herb Hash held New York to six hits.

In taking over the National League lead, the Cincinnati Reds swept two games from Chicago Cubs, who have lost six of their last seven games. The Reds marched to a 4-2 decision in the opener, but had to go 12 innings to take the second game 9-8, with Johnny Rizzo sending the winning run across on a single.

The Phillies and Boston split the other show in the senior circuit. Kirby Higbe allowed five hits to take the first game 6-1. Boston battled back in the nightcap with lefty Joe Sullivan allowing only six hits for a 5-1 victory.

Cleveland Indians cut down Chicago White Sox twice by identical scores of 3-1. First Lefty Al Smith scored his fourth victory without defeat on a six hit performance and then Al Milnar, the league's leading hurler, held the Sox to five safeties.

Tom Bridges and Schoolboy Rowe were Detroit Tigers' winners. Bridges pitched eight scoreless innings after the first and beat the Browns 2-1. The Tigers ripped out a 15-6 decision in the nightcap for Rowe's third victory without defeat. Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics divided their double-bill. The A's nosed out the first game 7-6 but the Senators stormed back to win the second game 14-2 before darkness halted play at the end of the seventh.

3 Games Played In Neighborhood Softball Loop

With all six teams in action the City Neighborhood Softball League opened last evening, three games being played at different sections of the city.

At Queen Alexandra school grounds the closest contest took place when the Foundries nine eked out a 23 to 22 win over the Cannifton Road squad. Harold Reid and "Ki" Kiser umpired.

Sheridan's "north-enders" beat the Pappas nine at Queen Victoria School grounds in a tidy 15 to 10 tussle, where Alex Simpson and Eddie Schrieder capably handled the game.

Out on the Cannifton Road diamond the Montrose "milkmen" downed the Luckins nine by the score of 20 to 11 to round out the league openings. Here McQuaid hurled for the winners while Frank and Ted Follwell shared the mound duties for Luckins. The feature of the game saw an outfielder dive fully clothed into the swirling waters of the Moira River to retrieve a long hit. Harold Bawden and F. Murray umpired this game, while the efforts of Joe Burke, as bat boy, were appreciated by both teams.

BELLEVILLE BOY SHINES AT HOME
—DAD GLADLY PAYS

You've got to take your hat off to this boy. He'll go places. Why? Because already he knows what it means to make and save money. He likes to earn his weekly allowance and he planned the way to do it—Yes sir—made a gentleman's agreement with Dad that nets him his pocket money every week. How? He keeps Dad's shoes spic and span —every day with a touch of Nugget Shoe Polish and a brisk rub-up. They're a great team Billy and Dad. And both agree that Nugget is a grand shoe polish!—Adv.

TOPS QUALIFIERS

Lawson Little, former amateur golf champ of the United States and Great Britain, came through with a brilliant performance to score a 36 to lead the 139 survivors of a field of more than 1,100 into the U.S. open golf championships.

Wilbur Shaw Captures Race At Indianapolis

Indianapolis, May 31 (AP)—Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, who looks like a man-about-town but who has made a small fortune in one of the world's toughest sports — automobile racing—today will collect approximately $30,000 as a reward for his third victory in an Indianapolis motor speedway grind.

Shaw won a history-making 500-mile race yesterday at an average speed of 114.277 miles an hour and joined Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Calif., as the only-three-time winners of the classic.

He became the first man to win two consecutive races and won the first complete race finished under the yellow caution flag which requires all drivers to hold their places.

Officials hung out the caution flag at the 375-mile mark because of rain and left it there until the contest ended.

The Indianapolis pilot finished slightly less than 2 1-2 miles ahead of Rex Mays of Glendale, Calif., and when Shaw crossed the finish line the race was called off. Mays, by finishing his last lap, actually drove the full 500 miles, but speedway officials are expected to rule today as to whether he is to be credited with 500 or 497 1-2 miles.

TORONTO LEAFS TAKE TWO GAMES FROM THE BISONS

Despite the Fine Showing the Team Fails to Gain in Standing

BIRDS BREAK EVEN

Rochester Maintains Two-Game Lead Over the Jersey City Giants

(By the Associated Press)

Tommy Thomas, manager of Baltimore Orioles and former star pitcher for the Birds, is worried —and not without reason.

This is Thomas' first year as manager and up to now he has had no complaints from the fans. The flock made a great start and are in third place, only three games behind the league leading Rochester Red Wings. But Orioles started skidding lately, winning only five of their last ten games.

Yesterday the Birds split a double - header with Syracuse Chiefs, winning the first game 3-2 and losing the second 6-5. Dick Midkiff bested Ted Kleinhans in the seven-inning opener. Each yielded five safeties, but two Syracuse errors figured in all the Orioles' scoring.

Baltimore scored four runs in the eighth inning of the nightcap to tie the score and went ahead 5-4 in the ninth, but Chiefs came back in their half with a walk and three singles to put the game on ice.

Rochester Red Wings maintained their two-game lead over second place Jersey City by getting an even break with Montreal Royals, while the Little Giants were dividing a twin bill with Newark.

Charlie Brumbeloe, rookie right-hander, pitched Wings to a five-hit, 3-1 victory in the second game after they had dropped the opener 13-3. Brumbeloe batted in the tying run in the fifth.

Little Giants took the first game from Newark 4-1, behind the four hit twirling of Manual Salvo, but lost the second 3-0.

Last place Toronto Maple Leafs took two games from Buffalo Bisons, 5-4 and 6-0, but couldn't gain in the standings.

With so many warnings being issued and urged relative to anti-sabotage and subversive activities, it is good policy to report even suspicious actions regarding enemy movements, despite the fact that some reports are bound to prove unfounded. For instance, last week two burly men wandered into a local Front St. hardware store and were pricing guns and explosives. The clerks became alertly suspicious and notified the Provincial Police that two strangers were seeking to purchase firearms. Two policemen hastened to answer the call and approaching the two burly men asked: "Pardon me, but what is your name and business?" asked the officer as he eyed the men suspiciously.

"Faith and I'm Danny O'Mahony, sir, and this is Jerry Monahan, my buddy," replied the stranger as he smiled when he revealed himself as the former world's champion wrestler.

"Yes, I thought I recognized you boys," wittily replied the policeman as he appreciated the irony of the whole picture. O'Mahony and Monahan were merely pricing shot guns prior to taking a hunting trip up Ottawa way. However, every suspicious character may not be a Britisher, or a wrestler, and it is good practice to look well into such matters these times.

Two more teams of the new girls' softball loop paraded before the local sporting clientele at the Armouries last night when the Corbins trounced "Stub" Barrett's K-Nines 26 to 16. All of the members of the losing team were making their first public appearance in the realm of softball, while Coach Barney Smith lined up some veterans, who steadied the "lockmakers" and helped to give them 16 runs in the first two frames, which proved enough to win. Mrs. Lois Calcutt, who hurled for the winners, pitched for the old Frontenacs when she was Lois Carter, while Mrs. Haslip, nee "Pete" Knott, at third, was a team mate. Incidentally Sylvia Reddick, at first for Corbins, is also an old hand at softball, which was proven in her two circuit blows. "Pete" Haslip and Marg Chambers also clubbed circuit blows for the winners, while Helen Richardson led the K-Nines with a homer and two singles. Once girls become acclimatized they'll play much better ball. Tonight at the Collegiate the Mets and Vikings meet to parade the last two clubs in a six-teamed circuit.

It used to be Dizzy Dean's wisecracks of the diamond that were always front page copy, but of recent years Vernon Gomez has usurped Ol' Diz's place in the "goofy firmament." It seems in a game at the Yankee stadium recently, Lefty Gomez was pitching for the Yankees against the Tigers when the Yanks trapped Barney McCosky off first base. As related by Sports Editor Jimmy Powers of the New York Daily News, Dahlgren, Gordon and Crosetti were working the play nicely when Gomez dashed over and plunged right into the middle of the action.

There was much shouting and squirming and a minor traffic snarl but the harried Gordon finally tagged out McCosky and then turned on Gomez.

"What the hell were you doing in this?" he snapped. "Why don't you stay on the mound where you belong?"

"Oh," pleaded Lefty, "can't I get in a smart play once in a while?"

Following over a week's inactivity owing to rain and wet grounds, the City Senior Softball loop hopes to swing back into action with a double-header this evening, Point Anne at Picton and the Uptowns versus the Corbys A.C. here. Already two games have been postponed on account of wet weather. Incidentally Mayor McKibbon and the Picton band will assist at the opening in the Prince Edward County seat.

Now that baseball is practically a thing of the past throughout the Bay of Quinte area, the Napanee sponsors are not going into complete oblivion. Down in Gibbardville they are planning to organize a two league, composed of players of junior age. The veterans of the game will assume the coaching and management of these clubs, which will be operated in a manner similar to that made so successful in Kingston. Now that the war has reached such great proportions the sponsorship of sports among the teen-aged is the only medium whereby the future of team sports may live. A community possessing the far-seeing results of minor sporting sponsorship will have ready and available material for the time when hostilities cease, while on the other hand sporting ventures within the community are recognized by all as the best medium to support the morale of the civilian populace in times of nervous stress. Belleville might do well to fall in line with the majority in this matter.

Do you remember when Carl Hubbell's brilliant 24-game winning streak over a two-season stretch, longest in major-league baseball history was snapped by Brooklyn Dodgers at New York three years ago today. The Dodgers blasted Hubbell from the box in four innings and won the game 10-3.

Wilbur Shaw, who was born practically in the shadows of the Indianapolis speedway track, drove to his third triumph over the Indianapolis "500" yesterday, thereby equallying the record held by Lou Meyer, the Californian. Today Shaw and Meyers are the only two drivers ever to win this great motor car tests three times, Shaw having won in 1937, '39 and again this year. Shaw only stopped twice yesterday in the long 500-mile grind and had it not been for inclement weather, which prompted the officials to hang out the yellow flag of caution, there is little doubt but Shaw would have bettered the late Floyd Roberts' track record of 117.2 m.p.h., Shaw's time in the rain being better than 114 m.p.h. Hail the new champion and a repeater, they don't come too often at Indianapolis.

SPORT SPICE—Looks like the Leafs should play all of their games on American holidays only, when they won two at Buffalo yesterday. . . . Bill Terry has his Giants in high gear these days, they beat the Dodgers twice yesterday to take all of the holiday spirit out of Flatbush. King Carl Hubbell just missed a perfect game by one single, Hudson got the only Brooklyn hit to rob Hubbell of a no-run, no-hit contest, which isn't bad for a supposed-to-be slipping veteran. . . . Just wait until the softball lassies over at the Armouries get over their stage fright. . . . Incidentally the patrons last night really went for catcher Helen Thompson of the K-Nines. . . . The kid has oomph, which is good practice in its place. . . As Ruffing goes so go the Yankees, Red won his game yesterday but the next game saw the Red Sox beat the Ruffing-less Yanks.

Yesterday's Stars

Corbin 'Lockmakers' Defeat 'K-Nine' in Lusty Hitting Game In Ladies' Mercantile Loop

Barney Smith's Charges Put on Softball Blitzkrieg to Triumph 26-16

GIRLS ARE NERVOUS

Many Home Runs Hit and Fans Roar Approval at Girls' Game

Lusty hitting and errors featured the second game in the Ladies' Mercantile Softball League when the Corbin "Lockmakers" triumphed 26 to 16 over "Stub" Barrett's "K-Nine" lassies at the Armouries last evening. Fortified with several veteran players, Coach Barney Smith's Corbin nine with a softball blitzkrieg scored seven runs in the initial frame and added nine more in the second stanza to coast in to victory.

Trailing badly, however, the K-Nines rallied in the eighth and chased ten runs across the home base before Umpire Townsend decided to halt hostilities on account of darkness in an abbreviated eight inning contest. Some 600 fans lined the playing field to see the "lockmakers" move into a tie for the league leadership with the Big-Z nine. This evening at the Collegiate campus the remaining two clubs composing the city girls' softball set-up, the Mets and Vikings clash.

Corbins Had 26 Safeties

Corbins counted 26 safeties including two home runs by Sylvia Reddick and M. Chambers, as 'Pete' Haslip and Helen Richardson also hit for the circuit. Haslip with five hits and Chambers with four paced the winners, while Richardson, Lickfold and Adams swung potent timber for the K-Nines. Corbins scored runs in every inning except their last appearance at the bat, while the losers garnered their counters in the even frames of the second, fourth, sixth and eight, when they pushed ten over to make the count more even. Lois Calcutt, veteran Belleville moundsman, posessed too much speed for the K-Nines as she struck out 11, but issued an even dozen free trips to the initial sack via the four ball route. Mary Lickfold, hurling her first league game, only struck out three, but was steady to walk but a brace of Corbin batters. Unaccustomed to playing before a large gallery of fans the K-Nine lassies showed a marked degree of nervousness in the early stages, but regardless the patrons stamped their approval on the newly instituted game of girls' softball.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

"But your own government, Commander! If it should learn of your action — if something should go wrong with that kidnapping," Lieutenant Starbuck expostulated with the Japanese. Ikeda responded promptly:

"I shall take good care that my government knows even less than yours about this. I have given much to my government; I deserve this little for myself. And nothing will go wrong, Lieutenant. . . . I have not the Occidental habit of rushing those things which do not call for haste. Miss O'Moore will have plenty of time to readjust herself, to comprehend a situation new to her. She is an intelligent as well as a beautiful young woman. I'm sure she will appreciate and accept the honor and position in the Empire which will be hers as Madame Ikeda. Her voice might easily become the most potent of any in world affairs—the voice that would effect an amicable adjustment of the aims and ambitions of our two great nations."

"And what if the lady rejects this high honor?"

If Ikeda was aware of the sarcasm in Kemp's tones, his smooth reply gave no hint of it. "Then, of course, I should have to let her go—after a time. But in such case, her experiences would have been such that no young lady of her sensitive pride would divulge them to anyone. I fancy she might even thrink from re-establishing any contacts with former friends or acquaintances. Any comments, Lieutenant?"

There was a pause, filled with the sound of rising wind and the slap of waves against the Dragon's hull. Sondra held herself tense and still so she would not miss a word of Kemp's reply. It came—like a blow on her heart—a cynical, unmirthful laugh. Then, "No comments, Commander. Except that your taste in women rather amuses me. Myself—I like them to show a bit more of human warmth, and considerably less of lofty, glacial reserve."

Ikeda chuckled complacently. "I believe it was only your method of extracting the warmth that was at fault, Lieutenant. I shall give you a further report on that subject—a few weeks hence."

"You seem very sure you can get away with this, Commander."

"Why not? The lady will not be missed for hours, and then it is most unlikely that anyone will immediately connect her disappearance with our own. The Pelley—the only vessel whose sped might have made pursuit a danger—is safety far away in Juneau. In any case, pursuit would be hopeless, since no one in Sitka can know in what direction to launch it. Yes, Lieutenant—only a miracle can stop our getting away with this."

The obvious truth of Ikeda's words, coupled with Kemp's abandonment of her, plunged Sondra into black despair. The only thing that saved her from giving way to a flood of hopeless tears was Ikeda's next remark. "Hand me O'Moore's ship model, Lieutenant. I'm eager to get at those Aleutian charts."

x x x

At the same time that the Blue Dragon left Sitka with Sondra locked aboard, a special plane was bearing Captain O'Moore and Lieutenant Mayes from Juneau to Sitka. Mayes was clarifying some points for O'Moore.

"Ikeda is one of Japan's cleverest and most ruthless secret agents, Captain. He spent part of this season in Bristol Bay with the Japanese fishing fleet you Alaskans have been howling about. Winthrop was watching him there—"

"Winthrop? Not the hand-logger?"

Mayes laughed. "He's a good hand logger, all right, but he's a better secret agent. His logging operations have enabled him to keep a close eye on this whole Alaskan coast for the past twenty years. When he followed Ikeda to Sitka, he found that the two-year-old American Packing Company was not only a Japanese-owned herring cannery, but also the Alaskan centre for Japanese espionage. Reports of their spies were being passed along to the High Command via a point of contact with a Japanese destroyer—the 'ghost ship' of your haunted St. Lazaria Island.

"But Winthrop had to get proof. To force Ikeda's hand, he had the Pelley, with my crowd, stationed off St. Lazaria to cut Ikeda's line of communication.

"Ikeda, of course, suspected the Pelley's real mission. He knew by this time that he was under surveillance. He knew that any of the usual channels of communication out of Alaska or, the United States would be unsafe for him to use. Even his herring shipments might be seized at any time. Yet he had to send his last and most important budget of information. After nearly a month, he began to get a little desperate. And so he schemed to use you a man of unquestionable integrity and repute, to get his documents safely through the cordon of watchers to another agent in British Columbia."

"But it was Starbuck—"

"Ikeda left Starbuck to put the trick over on you, while he departed for Juneau to try to centre the attraction on himself. But Winthrop—"

"Aye, I remember. He was right there at Starbuck's shoulder to see me take the fake package!"

"Well, we got the package with the evidence; but Ikeda, the fox, gave us the slip, I'm sorry to say. He must have become suspicious when he saw both the Pelley and your Windflower lying at the Juneau wharf. Just an hour before we got instructions to arrest him in Juneau, he ducked his watchers and made a getaway by plane."

"And where would he be headin', d'ye think?"

"Some isolated landing field in Canada, likely, outside our jurisdiction. But we're sure to catch Starbuck red-handed when we get to Sitka. Ikeda had no chance to warn him, since the only way to send a message is through the Army Signal Corps."

"Starbuck—a traitor! And meself so blinded, by me own petty personal fightin'. I couldn't see it until he'd used me as a tool to smuggle out treasonable information to a foreign power. The cry of the mornin' be upon him!"

x x x

The plane landed Mayes and the Captain at the American Packing Company float, and took off immediately on the return trip.

The two men went directly to Starbuck's office. Because it was Sunday, the place was closed. After questioning a few Japanese lounging about the plant, Mayes found out one thing—Starbuck had gone off somewhere in the Blue Dragon. "Where he is going, or when he will be back, no one knows; or if they do know, they are not telling."

"Better we go up to the house, me boy, and thrash the matter out there. There's just time for me granddaughter to fix us a good snort of rum before dinner."

The Captain, finding the front door of Echo House locked, used his key and ushered his guest into the reception room. The unusual stillness brought him to a pause at the foot of the stairs. "Sondy!" his roar reverberated throughout the house. "I'm home, darlin'!"

There was no response.

"Polena!" he bawled. "Alexander! Jodin!"

Silence.

"Humph . . . divil a one of me crew on deck, Lieutenant. They didn't expect me home today, of course. Still, 'tis not like Polena to bolt away and leave the house alone, especially lately, when she declares she hears prowlers at night."

"Prowlers—in old-fashioned Sitka?" Mayes' tone was merely conversational.

"Belike, 'twas her own grandson, who walks in his sleep. But come up to me own sittin' room now, and we'll—"

An angry shout from the front door made both men turn. "Inside with you, you lazy, bilge-water scum!" It was Polena billowing in, propelling Alexander by one ear. "I'll learn you to—"

"What's the meanin' of this?" barked the Captain.

Unabashed, and still clinging to the ear, Polena looked up from un-he sent his poor old grandmother on a wild-goose chase this afternoon, just so he could get a boat ride doing it. Arrh, you—" She gae a yank.

"Ouch! Leggo m'ear! I didn't send you that note, gran! I don't know anything about it. Honest!"

"Avast, the pair of ye! Now, Polena, what took ye off, leavin' the house alone in me absence?"

It was a note, Polena explained, brought earlier in the afternoon by an Indian boy; an urgent note, calling her and Alexander to Jamestown Bay to the sickbed of her granddaughter, Bessie. But when they got there, Bessie, in perfect health, disclaimed all knowledge of the note. "And who but this loafer would play such a trick on me!" the old housekeeper yelled, making a swipe at her grandson, who was backed up against the carved panels under the stairway.

Alexander dodged, and unwittingly struck an outflung hand against one of the panels; then leaped aside with a cry of terror, as it slowly swung in on a rectangle of darkness.

"Holy . . . Sailor!" O'Moore's voice broke an astonished silence. "With me own hands I nailed that up from the other side, before Sondy was born. 'Tis the entry to the old underground passage leadin' out to the banya, Mayes. It hasn't been opened for all of twenty-five years."

"So?" Mayes stepped forward and turned a pocket flashlight on the hinges. "I think, Captain, it's been used more than once, of late. Those hinges have been carefully oiled and someone has screwed a new catch here on the other side where, undoubtedly, your barricade used to be."

"That's what I smelled!" Polena was sniffing loudly at the faint, dank odor that came from the opening. "That's what I smelled every time I heard someone walking in the dark through Echo House."

"Where's Sondy?" the Captain demanded abruptly.

"She went off in her runabout with that Liane woman and—"

"Never mind," he snapped impatiently. "She's back again—I just saw the Spindrift down at the float. Alexander! Go find her and bring her to me." He turned to Mayes. "Come upstairs, Lieutenant. It's time we had a dring."

Captain O'Moore, following Mayes into the sitting room, came to an abrupt halt inside the threshold, his startled gaze focused on his strangely empty table. "The Glory! Me model—it's gone! Someone's—but hold. Belike, 'tis Sondy or Polena that's moved it. Sit ye down, Lieutenant, whilst I find out."

He hurried to the head of the stairs and called Polena. The old Creole appeared at the bottom step, with Alexander and Jodin behind her. Alexander began hurriedly, "I can't find Miss Sondra anywhere in the house, sir. But—"

"Polena! Where the divil is me model of the Glory?"

"On your table where it always is," retorted the housekeeper.

"No," interposed Jodin. "I know where it is, sir. I saw Mr. Starbuck's Jap, Ikeda, carrying it aboard the Blue Dragon."

The Captain gripped the balustrade until his knuckles went white. "You saw what? When was this? How long ago?"

"Maybe a little more than an hour." He glanced uneasily at the Captain's gray face. "I—I thought everything was all right sir, because Miss Sondra was with him."

"Sondy—with the Jap?"

Jodin nodded. "She just got home with the Spindrift about fifteen minutes before that."

"So the blasted fox did double back on his track. . . . But what in heaven's name was me gurl thinkin' of, lettin' him have the model of the Glory?" He passed a hand over his eyes.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX

Mayes stepped close. "What's this about Ikeda coming back here?"

"I—I'm afraid me granddaughter has given him me model of the Glory; and inside, in a hidden compartment, are me secret charts of the Aleutians. The charts Uncle Sam is sennin' for next week."

"Lord!" gasped the intelligence officer.

"Jodin, go tell Miss Sondra to come here at once."

"But, sir—I just told you. Miss Sondra went aboard the Dragon with the Jap and the ship's model."

"You mean she didn't come ashore again?"

O'Moore and Mayes looked at each other, their faces gone grim.

"No, sir. The Dragon pulled right out, sir."

"If he harms me gurl, Mayes," the Captain's voice was deadly quiet, "I'll have his life if I have to follow him to Tokyo and drag him out from under the throne of the Son of Heaven."

Mayes nodded tersely. "The Pelley left Juneau just after we did, to cruise around the Gulf of Alaska. We'll get the radio after her at once, with orders not to stop calling till they get an answer."

The two men were silently hurrying across the causeway toward the radio office when the Baltic came moving up the channel. Mayes remarked, "That's Winthrop in the pilothouse with young Reynall. Before we try to contact the Pelley, we'd better see him. He may have sighted the Dragon on his way in."

But when, on the Bates wharf, Mayes put the query to the Forest Man ,the latter shook his head. "We came round by the inside passage. We didn't see her. What's in the wind, Mayes?"

Briefly, Mayes recounted the main events of the day, ending with, "Now it looks as if Ikeda and Starbuck have decamped on the Blue Dragon, taking O'Moore's charts and, I fear, his granddaughter." He turned to Reynall. "Would any of you—"

But Reynall had already beckoned to his young wireless operator who was loitering on the Glory's forward deck. "You were on watch this af-

you note on Starbuck's float?"

"The Dragon shoved off about nine minutes past four, sir. Half an hour before that, a plane landed Ikeda on the float. Starbuck met him there. Both men hurried back into the plant. I paid little attention to what was going on over there; but I was aware the crew of the Dragon was getting lined up to shove off. Then I saw Miss O'Moore go aboard. Ikeda was following her, carrying the model of a ship."

"Did Miss O'Moore come ashore before the Dragon pulled out?"

"No, Captain Reynall."

A moment of heavy silence was broken by a sound between a curse and a groan. O'Moore said, "He's taken her—me gurl. And there's not a vessel within two hundred miles fast enough to overtake—" He broke off and turned to look at the Glory moored to the wharf. At the same moment Reynall did likewise. As if performing in a pantomime duet, the old and the young master lifted speculative eyes to the high, gun-bright clouds scurrying out of the southeast; they considered the ship's new masts, her newly-rigged yards with sails snugly furled. They lifted their faces, as if smelling the freshening breeze that blew along the waterfront. Then, at the same moment, they turned to each other, and nodded.

"By the horn-billed jeeswax, you're right!" declared O'Moore, as if Reynall had spoken. "With this wind, the old girl can do her seventeen knots easy; and the Dragon's top speed is fifteen." His keen old eyes again raked the vessel's waterline. "By heavens, the way ye have her ballasted, Reynall, she'll do better than seventeen."

"I'll get her under way at once."

x x x

The Blue Dragon had been gone from Sitka only two hours when the Glory, towed by the Baltic, cleared the harbor islands and cast off her tug. Her royals, last sails to unfurl, bloomed out one after another, proud white bonnets one hundred and sixty feet above the deck. She lay over, her full press of canvas bellied taut in the sunlight, and the green sea foaming like east along her lee scuppers.

By the after rail on the poop deck stood Captain Dynamite Danny O'Moore. His face, lifted to the towering spread of sail, held a fine, almost holy look. The Glory of the West, winged again, was shouldering her regal way out across the North Pacific! But when the radio transmitter started up a high, singing whine—Sparks rapping out the Pelley's call letters—the rapt look faded from the old sailor's face, and his eyes returned to their anxious scrutiny of the empty, racing seas.

Mayes came up from the radio room. "Well, Captain, I bring news—both good and bad. I'll give you the bad first. Sparks hasn't been able to reach the Pelley, and the Sitka station reports no better luck. They believe the destroyer is in a so-called zone of silence created by the high St. Elias range. Until she gets out of it, they have little hope of getting through to her on either commercial or Navy wave-lengths. But here's the good news, Captain. We have a fairly definite idea where Ikeda is headed with the Dragon."

"How did ye find out?"

Mayes smiled. "For some time at the same hour each day, Sparks and Reynall have picked up a set of powerful signals from some Japanese source. Distinctive, singing tones of transmission that belong, Sparks claims, to the set aboard the Japanese light cruiser Kawasaki—"

"By the horn-billed jeezwax — that's the key-pounder who's been messin' up my short wave news broadcasts every day!"

"Maybe so. But however that may be, Reynall's pretty certain they come from that 'ghost ship' of St. Lazaria."

"But, man dear, all such messages are in the old Kati-Kani code. Only Jap operators understand that."

"True. But in each message was a set of figures which both Sparks and Reynall could read. They believe those figures gave the latitude and longitude of the position where the Jap cruiser could be contacted during the twenty-four hours following. And, for the past three days, Captain, those figures have been the same—59 deg. 36 min. N., 146 deg. 10 min. W."

"Middleton Island!" exploded the Captain.

"Precisely. A nightmare of rocks and reefs way out in the Gulf of Alaska, and shunned by all vessels. Therefore, a perfect rendezvous in case of an emergency."

"'Tis logical," the Captain agreed. "And I mind 'twas a fine receiving set they had on the Dragon."

"Yes. But we're positive they had no transmitter—afraid of investigation, I imagine—so they have no way of sending a message to the Jap cruiser. That's why we believe they are headed now for the Middleton Island rendezvous."

"Aye." The Captain glanced from the drawing sails to the straight white wake swiftly unfolding from under the Glory's stern. "And as we're goin' now, we should overhaul the Dragon at least a hundred miles this side of Middleton—if that blasted Jap commander doesn't change his position."

"Sparks will be listening-in, for as soon as Ikeda does."

Sondra lay, her ear pressed against the partition that separated her stateroom from Ikeda's.

From snatches of talk that filtered through, she knew the Japanese was patiently going over the model of the Glory, seeking the hidden device that would release the secret drawer which contained her grandfather's charts. Each moment she feared would bring the man's triumphant cry of discovery.

"Do you think the charts are still there, Commander?" asked Kemp.

"Undoubtedly, since I've searched every other hiding place in Echo House. . . . Devilish well concealed—the method of opening the slide. Haven't you any idea how O'Moore did it, when you were watching him the other day?"

"Not the slightest. Remember, I got only a glimpse of him as I stood on the stairs. Why don't you save time by smashing the thing open with an axe?"

"My dear Starbuck! I recoil from using brutal methods on a thing so delicate and lovely. I'm a sentimental man, Lieutenant. . . . And, as I intimated in another connection, I prefer finesse to force—when there's time to exercise it. And we'll have plenty of time to puzzle this out before we reach Yokohama."

The voices subsided to occasional murmurs until finally there came the sound of heels clicking across the floor, and Ikeda's voice, "Temporarily, I yield to the craftsman who made this secret drawer. Try your wits on it, Lieutenant."

"You're standing this watch in the wheelhouse, Commander?"

"Yes. You will take over at midnight, while I catch up on the sleep I've missed of late. And, some time this evening, you'd better break out the firearms and distribute them. I don't expect any trouble, but it's well to be prepared."

Sondra heard Ikeda depart for the wheelhouse. Then, too shaken to move, she lay in the berth while the incredible disclosures of the past few hours whirled through her tired brain. Dynamite—concealing his secret charts in the model of the Glory. Ikeda—the night prowler searching Echo House for those charts, which must be valuable indeed, since a Japanese commander had been sent to steal them. Kemp—a commissioned officer in some arm of the American service—but a traitor, a coward, an accomplice of . . .

A queer sound brought her upright in the berth, her heart beating crazily. A stealthy slithering which seemed to be almost in the room with her. She had drawn the curtains across the ports, but still she could see there was nothing alive in the cabin—except herself. Yet it continued; a sound such as some huge serpent might make as it dragged its coils slowly across the floor. She sat, rigid with fear of the unknown, until a faint creak and a gentle thump against the underside of the berth sent her leaping to the other side of the room to turn on the light.

She stooped to peer under the berth. There, against the lifted lip of a thap door, was outlined the blond head of Kemp Starbuck.

"You—you worm! You traitor!" Her voice was unsteady with fury and contempt.

"Hush!" He placed a warning finger on his lips and motioned her to come closer. "Hush, for heaven's sake, Sondra!" he whispered hurriedly. And something in his gaunt, anguished face gripped her to silence.

"If I'm to save you, darling, you've got to trust me. There's no time for explanations. I doubt that my acting completely fooled Ikeda—he may be at your door any moment. Now, listen closely. This trap door opens into a cache where we've kept our rifles and a machine-gun. The cache is a shallow, boxed-in space under the deck, just wide enough for a man to crawl through. The other end opens into the lazaret, away aft near the stern. In a few minutes I'm taking the guns out, so there'll be no reason for anyone to come near the place later. My watch begins at midnight. After Ikeda has gone to sleep. I want you to slip back through this chute to the lazaret. I'll join you there and we'll plan something. Will you do that? Will you trust me?"

Her wide gaze clung to his shadowed face, estimating, wondering. Kemp's familiar, cameo-cut face . . . his brown eyes looking at her with anguished pleading and—that look of love she had grown to know. Instinct prompted her reply. "I trust you, Kemp. I'll do what you say."

"Good girl!" His brief smile wrenched her heart, stiffened her courage. "Now, you must take this—" he reached under his coat and handed her an automatic pistol.

When she took the weapon, he bent his lips to her hand. Then he was gone, and the trap door was sinking silently into place.

Admiralty Report

The Admiralty's statement follows:—

"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce the loss of H.M.S. Curley (Captain B. C. B. Brooke), sunk as a result of a bombing attack some days ago off the north coast of Norway.

"During recent successful operations in the Narvik area His Majesty's ships have been heavily engaged in bombarding enemy positions on land and in protecting occupied coastal areas and convoys. They have been exposed to incessant bombing attacks in the course of which many enemy aircraft have been destroyed.

"The confined and dangerous waters of these coasts restrict the freedom of movement so greatly that occasional losses are inevitable.

"It was while engaged in these most arduous operations that H.M.S. Curlew was struck by bombs and subsequently sunk. Difficulty experienced in ascertaining the names of survivors has prevented this announcement from being made before. It is now established that four officers and five ratings lost their lives and the next of kin have been informed.

Warns War Factories Against 'Slackness, Slow Starting, Muddle'

London, May 31—(CP)—. Supply Minister Herbert Morrison warned today he would use the "full rigor" of his emergency control powers against war factories showing "signs of slackness, irresolution, slow starting or muddle."

Mr. Morrison said that an appeal for "harder and longer work" in the munitions industries had met with "a splendid response" and that "essential munitions are coming forward more swiftly and the rate of growth of the arms production machine is accelerating."

O.P.P. RESERVES WILL BE TRAINED AT FOUR CENTRES

Toronto, May 31—(CP)— Reserves of Provincial Police will go into immediate training at four strategic points in Ontario, Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced today. He declined in the interests of public policy to state the number of men to be recruited, but said they would be adequate to cope with any emergency that might arise.

The special reserves will be trained at Toronto, the Lakehead (Port Arthur-Fort William), Haileybury and Sudbury. Conant said that at these centres the men would be quickly available for duty in southern, northern or northwestern sections of the province.

IN MEMORIAM

MATTIS—In loving memory of a loving brother who passed away May 30, 1939.

The pearly gates were opened
A gentle voice said "Come",
And with farewells unspoken,
He gently entered home.
—Sadly missed by brother, Fred.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, May 31 (AP).—War stocks, mainly steels and aircrafts, attracted further light buying in today's market but dealings were sluggish throughout. Early gains of one to two points for favorites were chipped down or cancelled near the fourth hour.

Better share performers in the forenoon—some eventually slipped—included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, American Smelting, Du Pont and Sears Roebuck.

Motors, rails, utilities and rubbers lacked rising stamina.

Canadian issues were generally easy. Distillers gained a fraction. McIntyre and Lake Shore Mines rested stationary. Lowers included Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines, Hiram Walker and, in the bond market, Canada 4s.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 31.—(CP)— The market made headway today on the upside in slow trading. Action was dull and only 99,000 shares changed hands.

Point gains for Nickel and Smelters were chief changes in Base Metals. Golds did better, including Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore, Teck Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves.

The shares of Consolidated Chibougamau Goldfields Limited will be removed from the trading list of Toronto Exchange at the close of business today. The company requested delistment.

Demand for Poultry Remains Light

Toronto, May 31 (CP) — The dressed poultry market was quiet with only a fair demand, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported today. Receipts of this class of poultry were very light.

The report held the backward spring responsible for the quietness "as summer resorts, golf clubs and other seasonal organizations are not in full operation and these places are usually large buyers of poultry."

It was stated dealers were paying: For broilers 1-2 to 2 1-2 lbs. 20 cents, old hen turkeys 17 cents, old tom turkeys 14 cents, fowl over 5 lbs. 14-16 cents. Enquiries for chickens are being supplied mostly from storage stocks.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, May 31—(CP)—Prices were unchanged early today at Bacon-Hog Markets reporting.

Liveweight: Brantford $7.75, Chatham $7.75.

Dressedweight: Brantford $10.50 Chatham $10.60, Hull $10.60, Stratford $10.40 plus transportation.

Sergt.-Maj. Mack One Man Show In Track Meet

Aldershot, Eng., May 31 (CP) — Platoon Sergeant-Major F. L. Mack, of Brandon, Man., staged the nearest approach to a one-man show in leading the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry athletic team to victory in the 2nd Brigade track and field meet on Guillemont sports grounds.

He not only scored victories in the pole vault, broad jump, dicus and hammer throw, but finished second in the hop-step-and-jump and tossing the 16-pound weight. He alone was responsible for 17 of his regiment's total of 55 points which carried the Pat's into the divisional finals early in June.

The 49th Edmonton regiment finished second with an aggregate of 33 points, while the Seaforth Highlanders chased them all the way to wind up one point behind.

EYE STANDARDS FOR C.A.S.F. ARE RELAXED

Ottawa, May 31. —(CP)— Eye standards for admission to the Canadian Active Service force have been considerably relaxed, it was learned here yesterday.

New regulations will admit many men wearing glasses to the artillery, infantry and other arms. An official said that as far as eyes are concerned "anyone would now be admitted, short of having lost one eye."

Prior to this change in regulations, some men wearing glasses were not considered eligible for combat units and were accepted in some cases for semi-combat units, such as the Army Service Corps.

LITERATURE TAKEN IN RAID

Cornwall, Ont., May 31 (CP) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police under Detective Sergeant Walter H. Styran yesterday raided the headquarters of the National Unity Party in Cornwall. A large supply of literature, including pamphlets, posters and party records, was confiscated and taken to Ottawa. No arrests were made.

The National Unity Party, although it was disbanded in Cornwall about a year ago, is understood to have had a large membership here.

Improved Buying Aids Butter Prices

Toronto, May 31—Improved buying imparted a firm undertone to butter during yesterday's session of the Toronto open produce market. Eggs were quietly steady.

Offerings dried up on the butter market as local buyers absorbed heavier quantities of the Ontario product. Ontario solids were unchanged at 22¾c per pound for top grades.

Supplies were ample to meet the slower demand on the egg market. No change occurred in prices. Premiums of ½c per dozen were offered for Government inspected lots.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, May 31 —(CP)— Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 24c-24½c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 23½c-24c.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price: A-large 23½c; A-medium, 21½c; B, 21c-21½c; C, 18-18½c. (Government inspected lots ½c higher). Receipts, 3,422 cases.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, May 31—(CP)—A fairly heavy run of cattle was cleared at prices from 25 to 35 cents higher for the week on the livestock market. Some plainer steers were as much as 50 cents higher. Calves lost most of an early gain of 50 cents. Hogs were unchanged while spring lambs were stronger on short runs. Sheep were steady.

There was a keen demand for all grades of killers, especially for better kinds of steers and heifers. Weighty steers made a top of $8.50 with others from $8.25 downward to $7.25. Butcher steers and heifers were mostly $7 to $7.75, with some 1,000 pound steers at $8. Butcher cows sold at $4.50 to $6 with canners and cutters at $3.25 to $4.26. Bulls ranged from $5 to $6. Fed calves were mostly $7.75 to $8.75 with a few up to $9.

Light western stock calves sold at $6.50 to $7 cwt. Milkers and springers held steady at around $80 for tested tops.

Calves opened 25 to 50 cents higher at $10.50 for tops. The close was at a general top of $10 with common lights selling downward to $5.50.

Hogs were steady for the week at $8.25 off trucks for bacons and at $11 dressedweight and rail grading.

The last of the feed-lot lambs was marketed at $10 to $11.50 cwt., with some yearlings at $8 to $9. Spring lambs were a small supply, selling stronger at $13.50 to $14 cwt for choice. Sheep sold steady at $2 to $5 cwt for the majority.

KICK BY HORSE BLAMED FOR DEATH

Clarence Creek, Ont., May 31—(CP)—Body of Olivier Boileau, 45-year-old father of nine children, was found in a stable here yesterday with the skull fractured, it was believed Boileau was kicked by a horse and Dr. Martin Powers, coroner for this district, 25 miles east of Ottawa, said an inquest was unnecessary.

'OUR WORK DONE'

"The fun began when we were about six miles off the coast. That's where we had to run the gauntlet. The bombers not only dropped their loads but attempted to pursue our ships right up to the harbor. Though the Royal Air Force constantly was taking a tremendous toll of Nazi planes, English soil looked mighty good."

As the streams of battle-scarred Tommies, as well as some of their French and Belgian Allies, continued to pour into reception ports today, it was noticeable there were fewer wounded among them. This indicated the majority of the casualties had been given precedence in the retreat and embarkation.

Scenes at Port

While the men waited to board the long troop trains ready to speed them to the haven of the flowering English countryside, bakers worked overtime providing food. Women volunteers, regardless of fatigue and long hours, cut mountains of sandwiches and served rivers of tea at makeshift canteens for men who hadn't had a square meal for nearly a week and only snatches of sleep for the last two weeks.

A lieutenant-commander in charge of one of the naval vessels bringing home troops said:—

"I don't think we have a crumb of food or even a cup of cocoa left in the ship. My men have been magnificent—uncomplaining in the face of bombing and machine-gunning. We are quite determined that not a man shall be left behind for want of a ship".

Used to Being Machine-Gunned

One of the French soldiers among those brought to English shores said that, in the withdrawal toward the coast, "we were machine-gunned so often we almost got used to it.

"We always were ready to jump into the nearest ditch to avoid German planes sweeping low and mowing down refugees and others indiscriminately", he continued. "Always there were some who did not rise again. One almost gets used to that, too."

It was announced today that the battle-worn thousands will be given a well-earned rest. A short leave will enable the military authorities to get them reassembled.

One of a group of five Belgian officers, who said they were astonished at King Leopold's order to surrender, said that "we do not intend to stop fighting on orders of Leopold—and there are thousands of other Belgian soldiers of the same opinion."

Belgium 'Overrun With Spies'

Describing the difficulties of the Belgian campaign, the Tommies said the country was "overrun with spies" who tipped off nearly every move they made to German bombers.

An officer from a destroyer that helped cover the embarkation with her guns and then acted as an escort for the transports described a shattered town in Flanders as he saw it from the bridge of his ship.

"There is not a wall in the place that is more than two feet high," he said. "What I remembered as a jolly little town full of cafes and hotels and gaiety now is just a pile of rubble.

Hotel Struck by Bomb

"I saw one bomb hit a big, modern hotel. It collapsed like a pack of cards."

While the Navy and merchant marine continued shuttling across the Channel to rescue troops and fishing smacks were pressed into service because they could operate in the shallow waters close to the coast, the returning Flanders veterans loudly praised the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force that cleared a way across the Channel as German bombers attacked the ship. They charged that German planes bombed hospital as well as troop ships.

Wall of Fire by British Ships

One Tommy said:—

"I never believed anything like the wall of fire our ships put up to screen the troops was possible. The din was incredible. Shells were falling in a mathematically straight line behind our positions.

"Above and behind the line British planes dived and dropped a hail of bombs. Jerry never had a chance to get at us. I take off my hat to the chaps who did that job."

Many of the survivors had to swim to the ships through a hail of bomb splinters. They were still wet and oil-soaked when they landed here. But one of their officers declared:—

Losses Far Less Than Expected

"Our losses in the last few days have been far less than might be expected. But the slaughter among the Germans has been incredible. The German commanders seem to be throwing away their men's lives."

With the return of B.E.F. survivors, the word "Hun" is being used for the first time since the war started. One soldier, telling of German bombing and strafing attacks on Belgian refugees, said:—

"There was no excuse for that. I'll never forget the way those Huns treated the refugees."

More Airplanes Are Needed

Tough cockneys who insisted they would be returning to France at the first opportunity declared all they wanted was "more airplanes and it will be a different story."

Still so deafened from the din of battle that they scarcely could hear, they told how Nazi bombers swarmed over the battlefields 50 and 60 at a time. One of them remarked:—

"We almost got used to the bombs, and our casualties were surprisingly small considering the number of bombs that were dropped."

An artillery sergeant said the German airmen were "no match for the R.A.F. and they know it," and told of watching one British fighter take on seven German planes and bring down three of them.

French Ship Struck Mine

One French soldier reaching safety said he and 21 comrades were in a French ship which struck a magnetic mine and sank. He alone was rescued.

Some rescued men were in such a state they had to be met at the ship with uniforms before they could land.

Already a large proportion of the B.E.F. —its members proclaiming their spirit unbroken after braving hell and high water—is said to have been withdrawn from the Nazi death trap in Belgium and Northern France through one of the greatest rear guard actions in military history.

"Before our troops made their retreat", said a British officer "they have in almost every case succeeded in blowing up gasoline dumps and leaving nothing useful to the enemy. They stayed to do this at the risk of capture or being shot".

No one Believed News of Belgian Surrender

The Tommies said word of the surrender of the Belgian Army ordered by King Leopold III, which exposed their left flank to the Germans, first came as a rumor which no one believed.

"There already had been rumors of different sorts, a young gunner remarked, "but we realized this one was the real thing a few hours later, when the Germans suddenly appeared all around us.

"They were firing at us from what had been Belgian lines until a short time before. The order was given to retreat. There was nothing else to do.

"Then came hours of tramping along roads and across fields and ditches to the sea.

"We never knew when German machine guns would begin firing on us from behind some hedge or clump of trees. They seemed to be around every corner."

LIBERAL MEMBERS ATTEST LOYALTY TO HON. MR. KING

Liberal Counter - Attack Against Demand for Resignation of Premier Quite Direct

NO PUNCHES PULLED

Ottawa, May 31 —(CP)— No matter how dissatisfied the 36 Conservatives in the House of Commons may be with Prime Minister Mackenzie King's war leadership, the Liberal members have left no doubt about where they stand on that question.

In an outburst of enthusiasm, government supporters yesterday made plain their confidence in and loyalty for their leader.

After sitting for 10 days under intermittent demands from Conservative benches for the Prime Minister's resignation, Liberals finally arose to a furious counter-attack that matched the intensity and directness of Conservative jibes.

First, Hon. Earl Rowe (Con. Dufferin-Simcoe) gave up under cross-fire before he reached the climax of a prepared speech in which he was to have urged the Prime Minister to "step aside." From then on, the Liberal counter-attack rolled forward.

Lashed Fiercely at Opposition

Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Hughes Cleaver (Lib. Halton) lashed fiercely at Conservative tactics, denouncing as sabotage any efforts to undermine confidence in the government at such a critical time—especially after that government had been given a record endorsement at the polls two months ago.

Air Minister Power asserted the Conservatives "could not get in the front door of the government by the votes of the people and now you are trying by intrigue to get in by the back door."

A. R. Adamson (Cons York West) provoked Mr. Power's outburst when he said he had information that Blenheim bombers being manufactured in Montreal were obsolete and their use in war caused heavy casualties.

Merely Seeking Information

"Will the honorable gentleman, on his responsibility as a member of parliament, state that Blenheim bombers being produced in Canada are obsolete?" Mr. Power asked.

Mr. Adamson, amid great uproar, said he was merely seeking information.

"Who wants the information?" shouted a member.

"Hitler," another member replied.

Mr. Power repeated his question but Mr. Adamson said again he was only seeking information.

"Then I charge my honorable friend with sabotage of Canada's war effort," Mr. Power declared. "If my honoroble friend the Minister of Justice is carrying on the work he should be doing he should intern the Fifth Column over there."

The entire day was devoted to consideration in commiteee of the whole on a resolution preliminary to a bill granting authority to the Finance Minister to borrow up to $750,000,000, a routine procedure.

Very little reference was made to resolution itself and in the final 10 minutes of the sitting it was adopted, the bill introduced and put through all stages without a question asked. Another routine measure, authorizing re-appointment of Canadian National Railway auditors, was put through all stages.

Lauded as Man of Peace

Mr. Rowe, commenting on the size of the amount involved in the bill, said: "The light of our immediate past does not reflect much encouragement in regard to the action necessary to secure our immediate future. It is a past strewn with blunders and failures and I say again, complacencies that are almost inexcusable."

He lauded the Prime Minister as "a great man of peace" and indicated his appreciation of Mr. King's personality and integrity but Canada needed "a Prime Minister speeded up to a war job."

Mr. Gardiner did not pull his punches when he opened up. The Conservative Party had got rid of more leaders since 1927 than any other political party in the empire, he said.

No Names Mentioned

Without mentioning them by name Mr. Gardiner commented on the party's treatment of its successive leaders, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, now Opposition leader in the Senate, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett and Hon. R. J. Manion.

Of the first, Mr. Gardiner said he was chosen at the end of the First Great War "partly because of his practices during the war." After one election "he was defeated because of the fact that he did more during the short time he was in office to disunite the people of Canada than any other man has done. Today he sits in another place.

"After he left the leadership of his party he took his place in the business life of thos country and in business life he made a failure.

"As a last resort he went to the other place from which he speaks today in order to attack and criticize the leadership and the government of Canada.

"After having driven the leader of whom I spoke a moment ago from the leadership of their party they chose another. They kept him in office until he lost an election. Then they hounded him inside this House and out of it until they drove him from public life.

Third Leader Called

"Then they chose still another. They called him the man of action, 'Fighting Bob.' He went through an election with them. Following that election they met in caucus in this city, just before the House met and on that occasion he offered them his services to carry on throughout theession or as long as they desired him to do so. But they turned him down and selected another leader who entered the House to lead their party.

"I submit, Mr. Chairman, that at the present time they are carrying on further intrigue with the idea of bringing back to this House another to lead them to greater success if possible.

"Well they may call that politics or they may call it whatever they life. I do not think it is even worthy the name of politics. Politics was never meant to be played that way."

Attacks Conservative Policy

He asked whether it was the lackadaisical policy of the Conservatives from 1930 to 1935 regarding flying that inspired the British Government to propose an Air Training Scheme here or the building of the Trans-Canada Airways System by Transport Minister Howe.

"There is no other man in Canada who can unite all the forces of this country to a greater degree than the present Prime Minister," Mr. Gardiner said. "That is why we stand behind him to a man. That is why the people of Canada stood behind him when war was declared."

Mr. Cleaver challenged the Opposition to move a want of confidence motion, accept the verdict of the chamber, "and let us get on with the war."

Declares Critics Sabotaging Effort of Government.

Mr. Cleaver declared that the Conservative critics of the Prime Minister, "self-styled Loyalists," were sabotaging the government effort as much as if they were destroying military property. He defied them to put their convictions to a vote.

Mr. Cleaver declared that "there is a sinister and organized movement to thwart the will of the people.

"This attack is being made within two months of the Prime Minister receiving the greatest support ever given a leader at anytime in our history.

"Such an attack is harmful to the war effort to the extent to which it has any effect on the morale and loyalty of the people and of the soldiers.

"These self-styled loyalists who have communed together inspire in me so much contempt for their tactics that parliamentary rules prevent my expressing it."

There had been demands that Finance Minister Ralston replace the prime minister. "If the finance minister became prime minister how long would he have the support of the Conservative opposition? Would he have it 24 hours?

"I would ask the finance minister if the prime minister ever thwarted his efforts in any way?"

"Quite the contrary," Col. Ralston interjected.

"I would also ask," Mr. Cleaver continued, "just when did it become the duty of the Conservative party to pick a Liberal leader? I will admit they have had a lot of practice picking leaders but there is nothing in the results to encourage us to ask them to make our choice.

"If you have any doubt about the fitness of the prime minister to lead this government, be men. put it to a vote.'

When the people of Canada gave the Liberal government its record-breaking endorsement on March 26, they were justified in believing the question of government leadership was settled for the next four years, said Gordon Ross (Lib., Moose Jaw).

Says People Have Decided.

"The Tories were decimated in the election but still believe apparently that they are born to rule," he said. "They don't seem to understand that the people have the right to decide."

The present campaign by Tory organizations, Tory press and Tory members to "undermine" the government at this time "almost borders on treason," Mr. Ross added.

Leadership of the government was being challenged by the weakest opposition in the history of Canada's parliament, Mr. Ross said. Having failed to win at the polls, the Conservatives were now trying the "parachute route".

Bruce McNevin (Lib. Victoria, Ont.) advocated organization of some guard duties for persons above the age limit for regular duties.

Mr. McNevin also noted that some buildings at the government-owned munitions plant at Lindsay, Ont., were still not in use again, although he was pleased to see the progress made in reconditioning the plant to date.

FORMER GARRISON

were evidently caught by surprise when Norwegian infantry stormed their defences. Thirty-four Royal Air Force planes from the Bardufos base subjected the Nazis to severe bombing. Five German bombers were downed by British Spitfires. The rest were put to flight.

Inside Narvik the Germans fought fiercely, but superior numbers carried the day and Allied losses were kept to a minmum.

Nazis Retreat Along Railway

The bulk of the Nazi force retreated along the railway while a rearguard covered their flight in furious street fighting which raged throughout the night.

By Wednesday forenoon the town had been cleaned out and most of the Germans had concentrated near Straumsnes in one of the 14 tunnels cut along the iron ore railway.

The Allied front lines were pushed from a point near Nygaards, on Rombak Fjord, along the road leading to the Swedish border through Stora and Torahaugfell.

South of Narvik the Allies were strongly entrenched at Bjerkfell and Ankenes.

Thursday morning British warships entered Rombak Fjord and shelled the railway tunnels which the Germans have fortified.

N. Z. VOTES POWER

not through a lack of volunteers but because it is considered fairer.

No Intention to Rush Things

The Bill gives the government power to conscript men and material without limit but there has been no indication of the extent to which the government proposes to use these powers immediately. Prime Minister Peter Fraser told Parliament that they will be used when required and that there is no intention to rush things.

He said it is not proposed that the government should conscript industrial plants without plan, because this would only lead to confusion. However, he said the urgency of the crisis had made it impossible efficiently to prosecute the war without compulsion.

Conscription Depends on Volunteering

The date of making conscription effective will depend on the numbers volunteering. The Labor Government normally would be against conscription, but it now takes the view that the country is fighting for its very life.

GENERAL PRIOUX'S

The Germans, however, still held Mount Cassel.

Nazi advance units pushed furiously to "Mount Des Cats", near Godewaersvelde, one of a series of French-Belgian frontier hills about 500 feet high.

South of the ridges studding the Flanders plain, the rest of the Prioux army continued to fight.

Dunkirk Protected By "Moat".

Like an ancient fortress, Dunkirk is protected by a semi-circular "coat" of muddy water several miles wide which rushed in from the sea when the Allies opened the canal locks.

Strips connecting the port with the Flanders pocket from which the Allies are withdrawing are reported firmly held by French and British units.

Military sources said that Germans advancing from the southwest had come to a halt at the water's edge. On the northeast side of the port, they said, the Nazis have not yet reached the water barrier and the Allies are combatting them in the area between it and the Yser Canal.

Prioux's army, the military reported, is retreating in a solid square giving battle on all sides in a gigantic modern version of a classic Napoleonic manoeuvre.

The air above Dunkirk has been "literally forbidden" to German planes by the hot fire of naval anti-aircraft guns co-operating with the British chaser squadrons operating from bases in England only a few minutes away, a military spokesman said.

The anti-aircraft batteries' destructive fire protected Allied entrenchments and convoys which were bringing in supplies as well as carrying out withdrawing troops.

Allies Still Hold Calais.

British and French marines were still holding Calais, according to the latest reports available here.

The eastern wall of the escape corridor was held by part of the British army and one French division along the Yser Canal line.

The defence line runs approximately from Lombaertzyde through Nieuport, passes eastward to the vicinity of Dixmude and then south in the direction of Ypres.

The western wall where the British have been reinforced by several French formations and parts of the French mechanized units runs from the coast west of Dunkirk clear to the western end of the line of Mounts near Cassel. It descends to the west of Bergues but veers off around Cassel where the Germans yesterday took the Mount of the same name.

The army under General Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux apparently was operating in two sections. One broke through the thin German line from Cassel to Poperinghe which the Nazis established temporarily yesterday. The other units were drawing back in their area.

The spokesman said that Dunkirk was holding solidly, strongly entrenched by French and British forces. He based this statement on "good news" received during the night, including word of arrival of French troops at the port.

The commentator said the Allied fleets kept a continuous shuttle service moving in and out of Dunkirk, carrying in supplies to the armies and carrying out tired and wounded soldiers together with auxiliary units whose operations no longer were needed in the battle zone.

The Germans were reported bringing up heavy reinforcements in an attempt to break the solid walls of the corridor through which the Allied forces were withdrawing to the sea.

French and British naval guns pounded the Nazi columns from the sea, while Allied planes continued a relentless bombardment of the German concentrations.

Activity Renewed on Somme

Meanwhile there was renewed activity on both sides of the Somme-Aisne-Meuse river front running from the English Channel east to the Maginot Line.

This was limited to localized zones, with the French Armies on the Somme launching several "small operations" which drew German counter-thrusts but left the line unchanged.

Patrol activity broke out anew in the Aisne sector east of Rethel.

In the Argonne Forest region between the Aisne and the Meuse, artillery batteries on both sides shelled each other's positions. A German raid was repulsed between the Meuse and the Moselle.

The Allied Northern army made a grim stand in an area estimated at 200 square miles, battling flanking slashes of the German Legions seeking to cut their line of escape.

A second British expeditionary force has arrived in France, it was announced yesterday, to take over the Somme salient.

The mechanized rear guard of the retreating forces in Flanders, commanded by General Jacques Adolphe Prioux, fought to delay the overwhelming German forces seeking to wipe out the Allied pocket.

Charles Morice, military commentator from the newspaper Le Petit Parisien, said the retiring movement of the French and British troops "have been executed without halt and despite fierce combats. It may be the Germans have taken prisoner several thousand tired and sick men who could no longer follow. Up to here they have not taken a single entire formation".

Overhead, warplanes of the R.A.F. and the French air arm flew on never-ending missions, bombing the concentrated efforts of 40 German infantry divisions and eight Nazi armored car divisions to close in from both sides of the pocketed Allies.

At either side of the harried Allies—along the southern edge of the triangle extending from Cassel to Gravelines, and the opposite line running from Nieuport to Ypres along the Yser river —were lowland areas flooded to a depth of 12 feet to stave off German thrusts at the embarkation point.

Locks Opened

Added to the protection of opened locks calculated to bog down German mechanized divisions were French sailors and marines entrenched around Dunkirk.

Vast stretches behind the high-duned seacoast north and south of Dunkirk were gashed by drainage canals that at low tide carry to the channel the Flemish streams.

The Nieuport and Gravelines locks, opened at the channel's peak tide, sent seawaters rushing over marshes protecting the corridor.

The flooding manoeuvre freed Allied troops guarding the port zone to bolster the forces streaming into Dunkirk from the bloody Flanders battlefields.

The main German effort to cut off the retreat centred at Mount Cassel, about halfway between Dunkirk and the Lille sector which General Prioux's rear troops abandoned yesterday.

The motorized rearguard last was reported fighting desperately against Nazi attacks from all sides.

At one point, midway between Lille and Dunkirk, the Germans threw a light line across the corridor from a point 12 miles northeast of Cassel to Poperinghe, but the extreme rear guard of French tanks smashed into it at once.

Closer to Dunkirk, the British infantry commanded by General Viscount Gort formed a wall on either side of the army cut off from the main French Somme forces for more than two weeks by the German drive to the channel coast.

Britain Becomes Fortress Against Hand of Enemy

Relentless Pursuit Goes on for 'Fifth Column' Equipment and Arms

DEFENCES READY

London, May 31 (CP).—Britons turned their island home into a formidable fortress today and authorities said they were ready to resist any threatened German invasion from across the English Channel.

With the possibility of direct attack brought nearer by the withdrawal of large British Expeditionary Forces from channel ports, people gave increasing concern to possible fifth column activities. From some quarters came the demand that General Sir Edmund Ironside be given plenary powers to coordinate military and civilian defences, under martial law if necessary.

To make sure that parachutists could find no effective help within the country Scotland Yard pressed a hunt for fifth column equipment, arms, ammunition and uniforms.

Along the Thames they went through every warehouse in the vast system of docks and stores. Furniture stored by refugees was carefully searched.

An undisclosed number of arrests were made in several districts of London. The prisoners, fifth column suspects, will be interned for the duration.

Vice-Admiral Sir James Somerville assured the nation in a radio address that defences were ready for any attempted landing whether from sea or air.

Increase Arms Production.

The government moved to increased armaments production by taking a census of all machinery in industry to see that it is employed to full capacity.

The government advised civilians to stay away from windows in event of an air raid. Investigation of effects of the recent German bomber crash at Claxton-on-Sea disclosed most casualties were caused by flying glass.

Authorities said experience showed a house provided good protection against bombs, provided proper precautions were taken. In congested areas, however, work proceeded on more public air raid shelters and householders who had been issued with garden shelters—the so-called "Anderson dog kennels"—were ordered to erect them immediately if they had not already done so.

German use of incendiary bombs in their invasion of the low countries prompted fresh precautions in the already huge program of fire prevention. Fire departments cooperated with the Ministry of Home Security in organizing hand-pump brigades.

However, the people were cheered by the news that the evacuation through Dunkirk was being carried out in an orderly manner and they stiffened themselves to accept news of the casualties.

Families of soldiers lost in action informed friends with brief announcements in newspapers classified columns, usually including the request: "No letters please".

Britons From War-Torn Countries.

Penniless refugees in their native land are more than 5,000 Britons who formerly lived in Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium. They include professional men, university professors and businessmen who now are forced to seek government relief. A British war refugee fund has been formed to aid them.

Two Divisions of French Army Reach Dunkirk

Paris, May 31—(AP)—Two divisions of the French rearguard for the Allied retreat from Flanders have reached Dunkirk, it was announced at the Ministry of Information press conference late today.

These divisions, numbering perhaps 30,000 men in all before they underwent the shattering attack in Flanders, were said to have entered the Channel town as German armored columns slashed around it.

The French rearguard covered itself in the manner of Caesar's forces—boxed in by armored phalanxes. The French infantry and artillery kept to the middle of the moving rectangle while tanks guarded four sides.

The divisions, commanded by General Rene Prioux, battered a path part way through the German lines of envelopment during the night and completed the retreat in daylight.

A Ministry of Information spokesman said Prioux' men fought a "marvellous battle" and their losses are "relative" rather than "catastrophic."

MICKEY MacKAY KILLED

Nelson, B. C., May 31 —(CP)— Mickey MacKay, star with the Vancouver Millionaires of the Pacific Coast hockey league 30 years ago, and former National Hockey League player, was killed Thursday in an automobile accident.

MacKay was fatally injured when his car crashed into a telephone pole near Ymir, 15 miles south of Nelson.

Air Protector

Admiral Evans

A World war naval hero, Admiral Sir Edward Evans, above, has been named by Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's aircraft production minister, to take charge of the "local protection and security of England's aircraft factories and air bases."

Mexican Authorities Want Correspondents For Questioning

Mexico City, May 31—(AP)—The Secretary of the Interior has asked the Attorney General to summon Arnaldo Cortesi, Mexico City correspondent of the New York Times, and Hal Burton, special writer for the New York Daily News, for questioning on reports of "fifth column" activity in Mexico which appeared recently in the two newspapers.

(At New York, a spokesman for the Daily News said the stories by Burton were "so well documented they speak for themselves." Other than this the paper had no comment. The Times also said it had no comment.)

The burden of the dispatches from Cortesi and Burton, as quoted by the Secretary of the Interior, was that German and Communist agents had established headquarters in Mexico and were collaborating to distract United States attention from Europe while German secret agents were organizing air and naval bases in various Mexican states.

Fascist Headquarters At Cornwall Raided

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—Investigation into operations of the National Unity Party in Cornwall are continuing. Royal Canadian Mounted Police officials said here today, but nothing definite will be made public for several days.

R.C.M.P. raided Cornwall headquarters of the Fascist organization yesterday and a large supply of literature was confiscated and brought to Ottawa. No arrests were made and it could not be determined here if any are planned.

"The Cornwall raid was connected with other raids which centred in Montreal," a police officer said.

100,000 MORE MEN WILL BE ENROLLED IN INDIAN ARMY

Simla, India, May 31—(CP — Reuters)—General Sir Robert Cassels, Commander-in-Chief of the army in India, announced today 100,000 additional men will be enrolled in the Indian army and that the Indian air force will be quadrupled.

General Cassels said the present situation in France indicated "a definite danger" of a spreading of the war which "might mean India would cease to enjoy immunity from enemy action."

"The new Indian army formations, the General added, would include motorized and mechanized units.

The Indian army now includes about 240,000 native troops, including reserves, and 57,000 British troops.

Some Indian troops have been sent to France, Palestine and Egypt.

'CHUTISTS KILLED HIGH IN AIR BY MANY BULLETS

London, May 31—(CP)— A soldier back from Flanders said today that German parachute troops didn't have a chance of landing near the front lines.

"I have seen German corpses landing with as many as 50 bullets in them," he said. "They were killed long before reaching the ground."

TELLER GRABS BANDIT'S GUN AND FOILS HIM

A. R. Dickson of Royal Bank Branch in Toronto Then Chases Would-be Robber

NO SHOTS FIRED

Toronto, May 31—(CP)—A tall, pale bandit was frustrated by a teller's courage today in an effort to hold up the Royal Bank of Canada at Bathurst and College Streets in the western part of Toronto.

The teller, A. R. Dickson, grabbed and captured the nickel-plated revolver the gunman was holding, then he and other bank employees pursued the bandit into the street. He jumped into an automobile and escaped. No shots were fired.

"Week-End" Fliers Have Downed 45 Nazis Since May 10

With the Royal Air Force in France, May 31 — (CP-Cable)— "Week-end" fliers of the First Royal Air Force auxiliary squadron to operate in France have destroyed 45 enemy aircraft since they arrived May 10.

In the thick of the fray along with the regulars, the auxiliaries, who learned to fly during their week-end leisure, have covered themselves with glory.

The squadron personnel includes a Canadian flying officer from Saint John. The Maritimer engaged in his first air combat Monday, downing a Heinkel III and helping his comrades dispose of another.

MAY NOW BE ENLISTED

London, May 31.—(CP)—Men of the Channel Islands, heretofore liable to military service outside their islands only for the task of rescuing the king in the event of his capture by an enemy, now may be enlisted in the British armed forces under the National Service Bill.

50 KILLED WHEN SHIP EXPLODES

Oslo, Norway, May 31.— (AP)— Dispatches from Bergen said 50 persons were killed today when the coastal steamship Jadarland, 1,000 tons, sank after an explosion near Haugesund, on Norway's west coast.

NAZI COMMUNIQUE

Berlin, May 31.—(AP)—The text of today's German High Command communique:—

"While the main force of the French troops in northeastern France are dispersed, some detachments encircled or scattered are still resisting locally.

Resistance, however, will be broken in the shortest time. The attack against the remainder of the English army in the flat country only a few kilometres deep protected by the rising waters of canals along the coast between Furnes-Bergues and west of Dunkirk is in progress. The opponent here is stoutly resisting in order to rescue as many soldiers as possible on ships if necessary, even without equipment.

"English forces encircled around Cassel were crushed during the attempt to break through northward.

(The Allied forces continued their withdrawal on Dunkirk, fighting fierce rearguard and flank actions, according to announcements in Paris and London. Troops surrounded near Cassel broke through German line to re-establish communication with the main forces, according to Paris.)

"The main force of the German divisions in Artois and Flanders now is released for new tasks.

"The number of prisoners and amount of booty could not yet be established, even approximately.

"Air force operations in the course of May 30 were considerably hampered by weather conditions.

"Nevertheless, however, harbor facilities of Dunkirk again were raided.

"The navy, all along The Netherlands coast and the coastal regions of Belgium and France in German hands, took over coastal defence.

"German speedboats succeeded in sinking by torpedo an enemy destroyer off the Belgian coast.

(This was possibly one of three British destroyers lost in the operations off the Flanders coast, announced by the admiralty last night).

"In the course of the night of May 30-31, British airplanes again attacked non-military targets in northern Germany.

"Not much damage done anywhere.

"One enemy airplane was shot down by a night chaser over southern Holstein.

"In northern France the enemy lost three French and at Stavanger (Norway) one British fighting plane in air fights.

"Two of our own planes are missing."

(The British Air Ministry has not yet issued a summary of operations for May 30).

Formerly an actress but lately a secretary, Miss Winnifred Male of Croydon, England, was left $2,350 by her employer, Wilfred Stanbury, a well-known solicitor.

English schoolboys who help the "grow more food campaign" by working on farms this summer will be paid fivepence an hour if under 16 and sixpence if 16 or over.

Told by the court they were "cruel women who inflicted savage punishment", a mother and daughter who run a school in Sussex were fined for flogging a boy aged four.

Missouri Fur Trader Gave His Name To World's Biggest Game Preserve

At Jasper House in the Fur-Trading Days: Top, a fur brigade of the early 70's leaves Jasper House in early winter with dog teams and sleds to trade among Indians in the Canadian Rockies; below, a section of Jasper House, showing the barred window and the legendary favorite vantage point where Jasper Hawes used to keep watch for the arrival of trappers. This picture was posed by the factor of the early 70's.

WHEN the little Hawes boy was christened, somewhere in Missouri, more than a hundred years ago, no one dreamt that he would give his name to a great National Park far away in the Canadian Rockies, the biggest game sanctuary in the world. Jasper's future was unknown to the folk back in Missouri when he was a little fellow. Today, though his name is familiar to thousands of travellers from all parts of the world, his past, his whole life, is a mystery.

His name was Jasper. He was a clerk in charge of one of the North-West Company's posts in the Rockies. Beyond that, little is known about him. He may have been Hawes, or Howes. It may have been England he came from and not Missouri, after all.

Whatever his story, Jasper left his name behind, in a mountain playground that stretches 4,200 square miles; in a lake and a town; and in Jasper Park Lodge, the famous summer resort hotel owned and operated by the Canadian National Railways.

It is unfortunate that Jasper Hawes did not keep a diary, for he knew such men as David Thompson, who traded for furs, fought the Indians and explored the great north-west. Thompson camped one winter on the Columbia Icefield, the greatest icecap outside the Arctic Circle and one of the world's scenic wonders. He explored at least two of the three big rivers whose sources are in this 110 square miles of glaciers and snow. He traced the Columbia to its mouth in the Pacific and followed the Saskatchewan, which runs into Hudson Bay and the Atlantic. He knew something of the third, too, the Athabaska which empties into the Arctic.

For thousands of years, the Columbia Icefield kept its splendor to itself. Then a few adventurers like Thompson found it out. Now it is open to the world. On Dominion Day, a new motor road, the Columbia Icefield Highway, connecting Jasper and Banff Parks will be formally opened. For the past two years this road has been open from the town of Jasper to the great Athabaska Glacier, centre of the Icefield in Jasper National Park, but on July 1st, the completed highway through to the South will be made available to tourists.

Two Seats Vacant In House; Members Are on War Duty

Ottawa, May 31.—(CP)—At least two seats in the House of Commons are unoccupied and will remain vacant most of the session due to enlistment of members in Canada's fighting forces. Back in the First Great War years greatest number absent on active service during any one session was 27 in 1917.

Early this year Denton Massey left his peacetime pursuits to take up a commission as flying officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, and subsequently he was re-elected Conservative member for Toronto-Greenwood. Adjutant of a squadron at Trenton, Ont., He has made an appearance in the House this session and it is expected he will fly up to Ottawa every month or so for a sitting.

Col. C. S. Booth, Liberal member for Winnipeg North, was in the capital only a few weeks when he was called back to command his regiment, the Winnipeg Light Infantry, on active service.

Former member of the R.C.A.F. and an engineer, A. R. Adamson (Con., York West) has received an appointment as flying officer, but has not yet accepted it. Mr. Adamson said today he felt his technical knowledge would enable him to serve Canada best as critic of the government's air production policies.

"Members who enlist in Canada's armed forces are not only granted leave of absence from the House during the time they serve, but are paid the full sessional indemnity of $4,000.

Most noticeable absentee on Parliament Hill is Lieut.-Col. Milton F. Gregg, Sergeant-at-Arms. Col. Gregg is on leave of absence overseas, commanding the West Nova Scotia regiment.

In 1918, Lieut.-Col. G. H. Baker, Conservative member for Brome, who had gone to France the previous year, was killed on active service. A life-size statue in bronze with a commemorative stone plaque at the entrance of the commons reminds members of the only one of their fellows killed in the war.

About a score of soldiers were elected in the 1917 elections, and some of them were actually fighting at the front at the time of the election. Among such men were Hon. C. G. Power, Minister of Defence for Air, and Hon. R. J. Manion, former Conservative leader.

First Units of Light Planes Begin Journey To Western Front

Ottawa, May 31.—(CP)— Three Stinson 105 planes being flown from Jamestown, N.Y., to an eastern Canadian port are believed by air officials here to be the first of a fleet of light commercial aircraft being purchased in the United States by the British Air Ministry to direct artillery fire on the western front.

Reports from Jamestown said the planes were sold to the Canadian government but it was believed here the purchaser was the British Air Ministry.

It is understood the planes will be shipped overseas as quickly as possible and can be put into action on the front when they arrive. They will be used in much the same capacity as observation balloons were utilized in the first Great War. The Stinson 105 is a three-seat craft with top-speed of 105 miles an hour and a slow landing speed.

Pilots flying the planes into Canada will probably be the first to make such flights under the recent amendment of the United States Neutrality Act.

German Successes Attributed to Treason

Paris, May 31 (AP)—A French military spokesman declared today that German military successes in Belgium were "directly due to treason."

"Without this treason," he said, "we would most probably still be fighting on the line of the Albert Canal."

He spoke of an incident in which only one officer knew how to blow up a bridge which the Nazi forces were able to cross over the Belgian canal fortifications.

"It is unbelievable" that no one under that officer's command of 50 men knew how to blow up the bridge, the spokesman said, adding: "Anyway, the French soldiers who attributed the German advance to the French command's mistakes now know where to place the blame."

BELIEVE NEGOTIATIONS BROKEN

London, May 31 (CP)—Authoritative circles said tonight that Italy had intimated on Tuesday that she considered Anglo-Italian negotiations over contraband control as broken off.

This indication was said to have been given despite agreement in principle reached last week for an easing of contraband control after Italian ships.

DONATES WAR TROPHIES TO STATE

London, May 31—(CP) — War trophies of the late Field Marshal Earl Roberts, including "priceless historic relics dating back for centuries," have been given by his daughter, Countess Roberts, to the state for melting down for munitions.

The gift was announced a few days after the death in action of Captain F. R. A. Lewin, nephew of the countess and grandson of the field marshal.

WAR BRIEFS

Germans Arrested in India

Calcutta, May 31 (CP-Reuters) —Eighty-five Germans, including women, most of them recently released from internment, were arrested today in a police roundup of "undesirable elements."

To Deport Undesirables

Canberra, Australia, May 31 (CP-Reuters)—The Australian House of Representatives today passed a bill giving the Commonwealth wide powers to deport undesirable aliens in a move regarded as foreshadowing an intensive drive against "fifth Columnists."

Glowworm Casualties

London, May 31 (CP)—A list of casualties in the sinking of the destroyer Glowworm by the Germans in a battle off Norway April 8 disclosed today that seven officers, 105 British seamen and three Maltese seamen were missing and presumed to be dead.

Among those lost was Lieutenant Commander G. B. Roope, commanding. The announcement said that one officer and 39 men also were taken prisoner.

Leopold Plans Plebiscite

Paris, May 31 (CP-Havas) — Pertinax reported in the newspaper L'Ordre today that Leopold, deposed King of the Belgians, planned to call general elections in the German-conquered territory as a "popular plebiscite" endorsing his capitulation.

Fernand Laurent, writing in Le Jour, said Leopold's capitulation was a premeditated act dating back in origin several years.

Pension Claims Filed

London, May 31—(CP)— A total of 3,382 pension claims have been filed for widows and orphans and 2,115 for parents and other dependents of men in war service, Sir Walter Womersley, Pensions Minister, told the House of Commons today.

Deny Gamelin Committed Suicide

Paris, May 31—(CP-Havas)— A French military spokesman today denied reports (apparently originating in Switzerland) that General Marie-Gustave Gamelin, former Allied Commander-in-Chief, had committed suicide and that General Andre Corap, Commander of the French army of the Sedan front when the Germans broke through, had been executed.

Killed in Action

Calgary, May 31 —(CP)—Pilot Officer Douglas W. W. Morris, of the Royal Air Force, was killed in action May 21, according to word received yesterday from England by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. C. W. Morris, Calgary. Earlier Dr. Morris had received a cable saying his son was missing.

Reported Missing

London, May 31—(CP)— Christopher Furness, 22, sports-loving bachelor son of Lord Furness, Chairman of the Furness shipbuilding firm, was reported missing today and believed to be dead after suffering severe wounds in the Flanders fighting. He was a lieutenant in the Welsh Guards.

FRENCH ADMIRAL HONORED

Paris, May 31 (AP)—French Admiral Jean Abrial was rewarded today for his direction of French naval forces holding the entrenched ports of Dunkirk (five words censored here) by promotion to the rank of Grand Cross of Legion of Honor. The official journal said he was honored for his "feats of war."

COMMUNISTS ARRESTED

Belgrade, May 31 (AP).—Several Communist demonstrators were arrested today after staging a noisy welcome when Vasily Lavrentieff, Soviet Minister to Bulgaria arrived to exchange documents with the foreign office ratifying the Soviet-Yugoslav trade treaty.

The demonstrators shouted "Long live the Soviet Union! Give us a military alliance!"

ITALIAN JOURNALISTS ARE LEAVING

Paris, May 31—(AP) — Italian journalists are leaving Paris today, a spokesman for the Ministry of Information said. He added that although this did not mean "inevitable" war with Italy it was possible the Italians would enter the fight within the next ten days.

GRACIE FIELDS ON WAY TO CANADA

London, May 31 (CP Cable) — Gracie Fields and her husband, Monty Banks, have left for Canada from a northwestern port, it was learned today.

The departure of the actress and her husband was made in great secrecy. Steamship officials were asked to refuse information and Gracie's London agent denied knowledge of her whereabouts or intentions.

RETURN WITH SOUVENIRS

London, May 31 (CP).—Men of the Allied forces returning from Flanders today, grimy but still singing, carried captured German weapons as souvenirs.

One bore a German officer's sword, another an enemy bayonet, a third a Nazi officer's revolver.

Some carried Bren guns of Czecho Slovak manufacture.

TO CREATE LAFAYETTE ESCADRILLE

Paris, May 31.—(AP)—A "Lafayette Escadrille of 1940" soon will be created with American fliers and money to fight for France, Humbert Clambente, Commander of the Paris American Legion Post, announced today.

Reports Nazi Plot To Overthrow Eamon de Valera

Yorkshire Post Correspondent Claims Documents Seized in Dublin Show Germans Plan to Land Parachutists in Eire

Leeds, England, May 31—(AP)— A Nazi plot to overthrow Prime Minister Eamon De Valera and land parachute troops in Eire was reported today by the diplomatic correspondent of the Yorkshire Evening News.

"From documents seized in Dublin in the last few days," he wrote, "De Valera is aware of Hitler's instructions to German agents in Eire to overthrow his government. Hitler has reached the final conclusion that nothing can be expected from De Valera, who has persistently refused to play the game of Germany and her I.R.A. Allies.

"German calculations are based on the conviction that whatever happens De Valera cannot ask for British help. The plan for Eire is based upon the arrival by parachute from troop-carrying planes of a sufficient number of shock troops to stiffen morale and instill military cohesion in the Irish Republican army formation.

"If the coup against Dublin fails and the friends upon whom allegedly Hitler can count in the Eire army draw back at the last moment, German agents consider it possible to overthrow the lawful authorities in large territories in western Eire. That area could then be used for landing detachments to seize bases on the coast with a view to future action by submarines.

"Thus, while his main forces face the British across the narrow straits of Dover, Hitler hopes to create a diversion in rear which would oblige the British to send large numbers of trops with equipment to the west."

Collegiate News

Some few weeks ago, at the request of the magazine concerned, the teachers of this school chose three of our best senior students and submitted their names to the "Magazine Digest." In the assembly last Monday these three students, Ruth Whitfield, Gerald Spafford, and Max Vetcher were each presented with a year's subscription to the "Magazine Digest", with the compliments of this company as a reward for the good work they have done throughout their high-school career. Congratulations!

Dress Parade

The Cadet Corps, affiliated with the Argyll Light Infantry Tank battalion, held their first dress parade Wednesday, May 29, at 2.10 p.m. under the direction of Captain Shiels, instructor, they went through the movement of the ceremonial to be performed on Wednesday, June 5, the day of formal inspection. The battalion, led by Lieut.-Col. Harvey Theobald, took a route march, passing down Front Street and formed mass on the lawn of the Armouries, moved in, and were dismissed.

Many of the boys were not properly dressed owing to lack of uniforms and some laziness. Both will be remedied before the next parade.
